The spectacular airborne landing in Holland will speed the Allied advance in the west but the full fruits of this are not yet apparent and such a huge operation is not possible on every front.

The German ability to wage war has been dreadfully crippled by heavy casualties on this and the eastern front coupled with air blows, but falling back into Germany has given them advantages of easy supply, of fighting in friendly country and the psychological spur of fighting for their homes.

These same factors enabled the Russians to hold the Germans in 1941 and 1942 and military men feel it would be stupid to rate the Germans any less courageous than any other race.

Despite the split between the Nazis and the German military caste, Hitler is being obeyed. German soldiers are fighting and dying rather than give up an inch.

The Allies have their own problems which need time to lick. It took about 50 days to build up the knock-out military punch in Normandy. Since then the Allies have not had time to draw a deep breath.

If Hitler was killed and the Nazis thrown from power the position might change overnight but if Hitler stays in power it is an even money bet among the men doing the fighting that there never will be an armistice such as ended the last war.

Russians Again Crossing Vistula At Warsaw, Claim

London, Sept. 23 (CP)—Russians are again crossing the Vistula at Warsaw and "heavy fighting is going on in sectors of the western bank, where the Soviet units are landing," a broadcast communique from Gen. Bor's Polish Partisan headquarters announced today.

The communique, made public by the Polish government in London, said Bor's forces were attacking the Germans from the rear.

Russian authorities have remained silent on the operation, perhaps waiting until a bridgehead within the Polish capital is secured.

Bor acknowledged receipt of food dropped in Warsaw by Soviet planes last night. He said, however, that the food situation remained critical.

TANKS' PRESENCE ENDS RESISTANCE HUN AT BOULOGNE

Last Terms Message From Canadians Soon Makes Nazi Leader Yield

ENEMY LOSES

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians at Le Portel, France, Sept. 23 (CP Cable) — A formation of tanks brought the Finish and German resistance at Boulogne yesterday not by an attack they put on but solely by their presence, poised and waiting to have a last crack at this German garrison.

When he surrendered, the German commander, Lt.-Gen. Iheim, said it was the tanks that forced his decision, since he had nothing left with which to fight off armored attacks on his last fortified position.

It was fortunate for him and for those who remained in the garrison with him that he did surrender. The Canadians had everything needed to have given him a terrific pounding from the air, from tanks and flame-throwers, from artillery and from infantry weapons.

The Canadian commander set a soldier to the forts to tell the Germans they must surrender or die. Then he wrote a note to the German commander telling he had already lost the battle of Boulogne and more than 7,000 prisoners.

"You have one hour to make up your mind," the message said. "Come out with your hands above your head and unarmed. If this does not occur we will comence at once to destroy you with your garrison. You have had your warning.

"Surrender or die from flames."

Finally a Montreal officer entered the fort with the Canadians' last terms. Soon afterwards there was a great explosion from the fort as demolitions were carried out.

Infantrymen reported some white flags showed but some pill-boxes of Germans showed little inclination to give in. The Canadian commander ordered the tanks to fire.

The Germans softened immediately and in no time at all the Canadian commander was on his way to accept the German surrender. So ended the battle for Boulogne.

PILOTS BURY GERMAN GUN

Somewhere in France, Sept. 22 (AP) — American fighter pilots supporting American 1st. Army troops in Germany not only knocked out one big German gun but buried it, too. The fighters found the Germans had pulled the gun back into a tunnel. Twice the American fliers dive-bombed the tunnel, sealing both ends.

Falls 3,000 Feet Unhurt, Parachute Fails to Open

With American Troops on Moratai Island, Moluccas, Sept. 23. (AP) —Pte. Joe Aiello plummeted 3,000 feet when his parachute failed to open, and yet escaped without a single broken bone.

Tree tops broke the fall of the youth from the Bronx, N.Y. Doctors theorized that the fact he was unconscious when he hit the trees and relaxed when he landed probably saved his life.

He was ordered to bail out from a Liberator that developed engine trouble while on a mission to the Philippines. Aiello said he lost consciousness just before he hit the trees.

When he came to, Aiello said, "I was scared to open my eyes for fear I might see angels".

AMERICANS WIDEN BREACH IN CENTRE OF GOTHIC LINE

IN PO VALLEY

Rome, Sept. 23. (CP)—British 8th Army troops on the Adriatic flank of the Italian front have opened a drive northwest from captured Rimini on the coast to Bologna roughly 70 miles away, while other units of the 8th plunged north toward Ravenna, 35 miles up the coast and 45 miles east of Bologna.

Rimini fell Thursday to Greek forces under Canadian command.

American infantry of the Allied 5th Army widened their breach in the centre of the Gothic line with the seizure of Monte Citerna and Monte Tronale, both west of captured Firenzuola. High ground north of Firenzuola was occupied.

Columns spearing northward along the mountain roads were meeting an enemy which Allied headquarters declared was becoming disorganized "to a limited extent".

Futa Pass Objective.

British and Brazilian forces with the 5th Army continued to make gains "against varied resistance", said an Allied headquarters report.

The Brazilians, operating on the left flank of the 5th Army near the Ligurian Coast, were last reported smashing forward from Pietrasanta in the direction of La Spezia, 23 airline miles distant.

Today's communique said the 8th Army had mopped up all resistance south of the Marecchia River which empties into the Adriatic at Rimini, and that the bridgehead across the river, over which the thrusts toward Ravenna and Bologna have been launched, was "considerably enlarged".

Bridgehead Three Miles Wide.

The bridgehead was reported three miles wide and two miles deep. Advancing 8th Army troops were taking an increasing toll of prisoners.

Advance elements were astride Highway 9—the ancient Via Aemilia —which extends northwest on the southern edge of the Po Valley through Forli, Bologna and Modena toward Milan. They were also astride parallel rail lines and began pounding northward up highway 16 toward Ravenna and the Po Estuary.

The Allied Command paid special tribute to the 1st Canadian Infantry division for its leading role in the offensive which carried it from the Metauro River through the Gothic Line to the new bridgehead over the Marecchia and the gateway to the Lombard Plain.

BREAKS FAST TO CARRY ON FURTHER PROTEST

St. Louis, Sept. 23 — (AP) — Chester Lake broke today what he said was an 86-day fast in protest of "political domination" of the rural electrification administration. The 53-year-old former field representative of the R.E.A., dismissed from the agency last June 30, said he wanted to "save myself to fight further for the R. E. A. and the proposed Missouri Valley authority and all public power."

CANADIAN UNITS ARE IN ACTION NEAR ANTWERP

Artillery Duels Rage Between Canadians And Germans in Vital Dock Area of City

A STRANGE WAR

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadians in Antwerp, Sept. 23 —(CP Cable)— Canadian formations are fighting mortar and artillery duels with German troops across the Albert canal in the vital dock area of this second largest city in Belgium.

(This dispatch was the first indication that Canadian units are in action near Antwerp, although Canadian forces of Lt.-Gen. Crerar's 1st Canadian Army are hammering toward the estuary of the Schelde river, 30 miles west and slightly north.)

It is a strange war in this beautiful city. Five minutes away from the port district the city teems with civilian activity. There are cinemas and luxurious hotels where you can get rich food and hot baths.

An Ontario unit which I visited Thursday was still discussing an exciting action which they fought a few hours earlier.

Maj. Donald MacKenzie of Ingersoll, Ont., and Maj. Telford Steele of Chatham, Ont., recalled the events of the skirmish.

"Our Typhoons came over at 6:30 p.m. to attack one of the old forts built by the Belgians around Antwerp in 1880," MacKenzie said. "An hour later dusk fell and a fighting patrol of German infantry came wading across the flooded dykes behind a fierce motar barrage."

Steele added the Canadian units had withdrawn for some 200 yards under the weight of the mortar fire until they could call for the help of a Canadian artillery force commanded by Maj. Bill Carr of Toronto.

Guns Plaster Area

Canadian guns plastered the area with shells and to this fire was added the mortars of another battalion. During four hours an artillery and mortar duel was waged furiously. The Canadians eventually won the encounter, driving back the Germans.

Outside headquarters a group of men who had been in the action were describing the gallantry of their commanding officer. Wounded severely in both legs during the early stages, he had refused to be evacuated and remained in his control room throughout.

Among the men relaxing were Sgt. John McKinnon of Sydney, N.S.; Sgt. Les Dugan of Windsor, Ont.; Cpl. Benoit Doucet of Digby, N.S.; L. Cpl. Glen Piper of Windsor, Ont., and Ptes. Allan Lancefield, of Aldershot, Ont., and David Llewellyn of Hamilton, Ont.

'Highway to Victory' Two-Way Road Carying Supplies to Troops in France

By MARSHAL YARROW
(Reuter War Correspondent)

Paris, Sept. 23 —(CP Reuter)— A mighty fleet of huge trucks shuttling backwards and forwards across France day and night, is the only thing that keeps the Allied armies from running out of supplies in their swift advance.

Four times as long as the famed Burma Road, the two-way road network is a veritable Allied "Highway to Victory."

Approximately 25,000 soldiers directed by Lt.-Gen. John C. H. Lee commanding the general communications zone, ride this highway network day and night, speeding petrol, ammunition and food to the troops in the front lines.

The trucks use 30,000 gallons of gasoline daily and at present the freight carried amounts to 30,000,000 ton-miles or the equivalent of carring one ton of freight around the world 700 times. Some of the return trips are 1,000 miles, although the average run is about 700 miles.

Motorized Over Night.

All day columns of trucks roll along the two major highways, one eastbound, the other westbound. In the first 26 days' operation, the system delivered more than 200,000 tons of supplies to the western front. It was started Aug. 24 after the breakthrough at Saint Lo made the supply problem acute.

Gen. Patton motorized his division overnight by mounting his infantry on its own supply trucks. This forced communications zone commanders to "throw the rule book out the window" and improvise. Strain became tremendous and racing convoys bucked against each other.

Drivers fell asleep at the wheel and crashed. Convoys were diverted, split up, lost and even kidnapped by a unit needing supplies and vehicles. The opening of the new highway hook-up brought order from chaos.

It is built around a pattern of circuitous one-way roads. A truck-train heading to battle dumps travels along one side with food, gasoline and ammunition. It returns on other side, usually loaded with captured enemy goods. The average driving speed is 25 miles an hour and the pace is usually maintained 20 hours daily, although some drivers have worked 36 hours without relief.

Seizure Opens Gulf Of Finland to Units Of Russian Fleet

Other Forces Battling Within Defences of Riga

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

Moscow, Sept. 23—(AP)—Capture of Tallinn, Estonian Naval Base and capital, opened the gulf of Finland today to the Soviet Baltic fleet, and strongly imperiled all the remaining Nazi strongholds in the Baltic states.

Front dispatches said Russian troops to the south already were battling within the outer defences of Riga, Latvia's capital, seizure of which would cut off land escape routes for the Germans caught between there and Tallinn.

At the same time other dispaches from Western Transylvania said Red Army tanks were lunging close to the Romanian-Hungarian frontier after seizing Arad, important road and rail junction 10 miles from the border. The campaign for the capture of the Hungarian capital of Budapest, lying directly in the path of Soviet forces rolling across the flat country, was said to have begun.

The Russian War Bulletin said Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad Army, in addition to taking Tallinn, captured 800 more towns yesterday, including the strategic rail junction of Tapa, 43 miles southeast of the Stonian capital.

Blast Evacuation Ships.

Airmen from the Baltic fleet blasted Nazi evacuation ships in the Tallinn harbor, sinking three loaded troop transports and damaging other vessels.

Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's 3rd Baltic Army captured 60 localities along the Estonian-Latvian frontier northwest and west of Valga, the War Bulletin added.

Other gains in Romania were registered by the taking of Semlac, on the Mures River west of Arada, which put one Soviet column 38 miles from Szeged, Hungary's second city, and 122 miles southeast of Budapest. Another town to fall was Simandul, 18 miles north of Arad and six miles from the Magyar frontier.

In Southern Poland the Russians captured 30 villages southeast of Sanok near the Czechoslovakia border, extending the Red Army front opposite Slovakia and Northern Hungary.

Moscow remained silent on progress in the fighting for Warsaw. A Polish communique from the capital asserted Polish partiots had made contact with Red Army forces in the northern and southern districts of the city after the Russians had crossed the Vistula.

Egorov and Konrad Together Again

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

Egorov Nikolai Dmitrovitch, 14-year-old Russian impressed into the German army as a batman, was captured by the Canadians in the assault on Boulogne and was happy about it — except that Sgt. Winnegess Konrad of Heildelburg, a soldier who had befriended him, was missing.

Since his capture, Egorov watched each batch of prisoners to see if Konrad was among them. Yesterday he was rewarded.

Konrad came along the road, a captive. The boy batman went wild with joy. Sgt. Tom Giles of Winnipeg gave Konrad permission to break ranks and the sergeant and batman ran to each other, hugged and cried like babies.

Everything is fine, at least for the moment. Konrad and Egorov are going to move back from the forward area together and at least they will have a new more days' companionship. When last seen together, they were as happy as could be. Young Egorov was larking about, squinting at Konrad through a magnifying glass.

Four Home Services' Campaign Opens on Monday for $15,000 To Support Ever-Growing Work

There are four "Home Services" to which the people of this community—urban and rural—will have an opportunity to subscribe within a limited period beginning on Monday of next week. These essential organizations are the Y.M.C.A., the Children's Aid Society, the Victorian Order of Nurses and the Salvation Army. Their good works are known to all citizens who will require no great urging to contribute to the campaign objective of $15,000—a sum really quite modest in view of the services rendered.

The objective is within ready reach if the response is as general and as generous as the community campaign is necessary and meritorious. The Y.M.C.A. is a community asset of tested value. As the pivot around which so many youth projects move it pays dividends well beyond its maintenance costs.

The function of the Salvation Army is different and distinctive. It is equally vital, however, and deserves all consideration. The wide ramifications of the "Army" among all classes of life with favor to none, and succor to all that need it, is a household word in Canadian communities.

The ever - increasing wartime needs of the Victorian Order of Nurses, are placing a heavy strain not only on the physical capacities of its personnel but on the coffers as well. Many a city home has thanked God for the V.O.N. and their work along humanitarian lines has been something the city and district could not have done without.

The Children's Aid Society, working quietly but efficiently, has brought happiness to many a homeless little waif, and help to needy families. Like other wartime social service organizations its facilities have been called upon until they have almost reached the limit of elasticity.

The Community Fund appeal is therefore made with full confidence that the campaign will speedily be crowned with success, thus assuring continued activities that touch directly and deeply the citizen body. Every human being is entitled to at least some happiness and comfort. Those of us who are fortunate enough to be blessed with the necessities to ensure this happiness can add to their own by seeing to it that those less fortunate get their rightful share.

Fifteen thousand dollars, some will say, is a lot of money. But, if everyone "digs down" and gives what he or she can afford, there should be little difficulty in reaching the objective.

The campaign starts Monday. Remember the needs of the Home Front, and help sustain the morale of the boys overseas by maintaining that of those who are sorely tried over here.

Bdr. Cecil Cook Wants to Stay Till It's Over "Over There"

"Sometimes I wish I could be home, but after seeing some of the things that have happened to the French people, I would not be any other place in the world until this war is over.

So writes Bombardier Cecil Cook, son of Mrs. James Cook, St. Paul Street a member of the 34th. Batter, R.C.A., now in France.

Substantiating his statement, Bdr. Cook relates: "This morning a Frenchman wandered into our gun position. He had travelled 15 miles and had passed through the Nazi lines. He had been a prisoner and had escaped. He had rags on his feet for boots; his body was a mass of red welts from his waist up, and he was more dead than alive. One of our boys gave him a couple of cigarettes and he actually ate them. Only then did we realize how hungry he must have been. We gave him some tea and a sandwich, and he broke down and cried.

Never Tasted Chocolate

Watching little children three and four years of age, who have never tasted chocolate and don't know what it is when it is given them, and people, who clamber all over military vehicles in frantic efforts to reach proffered cigarettes, gave Bdr. Cook an idea of what the people of this occupied territory were forced to do without.

"The people of Canada have been living the life of kings. How these people can have their homes blasted to bits, with nothing left but their hides and then give you a smile and the V sign is beyond me."

French people in his vicinity learned to say "Canadian" and "thank you" very quickly, says the Bombardier. "My French is not very good but by flapping my arms and cackling like a hen I managed to get an egg from a farmer. After what I went through to get it, I am surprised I did not lay one myself."

Popularity of the Canadian troops is evidenced in an experience of Bdr. Cook, when a friend and he went to a small village. Asking at a French house for a drink of water, the two Canadians were deluged with demonstrations of welcome.

Produced a Bottle

"From some hidden source, they produced a bottle of wine. We drank a toast to France and the householders sang the 'Marseillaise.' One girl, who had a beautiful voice, sang 'Indian Love Call' and 'Rose Marie.' Before long she had a crowd of French people and other Canadian soldiers around the house. We got a piano player from the battery and we had a real sing-song."

Bdr. Cook struck a note of optimism in his closing phrase, "Have a good Christmas dinner ready, for we'll all be home to enjoy it."

FO. J.G. Jeffrey Returns to Canada

Overseas for more than a year and having completed his tour of operations as a pilot with an R. C. A. F. bombing squadron, Flying Officer J. G. Jeffrey, son of Mrs. Edith Jeffrey, 319 Albert Street, has been returned to Canada and has been stationed to Ferry Command headquarters at Montreal. Before assuming his new duties he will take a special course at North Bay.

Born in Sidney township 34 years ago, F/O. Jeffrey was salesman with the Metropolitan Life in the Kingston district prior to his enlistment in the airforce in 1939. After completing his training as a pilot he was posted as flying instructor in Canada and received his commission at Rivers, Manitoba, in 1943 before going overseas. While overseas he had taken part in shuttle bombing operations over enemy targets.

Before reporting to North Bay for his special training course he visited with his brother, Everett Jeffrey, 59 Burton Street, and with his sister, Mrs. Alfred Wickett of Foxboro. His wife, a former Smith's Falls girl, and their two children, have been residing in that centre.

Trenton Station May Be Base For New Command

Trenton, Sept. 23 — (CP)—Possibility that the big R.C.A.F. air base here might become the headquarters of a new command to result from the fusion of No. 1 Training Command, Toronto, and No. 3 Training Command, Montreal, was seen here today following announcement in Ottawa that the two commands would be amalgamated.

In announcing the amalgamation, Air Minister Power said a spot had not been selected but he thought the headquarters would be located at a station midway between Toronto and Montreal.

Although no official word has been received, airmen here speculated that Trenton would be a likely spot.

Air officials in Ottawa had no comment to make on the possibility. Maj. Power left there yesterday and is believed en route to Quebec.

German Peace Terms Said Drafted; U.S. May Keep 100,000 Troops There

The United States will probably keep an occupational army of 100,000 in Germany, with Great Britain and Russian each keeping an equal force there, as part of the sacrifice that must be made to help quarantee permanent peace once the Nazis have been forced into unconditional surrender.

This is the declaration of Quentin Reynolds, famous war correspondent, in a signed article in the current issue of Collier's. On the basis of talks with official peace draftsmen of the United States, Great Britain and Russia, he reveals that "the blueprints for the eventual peace were drawn some time ago".

"A good guess for the immediate future would be that we'll move some 300,000 troops into Germany and keep them there", Reynolds writes. "Russia, Britain and ourselves could each contribute a third of that number". Then at some later date, he adds, the three powers may adopt Russia's proposal to use a three-power air force to police Germany.

"It isn't pleasant to visualize American youngsters spending part of their youth policing a foreign country, but the men could be replaced at fairly short intervals," he points out. "It isn't pleasant, but we're all after a permanent peace (something the world has never had), and, to attain it, we will have to pay a high price".

Four Other "Mistakes".

Reynolds also asserts that four other "mistakes" in the Hitler-denounced Versailles Treaty are likely to be corrected by the already-drawn blueprints for permanent peace. These likely provisions are:

1.—Germany will be deprived of a standing army, instead of being permitted, as by the Versailles Treaty, an army of 100,000.

2.—Germany will be demilitarized—that is, forbidden to make any weapons—for the next fifty years.

3.—Germany will be denied all aircraft, including 'sports planes' in which many Luftwaffe pilots learned to fly prior to the war.

4.—Germany will be forced to surrender not only her arms but her war potentials: the machinery for making arms, explosives, machine tools, and aircraft.

5.—Germany will have her chemical industry rigidly controlled, and her raw materials will be rationed to manufacturers "only when the evidence is conclusive that they are to be used for the making of peace-time commodities".

"Those I have spoken to agree that the present war would have been averted", Reynolds says, "if the Versailles treaty had not allowed Germany a standing army of 100,000 men. Give a country an army of 100,000 men (we had only 180,000 in 1940) and she can make that a nucleus for an army of millions. Give a country an army of absolutely no men, and she will have considerable trouble making it grow".

He also declares that "plenty" of the United Nations statesmen with whom he has talked, "are going to raise very strong voices" if anyone proposes that Germany should be permitted to manufacture any small arms. They would permit her to import such arms from foreign countries for internal policing purposes only.

"In short, our peacemakers (I hope) are thinking of a postwar Germany which has no army, no navy, no air force, and no military naval or air attaches stationed abroad", Reynolds asserts.

"Stringent and if necessary harsh supervision over Germany for the next fifty years or so is not a gesture of revenge. It is merely a matter of security".

Canadian Novelist Sells Picture Rights For $100,000

Toronto, Sept. 23. (CP)—Gwethalyn Graham, Canadian novelist, has sold the film rights to her new novel, "Earth and High Heaven", to R.K.O. for $100,000, it was made known here. The novel is the Literary Guild's choice for October and a condensed version in four parts appeared in Collier's in serial form. Serial rights were sold for $7,500 and Book Club rights for $42,000.

Miss Graham was to arrive in New York this morning from Montreal to attend festivities preceding publication of the book Oct. 4.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Erichsen Brown of Toronto, Miss Graham's work as a novelist first won public notice when she received the Governor-General's medal for her first novel, "Swiss Sonata", in 1936. Since then the 30-year-old author completed three other novels but these were discarded without being submitted to a publisher.

"Earth and High Heaven" will be published simultaneously in London, New York and Toronto.

Opinion is Divided On Orchard Damage Caused by Wind

Opinion is divided among local orchardists as to the extent of the damage which may have been caused as the result of Thursday night's comparatively high wind storm which scattered leaves and blew loose refuse in disorder around corners of buildings.

One Sidney township orchardist, Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson doubted that any great damage would result from the wind, claiming that unless trees were on a hill, McIntosh apples would in all probability be the only variety of apples affected. A second orchardist on the front of Sidney claimed there would be a heavy drop of all varieties of all late apples.

McIntosh apples are now in the process of being picked with farmers claiming the crop as only average.

Ald. McDougall's Proposal

Alderman McDougall's notice of motion in city council on Monday of last week that he would move at the next meeting that a motion be introduced to have a bylaw prepared to be voted upon by the electors at the forthcoming civic elections for the election of aldermen for a period of two years and starting with next year the seven aldermen receiving the highest number of votes be elected for two years, is one that should draw some attention.

The plan if approved would be a means of assuring that at least half the council of every year would have had some experience in civic government and that hence there would be continuity in the civic body from year to year, with half the council elected every year. It is also believed that the voting each year for the election of seven members for two-year terms would intensify interest in elections and in the work of the council.

The proposal would mean that for the first year under the plan the number of aldermen to be elected would be fourteen, seven elected for two years and the next seven for one year. At the end of that year the latter would come to the end of their term and would be available along with any others who wished to be candidates, to enter the contest for thee seven seats for two years. After the first year seven would be elected each year for two years.

The proposal appears to possess sufficient merit to warrant its submission to the electors at the forthcoming municipal elections in order that they may express their opinion upon it.

Amid Nazi Wreckage

Hitler and Germany find themselves standing virtually alone in the midst of the wreckage of their "empire of aggression." They never conquered Europe. They "overran" by the fell sweep of their prewar preparations and diabolical deeds but they never held real power in these lands they swept over.

So too great praise cannot be given to the underground which has been in close touch with Britain and with their friends in exile for out of this loyality of the underground has come the magnificent aid which has seen France and other lands caught up in the flood of liberation. In spite of the despotic imperialism and militarism of the Hun the patriotic underground acted, sabotaged, and kept alight the torch of freedom. This is assurance of the greatest hope for the revival of the liberated lands once the Allied wave of freeedom has swept back the Huns.

Today Hitler and Germany cannot but collapse. It is true that Hungary is still in the Axis orbit but she is not an enthusiastic partner of the Reich which has weakened so much in the past few months. Every underground force in Europe is at work and the patriot armies are regular armies battling the Hun. The great numbr of nationalities which are united under the Allied banner is really a world in arms against Hitler's tyranny.

Germany has not a friend. The association with Japan helps little if any the wolfish Fuehrer. Hundreds of thousands of Germans surrender and so goes the story of tottering Nazism.

The world thinks with General Montgomery that further weakness in the Hun armor is seen in the Hitler assumption of the command of the German armies. Germany's generals, steeped in militarism and devoted to all that militarism means, are superseded by the one-time Austrian corporal who left his own country because Germany provided him with the opportunity for tyranny. He has come near to the end. The man who thinks in terms of himself stands in a precarious position for he knows that his name appears among the men who caused the war and atrocities which have been perpetrated. So his assumption of the command is not the attainment of leadership by reason of military ability for he has never shown military genius but his decision to assume the command was dictated by his own desires and fears and by the precarious plight in which he lives. His leadership has in the past proven disastrous and it can be still disastrous in these days when all real hope of victory must have departed from the Germans. A story from Metz the other day was that Hitler asked the city to hold out a few days as he had another secret weapon nearly ready. There then is Hitler, trying to find something, trying to trust in a fetish to save him and his infamous doctrines from being engulfed in Allied victory. If his armies of many millions could not win, no robot bomb can preserve him.

Hitler stands surrounded by the wreckage and evil to which he has brought Germany with her own consent. Nearer come the United Nations armies. The Germans whether they fight to the "last ditch" or whether armies after armies of theirs are surrounded and forced to surrender are nearing their judgment. Hitler's command of the armies like Hitler's trust in soothsayers and sycophants can avail Germany nothing. It is the behavior of him whom Field Marshal Montgomery called "a lunatic."

They Flee

Hitler's "administrators" in occupied lands, his men of "blood and iron," surprised no one when they fled to save themselves from the Allies advancing with liberation. The men who ruled with brutality were cowards at heard. It is odd how men who could torture and condone tortures have a sense of fear but they have. These representatives of the Fuehrer have given a true sidelight into the character of men that thrive on tyranny and crime and at the sight of danger to themsives fly to save themselves.

War Criminal Executed

In Rome has been enacted the execution after due trial of one who had given fifty Italian hostages to the Germans to be executed. Justice had caught up with the cruel Pietro Caruso, Fascist and pro-Nazi chief of police of Rome.

Much has been heard of "war criminals." Pietro Caruso was one of these and he was probably the first to be tried and sentenced for his inhumanities.

War criminals throughout Europe must shiver as they read of this man who was brought to justice. It can be taken for granted that the Nazi world was deeply interested in the course of the trial and the swift execution of the order of the court upon Caruso's conviction and sentence.

History—Balkan Style

(Christian Science Monitor, Boston)

They don't write them gaudier in Hollywood. And the movies rarely make so much sense. Place: Bucharest. Time: The eleventh hour. Scene: The palace gateway to the palace yard.

There is a rasping of tires against the gravel, a screaming of the rubber on the hard pavement as young King Michael's car lurches through the great gates and swings into the street. Then the scene switches to the interior of another car. The Queen Mother, Helen, is the chief occupant. She holds a little pistol, ready to shoot.

This one was written in Bucharest, not for the amusement of weary audiences but for a nation's future. It was enacted apparently with trigger-quick decisions and sagacious calculations in timing, and with an eye to the odds. A dozen Anthony Hopes and Phillip Oppenheims will further embroider this striking brocatelle as time goes on.

But we like it the way it has just come out of Bucharest, with just enough glamor to leave the point clear—that it takes more courage and wit to get out of bad company like the Axis than it does to get into it.

Robomb Failure

(Montreal Herald)

But the most damaging result of the abortive vengeance was the fact that, having put all their eggs in one basket, they, the Germans, had to sit by and see the eggs smashed. Airplane and other production was cut back, to make flying bombs. They were sold and oversold to the German people. But the physical and psychological punch was blocked. The "miracle weapon" wound up a dud. And Germany took a long step closer to defeat.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

"How's fishing?" and he looked at me
  And sadly shook his head
As if this were a tragedy:
  "Not good at all!" he said.

"I've tried it in the north and south
  And in the east and west,
And haven't found one hungry mouth
  Where bass should bite the best."

There was a look upon his face
  I plainly understood.
There's little joy about the place
  When fishing isn't good.

Man seldom sounds a sadder note
  Than when he comes at night
To mutter as he moors the boat:
  "All day without a bite!"

Montreal Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, Sept. 22 —(CP)— For the second consecutive week the international spotlight has been turned on Canadian cities — last week Quebec for the Churchill-Roosevelt conference and this week in Montreal for the second council meeting of the 44-member nations of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Both gatherings are of the highest international significance, the first symbolizing the ability of nations to organize for war and the latter representing the hope of the world, that the same kind of cooperation can be effective in peace time.

It was significant too that both conferences were influenced by uncertainty about the attitude of Russia.

There was no Russian representative at Quebec and Marshal Stalin sent a message declining an invitation to come, explaining that he was too busily engaged directing his armies.

That was an explanation with which neither Prime Minister Churchill nor President Roosevelt quarrelled and they publicly said they appreciated that Stalin was properly absent.

Here, at Montreal Russia is represented by a delegation of nearly sixty, headed by the 41-year-old, robust, ebullient Vasili Sergeev, but it is a well-known fact about the conference halls that little is known by the council of the Russian plans for using and co-operating with UNRRA.

The Russian delegates, are friendly obviously appreciative of everything that is being done for them or revealed them, but remain silent on what is in their own minds.

Under the chairmanship of Canada's L. B. (Mike) Pearson, Canadian Minister in Washington, this meeting is more productive of press conferences than the first at Atlantic City but as usual, the most interesting tid-bits of news come from button-holing delegates who are willing to talk or have axes to grind.

Montreal with its numerous well stocked and reasonably priced places to eat and drink are heaven alike to the people who have come from war restricted areas and the overcharged and often steakless Washingtonians.

The real work of the international conference of this type is done in hotel rooms and delegation headquarters where differences are talked away and compromises made so that conduct of business on the conference floor may be harmonious and fast. This method is expected to iron out the difficulties standing in the way of making UNRRA a truly humanitarian agency by extending its aid to peoples of conquered countries, regardless of how much they may deserve to suffer in the eyes of those upon whom they inflicted war and cruelties.

One of the wisest and most significant statements of these crowded days was made by Chairman Pearson when asked how long the conference would last. "These days," he said, "the duration of international conferences is decided by hotel managements." The reservation on the Windsor Hotel, conference headquarters, expires early next week.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

V-DAY CELEBRATION

214 Dufferin Avenue,
Belleville,
September 20, 1944.

Editor The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville.

Dear Sir:

I had been hoping that someone with a more able pen would write to your paper in the interest of securing a sane celebration of the coming V-Day, or that some leading citizen would verbally raise the plea for suitably expressing our feelings on that day without recourse to alcoholic stimulants.

There is no doubt that there will be a spontaneous outburst of joy, and a great deal of individual initiative in proclaiming relief from pent-up feeling, but the deep-down basis for such expressions are too real to need any indulgence in liquor to whip up false reasons for excitement.

Some may wish to remain in quiet thankfulness that their dear ones are no longer subject to the same danger and suspense, while some will stay home to remember their relatives, who by their sacrifice of life or health have rendered the day of freedom possible for the rest of us.

Others who sought the Lord in prayer in time of trouble during the past five years, and especially at such times as Dunkirk or D-Day, will wish to go to their accustomed church and take their joy and praise and thankfulness to Him also. Some of our children will be gathering to sing songs of happiness together to make it a day to remember for the rest of their lives.

But one thing is certain, it should not be made a day of drunkenness and debauchery. The men and women in the active services did not leave their homes and spend years of discomfort and danger to give an excuse for those at home to make whoopee. If the liquor vendors and beverage rooms are open that day the temptation will be so great that many will not be able to resist no matter how much they may desire to spend the day normally.

If all those in favor of keeping the liquor stores closed on that day would so express themselves there is no doubt their wishes would rule, but if all remain silent only to express shame and horror after the day, the blame will be on their shoulders.

Whether by word of mouth, in the pulpits, the service clubs or on the street, or by flooding the papers, the local city council, the members of parliament with your letters make suse your voice is heard in the demand that the day of Victory in Europe shall not be a day of defeat and shame over here.

The time may be short, let us make our wishes heard before it is too late.

Yours truly,
M. B. White.

Ottawa, Sept. 23 — (CP)—Superman: Reduction in the R.C.A.F. Air Council this week as part of a big program curtailing activities of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan saw a lot of work piled on the slim but capable shoulders of Air Vice-Marshal Frank McGill.

At 50, this peacetime Montreal oilcloth production executive whom Air Minister Power called "the business man of the council," can ably handle his new responsibilities.

Five feet 8½ inches, 162 pounds, impatient at red tape and very unregimental, this hazel-eyed airman, who was air member for organization now assumes the additional duties of the air member for supply, air member for construction and engineering and air member for aeronautical engineering.

The members for these divisions are retiring under the program of amalgamation and curtailment. The program will give the divisions decreased responsibility but they are to remain as separate branches of the service and Air Marshal McGill has laughingly referred to the need of a helicopter to flit about his various offices scattered through the labyrinth of government buildings.

When Terrence Sheard, retiring air member for supply, resumed his peacetime post with a Toronto trust company recently, Air Marshal McGill took over his work. Asked about his additional jobs, the First Great War ace shrugged his shoulders, grinned broadly and said: "Well, even with two jobs I've found myself writing myself memos—I don't know what I'll be doing with four."

But Maj. Power isn't worried about the results. The airman has been an all-round success. In his youth he won the coveted Sir Vincent Meredith Silver Trophy for being the best all-round athlete in the exacting Montreal Amateur Athletic Association — tantamount to Canadian-wide recognition.

He was decorated for his work with the Royal Flying Corps in the last war and in the intervening years was recognized for his business enterprise.

Pay Load: Meantime, Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, R.C.A.F. overseas commander home for a brief visit, disclosed the interesting information that his air plan graduates had dropped a new record total of 13,274 tons of bombs on the enemy last month.

He didn't have the July figures for comparison but he was certain of the record. His squadrons flew a total of 29,126 hours with only 22 aircraft lost.

Pledge is Not Scientific.

Giving children the pledge against smoking and drinking may not be scientific, but I believe it is a powerful preventive measure against such indulgence in childhood and youth.

Nearly always the first experiments of a child—and by a child I mean a minor, an individual who has not yet attained adult growth and development, the capacity to support himself, the degree of intelligence or judgment required to qualify him to vote or to serve in the armed forces— the first adventures in smoking or drinking are just the child's way of "showing off", taking a dare or proving he or she is not afraid or that he or she is not unsophisticated. If the others in the group, gang or party are smoking or drinking the child, invited to have a smoke or a drink, simply hasn't enough character to decline—he or she finds it much easier to take a smoke or a drink, especially if no one has made a serious endeavor to teach the child why he or she should not take that first smoke or drink.

The school teacher who asked me to give scientific reasons why boys should not begin smoking when they are fifteen years old. I can't. Best I can do is to give my opinion, that it is harmful in every way to a boy to begin smoking before he has attained adult growth and development and the capacity to support himself or to serve in the armed forces.

I never understood clearly whether mother had scientific reasons for her stand, but at her request I gave her my pledge not to use tobacco or alcoholic beverage or liquor before I was 21, and I kept the pledge. Any son or daughter who has filial love would keep such a pledge.

If a goy or girl doesn't begin drinking before he or she has reached the age of intelligence and judgment required to qualify him or her to vote, the chances are he or she will contrive to worry along through life without the aid of alcohol, even just a social glass or cocktail. When a person enjoys good health he or she doesn't need the fake "good cheer" of alcohol to make him or her happy. A healthy person is happy just to be alive.

Numerous drinkers have told me they drink because they "want to feel better". What they mean, of course, is that they dull their consciousness with alcohol so that, for a brief period, they will not feel whatever unpleasant thing they are aware of—inferiority, fatigue, guilt, worry, envy, jealousy, hatred, there are many unpleasant things they are less conscious of when their higher faculties are benumbed by alcohol.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Adenoids and Tonsils.

Four children from 10 months to 9 years old. Every winter the three older ones have one cold after another and cough a lot, especially at night. (H. C. M.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for pamphlet 'Tonsils and Adenoids'. If you would like also a copy of the booklet 'Call it Cri', inclose twenty-five cents for it. It deals with prevention and treatment of the common respiratory infections, home made cough medicine, technique of blowing the nose, nasal allergy, etc.

Leg Cramps.

I wish to thank you for your advice to take vitamin D and calcium—it cured my leg cramps which had disturbed my sleep many a night for two or three years. I am 74 and now enjoy good health. (H. P.)

Answer—People who suffer from leg cramps or just leg ache (as in growing children) should give the calcium-vitamin D treatment a try —this is food, not medicine, and so it can do no harm in any case. Instructions in pamphlet 'Adult Tetany and Growing Pains'—mailed on request (no clipping will suffice) if you provide stamped envelope bearing your address.

The Cleaning-Out Obsession

Answer—Digestion begins or should begin in the mouth (provided your masticating equipment is efficient) and continues in the stomach, small intestine, upper portion of large intestine. Putrefaction is a normal process in the large intestine (as you will learn if you can get hold of a textbook of psysiology). I fear the nostrum mongers, charlatans, internal bath specialists and colon filling stations have planted a lot of morbid notions in your mind.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

The Mattapony, a river in Virginia that discharges its waters into the York river at West Point, is formed by the juncture of our small streams—the Mat, Ta, Po and Ny—and the name of the larger river is merely a composite of the names of the four smaller streams. The Matta, formed by a juncture of the Mat and Ta, flows into the main river that is formed farther north by a juncture of the Po and Ny.

Many people seem to be under the impression that "condign" in the phrase "condign punishment" means severe. It means deserved, appropriate or merited, being derived from Latin "cum," with, and "dignus," worthy. Condign punishment may be either, severe or mild; it is what the person punished deserves. The term, however, is nowadays seldom used except with words denoting punishment and is taken to mean deservedly severe.

Queen Catherine de Medici of France (1519-1589) lived to see three of her four sons crowned kings of France—Francis II, Charles IX and Henry III.

Some authorities suppose that "quack doctor" is a corruption of "quake" in "quake doctor," an old name for a person who professed to "charm away the ague."

The WPB, in a recent order, refers to "white quartered oak, commonly used in the manufacture of office chairs." Quartered oak is oak lumber that has been quarter-sawed. It is not, like bird's-eye maple, a wood with a peculiar grain. In order to produce the quarter-grain effect the oak log is first cut into quarters and then boards are sawed by cutting alternately from each face of the quarter. Such lumber not only shows the grain advantageously but does not warp or check as much as lumber sawed in the customary manner.

There is a popular belief that the body of a drowned man floats face down and that of a drowned woman face up. The belief, however, is not confirmed by observation. Lifeguards and others who have seen hundreds of drowned persons say if it holds true in some cases it is probably owing to the difference in the wearing apparel customarily worn by men and women.

Another common belief is that a drowning person will always rise three times before finally sinking. This belief has no scientific basis. Many drowning persons do not come to the surface at all after their first submergence. When a person finds himself drowning he naturally makes a frantic struggle to save his life. In doing this he draws water into his windpipe, which causes him to cough and expel air from his lungs. He then sinks. If all the air is expelled from his lungs he will not rise to the surface at all, especially if he is fully clothed. A drowning person who has some control over himself may sink and rise more than three times before his strength fails completely and he sinks to rise no more.

Many Styles in Coiffures

Ann Sheridan wears a becoming hairdo.

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONE OF THE highlights on the beauty horizon is the variety of coiffures from which a woman can chose. Time was when the hair-do was standardized. Every one wore hair high or hair low or betwixt and between. Or, it was a shingle or a windblown or a petal bob or maybe a long one. But now, bless your heart, you can, apparently, do anything you please with your hair except to wad it into a cruller on the top of your head. As we are getting back to some ancient arrangements, we may even come to that. But heaven forbid.

The soft, waved pompadour is a sweet thing, and it is just too bad that extremists are overdoing the mode. A pomp that is high and narrow, with hair smooth as glass, is pretty trying, especially on the thin, long-faced girl who appears to have a special fondness for it. We wish she wouldn't. Her best bet is softness and fluff and a flat top to give more harmonious lines to the features and facial contour.

The long bob is the cause of our coiffure revolution. With pigtail material with which to play the girls are getting some pretty fancy effects in the rear—bulging rolls, buns, what have you. Well, changes are always exciting, but the wise girl will see to it that the change is for the better.

We used to holler and laugh when we talked about the rats that grannie wore when she was a belle. Little did we know that we would ever resort to them. But here they are acting as stuffing for pomps and sweeping rolls along the nape line. History repeats itself in fashions. Naturally. Fashion must run out of ideas now and then, has to resort to old time whimsies.

Despite all this, the four-inch cut prevails among women who know that it makes them look younger than the severe coiffure that is without a ripple. You may take your choice. Nice, isn't it?

GOOD MANNERS

Hints For a Service Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1. In the Fall I am to be married to an Army officer. We will be married in the Catholic Church, and I wish to wear a street-length dress and matching hat. I will have one attendant. There are to be about one hundred guests invited to the church ceremony, but we plan to have just a small reception; about 30 guests, to include relatives and a few close friends. What would be the correct form for the invitation ...and how worded?

2. We are going to have an organist, a soloist, and flowers on the altar. Would it be out of the question to have a white aisle canvas?

E. P.

1. All the plans you outline for your wedding indicate informality. Therefore your invitations too should be informal, notes written either by your mother, as hostess of your wedding, or by you, to your own intimate friends. Your mother's note of invitation to the ceremony might read:

Dear Katherine,

Elise and Jim Worthy are to be married in—Church, Tuesday, October fifth, at—o'clock, and it would make us all very happy if you and Tom will come to the ceremony. Do tell us we may expect you!

Affectionately,

And in her notes to those to be invited also to the reception, she would add to the above (after the word "ceremony") "And please plan to come to our house directly after the ceremony, for a small reception ....and to drink a toast with us to the happiness of the couple. Do please tell us you will be with us!

Affectionately,"

(Of course it will be proper too to invite your relatives and most intimate friends either verbally or by telephone. And also for you yourself to invite your intimate friends, verbally or by telephone or note.)

2. Since you are to wear a street-length dress, it would not be appropriate or reasonable for you to have a white aisle canvas.

Thanking the Housekeeper

My friend and I visited a home where there is a housekeeper who has been there for several years, taking charge of the home and the children, ever since the mother of the children passed away. When we were leaving my friends thought it proper just to say good-by to the housekeeper and to thank the man of the house. I thought it was polite to thank her also. Will you settle our discussion about this, please?

Joan

Your point of view was right, gracious, kind. The housekeeper, particularly one who has been for so long such an important member of the household, probably presided as hostess, and as such, you both should have thanked her for her part of the hopitality and for the thoughtful plans she undoubtedly made for your comfort and pleasure.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Speaking of Eye Shadows

Even though it has flourished like a green bay tree for a quarter of a century, the lipstick is still exciting The world accepts ruby lips, and that's all right. What the red smear does to boost morale, only a woman knows; men could never understand such a miracle. But, if one wants a greater beauty thrill, one should experiment with eye shadows. They require artful manipulation. You can't monkey with them; you have to know them, be on good terms with them, or they'll get even with you by messing up the facial composition.

A woman must have cosmetic bravery to wear them. If the husband is a quaint, old fashioned dear, he is likely to be rude, tell his wife to go wash her face. Of course, no husband should talk that way, but the growly ones have their pet peeves and express them. When a situation like that arises, there is nothing to do but paint the eyelids so skillfully that the old boy will be fooled.

Beauticians who have slick tricks up their sleeves are blending shadows. Two popular tints are fern green and blue-purple. The green goes on first, high on the lid, the blue is penciled along the lashes, and then the twain do meet. The effect is stunning.

The reason so many women have spent money for eye shadows, played with them then chucked them out of the make-up box, is because they didn't know exactly how to apply them, and failed to seek professional advice. The skin surface must be conditioned There are special eye creams that serve very well. Mineral oil also is satisfactory. Only the thinnest film of lubricant is necessary. It holds the pigment, helps with the blending. Lids should never have a dull finish. They should look moist to give life and sparkle to the eyes.

Make-up slickers attain results that give the countenance an enchanting expression of mystery. They use a magnifying mirror, place it in a strong light, and go to it. There must be no smudgy effect. These are not the days when artifice shouts its presence. Only the lipstick can blaze forth unashamed.

The luckiest of girls is the one who has a lovely ivory skin. What she can do in the way of cosmetic tinting is unlimited. She has the perfect background for scenic touches. With a tiny flush on the cheeks, cherry pigment on the lips, and faint blue eye shadows, she will put a modern Helen of Troy out of business.

The redhead is improved by green shadows, the blonde by blue ones. White heared ladies, with delicate, transparent skins, look well with lids touched with mauve. Why not take a whirl at shadows? It might be fun.

Fish Dish

Mustard and washing soda have this in common: they help de-smell fishy dishes. The pan you used to oven-poach that nice bit of halibut doesn't react as well as you'd like to your hot water and soap treatment. . . No. . . But try adding a teaspoon or more of ordinary dry mustard to the water. . . . swish it round and let it stand for a little while . . washing soda will do the same job and is specially good for garbage cans! Same routine for empty bottles whose last occupant has left an olfactory souvenir.

Not To The Cleaners.

Non-tubbable Summer clothes are going to the cleaners in droves these days as good housekeepers start the business of packing away fun and fresh air clothes for another year. If your pet dress has a coffee stain on it don't keep the cleaner in the dark . . write a note and say what it is. Saves time all round and keeps everybody in the play. When you get them back again leave summer dresses in the cleaner's bags or transfer to your own cotton dust protectors. Do take precautions with summer woollens. . moth-proof bags are still the best. . check them for tears and mend with tape, if you don't you might as well write, "Welcome moths!"

Housecleaning Note.

There gets to be a time when even a duster comes to the sunset of life. . . . yet even then it can start life all over again in a transmigratory sort of way. . . not in your household but in a rag processing factory. If you have rags that are of no further use to you don't throw them away . . .wash, dry and send to salvage. Rags are needed just as urgently as waste paper. This is an S.O.S.!

The darling of fashion this year is the tunic and it is seen at its best in fur coats Fine Persian lamb is used for a very flared, tightly belted tunic coat made with deep turned-back cuffs on the very full sleeves.

No stopping the beret, it goes on and on each season. A handsome beret is made of black, American Beauty and green checked satin, the ends fringed in front in feathery effect. Big handbag of the satin to match.

Nice way to make an ensemble out of a fur coat or fur-trimmed coat or suit is to have a matching belt. A warning, though, that this is a fashion only for the slim of waist.

HAVE YOU A PET SUPERSTITION?

What's your pet superstition?

My mother, who was something of an intellectual, always insisted that only the ignorant are superstitious. She didn't suspect how many pet superstitions I had, even in my teens. Not only the well-known ones, but many I invented for myself. But then, my mother always told me that I was "mentally lazy" and only went to school in order to "avoid an education."

Do you knock on wood three times, every time you tell of some good luck—even the good war news from Europe? I do! I am afraid to boast of anything.

Are you a little leary of the number 13? I am. I never sat down at a table of thirteen that something bad didn't happen, even if it was only turning over a cup of coffee on the hostess' best linen.

Do you hesitate to light three cigarettes on one match? I wonder if that one was invented by the Swedish match manufacturers? Would you avoid walking under a ladder—especially if there was a bucket of paint on top? Do you refrain from tossing your hat on the bed or opening an umbrella in the house. I think that one originated among mothers who wanted to make the children behave. It sounds like the one that promises you curly hair, if you will eat the crust of your bread and drink your milk.

Do you go to fortune-tellers and pull wishbones? Do you look for four-leaf clovers? I do. And tho' they never brought me any special luck, I am awfully good at finding them. I press them in my bank-book; and all the tellers at my bank are very careful not to let them fall out. So they must be used to people, who carry four-leaf clovers in their bank-books.

Of course, I don't believe in any one of these superstitions — not one! They're all nonsense; but I heed them "just in case." I have lots of others, besides, but my greatest and most incurable superstition is my belief in what I call my "hunches."

I have discovered the reason for this, and why I am right, nine times out of ten, when I follow my "hunches," and wrong nine times out of ten when I go against them and follow my judgment. You see my "hunches" are really my intuition, which is very strong and super-duper; but my judgment is practically nil. In fact, I haven't any good practical judgment at all.

I believe there are very many intelligent people in the world, like my mother, who are absolutely free of superstitions, and this must save them a lot of time and worry. Yet many highly intelligent people still carry their atavistic delusions around with them. With most of them, it's just an amusing game. But I've seen rabbit's feet fall out of some of the best-tailored pockets; and I've seen them pulled out with the handkerchief, to wipe the most intellectual eye - glasses! Haven't you?

Rogets gives fallacy, delusion, and self-deception as synonyms of superstition, which, of course, is absolutely right!

BIRDS WIN GAME IN NINTH FRAME BY 4-RUN RALLY

Mike Roscoe of Bisons Had Game Won 4-3 in That Frame

HOMER DID IT

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 23 — (AP)— Mike Roscoe, on the mound last night for the Buffalo Bisons in their International League semi-finals with Baltimore, was on the threshhold of success until he stumbled on a ninth-inning Oriole booby-trap, which squared the semi-final, best-of-seven series at 2-all.

Roscoe had given his team a 4-3 lead with a run-scoring single in the eighth and had rubbed out the first two Baltimore batteries in the last frame when the Orioles unleashed a four-run rally for a 7-4 victory.

Some of the 2,029 fans were already filing to the exits when Blas Monaco began the rally with a single. Bob Latshaw followed with a double, and both scored on Stan Benjamin's single. Howie Moss put the game in the satchel with his 29th homer of the season.

Credit for the victory went to Johnny Podgajny, second of three Baltimore hurlers. Teammates Moss and Skaff shared hitting honors. The former cracked out two singles in addition to his homer. Skaff enjoyed a perfect night with a home run and a single along with two walks.

The teams left for Baltimore today and will have an off night before locking in the fifth game of the series tomorrow. The winner of the series meets Newark in finals.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By MARSHALL BATEMAN

Winnipeg, Sept. 23—(CP)—Optimistic football backers are toying with the idea of professional competition in post-war years.

Several would-be promoters in Winnipeg are said to be interested particularly with teams from the United States.

Canadian professional football appears the logical thing to come if the schoolboy and senior games resume the steady progress after the war that characterized pre-war operations, says Herb (Winnipeg Tribune) Manning.

Hockey Manoeuvres

As wartime conditions continue to handicap professional hockey clubs, managers are going to look the Prairie talent over more thoroughly.

Almost every junior club at the head of the lakes — one of the Dominion's greatest hockey centres — has a tie-up with a professional team. Lester Patrick's New York Rangers of the National League will open another hockey school in Winnipeg next week while Eddie Shore of Buffalo Bisons of the American League is seeking ice at Regina or Calgary. Shore is reported to have a prospective big leaguer to [illegible] every pocketbook.

Junior Prospects

Another banner junior hockey season is forecast in many Western centres. A four-team league is likely at the lakehead — Fort William Columbus Millers, sponsored by Minneapolis Millers; Port Arthur West Ends, a Boston Bruin farm, Port Arthur Flyers, supported by St. Louis Flyers, and Fort William Hurricane Rangers.

Manitoba plans a South Division loop with Winnipeg Monarchs, Winnipeg Rangers and St. James Canadians and possibly Brandon or Portage la Prairie. South Saskatchewan has Regina Commandos, Regina Abbotts, Notre Dame Hounds and Moose Jaw Canucks all set to go while University of Saskatchewan and Saskatoon Quakers, are organizing.

Edmonton promises a pick should indoor ice be available. Canadians, Edmonton Athletic Club, Maple Leafs and the Navy are likely starters.

Old-time Versatility

Maybe today's athletes are sissies. Ken Price of Moosomin, Sask., who is 76, recalls that 54 years ago a group of youths from Pense, Sask., visited Winnipeg, played cricket in the afternoon, then moved over to the tennis courts, took on the Manitobans at billiards when darkness fell, and next morning competed in a rowing regatta.

St. Catharines Athletics finally eliminated Brampton Excelsiors in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse playdowns, winning 26-10 at St. Catharines last night for their third victory against one loss in the best-of-five series.

The Athletics tonight open a series with Mimico at St. Catharines, and the winner of this best-of-five final meets New Westminster Salmonbellies for the Mann Cup and the Canadian championship.

The New York State Athletic Commission has sanctioned the Chalky Wright-Willie Pep featherweight title bout at New York next Friday despite protest of the District of Columbia Commission, which urged that action be taken against Wright because of his refusal to fight Jackie Wilson at Washington. The N. B. A. however ruled that Wright will be suspended in New York immediately after the Pep fight until he fulfils the engagement with Wilson. Just to make sure, Wright's New York purse will be withheld until that time.

Warren C. Giles signed a four-year renewal contract at Cincinnati yesterday as General Manager of the Cincinnati Reds. Powel Crosly, president of the Ball Club, said Giles "has proved in the past eight seasons that he is one of baseball's foremost executives." He went to Cincinnati in 1937.

The No. 4 Wireless School of the R. C. A. F. at Guelph in their first year in the Western Ontario Cricket League won the championship and the Grafton Shield Cup series. Final standings released at Galt last night showed the R. C. A. F. with seven wins and three losses, Galt five and five, Brantford four against five and Woodstock three wins against six losses.

Billy Cuolo, star hockey player with Stratford Junior teams, has been invited to report to the training camp of Boston Bruins in Quebec next month. Billy was put on the Boston reserve list two years ago.

Walter 'Boom Boom' Beck, Veteran Relief Performer, Saves Twin Bill for Tigers

Held Opposition Safe for Two Frames and Scored Winning Run

BROWNS ALSO WIN

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Walter (Boom Boom) Beck, a veteran relief peformer who was pitching in the American League when Hal Newhouser was a three-year-old kiddie car rider and Paul Trout was a third-grade schoolboy, was one reason Detroit was still in first place today.

With only a week and a day of the season remaining, the Tigers held a one-game edge on St. Louis because Beck had the stuff to hold back Boston in the second game of an important double-header at Detroit yesterday after coming through with a single and scoring the winning run of an 8-6 victory. Steve O'Neill's crew had won the opener, 7-4, on Dick Wakefield's grand-slam homer.

St. Louis shaded Philadelphia last night, 4-2, and would have tied for the lead if Beck hadn't put the bracelets on the Red Sox in a two-inning job.

Sig Jakucki, another of baseball's firemen, saved the Brownies by retiring the last nine men in order when Philadelphia threatened to nibble on St. Louis' two-run lead. Bobo Newsom, who trimmed the Yankees last out, allowed only five hits before bowing for a pinch hitter in the eighth but yielded a two-run triple to Don Gutteridge and single runs in the fourth and sixth.

New York Stays in Running

New York kept its hopes alive by topping Cleveland, 7-3, with a 17-hit attack behind Ernie Bonham in a series opener. The Yanks trailed Detroit 3½ games with 10 to play.

When Joe Heving relieved Al Smith in the seventh inning, the big league's only grandpa tied an American League record by appearing in his 61st game, none complete. Clint Brown set the mark for Chicago in 1939. Ed Walsh holds the record for most games, complete or unfinished with 66 in the American in 1908. Ace Adams of the New York Giants appeared in 70 for a modern National record last year.

The newly-crowned St. Louis Cardinals were humiliated, 11-2, by Boston's Nate Andrews and Chicago took a strangle hold on fourth place by routing the Giants, 8-1, in the only National League contests.

OMA FLATTENED BY MAURIELLO IN THE EIGHTH

Michigan Substitute Winning on Points Before Being Knocked Out

LARGE CROWD

New York, ept. 23 — (AP)—Frank Czajewski, better known as Lee Oma, the Detroit heavyweight, has his 13th "knocked out by" in the record books — but he also is getting a lot of cheers.

The 193-pounder, filling in as a substitute on two days' notice, was flattened in the eighth round last night by Tami Mauriello, the No. 2 ranking civilian heavy, before a crowd of 10,496 which paid $34,280 to get into Madison Square Garden. Mauriello weighed 198.

Mauriello was a prohibitive favorite over Oma, but the Bronx boy took a good lacing from the Michigan man before landing a left hook to the chin which ended the proceedings. At the end of seven rounds Oma had a long lead on points and appeared on his way to turning in a startling upset — but instead he was upset for the fatal 10.

Oma's showing was so sparkling, however, that promoter Mike Jacobs immediately set in motion the machinery leading to a return bout. Oma, who didn't train a minute for the scrap, was tiring at the finish, but in the second round he had spilled Mauriello for a one-count halted by the bell.

Oma, who recently outpointed Lou Nova to halt the latter's string of comeback victories, moved into the Garden fight when Joe Baksi, the Kulpmont, Pa., coal miner and former Broadway dime-a-dance ball room bouncer, contracted a cold this week. Physicians couldn't find anything wrong with Baksi, however, and the fighter drew a 45-day suspension from the New York Athletic Commission.

IDEAL WEATHER FOR RUGBY GAMES

(By The Canadian Press)

Ideal gridiron weather was in prospect today for the three opening games in Ontario's two senior football leagues.

At Toronto where Toronto Navy Bulldogs meet the R.C.A.F. Hurricanes from Camp Borden in one of the two games in the new Ontario Armed Services League, the sun shone brightly and there was a chill tang of autumn in the air.

Good weather also was indicated at London—where St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets play Hagersville R.C.A.F. In another services league game—and at Hamilton—where Toronto Indians and the Dominion champion Hamilton Wildcats open the Ontario Football Union's 62nd season.

The other two senior teams in the province—Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Trojans—are not scheduled today. Beaches have a practice drill planned while the Ottawa team is playing an exhibition game with Verdun Grads.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Sept. 23—(AP)—When that ball field battle between the Browns' Tom Turner and Washington's Roberto Ortiz was in full swing the other night, three civilians came on to the field and tried to separate the battlers. Ellis Clary, St. Louis sub infielder, grabbed one of them and started to haul him back to the stands. Just in time he found he was giving the bum's rush to umpire Hal Weafer.

Today's Guest Star:

Leonard Cohen, New York Post: "Joe McCarthy, according to baseball writers, lets the 'little men' tell him what to do, but up at Baker Field it will be the little men who will do the actual playing for little."

Get it Right:

When Jimmy Johnston was taking his new fighter, "The Mighty Menichelli" (well, he looks like a fighter) around to visit local scribes, he related how the Argentine heavyweight had said his ambitions were to fight Joe Louis and meet Hedy Lamarr. Someone who spoke Spanish asked Menichelli if that was right. "No," the mighty one replied, "I'd rather fight Hedy Lamarr and just meet Joe Louis."

RELIANCE GIRLS NEED ONE GAME TO WIN TITLE

SMART CONTEST

Tilley Donihee's Reliance girls took a stranglehold on the Belleville ladies' softball championship for the 1944 season at the Armouries lawn Friday evening, when they went to town in two big innings to down the Stewart Warner girls by a decisive 8-1 score. The series now stands at three games to one and the Reliance girls can end it on Monday evening, when a win will give them four games and the championship.

Although admittedly playing better ball than the SWACO girls, Reliance were helped considerably in their win by their opposition catcher, who was responsible for the first four runs the winners scored. Pinch-hitting behind the plate for the regular catcher, Jackson seemed definitely out of place being guilty of loose play, which hurt with runners aboard.

The gift of four runs, however, cannot detract from the effort of Millie Foster's third win of the current series, as she scattered six SWACO hits to limit the opposition to only one run for the second game in a row. Ev. Reid started for the losers but it was not her night and she was relieved by Calcutt in the second after she had walked 3 batters. Passed balls at the plate dispelled any chance the SWACO girls had of winning and before the inning was completed four runs had crossed the plate.

SWACO got one run back in their half of the second when Rowbotham singled to be followed by Haslip's double. After moving up on an infield out, Dot. Rowbotham scored her team's only run as she counted after Kelleher went out at first. Reliance got three more in the 7th. as four hits and a walk widened the margin between the two teams.

Colden was the only hitter on the Reliance team to get more than one safety with R. Buker hitting her team's only double. For the losers Lavere hit two singles with Fralick counting a double as did Haslip.

The teams—Reliance: Buker rf; Wright lf; Colden 2b; Garrow ss; Elliott 3b; Blaind c; Stairs cf; Coathup 1b; and Foster p; SWACO: — Fralick 2b; Jackson c; Lavere ss and 2b; Rowbotham 1b; Haslip 3b; Corneal cf; Kelleher rf; Ronsky lf; Reid and Calcutt p, and Colden ss.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 482

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge experts have an unhappy faculty of making the simplest rules seem complex. But when you scrape away the mishmash, each rule turns out to be an easy, understandable guide.

Take an opening three bid (in a major suit). It shows a suit that is re-rebiddable and an outside sure trick. That's all it shows. It is easy to understand; easy to remember; easy to apply.

So, don't go around hunting for mystic methods of deciding when you have such a bid. Look for a re-rebiddable suit. Then look for an outside sure trick. If you have them, you have a three bid.

Make up a number of hands that contain the two essential items in a three bid. In most cases you will find such hands contain seven or eight tricks. Each high card and each short card is a trick.

It must be borne in mind, however, that a hand with more than eight tricks is an opening bid of two. And with less than seven tricks, the hand will fall into the class of one bids.

Look over this hand:

♠ None
♥ A K J 10 8 5 3
♣ 5

This hand contains a re-rebiddable heart suit; a suit that is practically solid; a suit with not more than one loser. The diamond ace is an outside sure trick. Open with three hearts.

How many tricks in it? Count them. There are three high cards; two aces and a king. There are five short cards; three in spades and two in clubs.

Of course, you will often meet tablemates who try to find flaws in anything so elementary. But nothing they can tell you will change the fact that a three bid needs the two essential items.

As long as bridge is played, there will always be players who like to add or subtract something in every rule. That's human.

H. D. Crerar May Be Named A Full General

By ROSS MUNRO
(CP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 23, (CP Cable)—Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar may be appointed a full general—the first officer in the Canadian Army to hold this rank—in recognition of his able direction of the 1st Canadian Army during the French and Belgian campaigns, it was learned Friday.

All army and corps commanders normally are lieutenant generals, but it has been the practice to promote army commanders to full general's rank after a particularly successful campaign. Montgomery is a case in point. He took over the 8th Army as a lieutenant general but after his desert victories was elevated to full general.

With Montgomery now a Field Marshal it is possible that Lt.-Gen. Crerar as well as Lt.-Gen. Dempsey, commander of the British 2nd Army, will be rewarded for their astute and skilful handling of their forces from the battlefields of Caen to the low countries and Germany.

Lt.-Gen. Crerar at 56 is the oldest of Canada's Field Generals. He was born in Hamilton, Ont., in 1888 and attended the schools of Hamilton, Upper Canada College at Toronto and the Royal Military College at Kingston.

During the last war he was an artillery officer and succeeded Gen. McNaughton as counter battery staff officer, Canadian Corps.

Since 1918, when he decided to devote himself to a military career, he has successively been commandant of the R.M.C., chief of the Canadian General Staff, a divisional commander, and finally G.O.C. in C. of the 1st Canadian Army.

Roosevelt Opens Campaign With Radio Address

Washington, Sept. 23 — (AP) — President Roosevelt—"The Champ" to his political assistants—had his final workout at the White House today before his verbal bout tonight with the opposition in his historic bid for a fourth term.

Four of his speech consultants were on hand late last night and early today giving a wealth of material a going-over with blue pencil before the President himself compressed it to the 3,000 words he allows himself for a half-hour's radio talk.

He speaks at a dinner of the International Teamsters Union (A.F.L.) from 9:30 to 10 p. m., E.D.T.

The topic has not been announced, but it was fairly obvious the speech would include a fresh appeal to the labor vote and perhaps a few shots at charges made by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey against his administration.

In accepting a fourth-term nomination in July, the President said he would not campaign in the usual political sense, but reserve the right to reply at any "misrepresentations" uttered by the opposition.

Except for a few recent news conference remarks, Mr. Roosevelt has kept his 1944 campaign under wraps.

Montreal, Sept. 23 (CP) — The Quebec Liquor Commission will treat "sumpathetically" those areas where liquor might be in short supply when V-Day arrives, Edouard Archambault, Commission Chairman, said.

Little Benny's Note Book

I went with ma to help her with the marketing, and I was suggesting different things for her to buy besides what was on her shopping list, and I said Oh, boy, ma, look at all the ketchup, that's just what we need.

Ketchup has gone up to twice its normal price, and that's where it can stay in solitary state as far as I'm concerned, ma said, and I said, But jimminy, ma, I mean G roozalem, you just bought a new bottle of Essence of Night perfume, and it cost nine dollars and it's only a tiny little bottle.

It sounds expensive, I admit, but that little bottle will last me a long, long time, ma said, and I said, Well I bet it wont last anywheres near as long as nine dollars worth of ketchup would last, especially if you put it all in little doll size bottles where it took a lot of patience to shake out. Oh boy imagine how many of those little bottles you'd need for all that ketchup, they'd last the rest of your life and your ketchup worries would be over, I said.

I have no ketchup worries, thank you, and that's a very rediculous comparison, ma said, and I said, Well why is it, ma? Ketchup has a prettier color than that pale Essence of Night, and it's better for your health because it improves your appetite and sattisfies your hunger at the same time and it even smells just as good and maybe it even smells better to some people, I said.

Meaning to me for instance, and ma said, How did we ever get into such a silly discussion for land sakes?

You started it, ma, by claiming 9 dollars worth of Essence of Night would last longer than 9 dollars worth of ketchup, I said, and ma claimed she never claimed any such of a thing. Starting another argument, the result being ma bought a small bottle of ketchup just to change the subject.

Fire Destroys Part of Internment Camp in Quebec

Sherbrooke, Que., Sept. 23 (CP)—Men's headquarters and administration buildings of the new Hington internment camp, a German war prisoner camp two miles north of this eastern township town, were destroyed by fire early today but no escapes were reported.

Col. H. D. Hadley, commanding the camp, announced that a military court of inquiry will meet later today "to ascertain the causes of the fire," which was believed to have originated in the boiler room.

Details of the blaze are being witheld by military authorities pending further investigations but no one was reported killed or injured.

Army firemen, with the help of the Sherbrooke fire brigade, fought the fire more than two hours before bringing the flames under control.

AMERICAN BRED

By Franken Meloney

CHAPTER 4.

Ann began to put two and two together. She began to understand old Mrs. Freund's attitude toward Rosalinda.

"You mean that the Freunds made a business of raising these dogs, that they're been making a business of it from Paul's grandfather's days, that that's all they do"? she asked incredulously.

"Well, it's like a lot of business—they're losing money at it at the moment, and Paul takes in tourists to pay for the dog meat. Say, I thought you were some relative of theirs", he broke off.

She shook her head. "No, I only feel like a relative. But I like them a lot better than I like some relatives", she explained hastily.

"That goes for me, too".

"What I can't understand, though", she continued seriously, "is why they have to support a regular army of Great Danes if they're hard up?"

"Because", Christopher Wain pointed out with something of the air of a school teacher, "Mother Nature is a funny old girl. No one has ever bred the perfect animal. But we all hope that some day one of us will come close to it. Rosalinda, for example, is the most nearly perfect bitch ever bred in America. When she throws a pup that can throw a pup with the same degree of perfection—well, then, three generations of Freunds will have come to the end of the road. Only the odds are against it, because we can't raise Danes as well in this country as they can in Germany. Or so they say".

"Who says so!"

"It's not our game".

"Tommyrot! We can't make lenses as they make them in Wiemar. We can't make cutlery as they make it in Sheffield, or raise Percherons as they raise them in Belgium, or raise race horses to win the Derby. We can't do this and we can't do that. And what's to prevent? The water, the gulf stream, infra-red in the sunlight, mineral colloids in the soil, sawdust in people's heads! I say such can't-do talk is all hogwash!"

"What do you know about mineral colloids and horses?" he asked amused.

"I know considerable!"

"Well you don't know much about Great Danes," he stated with certainty.

"If I were interested", she retorted, "if I really wanted to, I mean, I'd know all there was to know, and I wouldn't let anybody tell me that I couldn't raise as good a dog as anybody else, anywhere! Especially", she added scathingly, "in Germany".

He laughed out loud at that. "It's the right spirit, anyway. But don't let's quarrel about it". He glanced at his watch. "What I stopped off to look at was Rosalinda's last litter, not this one. Paul said at the show that I could have my pick of the lot. Can you take me to them?"

"I haven't the least idea where to find them".

"Suppose we go on a search together".

It wasn't hard to identify six gangling nine-month old pups in a generous run, stretching back on the hillside behind the cottages.

"Ummm", Christopher appraised them. "Not so bad. Some of them are as good as the average we import these days".

"Are we going to start all that again"? Ann demanded.

"When we want the best, we have to bring them over", he averred with finality. "But these are good, and I'm going to take a chance and get a brood matron out of the bunch".

He was already squatting on his heels watching the dogs play about in the sunlight.

"Which one would you pick?" he asked in a friendly way.

It was hard to choose between them. To Ann they were six compact, lithe packages of energy, all equally ingratiating. And then her gaze began to follow a fawn-colored dog, a little smaller than the others. There was something in the way she walked, something in the way she held her head, something in the way she would stop to look far away into nowhere, wriggling her nose into the wind. . . .

Christopher Wain glanced at the dog and shrugged. Hasn't developed, and probably won't. Over there, though, that's the real flyer of the lot!" He pointed to a proud brindle pulling at a gunny sack with one of her brothers. "That one has size, color, dark eyes, good stop to its face, fine stance, beautiful gait and hindquarters, a deep brisket, and she's well angled—Yes siree", he repeated, with mounting enthusiasm, "that's the pup! Tell Paul I'll pick her up in a day or two. Think you can remember which one?"

"I may not be able to agree with you in Danes, but I can tell one dog from another", she informed him.

An eyebrow slid up his forehead. "It's telling the good ones", he remarked.

Ignoring that, Ann said, by way of dismissal. "I'll give Mr. Freund your message".

"Thanks. And if you can, I wish you'd stop over and see my kennels one of these days."

She smiled the way her sister Helen, always smiled when she wanted to snub somebody. She should have known better than to encourage him.

Dog dealers sometimes were a shoddy lot, always wanting to make a sale and preferably passing off a dog with a bad tail, or an inconvenient habit. Paul and his mother were different of course.

"Oh, and tell Paul I'll stop over and take a squint at this new litter when it begans to look like something", he added.

"I'm sure that Mr. Freund will be delighted", said Ann, too pleasantly.

"I'm sure he will," said Christopher Wain.

Her blood boiled. He was the sort of objectionable young man who always had to have the last word. She heard him start his rattletrap, and felt a great desire to hurl something after him.

When she entered the house, she could hear Paul moving about his room. Now that there was no danger of disturbing him, she decided to try to telephone.

A turn of the crank brought the welcome sound of the operator's crisp voice, and soon Ann had arranged with a garage to pull her car out the ditch, and bring it to the Freunds'.

"Going so soon?" Paul asked grievedly from the doorway.

"So soon? It's high time, I should say".

"Mom won't let you go without lunch. Carol wants to name the baby Ann, and that's O.K. with me—Say didn't I hear a car just drive out of the yard?"

"I'm speechless, I've never had anyone named after me. The car. Oh yes, I almost forgot to tell you. It was a man about a dog, but you were asleep and I didn't want to wake you".

"What kind of a man?"

"Oh, he was all right, I suppose. He said he'd be back to buy one, but I'll bet he buys a new car first. I wouldn't count too much on him".

"I won't", Paul said with a hint of bitterness "I'm used to that sort of thing. People walk in here for pups, and they don't care what kind they are, as long as they've got four legs and a bark, and don't cost more than ten dollars. I'm beginning to think there's a fortune in mutts; the more mutt the better".

"This chap seemed to know his dogs, thought", Ann admitted. "He picked out the one he liked, and said he ran a kennel".

Paul's interest revived. "I guess he wants the bloodline. What was his name?"

"Wain".

Paul grabbed her arm. "Not Christopher Wain?"

"Yes—Do you know who he is?"

"No, I don't know who he is, never heard of the guy!" he went on with irony, "me sleeping and Christopher Wain getting away right under my nose!"

Ann regarded him with uncertainty. "Should I have wakened you?"

For a long moment he said nothing. He just looked at her.

"Should I?" she pressed in growing dismay. "I bet he owed you some money", she concluded indignantly.

Paul's lips twisted wryly. "You guessed it. He owed me some money."

"How much?"

"Five hundred on a dog".

"Oh Paul, how awful! And I sent him off!"

He saw how badly she felt. He patted her shoulder awkwardly. "I'll get it some day, don't worry about it. The only thing is, it would have been handy now, with the baby and everything".

"I know it would have. I think I'd better get out of here before I make any more mistakes like that! May I say good-bye to Carol?"

"Sure. I'll go up and see if she's asleep".

Carol wasn't asleep. She was wide awake, and the baby was wrapped in a blanket on the big chair, 'Gee, but you look pretty!" Paul said, shyly. "Say won't she roll off?"

"Oh, I do not, I look a sight". Carol protested. "Give me the mirror. Of course she won't roll off".

He gave her the mirror, and she squinted in it speculatively.

The mirror fell from her hand, and toppled off to the floor. She looked up at him, panic stricken. "Oh, Paul, if it's broken!"

He picked it up. "Smashed to bits", he teased her. Then he saw how white she was. "You goose—" He gave it to her. "Not a crack".

"It's seven year's hard luck if it had broken—"

"Oh, go on with that superstition—"

"I've proved it often enough".

He bent over her. "Must have broken a couple of mirrors the day I came along".

"Like fun!"

"Love me?"

She nodded.

"Not sorry now, are you?"

"I was crazy not wanting it—" she said in a low voice. "It was just that I was afraid".

"Sure, I know. I don't blame you. . . . Feel up to seeing Ann before she blows out?"

"I'd like to. Did you tell her about naming the baby after her?"

"And was she tickled!—Say", he hesitated, and then forced a grin. "Want to hear a laugh?"

"What?"

"Christopher Wain was here this morning".

"Paul!" Carol sat straight up in bed, and he pushed her back with his big hand. "Keep cool. Nothing happened. He came while I was taking a nap, and I never even saw him".

"What did he do, leave a note under the door, or something?"

"He saw Ann".

"And—?"

"She threw him out".

"Threw him out!" Carol echoed, aghast. "What for?"

"That's the laugh! She didn't think he had enough cash to buy a dog".

"Enough cash! Why he's got billions!"

"Only millions, don't exaggerate".

"But what made her think—"

"She didn't like his old jalopy".

"Didn't you tell her that old jalopy cost millions, and he has ten mechanics just to keep it in order?"

"Thousands", Paul corrected her patiently, "and he only has two mechanics".

"Paul, don't split hairs at a time like this. She didn't really let him get away? Haven't you told her who he is?"

"No", said Paul. "I didn't tell her. What was the use? I'd have only made her feel bad, and after all she did for us I didn't have the heart".

Carol lay back on her pillows, spent with exertion, almost weeping. "Paul, that was darling of you. I guess you couldn't do anything else. Just the same I know what that sale would have meant to you. I mean aside from the money. Why it would have made you happier than winning at the Garden, even".

"I'll say it would have", he admitted. "D'you realize it would have been the first American bred dog that Wain ever bought?"

Before Carol could answer, Mrs. Freund appeared in the doorway, her face troubled. "What is wrong?"

"Ah", cried the old lady, "that is good. Which one did he choose?"

"Did he at least see them, Paul?" Carol broke in.

"Yes, because he picked one out, apparently. I'd like to know which one he thought was best. I'll go down and ask Ann if she remembers".

"I will go with you", said the old lady. "I would like to know also—"

"I want to go too", Carol said, enviously.

"Yah", Mrs. Freund smiled. "She is doing fine".

"Hey Mom", said Paul, as they slowly walked down the steps, "Ann let Wain get away without knowing who he was".

"He will come back", the old lady quietly stated.

"I've got my doubts. He's a nut if there ever was one. He's just as apt to change his mind by tomorrow, and import this year's champion stock from Germany".

"Then that would be his mistake", said the old lady briefly. "There are no better dogs here or in Europe than Rosalinda gave us the last time. Rheingold's Wolfgang is a great stud. He is greater than the great Rheingold himself."

"Sure. I know it. And you know it. But does Wain know it? And if he knew it, would be believe it?"

They met Ann at the foot of the stairs. "Look, Ann, Mom and I would like to know which dog Wain picked out".

"I don't know their names, but I could show you the one".

At the kennels, she pointed to Wain's choice. "That's Gretel", said Paul. "He picked the best one all right".

Ann remarked casually, "I'd have chosen that one over there instead."

"Which?"

"The one looking toward us—"

"You mean the faun with the black mask? That's Rowena. Nice pup, but she's the runt of the lot".

"I like her anyway. She's got something about her—"

Ann laughed.

"No! I mean it", he insisted seriously. "After what you did for us last night, I wish I could do a lot more than just give you a pup—"

Ann was touched. From what Christopher Wain had told her, a gift of one of the Freund Great Danes was a not inconsiderable gesture. "I'd give anything if I could take her, Paul", she acknowledged appreciatively.

"Why can't you?"

"I wouldn't know what to do with her where to keep her—"

"Didn't you say something last night about how you owned a farm?"

"But I'm selling it".

"Don't sell it".

"I can't offord to keep it up".

"Then make it pay for itself. Raise dogs. Look at us. We're starving. Hey, Mom?"

"No, we are not starving", said the old lady with dignity.

Ann was intrigued. It wasn't a bad idea, in case she didn't sell the farm. After all, her father had raised setters, and sheep, and Morgan horses. "How would one start off?" she asked curiously.

"And where would I get one?"

"You've got one". He stepped inside the kennel, gave a low whistle, and called Rowena's name. She raised her ears and then pushed and bustled to his side. He said, "Here she is".

"Mr. Freund, don't be absurd. As if I'd really let you—A valuable dog like that!"

"I told you, she's the runt of the litter. But she's out of Wolfgang and Rosalinda and in my opinion that's the finest bloodline in the world. All we need to do is to prove it".

Ann knelt before the dog. "It's proved as far as I'm concerned. She's perfect. Oh, you darling, how can I resist you?"

"Don't!" Paul advised.

"Bring her to me", Mrs. Freund said suddenly. "I want to see her. I have not seen her for many weeks—"

Ann led the dog to the old lady's side. The wrinkled hands moved gently, knowingly across the smooth rippling muscles. She straightened up. "Yah. She is small yet. But she will grow. Her bones are big for growth".

Ann puffed up with pride. "Then you like her?"

"Yah", said Mrs. Freund softly, "I like her. Very much I like her".

"I predict my dog will turn out to be the greatest Great Dane in the world", Ann declared.

"Maybe", Paul humored her, "you never can tell".

Mrs. Freund nodded slowly, "It's always maybe", said she. "At nine months, it is hard to say what you are going to get. A Great Dane can go many different ways at nine months. It means great care, and sometimes great heartache also. But always great happiness".

"I know", said Ann. A lump came into her throat.

The road between Providence and Boston widened to four straight ribbons of concrete. Christopher Wain let his foot drop closer to the floor board, and the huge motor throbbed beneath the battered hood. The needle crept to ninety, the car surged along the highway.

Christopher relaxed. Speed was a release to a crowded existence over-filled with things that were far from satisfying to his spiritual and emotional needs. At the moment, he was on his way to confer with a group of New England industrialists, whom he would find seated about the mahogany table of a board room, complaining that politicians were running the country into a hole. Eventually, one of the more fretful would look at his watch and say nervously, "Well, Mr. Wain, do we go to jail, or not?"

To which Christopher would reply, "Gentlemen, you knew what you were doing when you got yourselves into this jam. I doubt that the government would find any constructive satisfaction in putting you behind bars, but I do know that they will insist on measures to prevent a repetition of such indiscretions. As an evidence of good faith, I would therefore suggest that you draw up a statement to show that good faith. With such a plan I may be able to help you. If you are not of good faith, get yourselves another lawyer—"

He was aware of a motorcycle behind him. He started to slow up, but the officer waved him ahead. "Bravo!" Christopher approved, "we have some sporting blood in this corner of the world". His foot went down to the floor plates, and he opened up the cut-out. The car shot forward.

GOVERNS ROTGEN

Col. Asa W. J. Billings, of Boston, Mass., who was appointed head of the Allied military government which has been set up in Rotgen, Germany, following its capture by Allied troops.

Valor of Airborne Troops Amazing Says Newsman

By STANLEY MAXTED
Distributed by The Canadian Press

With Allied Airborne Forces in the Arnhem Area, 5 p.m. (12 Noon, E.D.T.), Sept. 22 (Delayed)—On this sixth day in this mortar and shell-riven pocket the airborne troops are hourly becoming more amazing to me.

This morning enemy loud-speakers blared out in clumsy English asking surrender. It was a silly thing to do. It made these chaps hopping mad.

Then the whole area was intensively shelled and mortared for the rest of the morning. Our commander walked around among his men as cooly as though it were their regimental sports day. The guts of these airborne troops is wonderful.

As I write, it seems there is no point of the compass from which we can not get mortared or shelled or machine-gunned or sniped.

Some 943 prisoners have come in today—Germans who have had enough and are stunned by the cold ferocity of the men who do not know what "quit" means.

The artillery of the 2nd army has come into range and engaged enemy targets today. It was sheer music. We hope the orchestra swells. We are pretty sure it will.

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 23 —(AP)— Tokyo radio betrayed Japan's growing alarm over implications of the first American carrier blast at Manila, filling the airways with "invasion" speculation — even reporting the Philippines' puppet government had declared war on the United States and Great Britain.

Last night's communique, the first since disclosure that carrier planes knocked out 205 enemy aircraft and 37 ships at Manila Sept. 20 (U. S. date) contained no word to confirm enemy reports that the attacks continued Thursday.

The only mention of the Philippines was made in today's Southwest Pacific communique but the announcement of air blows at Japanese shipping off Mindanao covered attacks which preceded the Manila raids.

Last night's official report emphasized anew the bitter struggle on Peleliu in the Palaus, 515 miles east of the Philippines.

For the fourth straight day, covering action through Thursday, it said U. S. Marines were virtually stalled by Japanese entrenched on a mountain dubbed "bloody nose ridge."

The Marines have all Peleliu's East Coast under the control and hold the island's prized airfield.

Gen. Eisenhower Decrees a Strict Policy for Germany

London, Sept. 23 (CP)—A strict policy in dealing with occupied Germany, including the death penalty for any German aiding the Nazis or deliberately misleading Allied troops, was decreed today by Gen. Eisenhower.

As a first step, a ban was placed on the Nazi political and military organizations. All were ordered dissolved while "German laws involving discrimination on grounds of race, religion or political opinion are abrogated," said the edict, issued by Allied supreme headquarters.

Meanwhile the British press expressed dissatisfaction with the progress made by the Allied War Crimes Commission in preparing cases against Hitler and other top-ranking Nazis. A hitch was said to have developed over how they would be tried—whether they should be brought before a military court or dealt with on a political basis.

Papers Critical.

The London News Chronicle and Daily Mail, declaring the names of Hitler, Goebbels, Goering and Himmler have not yet been placed on the list of 350 criminals already drafted, said the reason may be that the Allies have not decided how they would be tried.

Eisenhower's statement, which amplified a broadcast to the German people Sept. 18, ordered Nazi party administrative officers to remain at their posts until all funds, records, equipment and property are surrendered.

These were listed as the main objectives of the A.M.G. in Germany: To promote the safety and health of the occupying troops, to eliminate Nazism, to maintain public order, to establish suitable civil government in a form sufficient to support military operations, to apprehend war criminals, and to control transfers of certain property in Germany.

Armed Bandit Puts Handcuffs On Police Officers

Port Perry, Ont., Sept. 23 (CP)—A police search is being carried out in this eastern Ontario district near Oshawa for an armed man who drew a gun on two police officers who were preparing to put handcuffs on him in the living room of a Port Perry residence last night and then made his escape.

Members of the household and the two officers—Police Chief Geo. Holmes and County Constable George James—stood spellbound as the prisoner pulled out his revolver grasped the handcuffs and snapped them on the wrists of the two officers. He led the handcuffed pair out of the house, saying he was going "to take them for a ride," but suddenly ran off, got into a car and drove along the highway toward Oshawa.

The officers took up the pursuit after they unlocked the handcuffs but their car ran out of gasoline and they lost trace of the fugitive. Oshawa, provincial and Toronto police were notified.

The car used by the gunman is believed to have been stolen in Oshawa where police said they believed it was one Frank McClelland had reported as being stolen. Its licence plates had been changed.

County Constable James first noticed the car in Oshawa where he was driving with his brother Norman. He was attracted by its speed and gave chase, following the gunman's car along the highway to Port Perry at 75 to 80 miles an hour. Near Port Perry the fugitive's car turned completely around without overturning and the diver ran into the bush. The county constable gave chase and captured him. He took his prisoner to a Port Perry house and called Chief Holmes to come with a pair of handcuffs. It was when the Chief entered the house that the prisoner pulled his gun and made his escape.

BRITISH BREAK CORDON AROUND PARACHUTISTS
PHILIPPINE AIR FORCE "BROKEN" BY U.S. PLANES

Use Assault Boats To Cross Rhine Branch at Arnhem

BBC Says British Units Only 37 Miles From Essen

By JAMES M. LONG
(A.P. War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 25 (AP) — British 2nd. Army forces today had broken the ring about the besieged British "Red Devil" parachutists north of the Rhine at Arnhem and were consolidating their slender bridgehead for the main push into Northern Germany, while American troops punched into the German Reichswald, adjacent to the Seigfried anchor at Kleve.

Allied supreme headquarters announced that troops were engaging the Germans in the Reichswald troop concentration area five miles east of the Waal River crossing at Nijmegen and 50 miles northwest of the Krupp armament centre of Essen.

(The BBC said that British armored units which "have entered the Reich near Nijmegen," are less than 37½ miles from Essen, the home of Krupp works in the heart of Germany's industrial Ruhr. The broadcast was recorded by CBS.)

New Break Across Frontier

The Americans who broke across the German frontier at a new point near Beek, Dutch border village three miles southeast of Nijmegen were going head on against Kleve, eight miles to the southeast.

At the same time, Gen. Eisenhower's communique announced that Polish reinforcements from the British 2nd. Army had slipped across the upper branch of the Rhine at Arnhem by night and, bolstering the hard-pressed, stout-hearted British airborne division which had fought alone for a week in the midst of counter attacking Germans.

First Canadian Army forces won a bridgehead over the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal at a point seven miles from the Dutch-Belgian border and about five miles northeast of Antwerp and thrust a threatening wedge behind Germans retreating from the Meuse-Schelde Canal toward the Antwerp-Turnhout line.

The bridgehead is in the area of Locktenburg, across the canal running northeast from Antwerp to St. Leonard and then east to Turnhout, 25 miles from Antwerp.

British troops entered Turnhout, on the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal midway between Antwerp and Eindhoven and 16 miles south of Tilburg, a front line dispatch announced. Turnhout, a city of 29,000, was the largest Belgian city still in German hands.

Calais, Dunkerque Under Siege

Far to the rear, the great Channel ports of Calais and Dunkerque still lay under siege and encircling troops of Lt.-Gen. Crerar's army had not yet been given the assault order.

U.S. 1st. Army men ripped a German counter attack to pieces in the area east of Aachen and turned huge 240-mm. (nearly 10-inch) guns on targets only 18 miles from the Rhine.

Lt.-Gen. Patton's 3rd. Army slashed close to Baccarat, 28 miles southeast of Nancy and only about 45 miles southwest of Strasbourg on the Rhine. The Americans announced the capture of Epinal on the Moselle, 40 miles south of Nancy and about the same distance north of the Belfort Gap.

In these two sectors the German army was throwing in counter-attack after counter-attack which left the battlefields strewn with tanks and troops.

The Americans fighting in the Reichswald, a large forest affording concealment, were parachutists attached to the British 2nd. Army. There was a possibility that two crossings of the German border actually had taken place here—at Beek and at a point farther south.

Quarter-Mile Crossing

The crossing of the quarter-mile-wide Rhine branch at Arnhem was in the face of German shellfire which had compressed the red-bereted British parachutists at one time into a mile-square area just west of Arnhem.

From their main position it did not seem likely that they had succeeded in holding either the road or rail bridge over the river for Gen. Dempsey's British forces.

Dempsey had waged a bitter week-long fight to force his way 50 miles north to accomplish the link-up. His troops traversed a German "shooting gallery" —along raised roads across marshy land where every tank and truck was an elevated target for German 88-mm. guns concealed on either side of the narrow corridor.

The force which finally shoved across to the north bank in collapsible assault boats and improvised rafts was small, and the parachutists were still not out of the woods. But their position was much brighter.

Supplies Ferried Across

Already Dempsey's patrols had succeeded in ferrying over medical supplies, food and ammunition, raising the morale and fighting power of the "lost division" for its eighth day of battle.

The British, 2nd. Army also was using "ducks" — seagoing trucks, ideal for operations in flooded war zones—but it was not known whether any of these had yet succeeded in reaching the south bank.

Dempsey's column driving toward relief of the Arnhem force began providing artillery support four days ago for the parachutists who not only stood off enemy attacks but delivered many telling blows on their own account.

British forces also broadened the Nijmegen corridor, walling it off with tanks and American airborne reinforcements which fought off repeated but weakening German counter-attacks.

Front line dispatches said the Americans' big guns east of Aachen were bellowing at positions well east of Duren and on the approaches to Cologne.

The communique announced that one German strongpoint, presumably a part of the Siegfried line, was wiped out in the Rotgen area, south of Aachen, and that the Americans had made other gains against determined resistance.

At Metz, the Germans still held out against Patton's tightening lines and clung to trenches and tank positions on the west side of the Moselle opposite that fortress city. But the Americans were squeezing in from positions which last were announced as only six miles away.

The Germans lost 21 tanks in a counter-attack yesterday in the Dieuze and Chateau-Salins areas a little less than 30 miles northeast of Nancy. Another strong enemy counter attack by artillery-supported infantry was cut to bits by American guns to the west, between Metz and Nancy.

But on most of the front driving Autumn rains were interfering with the offensives.

NELSON HOME FROM CHINA

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP). — Donald M. Nelson returned yesterday from his Presidential mission to China, enthusiastic about the prospects of increasing that country's industrial war contribution, but keeping his own counsel about his plans and prospects in the War Production Board.

Most details of the results of the mission were withheld pending a report to President Roosevelt which Mr. Nelson hoped to make soon, perhaps in a day or two.

Balkan Situation is Miniature Of What Allies Will Meet in Germany

Cairo, Sept. 25 (AP)—Chaos is spreading among the Germans in southern Greece, Albania and Yugoslavia, and military commentators said today the situation probably is a miniature of what the Allies will encounter in Germany itself.

Information reaching Cairo said the Germans lack co-ordination in extricating their occupation troops in the Balkans, outflanked and in an increasingly untenable position since the about-faces of Romania and Bulgaria and the swift advances of the Russians of the frontiers of Hungary, Yugoslavia and Greece.

Some groups are surrendering wherever possible, some obviously are waiting to surrender to the Allies instead of to the Partisans, and others are continuing to fight in isolated pockets.

Experts expressed belief that similar patterns of chaos will appear in western Germany when the Wehrmacht disintegrates.

What is left of the formal German effort to evacuate Greece and Albania continues, but is limited by lack of rail facilities and by actions of Balkan Partisans and [illegible]. Reports show the evacuation far behind schedule.

SPECIAL TARGETS IN SIEGFRIED LINE HEAVILY BOMBED

Frankfurt, Coblenz and Ludwigshafen Draw Bombs From 1,200 U.S. Planes

CALAIS HARD HIT

London, Sept. 25. (AP) — More than 1,200 American heavy bombers with strong fighter escort attacked railway yards and other targets today at Frankfurt, Coblenz and Ludwigshafen—all in the front line of the German western defences.

Coblenz and Ludwigshafen both are nerve centres and nodal communication hubs for the Siegfried Line. Frankfurt is one of the Reich's greatest industrial centres and arsenals.

The U.S. 8th Air Force, announcing the attacks, said clouds obscured all objectives and bombing was done by special instruments.

Meanwhile, tremendous explosions echoed across the Channel from Calais, indicating heavy bombers were battering the surrounded and long passed German garrison there.

Well over 4,000 tons were thrown on the Germans last week in the French city of 68,000 which is 21 miles southeast of Dover.

The explosions resounded soon after three separate waves of R.A.F. heavy Halifax and Lancaster bombers crossed the Straits. The Germans said the Western Reich was again under attack.

Munster Bochum Hit.

British heavies loosed more than 3,900 tons of bombs on the German Industrial cities of Munster and Bochum Saturday night. British and U.S. Fighter-bombers worked most of Sunday over a wide variety of ground targets in support of armies on the German frontier.

French-based U.S. Thunderbolts were called in to help break up a formation of 100 Nazi tanks blocking the 3rd Army in the Nancy area. Two low-level attacks scattered the tanks into woods where they were strafed and bombed.

Bottled up with their backs to the sea, Germans at the French port of Calais were bombed by a small force of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers Sunday evening despite a Channel storm which forced some planes to turn back.

Eight bombers were lost in the Calais action, mainly to flak.

American heavy bombers from Italy destroyed large numbers of huge German Junkers-52 transport planes, intended to evacuate military personnel from Greece, in attacks on three airdromes yesterday near Athens.

In the last previous raid of its kind 77 of the big planes were wrecked on the ground on the same fields. The toll yesterday has not yet been announced.

A 500-ton submarine was sunk at the Skaramanga U-boat pens 10 miles north of the Greek port of Piraeus. Two merchant ships were hit.

Most of Sunday's operations in the west were carried out in driving rainstorms, ground radios directing the planes directed to the targets. France-based R.A.F. fighters concentrated on rail communications in Holland, destroying at least 13 locomotives and 60 freight cars.

BRONZE EAGLE CAPTURED

Brantford, Sept. 25 — (CP) — A bronze eagle made a forced landing in the garden of Lloyd Marlatt here the other day. The big bird now is tethered in the garden. Others of its variety are reported in the district.

Huns Reported Sending Leading Norwegians To Germany As Hostages

Montreal, Sept. 25 —(CP)— German occupation forces in Norway appear to be making captives the most prominent people of the Allied Nation to be held as hostages, under the threat of death, Wilhel Morgentierne Norwegian delegate to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration Council, said at a press conference today.

"The Germans seem to think they will be able to threaten us with the extinguishing of some of our finest people who are held as hostages," he continued.

"By killing such hostages they may seek to weaken leadership in the United Nations after the war."

Calling the news "very discouraging," Mr. Morgentierne said the Germans were taking hostages "on a large scale" and shipping them to Germany. One vessel carrying hostages had been torpedoed and some of the survivors had reached Sweden to tell of the horrors of their captivity.

Between 8,000 and 9,000 Norwegians are held by the Germans, most of them political prisoners.

Mr. Morgentierne said it was estimated 250,000 German troops remained in Norway, only 50,000 less than the peak number established there.

RAF USED TO RUN GUNS, SUPPLIES TO TITO PATRIOTS

5,000 Tons of Supplies Handled in Two Years by This Force

DROP CONTACT MEN

By NOLAND NORGAARD
(AP War Correspondent)

Rome, Sept. 26. (AP)—The Allied air command disclosed today that more than 5,000 tons of guns, ammunition and other supplies had been flown by the R.A.F. during the past two years to Yugoslav Partisans and to patriots in other central and southern European countries.

"Tito's Army", the command's report said, "owes much to gun-supply runners of the R.A.F. who, under the enemy's nose, have taken thousands of tons of supplies by air to the Partisans, ranging from anti-tank guns and vehicles to needles and thread, from mules to paper clips.

The first secret operations were made from the Middle East in the summer of 1942.

"In the winter of 1942-43", the report added, "contact men were dropped in Greece. Some of these brave men, having run out of supplies, perished through exposure in the mountains. In the Spring of 1943, there began the real buildup of gun-running—by a squadron of Halifaxes working from the western desert. The Germans, becoming aware of what was happening, sent up Stukas when the supply aircraft were about. When the recognition lights came from the ground, and parachutes floated down, bombs fell as well.

"But the R.A.F. soon evolved counter measures, and now a steady flow of army equipment and food goes in every night".

Twelve Killed In Mass Jump

Camp Mackall, N.C., Sept. 25 — (AP)—Eight paratroopers and four crewmen were killed late last night in the crash of a C-47 transport plane during a mass parachute jump as a part of troop-carrier airborne manoeuvres in this area, the camp public relations office announced today.

Four paratroopers leaped to safety. Headquarters announced that 30 men required medical treatment in the mass jump, largest night jump ever held in this country.

A board of inquiry will investigate the accident. Names of the victims will be announced later.

SHIP SURVIVES SEA PERILS.

Washington, Sept. 25. (AP)— A medium-sized American merchant vessel survived first a torpedoing off the North Carolina coast and then the recent hurricane and reached Norfolk, Va., safely, the navy disclosed today.

After the ship was hit by a torpedo from an enemy submarine, a tug and the coast guard cutters Jackson and Hedloe took the vessel under escort.

When the hurricane struck, the tow line parted, the cutters capsized and the navy sent out additional tugs to resume the rescue.

HEAVY FIGHTING CONTINUES IN ADRIATIC SECTOR

Naval Forces Active in Gulf of Genoa Hitting Targets

EVACUATION STARTS

Rome, Sept. 25 — (CP) — Heavy fighting is continuing in the Adriatic sector of the Italian front where British and Dominion troops of the British 8th Army have been meeting "very strong resistance" today's Allied communique said.

American troops of the Allied 5th Army continued to forge ahead north of Firenzuola on the central sector of the Italian front yesterday while British and Indian forces on their right made important gains.

Allied naval units, meanwhile, bombarded enemy targets along the French-Italian frontier and other naval forces were active in the Gulf of Genoa.

The M.A.A.F. attacked military targets in Yugoslavia, three airdromes in the Athens area and railway yards at Salonika.

Battle to Hold Line

At the southeastern edge of the Po Valley, the British 8th Army has run into heavy fighting against a line of German infantry, paratroopers and armor battling desperately to hold a line across the entrance to the broad Lombard plains to the north.

Meanwhile, exploiting their success in smashing through the heart of the Germans' vaunted Gothic Line, American troops of the Allied 5th Army have punched to within 12 miles of the Bologna-Rimini highway — ancient Via Aemilia.

Although there have been unofficial reports that the Germans have begun evacuating some troops and supplies from the western part of northern Italy, 8th Army headquarters declared there were no indications that the Germans had started any withdrawing movements in the Adriatic sector.

Fifth Army headquarters proclaimed that "in nine days the 5th Army has destroyed the line which it took the Germans nine months to build."

Seize Four Heights

"Doughboys driving northeast from Firenzuola seized 4 heights — Monte La Fine, Della Crose, Monte Cucca and Porarra — thus clearing an access to the Po Valley, an official statement said.

The rate of progress 5th Army units due north of Florence are making toward Bologna, a city of 270,000 at the edge of the Lombardy Plain, remained obscure. Yesterday advance elements were within 15 miles of Bologna. Today the main forces were well across the Santerno river and had captured the Coroncina Hill mass around Futa Pass.

Canadian elements advanced steadily in the face of strong opposition to reach Pederer Grande, five miles north of fallen Rimini.

HOSPITAL SHIP IN

Halifax, Sept. 25 —(CP)— A British hospital ship arrived here last night, carrying a large number of Canadian service men from the European war fronts. Military officials said newsmen would not be permitted to board the ship for interviews with the returning soldiers until today.

RUSSIAN ARMY CLOSING IN ON LATVIAN CAPITAL

Battle on Lithuanian Frontier of E. Prussia Heralds Possible New Offensive

MOVE ON HUNGARY

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 25 —(AP)— The Red army closed in on the Latvian capital of Riga today in the climax to a successful Baltic offensive, while front dispatches telling of a local battle on the Lithuanian frontier of East Prussia heralded a possible large-scale invasion drive on the Junker province.

A narrow land corridor still offered a chance of escape to the German garrison in Riga. Red columns approaching from the north and east made large gains.

The mop-up of Estonia was nearly complete as a large part of Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army moved southward along the Gulf of Riga.

Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky, the only Soviet commander yet to reach Prussian soil, has been held in static trench warfare over a month by the prolongation of enemy resistance in the Baltic at his flank and rear.

His combat patrols have made continual raids into East Prussia but no permanent foothold has been won inside Germany.

With his divisions rested and a large number of Red army air force squadrons concentrated in support of his sector, Cherniakhovsky is known to be ready for a powerful blow at an early moment.

(A Moscow broadcast said Russian troops crossing from southern Poland through Lupkow Pass into Czechoslovakia had captured Humenne, 25 miles inside the republic.

(A Bucharest communique said Russian and Romanian troops crossed the southeastern Hungarian frontier. They were believed to be less than 35 miles from Szeged, Hungary's second city.

(The double push was developing into a big pincers movement designed to knock weakening Hungary out of the war. All German and Hungarian troops strung out in eastern Slovakia and northern Transylvania were in danger of being trapped.)

Moscow newspapers published a statement by 13 German generals and three colonels captured in Romania appealing to the Wehrmacht to revolt against Hitler and make an immediate peace.

The document was drafted by Maj.-Gen. Count Hulzen, commander of the 370th Infantry Division, the newspaper account said.

MOTOR MAGNATE JAILED

Paris, Sept. 25 — (AP) — The Agence Francaise De Presse, official news agency, said Saturday night that Louis Renault, motor magnate and one of France's leading industrialists, had been jailed in the Fresnes prison. The agency reported that accountants of the Renault factories from 1940 to 1943 made and sold $120,000,000 worth of war materials for the German Army.

Says Canadians at Hitler Line Had 10-1 Gun Superiority Over Germans

Hlaifax, Sept. 25 (CP)—More than 460 Canadian veterans of the battle of Caen in France and the smashing of the Hitler line in Italy arrived here last night on the British hospital ship Aba. The majority of the men were soldiers but there were a few airmen and sailors repatriated from the United Kingdom.

Cpl. Neil Fulkerson of Sarnia, Ont., was wounded in the roaring battles that eddied around Cassino.

He told of the night his battalion was pushing up the road about eight miles from Cassino.

"The Germans ambushed us," he related. "Our platoon was a little apart from the main body, and somehow the Jerries overlooked us.

"We decided to counterambush, and long about sundown we jumped on them. They outnumbered us quite a bit, but you should have seen some of our boys fight. Don't let anyone ever tell you the average Canadian hasn't a lot of guts. You'd see quiet guys you'd think wouldn't harm a kitten rip into those Panzer troops. We gave 'em a pretty tough fight."

Pte. G. W. James of Georgetown, Ont., told of the power of Canadian artillery in Italy.

The men referred to the recent talk about the lack of training some of the Canadian reinforcement units had when they were sent up to the front lines.

"I don't know about France," one man said, "but in Italy the reinforcements I saw knew what it was all about. You might find a few who didn't, but all in all they were good men. Men you could trust to back you up."

Sink 29 More Ships, Damage 20 And Destroy 200 Planes

Nipponese Naval Forces Driven to New Bases

By VERN HAUGLAND
(AP War Correspondent)

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 25 —(AP)— Raking U.S. carrier plane raids on the Philippines, which the Tokyo radio reported were continuing yesterday, have driven Nipponese naval forces to new bases and "broken" the island air force, Admiral Nimitz announced.

He said last night American fliers smashed the Manila area for the second consecutive day Sept. 21 (U. S. Time), destroying or damaging 200 Japanese airplanes, sinking 29 more ships in Manila Bay, damaging 20; sinking or damaging 16 small craft.

(Japanese broadcasts said, without American confirmation, that a third successive day's assaults were launched against Manila Friday, U. S. time, and that the attacks continued Saturday with blows against southern Luzon and the central Philippines.)

Planes from the huge attacking fleet have destroyed 906 Japanese aircraft and sunk or damaged 149 ships since they first hit the Philippines Sept. 8 with an attack on Mindanao. Raids were staged on the Central Islands Sept. 11, 12 and 13. Then the airmen came back to hit Manila Sept. 20-21.

Warships guarded the bitterly-resisted invasion of Peleliu Island in the Palau group, frustrated a Japanese attempt to reinforce their garrison Saturday, Nimitz reported. A convoy of 13 barges and a motor sampan filled with men and equipment, was destroyed.

U. S. marines made small new gains on both flanks of bloody Peleliu.

Eleven Injured By Flying Bombs

London, Sept. 25 — (CP) — The Germans struck at the London area and the southern counties with flying bombs twice during the night.

The attacks came in two short bursts — just after dark and again early this morning — and caused some casualties. Eleven persons were injured when one bomb exploded on the grounds of a Roman Catholic boys' school in the country, blowing the roofs off school buildings and smashing windows and doors.

The government remained frankly concerned over housing facilities for bombed out Londoners before winter sets in. An appeal has gone out to carpenters, bricklayers, plasterers and painters to volunteer for the job of repairing some 900,000 homes which have been damaged in the capital.

Compulsory Cadet Training In Secondary Schools

The following announcement concerning Cadet Training was made to all secondary schools in July of this year. "It is the aim of this program to provide training for boys which will make them conscious of national service and good citizenship. It is intended that, as far as possible, all boys will take the complete course as set forth in the courses of study in physical and health education and cadet training whether they belong to open cadet corps or units of the reserve forces or not. Except where exemption has been granted by the Minister of Education, each secondary school will organize a cadet corps, which will include all physically fit boys in Grades X, XI, XII who are not members of an open corps or of the reserve forces, and such additional boys in Grades IX and XIII as may choose to join.

Each Cadet Corps will be associated with the cadet branch of one of the following: Navy, the Army or the Air Force. Where a cadet corps is already organized in any school it will continue to be associated with the cadet branch of the service under which it was previously operated. Where a cadet corps is reorganized or is organized for the first time after September 1944, the school officials may, in consultation with the Department of Education choose the service with which the corps is to be associated. A pupil may be exempted from membership in a school cadet corps on presentation of proof that he is a member of an open cadet corps, or of the reserve forces. Membership in an open corps or in the reserve forces does not exempt a boy from taking the subjects of study as outlined in the courses of study in Physical and Health Education and Cadet Training."

A survey of the local Collegiate Institute and Vocational School revealed that many of the boys are presently associated with the Sea Cadets the Air Cadets, the Argyll Light Infantry or the Thirty-Fourth Field Battery.

Two courses of action are open to the officials of our school. Either a corps may be organised under the direction of the school authorities or the boys may be given the option of joining one of the open units. To institute the latter plan permission would have to be obtained from the Minister of Education who has been advised of the units that exist in the city at the present time.

The amount of time that will be devoted each week to training has not yet been determined, but it is quite apparent that with the present curriculum drill periods will have to be carried out regularly after school hours.

Tag Day "Customer" Had Real Appreciation Of Worthiness of Cause

Business was brisk on Saturday morning for the lady seller of tags. She stood on a corner of a busy street intersection passing out the paper slips for those citizens who wished to contribute to the funds of the National Institute for the Blind.

His hand fumbled in a pocket, then came out with a coin. The lady selected a tag and placed it on the man's coat.

Over the coin container in the tag box the man's hand strayed for a moment, then it located the little slot and the coin tinkled among its fellow. He stepped back in a hesitating manner.

Her "customer" was a man who knew from the bottom of his heart the worthiness of the cause to which he had just contributed.

He was William Lane, well-known sightless resident of this city.

No reason why he was carrying his military uniform was brought forth, however.

Watson was charged with stealing clothing from 86 Station Street, in Belleville and will be arraigned before a civil court here. Military officials at Kingston were also notified of his apprehension.

Murray McIntosh Injured in Crash

Murray McIntosh, 275 John St., sustained severe head lacerations and general body bruises when knocked to the pavement from a motorcycle on which he was a pillion rider early Saturday evening at the intersection of Victoria Ave. and Pinnacle St. The driver of the motorcycle, Thomas Donnan, 51 Hillcrest Ave., escaped with minor bruises, while police today are seeking the identity of the driver of the truck.

Donnan and McIntosh were proceeding down Victoria Ave. hill in a westerly direction when their motorcycle was struck by a northbound truck which the cyclists allege did not stop at the designated 'stop street.' The force of the impact skidded the motorcycle some considerable distance along the Pinnacle St. pavement and it was during this period young McIntosh sustained his injuries. He was attended at the nearby surgery of Dr. J. J. Robertson and later returned to his home.

Police investigated and learned that the driver of the truck stopped following the impact and after assuring Mr. T. Donnan he would report the accident to city police had failed to do so at noon Monday.

Ingersoll Police Break Up Riot

Ingersoll, Ont., Sept. 25 — (CP)— Police officials here said today that no charges had been laid in connection with a mob of between 200 and 300 men who tried to force their way into quarters of a number of Japanese employed by a local manufacturing firm last night.

Though the disturbance was quickly brought under control, a guard of three constables was kept on duty all night but there was no further trouble.

Chief Constable Alex Callander said many of the rioters had carried heavy sticks.

"There have been a lot of rumors about the Japanese men mixing with local girls. It is a question of . . . jealousy, not patriotic anger connected with the war," the Chief Constable said.

Police said the mob began to organize early in the uptown sections and converged from the north and south sides.

Chief Constable Alex Callander said he learned of the intentions of the group and called in the support of Constable John Holmes and Provincial Constable Al Lawrence.

It was reported that among the rioters were a number of persons from nearby Woodstock and Ingersoll.

Police said many in the mob carried heavy sticks.

The mob was dispersed quickly and police said a close watch is being kept on the quarters in the event of another attempt later in the night. There were no arrests.

Police were unable to state reasons for the demonstration.

They were trapped when a boulder blocked their exit during heavy rains Sept. 14.

Roosevelt Assails Republicans In Fighting Speech

Washington, Sept. 25 — (AP) — President Roosevelt Saturday night assailed the Republican Opposition in the United States Presidential election campaign for what he termed their "callous and brazen" falsehoods on domestic issues. He declared the country must not let the Republicans "botch" the peace this time as he said they did 25 years ago.

In a fighting speech that reminded many of his hearers of the Roosevelt of earlier campaigns, he drew on ridicule, sarcasm and mockery to lash his opponents for trying to "imitate" the present Administration.

Described by him as the opening address of his historic fourth-term drive, the half-hour talk was delivered before a cheering audience at a dinner of the International Teamsters' Union (A.F.L.).

Approximately 1,000 persons including 845 union delegates, crowded the ballroom of the Statler Hotel and applauded time and again as the President singled out speeches of his opponent and assailed and ridiculed them.

"Common Fraud" Charged

1. Republicans have practised the most "obvious common or garden variety of fraud" by trying to persuade the people to believe the Democrats brought on the depression, and that the G.O.P. is responsible "for all social progress under the New Deal."

2. The war must be finished speedily and the peace ahead must be completed with the "same will and skill and intelligence and devotion which have already led us so far on the road to victory."

3. The peace-building tasks were "botched by a Republican Administration," and that this must not happen again.

4. The Opposition tried to make him out an old man, to which he replied he was too old for one thing: "I cannot talk out of both sides of my mouth at the same time."

Among the other "malicious falsehoods" he accused the Opposition of spreading was one which he described as "that old, worm-eaten chestnut that I have represented myself as indispensable."

The President was given a 2½-minute ovation when he entered the banquet room, and another of several minutes' duration before he began his address.

He sat between Daniel J. Tobin, Teamsters' president, and William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor. Next to Green sat Henry J. Kaiser, war industrialist.

Introducing the President, Tobin hailed him as a leader shaped by destiny to meet the problems now confronting the country.

Those who advocate a change of national leadership now, he said, are backed by "a band of avaricious manipulators of wealth."

Point-by-Point Replies.

Mr. Roosevelt said that, "when votes are at stake" the Republicans "suddenly discover that they really love labor."

He termed a "callous and brazen falsehood" an assertion that the Administration plans "to keep men in the army when the war is over, because there might be no jobs for them in civil life."

"Why," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "the very day that this fantastic charge was first made, a formal plan for the method of speedy discharge of the army had already been announced by the War Department—a plan based upon the wishes of the soldiers themselves."

The President interpolated an apparent castigation of Gov. Dewey for asserting that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's talents should be given greater scope and recognition.

He said American military chiefs "are not helped" by such attempts to "lecture" the chiefs of staff as to how troops and military supplies should be divided among the commanding generals in the various theatres of war, then added informally:

"And I might say that those commanding generals are making good."

Laughter for John L. Lewis.

Laughter greeted his obvious reference to John L. Lewis as the only responsible labor leader who had not condemned wartime strikes and as one labor leader incidentally who is "certainly not among my supporters."

One of the biggest laughs greeted the President's sarcastic retort to those "in and out of Congress" who, he said, had libelled his dog "Fala" by spreading the "fiction" that he left the Scottie behind in the Aleutians and had to dispatch a destroyer from Seattle to bring him back.

Straying from text, he said with a broad smile:

"I don't resent attacks. My family doesn't resent attacks, but Fala does resent attacks."

The audience roared when, in asserting the Republicans had "botched" the last peace, he spelled out the word slowly: "Botched."

At the conclusion of his speech the audience rose, cheered, whistled and banged silver trays for more than three minutes while the President puffed feverishly at a cigarette.

Dewey Says Mask Off.

En Route With Dewey to Oklahoma City, Sept. 24 —(AP)— Asserting that President Roosevelt had "dropped the mask of a non-political campaign," Governor Thomas E. Dewey declared in a statement issued on his special train today that he would "feel free to examine his (Roosevelt's) record with unvarnished candor in the future."

Replying to Mr. Roosevelt's Washington speech Saturday night, the Republican Presidential nominee said this address indicated his opponent "has no program and has sunk to mere quoting from Mein Kampf and to charges of 'fraud' and 'falsehood.' "

In his address Mr. Roosevelt accused the Republican orators of "the most obvious common or garden variety of fraud," and said that they had adopted the strategy used by Fascists of making "fantastic" charges.

Brest, Sept. 25 —(AP)— Maj.-Gen. Troy Middleton, commander of the 8th Corps of the United States 9th Army, announced that 36,389 Germans were captured at Brest, the second largest prisoner bag of the war.

He said three German divisions —the 266th Infantry, 343rd Infantry and 2nd Paratroop—had been "entirely erased from the troops' list of the German Army" in the 26 days' siege.

The only prisoner bag in France which exceeded this was the 46,000 taken in the Falaise pocket. The Cherbourg total ranks third—about 30,000.

First Seasonal Frost Blackens Garden Produce

Tomato, cucumber and pumpkin vines in the Bay of Quinte district were blackened over the weekend as this district was visited for the first time this season by frost. First appearance of frost was on Friday night with farmers reporting no extensive damage, but on Saturday and Sunday nights the thermometer dropped lower to blacken green vines in the low-lying areas.

Speaking with newspapermen on Monday morning officials of the local Canada Packers' plant were unable to say what damage would be caused to the tomato crop. They were quite certain, however, that tomatoes in low area would be spoiled by the frost. Approximately 65 per cent of the tomatoes have now been brought in to the canning plants, it was estimated, with the crop having turned out better than was expected earlier in the season.

Preparations Being Made for Victory Loan

Clearing the decks in preparation for the Seventh Victory Loan campaign which will get underway across Canada on October 23rd, headquarters of the county Victory Loan organization has again been set up in the old Standard Bank building at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets. As yet little organizational work has been done in the county with the chairman of the county campaign still to be chosen. It is expected however, that Mr. J. J. Trudeau, chairman for the Sixth Victory Loan last spring, will soon call a meeting for the purpose of naming the various committee heads. Eisenhower Tells Foreign Workers 'Hour Has Come'

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Sept. 25 — (AP) — A spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower told the 12,000,000 foreign workers in Germany today that "the hour for action has come" and gave them instructions for activities in the last round of the Battle for Germany.

The workers were exhorted to beware of the Gestapo and not to underrate its powers.

The message said:

"Note carefully the following instructions:

"The organized cells of foreign workers within the Reich will take immediate action according to the pre-arranged plan." Those not in organized cells were told "Their safest course is to disappear from the towns and cities and to seek shelter and employment on the land.

"In certain areas of Germany workers of the organized cells are today being provided with means for active resistance," it added.

Slow But Steady Progress by Finns Ejecting Germans

Helsinki, Sept. 25. (AP)—Finnish troops, undertaking a task they once regarded as impossible, were reported making slow but steady progress today in their efforts to drive the Germans out of Northern Finland and fulfill the terms of an armistice with Russia which this country has received with mingled hope and fear.

A Finnish communique yesterday declared the Finns had occupied part of Suomussalmi in northeastern Finland and were approaching Puolanko after overcoming mines, demolitions and road blocks set by by the retreating Germans.

(A dispatch from Stockholm last night quoted a Swedish newspaper correspondent as saying the Finnish High Command was hopeful of completing the job of ousting the Germans within four weeks without any help from the Russians.)

Meanwhile advance elements of the Soviet Armistice Commission already are quartered in one of Helsinki's finest hotels and the Finns are waiting to see what the armistice terms will means in practice.

ALLIED LANDING IN NORMANDY CALLED GREATEST

Premier Drew Says History Will Recall Sublime Deeds of Canadians

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP)—Premier George Drew of Ontario in a luncheon address to the Canadian Club today said that history will give special mention to the "initiative, stamina and sublime courage" of Canadians who were given the job of holding the vital coastal approaches to the Normandy landing beaches.

Terming the Allied landing in Normandy the greatest and most decisive military achievement of all history, the Premier said: "...It will be written that the Canadian divisions along the coast were given the most critical part of the whole line, and that the success of the broad battle plan in France depended upon the manner in which that pivotal flank held and was advanced against the strongest enemy divisions."

While paying tribute to the British, Americans, French, Poles, Dutch and Belgians, he said history would acknowledge not only the Canadians' job of holding the coastal approaches but also their work in cleaning up the area from which flying bombs were being launched against London.

Premier Drew described his personal impressions of his recent trip to England and the battlefields of France. He said he was forcefully impressed by the fact that the welcome given the Allies in liberated French areas seemed to be cordial even in places reduced to rubble by Allied bombing.

Service of Great Moment.

Of all the fighting in which Canadians have been engaged none has been heavier or of greater moment to the Allied cause than the battle for the strongly defended French channel ports, he said. German S.S. troops there "have fought with almost unbelievable courage and fanaticism."

"I flew over Le Havre shortly after it had been bombed for the first time," the Premier continued. "The whole area occupied by the Germans was a mass of flame. A vast pall of smoke was rising steadily into the air for thousands of feet. It did not seem possible that human beings could live through such an inferno." The Germans surrendered after two more powerful air raids.

He described German prisoners he had seen as "an abject, underfed and miserable looking lot" who "will want no more war for the rest of their lives."

$23,000 FIRE LOSS

Toronto, Sept. 25 (CP)—Damage amounting to more than $23,000 was caused by a fire which swept through the Duchess Printing and Publishing Co., in downtown Toronto early today. The fire was said to have started when a can of cleaning fluid exploded in the hands of Jack Ranger, a printer employed by the company.

Ranger's hands were badly burned.

Fire Damages Storage And Drive Shed

Gaining considerable headway before being noticed by members of the household, fire starting in the driveshed and storage owned by Mr. Roy Tracey, corner of Sidney Street and West College, caused considerable damage shortly before noon today before being brought under control by members of the local fire department.

Damaged by the fire was pasteurising equipment, a cream separator and other farm equipment, while the adjoining barn was saved from the flames only by prompt work on the part of fire department members and neighbors who supplied the city pumper with water. The wind was blowing the flames directly toward the Tracey house.

Origin Unknown

Firemen were at a loss to understand the origin of the blaze which was well underway before being noticed by members of the household. Mr. Tracey was in the field cutting corn at the time the blaze started.

Efforts on the part of neighbors in supplying water for the city pumper undoubtedly prevented the spread of the flames to the barn proper and to the Tracey dwelling. In addition to the driveshed and storehouse being gutted, the milk house and hen house were destroyed, according to firemen.

Things you can't add on your fingers

The street car you ride on—the electricity that perks your coffee—the home you live in—the school your children attend—the hospital where your baby was born—these are available to you partly because of life insurance investments in Canada's mills, factories, power plants and public works. The money you put into insurance is always circulating to make more jobs for more people. It's hard to add up all its benefits because they are felt in every corner of the land.

Some say that life insurance money would be better employed as "venture" capital rather than invested in long term bonds and mortgages. Well, life insurance companies must regard the investments which they make from year to year as trust funds, and policyholders would not want it otherwise. Deliberate safeguards have been set up to protect these investments and government laws very properly prohibit the use of life insurance funds for speculative purposes.

The truth is that life insurance assets are safely invested in such a wide variety of local and national undertakings that the average man has no conception of how much the development of the country depends on life insurance funds.

It is good citizenship to own

Chill of Autumn

"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin" is a wellknown adage and the decline of the mercury during the past few nights emphasizes for everyone that the coal dealers and the coal administration authorities know what they are talking about when they advise people to get in their coal by allotments and not to wait too long. This seems unnecessary and yet humans are so constituted that they may put off the day of preparation against the coming cold season.

But fortunately many people listened even in the warm weather of summer to the voice of warning and they have put in the amount of coal which the dealers are allowed to deliver.

That does not mean that anyone is likely to start burning up fuel too early. Everyone is surely aware of the shortage of help and of coal fuel and should assist the deliveryman by taking coal as it can be secured.

Perhaps the past morning or two will act as an incentive to some to get in a portion of the fuel. In the course of time the period when the second instalment of the fuel that individuals are entitled to have delivered comes and those who have ordered early and taken their first delivery will be entitled to ask for their second delivery.

The spell of the weather was a timely warning that however much some consumers may cherish summer it does not last forever and that in Canada some time in autumn fires begin to burn for warmth in homes.

Hun Obsession With Robomb

The enemy, true to his instinct as a savage in modern days, is keeping up the robot bombardment of Southern England and London. How useless has been the use of these weapons against humanity who are the sufferers, civilians, school children, patients in hospitals, the Huns have surely seen because they could not break "the stubborn hearts of oak" of the British people and the Allied armies removed the launching bases from Hun use by capturing them. But the unspeakable Boche is now launching them from planes it is believed in the sheer madness and love of destruction they cause though they can never win a battle or halt vengeance and retribution hitting at Germany.

For the sheer savagery of destroying life and property they have devised these methods of striking at civilians and in so doing they have deprived themselves of invaluable material for the making of planes that might have done something to add to the feeble Luftwaffe appearances. However much the Hun needed planes, he used engineers and materials on this sideline of terroristic weapons. And then he and Hitler with naive suggestions, hint that the German "secret weapon" is going to save them from punishment of the lashing they thoroughly deserve. It is typical of a nation that is so cruel and materialistic that it will trust in some "miracle" bomb to help them out of the mess they have got into by their early use of the powerful engines of death and destruction they used in their blitzkrieg across Europe.

It shows the peculiarity of the German mind, engineers and leaders pinning faith or hope on these weapons, the German people still stubborn in their faith in German engineering skill which has been beaten so many times during this war by the British, American and Russian engineers and thinkers. The German mind is busy at some deviltry all the time as Hitler was from the early days after the last war. He saw a chance to strike at the world by using Germany's weakened state. The German mind represented by Nazi and militarist is bent on destroying everything that is not German. It has aimed at destruction of everything outside of the German Reich for the sake of the material advance of the Reich.

This time the world has great hopes in the vast power and the leadership of the United Nations of East and West to put this abominable enemy of humanity, progress and liberty in a position where he cannot plot and try to carry out his fiendish desires.

On German Soil

Christian Science Monitor points out that "the fact of foreign soldiers fighting their way onto German soil should be salutary in Germany. One of the things a Nazified generation of Germans has to learn is that Germans are not necessarily better than other people, that they have no rights that other people are not equally entitled to, and that there is no special blessing on German arms."

The German has to understand that crime such as the German nation and its warmakers have committed will not be tolerated whether from Germans or Japanese. The nation that set itself up in Hitler's boastful speeches as a race of "supermen" is no such thing. Militaristic Germany has committed crimes for the sake of aggression that the world ages ago outlawed. But by the Germans because other nations have outlawed these things and methods, this fact is used as an opportunity to strike at the civilized world which scorns to go to the subterfuges and treacheries to which Germany has gone. Germany has plotted under the guise of many things, she threatened the nations, she took territory in spite of opposition from the lawful owners and in everything the Hun has behaved in the terrorist brutal manner which suggests a "throwback" to the most savage instincts. And Germany's crimes are worse than those of any other offenders in all history, because she has had the advantage of the great progress and enlightenment of science and thought, but she used these only in one way—the way of the gangster. She has been the most savage holder-up of all history and would take what she wanted and did take as much as she could.

Now upon her soil Allied soldiers are marching and Allied armies from east and west and south are smashing forward—all with one goal, Berlin, the seat and head of the criminal government of Hitler and over every bit of German soil the armies of retribution will come in order to control Germany by the time the war with Germany ends.

For centuries Prussia has been militaristic and always fighting her neighbors with one object, growth of power and in time there came the German confederacy which gave Germany (and Prussia in it) the might she has used with a savage giant's strength. For the last time she has done this—that is what the Allied Nations mean—for they are going to put an end to German assumption of the right to do just what she likes. And now is that time. The Huns will soon have a taste of the blessings of Allied government for as soon as German territory comes under Allied sway as the armies progress, that part of Germany will have a local Allied administration at work. That will show the Hun something new to him.

Dining Rooms Vanish

(New York Times)

One ancient urban institution that is definitely on its way out is the family dining room. Its elimination is one big space-saving factor in the modern, compact apartment. The functions of the old dining room are being redistributed in two directions, (1) to the kitchen, (2) to the parlor or living room. In one case there is the enormously convenient dining alcove in the kitchen. In the other case people dine on folding tables which they set up in the parlor and remove after the meal.

The dining room is a bourgeois institution, and its decline may be one symptom of the decline of the middle classes, if true. The vast majority of the working masses, farmers or urban employees, have always taken their meals in the kitchen. But when it comes to sacrificing the parlor it is something else again. Mr. Churchill's proposed transitional post-war homes have had to be changed in the blueprint because too many people objected to having the kitchen merged with the living room. They had their proper pride.

FORCE

Power's a very fickle goddess, as they find who worship might.
She counts only swords and cannon and alibity to fight.
To the side which is the stronger all her smiles and favors go.
Who would bask in her affections has to conquer every foe.

It was told you in the Scriptures every boastful battle lord
Who takes up the sword for conquest will go down before the sword.
Since the goddess Power seeks nothing either merciful or wise,
Force can only hold her favors until greater force can rise.

Oh, you lords of warlike nations, you are doomed and know it well!
Truth and freedom have you mastered.
They've outmatched you sword and shell.
Now the might of right is mounting, land
and sky and open sea,
And the day is not far distant when with swords you'll beaten be.

CHINESE QUEUE

After the Manchus conquered China in 1644 they compelled all Chinese men to shave the fore and top part of the head and to wear the remaining hair in a braid at the back of the neck as a sign of subjugation and loyalty to the new masters.

Previously Chinese men had worn their hair long and tied in a knot at the top of the head. The tonsure and braided queue had been borrowed by the Manchus from the neighboring Tartar tribes.

At first the Chinese resented this badge of degradation imposed by the Manchu emperors, but as generations passed they not only became reconciled to the Tartar practice but were loath to give it up. Chinese prized their queues as their very lives and spent hours every day in braiding and in brushing them.

The queue, called the pigtail or monkey tail by Westerners, became a characteristic feature of the national costume, and the Chinese themselves were often referred to humorously as "Pigtails."

But the conservative Chinese submitted to the queue only during life. When he died his hair was dressed according to the practice of his ancestors, symbolizing the fact that, though subject to the Manchus in life, he was independent of them in death.

In 1898 it was reported that the emperor of China was considering a proposal to abolish the queue by royal decree. In 1911 when the Manchus were overthrown and a republic established millions of Chinese cut off their queues as a sign of their liberation from alien rule. Leaders of the revolution encouraged the people to discard the ancient symbol of subjugation, and during the next few years many local magistrates and governors commanded the people in their districts to cut off their queues, and in some cases forced them to do so.

The younger men in the cities of the north and the men generally in the south were the first to get rid of the badge of servitude and submission. The queue gradually disappeared even among the country people of the north until at present very few Chinese wear the queue, and most of these live in remote sections of the country.

Relatives Will Meet Returning Veterans At Hospital and Depot

Kingston, Sept. 25 — Under new arrangements finalized at Military District No. 3 Headquarters, relatives, who have been informed when a member of their family is returning to Kingston aboard a hospital train from overseas, are invited to go directly to No. 3 District Depot, Fort Frontenac, here, instead of to the Outer Station, two miles north of the city.

In the past, relatives have met incoming hospital trains at the Outer Station, which was found to be an inadequate and out-of-the-way place for residents of Kingston and district to greet their sons, brothers and fathers returning from the battlefronts.

Families who congregate at the depot, and whose returning soldier will be taken from the train and transported immediately to Kingston Military Hospital, will be given advanced information at Fort Frontenac, and they will be transported from the depot to Kingston Military Hospital for a reunion with their loved ones.

Relatives are warned that as a result of the new arrangements of transporting the men from the hospital trains immediately to Kingston Military Hospital and Fort Frontenac they may miss the opportunity of welcoming members of their family if they wait at the Outer Station.

At the District Depot, relatives and returning soldiers will be given refreshments, and the same system will prevail at Kingston Military Hospital.

All relatives, who have been notified that they have a member of their family returning on a train, are asked to co-operate with military and civil authorities by going directly to No. 3 District Depot at Fort Frontenac. This will facilitate plans as drawn up through the co-operation of city officials and a special district army committee.

When first instructions have been received at army headquarters here of the time of arrival of the train, a direct telephone line will be kept open at Fort Frontenac and interested parties can secure the latest information about the train by dialing 7466.

Soviet To Punish All War Crimes

Moscow, Sept 23. (AP)—Punishment for war crimes will be one of the Soviet High Command's main preoccupations in southeastern Europe regardless of whether the Allies adopt a more lenient attitude in the west, it is becoming apparent.

A vast amount of evidence for use in prosecuting Balkan collaborationists for persecution of Russian and Allied peoples has been collected and the Soviet-supervised purges of State and military machines in Romania and Bulgaria will, it is believed, net hundreds of Axis henchmen.

A fat bag of Axis diplomats and militarists already has been seized with 31 arrests announced and presumably many more being made or imminent.

The Soviets now hold in custody former Romanian Premier Ion Antonescu, Bogdan Philov and Prince Cyril, former Bulgarian regents; eight Italian Fascist diplomats; two Hungarian diplomats and more than a dozen German former Balkan overlords.

RELEASED POISON GAS

Stockholm, Sept. 23 (AP) — Germany's first gas alarm was sounded during an Allied air raid last week on Darmstadt when a bomb hit a chemical plant, releasing poison gas, the newspaper Aftonbladet said today.

Some deaths were caused, the article quoting private sources said.

CALCIUM, D AND RHEUMATISM

I have been taking calcium and vitamin D as suggested in your pamphlet, off and on for about a year. I have had arthritis for about six years and was practically cripple. But for the past three months have been able to get back on the job and earn my living once more, which is a blessing I'm thankful for.

(W. E. F.)

Thank you for reporting your experience. All I know about the calcium and vitamin D treatment is, first, that, according to Sherman, the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans, at least among dwellers in cities and towns, is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element; second, vitamin D is essential for assimilation, utilization and retention of calcium; and third, a good many readers have reported extraordinary relief of "rheumatism" and improvement in general health when they adopt the practice of supplementing their diet with a suitable daily ration of calcium and vitamin D.

This is no specific. It is only essential food. I don't know whether it will do any victim of arthritis or rheumatiz any good. All I know is that it can do no harm, for it is essential nutritional material, not medicine.

On request, if you provide a stamped envelope bearing your address, I'll send you a pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatiz" which tells how to supplement your diet with calcium and vitamin D. At the same time you should learn which foods are good sources of calcium and include adequate amounts of such foods in your daily diet. I have a pamphlet "The Calcium Shortage," which contains this information and considerable more about other common ailments and weaknesses that seem to be due at least in many instances, to prolonged calcium deficiency. For this eight-page pamphlet enclose ten cents with your stamped self-addressed envelope.

In any case whether the meaningless name of "rheumatism" is applied or not, it is important to understand clearly that calcium and vitamin D is not medicine, but food Food the body demands but, because of our artifical mode of life, does not get in sufficient proportions to maintain good nutrition. So you must eat your daily ration of calcium and vitamin D, today, next week, the year around. You cannot expect to take one or forty "doses" of it and cure anything.

Since moving to Florida I have been troubled with a breakout on face and forehead—have noticed many women here have the same thing. Since much salt is lost with perspiration I wondered if that can be the cause, and have been taking tablets containing 7 grains sodium chloride, 3 grains dextrose, 1 mg. thiamine, 10 mg. ascorbic acid. Please give me your opinion. (Mrs. H.L.A.)

Answer—It is a good practice for any one anywhere to take extra salt whenever he or she sweats profusely, to replace the salt lost in sweat. A good big pinch of salt with every glass of water prevents heat exhaustion, heat or sun stroke, is more refreshing than water alone. Those other ingredients just make the salt more expensive—the soda jerker who concocted that formula left out vinegar, catsup and chopped walnuts.

Nice Kind Father

Have you a pamphlet on thumb sucking? Probably the child's father makes the child nervous, by constantly picking on him at his meals. (Mrs. G. E.)

Answer—If a child eats at table with rest of family the child should be required to remain at table until the rest of the family have finished eating. If the child prefers to gobble down his meal in a hurry, all right. In time the child will learn that he may as well take his time. It is always bad for digestion, bad for everybody's morale or "nerves" if you prefer that term, and bad for the child's character development to fuss, criticise, scold, try to compel the child to eat anything he does not want. For pamphlet on Thumb Sucking send a stamped envelope bearing your address. Do not send a clipping.

Pimples

Please tell me if chocolate causes pimples. I have what the doctor calls acne, and he said chocolate may cause it. (Miss W. J.)

Answer—Some physicians claim to think so. We'll have a talk about it here presently. Send stamped self addressed envelope for pamphlet on Blackheads and Pimples.

Red Cross To Build, Operate New Hospital For Chronically Ill

September 25, 1944—At the request of the Provincial Department of Health, Ontario Division of Red Cross will undertake to build and operate in the unorganized section of the province, a 35-bed hospital for the chronically ill. A site has been purchased at Sudbury and construction will begin next spring. According to Dr. B. T. McGhie, Deputy Minister of Health, chronically ill people are now taking up 25 percent of beds in active treatment hospitals, and nearly $400,000, has been expended by the department making additions to existing hospitals for the chronically ill. All such institutions have long waiting lists. This is the situation in organized Ontario.

In the unorganized sections of the province, there is no provision whatever for these patients. The provincial government knowing with what efficiency Red Cross operates its Outpost hospitals, is giving to the Division $40,000 as first payment towards establishing the first of these hospitals in the north, and will pay the usual per diem rate. It is expected that eventually such accommodation will have to be found for at least 300 chronically ill patients in the northern sections of the province.

Gallant Member of Bison Squadron Was Reported Missing a Few Days Before He Was to Be Decorated

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group, Somewhere in England, (CP) — "Yes," said Sqdn. Leader Tom McCall, "Harry should be here too—he'd have liked this."

We were standing in a great hangar where they service the heavy bombers. Drawn up in a hollow square were the airmen and airwomen of this Canadian bomber group. In the centre the King, with the Queen and Princess Elizabeth standing beside him, was distributing medals to Canadian airmen.

If Harry had been there he would have been decorated with the D.F.M. But he wasn't and a good number of the airmen standing at attention during the investiture were thinking just as McCall was—that Harry should have been there too.

Harry was a sergeant with the Bison squadron, a flight engineer, when he won his immediate D.F.M. last March. When he went missing a couple of days before the visit of the King to his station he was wearing the single, thin ring of a pilot officer—PO. Harry Glass of 287 Queen St. East, Toronto.

McCall told his story while a long-line of Harry's pals passed before His Majesty and received the D.S.O.'s, D.F.C.'s, and D.F.M.'s.

Glass was out on a trip to Nuremburg and at this point he hadn't even let the folks back home know he was on operations for fear they would worry. Coming out of the target the Halifax, piloted by a 21-year-old boy from Moose Jaw, Sask., was attacked by two fighters.

Stamped Out Blaze

The pilot took violent evasive action but the fighters' cannons and machine guns had done a thorough job. The Halifax was on fire and Glass used an extinguisher to beat back the flames and when this was exhausted he stamped the rest of the blaze out with his fet.

Later the disabled aircraft, as it limped homeward, was dogged for nearly an hour by four Junkers 88's and played a fantastic and urgent game of hide-and-seek in the clouds above Northern France before the fighters were dodged.

Then the gasoline supply ran low. The crew did everything they could to conserve gas but it wasn't any use. Close to the enemy-held coast they had to come down on the sea and as six crew members clambered onto the wing the big aircraft broke up and sank. The pilot went down with it.

But Harry managed to reach a partially inflated dinghy and pulled the other five aboard. For ten hours they tossed about out there until rescued and taken ashore.

That —in so many words—McCall's words—is the story of Harry. There are a lot of stories just like it in this service where they don't mourn over much because death is so close so often, but it is good reason why McCall and the others who saw the King would have liked Harry to be there.

Says Robomb Attack Began Too Late To Help Germany

Toronto, Sept. 23 (CP)—The Germans started their robot bomb attacks on London too late to help their cause, Rev. Bryan Green said in address here last night. Mr. Green was chaplain of the anti-aircraft headquarters for the defence of London and is in Canada on a speaking [illegible] with the approval of the [illegible] Ministry of Information and at the invitation of Most Rev. If the robot bombs had fallen last February or March instead of 10 days after the invasion England "might possibly, just possibly," have sought to negotiate a peace, said Mr. Green.

Then "the people were tired, they were cynical about the peace and frustrated in their hopes for social reconstruction."

Gun-Toting Soviet Gals Like Frills

By ADELAIDE KERR
(Associated Press Writer)

New York (CP) — A woman's life in Russia would give you some surprises.

Rowena Meyer, back home in America after nine years' teaching and broadcasting in the Soviet, notes these, for instance:

"People are always asking me whether Russian women soldiers who have served with men at the front have not lost their femininity," she says. "In Russia we never thought of such a thing. In the beauty parlor where I went I often used to see rifles stacked in the corner and I knew that the soldiers were in, having their facials and manicures, while they were on leave. I knew I would not get my manicure that day, because soldiers got preference in any appointment.

"There were all kinds of women among those soldiers, from grandmothers to young bleached blondes who came in to have their eyelashes and eyebrows touched up. I used to talk to them in the shop. They just regarded their jobs as something that must be done—and done as quickly as possible.

"They wore the regular uniform—blue skirt and khaki blouse. But they loved pretty clothes and all the little accessories. All Russian women do. They are starved for these things because everything has had to go to the war effort. Everything I wore from America was always noticed and commented on—even by the men.

Parasol Stopped Traffic

"Once in Batumi I was carrying a bright figured parasol and bag from America. I was just ready to cross the street when the policeman blew a sharp blast at me and I couldn't understand, so I called—in fear and trembling—out to ask him what I had done wrong.

"I just wanted to tell you I liked your umbrella," he yelled. Then he blew his whistle and traffic moved on."

Miss Meyer, a Brooklyn-born commercial artist, went to Russia in 1934, after the depression swept away her job. She gave private English lessons in Moscow for a time, later broadcast in English in Khabarovsk and finally taught at the First Moscow State Pedagogical Institute of Foreign Languages. Miss Meyer was in Moscow during the siege of 1941. She returned to this country several months ago and has made a series of lectures under the auspices of the Russian War Relief.

"Russian women have really achieved equality," she said in conclusion. "They do equal work for equal pay and you never hear their brain capacity questioned. Moreover [illegible] are no burlesque and no cheese-cake pictures exploiting women in Russia.

"Very few women are servants. Women are encouraged to do better work. So most women have to do their own housework. Of course apartments in Moscow are small due to the housing shortage—two rooms perhaps to a family of four. So there is not so much work to do. Because the wife works, the husband often helps with the [illegible] You will often see men arguing with [illegible] are often kept at nurseries while their mothers work, but many come home at night. There is a warm close-knit family feeling."

WEDDINGS

ARNOLD—GREEN

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a very lovely September wedding on Saturday, the 23 at four o'clock in the afternoon, when Barbara Margaret Jean Green, daughter of Mr. Harry G. Green, and the late Mrs. Green, became the bride of Flt.-Sgt. William Eeden Arnold, R.C.A.F., Charlottetown, P.E.I., and son of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Arnold, of Ottawa. The Rev. J. G. Hornsby was the officiating clergyman for the occasion.

White asters formed the impressive floral background. Mr. V. P. Hunt presided at the console of the organ, and played softly throughout the ceremony and at the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a picture of loveliness in a long gown of white brocaded matlesse crepe, fashioned on princess lines with sheath-tight bodice, full skirt falling into a slight train, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves ending in points over her wrists. Her veil of tulle illusion fell in graceful folds to her fingertips from white gladioli fastened daintily to each side of her hair. She carried a cascade bouquet of roses, gladioli and baby 'mums in white.

Miss Peggy Doolittle, as attendant, was wearing a charming period model, made with full skirt of blush pink taffeta accentuated with black velvet diagonal stripes and black velvet fitted top made with three-quarter length sleeves and sweetheart neckline. In her hair nestled a black velvet Juliet cap fascinatingly adorned with blush pink feathers. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, gladioli and asters in hues which blended harmoniously with her ensemble.

Mr. Erskine Arnold, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and the ushers were Douglas Green and Pilot Officer Donald Smith, Camp Borden.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Bay of Quinte Country Club. The bride's grandmother, received the guests wearing an attractive Lawrence gown in black crepe complemented with accessories in the same shade and corsage of roses, gladioli and asters. The mother of the groom chose for the occasion a black crepe dress fashioned with a heavily beaded jet bodice. Her accessories were black and her corsage was of roses and gladioli.

On the wedding trip to Toronto and Muskoka, the bride selected for travelling a dressmaker suit of imported wool in the new invasion red shade, hat in matching color, black Chesterfield top coat and black accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Ottawa, Toronto and Tweed.

The bride was entertained at a number of pre-nuptial parties among which was a cup and saucer shower held by Miss Peggy Doolittle. The making of a bride's book and the serving of a buffet luncheon comprised the gay affair.

DOOLAN—ALEXANDER

The Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Kingston, was the scene of a pretty early Autumn wedding at nine a.m., Tuesday, September 19, when the Rev. Fr. J. P. Sullivan united in marriage Patricia Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander, Belleville, and Edward Alphus Doolan, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Doolan, Kingston. Mr. Lucien Nourry played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an effective street length dress of iceberg blue crepe, with navy accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hilda Alexander, of Belleville, as bridesmaid, wearing a pretty two-piece suit of aquamarine blue with navy accessories.

Mr. Joseph Cain was best man and the ushers were Mr. William David, of Port Talbot, South Wales, and Mr. Jack Mahoney.

A reception was held at the Hotel La Salle following the ceremony, when the bride's mother received wearing a gown of navy blue printed crepe and corsage of mauve orchids. Mrs. Doolan, the groom's mother, wore a pretty gown of aqua blue with silver foxes, black accessories and corsage of mauve orchids.

Later the bride and groom left for points east, the bride donning for travelling a smart brown tailored suit with rust accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. They will reside in Kingston. The bride is a graduate of the St. Joseph School of Nursing Hotel Dieu Hospital.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. R. Scrivens, Mrs. Alexander, and Mr. and Mrs. Mott, of Belleville.

MATTUCCI—COURNEYEA

St. Edmund's Church, Stoco, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Zita Courneyea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter C. Courneyea, of Stoco, became the bride of Joseph A. Mattucci, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Mattucci, of Peterborough. Rev. Fr. Meagher officiated. Miss Clare Maloney played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, Miss Marie Kearns, of Peterborough, sang "Ave Maria".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white sheer. Her veil of embroidered tulle was caught to her head with a halo of seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses and baby breath.

Miss Edith Mattucci, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, in a gown of orchid sheer, with matching hat, and carrying a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mr. Raymond Cournyea was best man.

At the reception held at the hotel in Tweed, the bride's mother, received the guests, wearing a black crepe ensemble, with matching felt hat and accessories, and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, was in dusty rose crepe and lace, with black felt hat, matching accessories, and a rose corsage.

Later the bride and groom left for a wedding trip to New York, the bride travelling in a black tailored suit and black accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Mattucci will live in Peterborough.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Sept. 25. (CP) — Three ways:—There are three ways of cooking that most delectable of fall vegetables, squash, says Laura Pepper, head of the Agricultural Department of Consumer Section. Baking takes about an hour; steaming calls for about half an hour; frying and be accomplished in about 15 minutes. No matter the variety, small acorn or pepper squash, patty pan or pie squash, crooked neck and large hubbards, the method is pretty much the same.

For baking, cut the squash in half, remove the seeds and pithy portions and bake, cut side down, in a moderately hot oven until tender—about an hour. Scoop out pulp and mash thoroughly, seasoning with salt, pepper and a little butter or bacon fat and, if it can be spared, a teaspoon or two of brown sugar. For serving "in the piece" bake until nearly tender—about 40 minutes, sprinkle cut surfaces with brown sugar, dot with butter and bake about 20 minutes longer or until squash is tender and golden.

Steaming:—Cook the peeled diced squash in a steamer for about half an hour or until tender. If you haven't a steamer use a colander or sieve, placed over boiling water in a large saucepan or kettle. Serve diced or mashed, with seasoning to taste.

To Fry—Peel and slice the squash quite thinly, season with salt and pepper and cook slowly in a covered frying pan, using two tablespoons fat to a 6 cups of squash. Time—about 15 minutes.

Whole Grain: "I hear a lot about whole grain cereals these days, how can I tell whole grain from refined cereal?"

That's a question that bothers many a housewife. Here's the answer straight from the Nutrition Division at Ottawa.

Among the whole grain cereals, rich in vitamins and minerals, are rolled oats, oatmeal, cracked wheat, flaked wheat, unpolished rice and pot barley. Refined cereals, less valuable from a nutritional point of view, include pearl barley, cornmeal, macaroni, noodles, spaghetti, farina and polished rice.

If you're buying ready-to-eat cereals, read the label carefully to see whether you're getting the whole grain or not. Remember, it's important to eat one whole grain cereal every day, as well as four to six slices of Canada Approved vitamin B bread.

Pickled Onions: If you've been putting off pickling onions for the winter because of the work involved, here is a simple recipe for them which required little trouble:

Take six quarts of tender small onions, peel and mix with three pounds of coarse salt. Let them stand for another two days in fresh water. Drain, rinse and bottle with red wine vinegar. As a last precaution, make sure the jars are air tight.

Onions Without Tears:— To peel the onions for the foregoing recipe without weeping, hold them under water—either running or in a large dish.

FASHION FLASHES

NOT SO POPULAR perhaps as beaver or Persian lamb, but very, very smart is fine broadtail. This supple fur is used for a softly manipulated elegant coat made with wide-pleated sleeves and deep pouch pockets. An ermine bow fills in the neckline.

MADE FOR A BUSY DAY is a gray pencil stripe wool dress with tiny black velvet collar and turnback cuffs, big patch pockets and a wide, bright red alligator belt. Chevron stripes on the pockets, fly front.

THERE'S A CHARM about fringe whether it is used for day or evening clothes. Ideal for the smart matron is a black crepe frock with surplice closing to the bodice and side-draping on the skirt. Slanting deep black silk fringe gives a two-tiered effect to the skirt.

WHAT'S NEW in furs? Well, it might be a handsome three-quarter length stroller of well-marked ocelot with wide tuxedo stoles of otter.

Of course women do not have to accept a fashion, no matter how fiercely it is foisted on them. But when women see the flattery and charm of the "more hat" mode, they are pretty sure to accept it.

What an eye! Freda's almost uncanny. "That eye's pretty good at spotting the Kellogg's Corn Flakes package, too," her mother told us dryly. "She'd eat me out of house and home, if they weren't so economical. We all like those crisp, toasted flakes at our house." 4 out of 5 housewives vote Kellogg's Corn Flakes first for flavour. And they save time, work and fuel, too. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

Beefsteak and Kidney Pie

Another popular way of using the less expensive cuts of beef, Beefsteak and Kidney Pie is delicious, nutritious and easy to prepare.

Cut 2 lbs. of round steak and one beef kidney into 1½ inch cubes. Dredge in well seasoned flour and brown in hot lard. Simmer in a heavy saucepan for about two hours. Add 8 tiny onions peeled and sliced, 4 or 5 carrots scraped and sliced and 6 potatoes peeled and quartered. Cook 15 minutes more. Blend lard left from browning meat, with flour left from dredging and work into smooth gravy with stock. Now line sides of a deep dish with Silverleaf pie paste—see panel—place a support for top crust in centre and turn in filling. Moisten top edge of paste with cold water and adjust rolled out sheet of paste slotted for escape of steam. Bake in hot (375 degree) oven until crust is golden brown . . . about half an hour.

Martha Logan

SILVERLEAF PIE PASTE

3 cups sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
2 tsp. salt
¾ cup chilled Silverleaf Lard
very cold water

Measure and sift into a bowl flour, baking powder, and salt. Cut half Silverleaf Lard in finely, remainder more coarsely. With a fork work in just enough cold water to make a paste that just clings together and cleans easily from the bowl. Chill before rolling out.

Useful Hints On Storing Vegetables

Vegetables should be harvested as late in the season as possible for winter use, and when digging the roots care is necessary so as not to damage them as the slightest bruise will cause rot in storage, says J. Gallaher, Head Gardener, Dominion Experimental Station, Kentville, N.S.

The tops should be cut off close to the crown, as the ends of the leaf stalk if left on will also cause rot in storage. Beet tops should be twisted off, not cut. Good housekeepers can the beet roots when small as they become tough if kept in storage any length of time.

Carrots, parsnips and salsify may be stored in boxes, placed in layers with either damp sand, moss, or sawdust. If sawdust is used it should be from hardwood, as softwood sawdust may cause rot or fungus. In the fall a few parsnips may be buried about one foot deep in a corner of the garden and dug up again in the spring, when the quality of the parsnips will be found to be improved.

Potatoes and swede turnips do not require packing in any material, but put in boxes or barrels with the top exposed. Potatoes when dug should be left for a short time on the ground so as to allow the outer skin to dry. This is not necessary for turnips.

The latter varieties of cabbage such as the Late Danish Ballhead are better for storing, as the earlier varieties do not keep well. A few plants may be pulled with roots intact. All leaves except a few close to the head should be removed and the plant suspended from the roots from the ceiling of the storage room; or the heads may be cut just below the base. Loose leaves should be taken off and the heads placed on a slatted shelf, head down in two or three layers. As the outer leaves decay they should be removed. Heads will keep well in some cellars if rolled in several sheets of paper.

Onions should be pulled and left in the garden for a week or ten days before storing. The tops and roots should then be removed and placed in slatted boxes or spread out on the floor in a dry warm place for a few weeks, then placed in the coolest part of the cellar.

Celery, like parsnips, should be harvested at the end of the season. Choose a dry day and lift the plants with most of the soil on the roots. All decayed outer leaves and any suckers appearing around the base of the plant should be removed. Place them in boxes, covering the roots with soil, or, if space will allow put them as close as possible on the floor in a bed of about four plants to a row. Cover the roots and keep them well watered but be careful not to let the water on the leaves or into the heart. Leeks may be treated the same as celery.

Squash, citron, vegetable marrow and pumpkin, unlike the foregoing require warmth, and should be stored in the warmest part of the cellar or in the attic, where it is dry and warm. The fruit should be ripened on the plants and harvested before the cold nights come. Place the fruit on shelves where possible, but never in barrels or boxes. Be very careful not to bruise the outer skin at any time. Examine the fruit often, using the unripened first as they will not keep well.

Proper Care and Treatment Helps To Beautify the Eyes

Mildred Law has Lovely Eyes.

HELEN FOLLETT

Eyes require a lovely setting, like the sparkling gems that they are. Crinkles in the surrounding tissues are no help, no don't let turkey tracks get a start, if you happen to have ambled past your fortieth birthday. That is the time to watch out.

Puffy flesh below the eyes makes them look tired and haggard. Those odius little hammocks beneath them are caused by loss of sleep, worry or digestive disturbances. Treatment consists of a well organized life, bathing the eye first with hot water, then with cold, covering the eyes with gauze that has been dipped in ice cold witch hazel.

Boric Acid Wash

When eyes smart because of flying dust, dissolve one teaspoonful of powdered boric acid in a cup of boiling water, strain and cool, apply with a medicine dropper. If there is the slightest sign of pus, go to a medical man without delay. Eye infections must not be neglected.

Many women abuse their eyes shamefully, reading in moving trains, sewing or reading in a dim light. These are the ones who postpone the day of putting on glasses. Nobody likes to wear glasses. They are a bother. Yet one has only one pair of eyes, one can't buy new ones, why not take care of them?

Mascara for Lashes

There's a great deal of talk these days about eye exercise. They should be done under the supervision of a medical man. Eyes are exercising all the time and, if they are to be given more work to do, the work should be of the right kind.

Don't forget that the real beauty of your eyes is in expression. Animation will keep them bright. Good general health is a factor. And you can pretty them with a touch of mascara on the lashes, if you wish.

The Marry-Go-Round

The Green Light to Happy Marriage

Knowing what you want in this life and why you want it is the first requisite of happiness and success.

For instance, why are you marrying a certain man or a certain girl, and what are you marrying for? Most men could not answer this question, and most girls probably would refuse to answer it.

Yet, the only sure way to be happily married is to discover first what you are marrying for—and then be thankful if you succeed in getting it. Marriage is not a lottery—it's a bargain!

A man knows why he chooses a profession, why he takes a business partner, why he wants a particular job and why he buys a house; but he never knows just why he wants to get married or chooses a wife.

He marries in a haze or a daze, because he's going away to war or because he's home on furlough, or because he's lonely, or because he's happy or just on an impulse! In short, he seldom marries for any sane reason; he waits until he loses his reason.

A girl, on the contrary, usually has a reason for wanting to marry; but it is buried so deep down in her subconscious and under such a lot of glamor and romance, that she isn't quite sure what it is.

The trouble is that most of us are such very poor sports in the marriage bargain. We marry for one thing and then are disappointed and disgruntled if we don't get lots of other things along with it.

If you married for love and companionship and got them, you are very fortunate. So why pity yourself because you didn't get square diamonds, lots of money and a mink coat throw in. Or, if you married in order to get sables and charge accounts and winter in Florida, why wail because the hard-working business man who supplies them is not a Romeo or a gay dancing partner when he staggers home after a wearisome day?

If you are a man, and married in order to get a good housewife who will coddle you and mother you and the girl lives up to that role, be thankful. Don't consider yourself cheated because you didn't get a playmate or a glamor girl, altho' the combination is not known. It's just that a glamor-girl is usually too busy keeping glamorous to keep her mind on mixing muffins and keeping a man's dinner hot. But if you married for an adventure, or in order to get a corner on a glamor-girl's kisses, or in a moment of emotional intoxication, don't blame anybody but yourself, if you wake up to find yourself tied to a headache.

Husbands and wives come in assorted varieties, and the solid, substantial kind are seldom the sort who make light after-dinner diversions. The whole secret lies in knowing what you want and being contented and happy if you get it. I venture to say there would be no divorces if we all took marriage in that way.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Man Deplores Women Displaying Worst Points—

Stop, look and listen! Young ladies—and those not so young, at the summing up of a bachelor's plaint. He claims that women, pretty women at that, accentuate their worst points with the glee of the early Christian martyrs offering themselves up for torture.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"At 32 I'm an unwilling bachelor, and in the Service. I've been overseas, invalided home, and at present holding down a desk job. My health is now as good as ever and I'd like to marry, have a home and all the blessings supposed to go with it, if a man chooses wisely.

"But, my dear lady, what's the matter with girls who deliberately advertise their ugliest points. If a girl has a pretty mouth and she touches it up with a bit of lipstick, no one but a crotchety old hypocrite could complain. The lovely cut line of her Cupid's bow is made only the more kissable. But if Nature has given her lips thick as a Bologna sausage, why does she invest in a tomato-red lipstick and advertise her affliction?

"Not all mouths offend like the Bologna mouth, some suggest cut watermelon, but somehow or other I don't want any. It's not my day for watermelon. And the way that girls try out, with tissue paper in restaurants, to see if the mouth they painted on ten minutes ago is still there, isn't appetizing.

"Now, please don't take me for an old crab; I'd be the last to keep a woman from looking her best. Let her learn how to paint wisely, even if she has to pay good money for lessons.

"Some of the bare legs I see about would drive that Saint —— what was his name who took to the wilderness to escape the wiles of women?—into a deeper jungle. Not one pair of bare legs in a hundred are beautiful. Skin deficiencies; bluish veins, "hirsute adornment" on the legs of the fat brunettes, bristly when the shave has been badly done, are hideous.

"The suntan makeup is less offensive but it must be applied by an artist. And when it comes to bare feet in peek-a-boo sandals, most of the display is nauseating. A walk of a block makes feet dirty, whipcord veins, misshapen nails from shoe-cramping and the sweet things beg you to look at feet which never should be shown.

The Widow Wears Her Wedding Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I need your help about my daughter's attitude toward wearing her wedding ring. She is in her twenties, and was married a year and a half when her husband passed away. That was two years ago, and since then she has been wearing her wedding ring. Recently she has been telling her friends that several men she knows comment on her wearing her wedding ring, and her friends tell her not to wear it. What is your advice about this?

Consant Reader.

Your daughter should, of course, continue to wear her wedding ring, and if she loved her husband and revered his memory, nothing would keep her from wearing the sacred symbol of their marriage. And if she were so unfortnate as to know any men who would be so daringly and glaringly rude and caddish as to comment on her wearing this precious symbol, her good taste and judgment would tell her how to deal with them. . . .it would certainly be cause enough to break off any acquaintance with them.

But if she is willing to listen to the comments of these men, and if she is willing to listen to the superficial advice of her friends, I can't help feeling. . . am I right? . . . that her thoughts are turning more and more to acquiring a new husband, and that she regards her wedding ring as a deterrent in this quest. A man of sure taste and a fine sense of the proprieties would not want to have her stop wearing her wedding ring, for he would respect her devotion and loyalty. But other men who may be interested in her would prefer not to see her wear this sign of her first marriage. The choice must be hers.

A Semi-Formal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—When the bride is planning to wear a satin chiffon dress (with short sweep) and a finger-tip veil, at a nine a.m. wedding in late September, what would the groom and his attendants wear? Some say cut-away coats and striped trousers; others, white coats and black trousers; others say tuxedos. What would you suggest?

2.—What would be the proper menu for breakfast after the ceremony?

Mary

1.—For this semi-formal wedding the groom and his attendants may properly wear cutaway coats, dark striped trousers, and appropriate accessories. Tuxedos are completely inappropriate, since a tuxedo is informal evening attire. For a semi-formal wedding in summer, it is appropriate for the men in the wedding party to wear either white linen suits, or dark (preferably dark-blue) coats and white flannel trousers.

2.—After such an early morning wedding, it is customary to serve a "real breakfast" menu: that is first fruit in some form; then perhaps scrambled eggs, with bacon or small sausages, or creamed chicken on toast, or sweetbread grill, or broiled chicken with French fried potatoes, toast or small biscuits or rolls; coffee. Then the bridal cake, with champagne, punch or other something-cold, with which to drink the toasts.

3.—Yes.

Sending Greetings.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

To settle an argument, will you please answer this question: When one sends a greeting card, is it correct to write a message either under the printed greeting or on the opposite page?

Meta.

Yes. . .and the written message adds a personal touch to the more or less impersonal printed message. Any friend will welcome the "added attracton" of your own message, perhaps some longed-for news.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Summer's End! Spruce Up!

Many a woman pats herself on the back, tells herself she has endured the summer with great fortitude. Children home from school. No help in the kitchen. Nobody to do the laundry work, so the boss of the domestic works has had to buckle down, maybe for the first time in her life. She's looked after the house, the old man, the children, the dog and the victory garden. She has done her duty by everything and everybody except her face.

She thinks of the wonderful peace-time past. She didn't appreciate it. She didn't know how lucky she was. Half a day in the beautytorium getting her complexion overhauled, hair shampooed and waved. Fingernails always in apple pie order, shining like red beacon lights. Look at them now! Claws, that's what they are, with broken eaves, and cuticle crawling up on the nail fabric.

She has the feeling that her hair is a mess, her feet worn down to the bone, her figure slipping into the middle-age pattern, her complexion decidedly not of the magnolia-and-roses variety. She is, in fact, in need of complete renovation. She must put her mind on reconstruction, or pretty soon she'll be a grand old ruin.

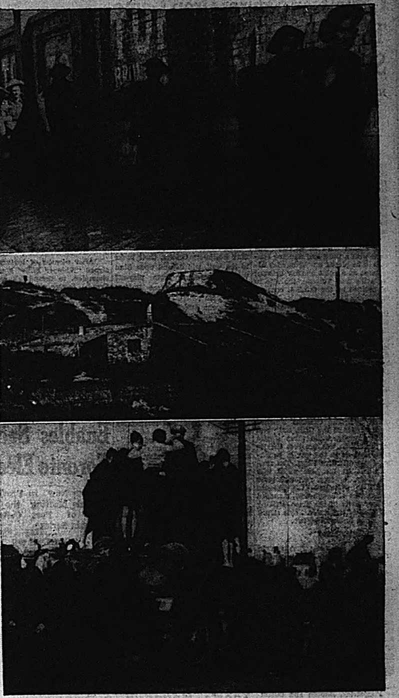
With the children in school, she can sneak out for good-looks repairs now and then. If there are little children in the family, she can toss them into grandma's lap; grandmothers are used to that. And the first indulgence should be a permanent wave and a new hair arrangement. An improved face for the critical gal in the looking glass will be a big prop, raise the spirits, make life more pleasant.

She will need a few facials, several manicures, a pedicure or two—maybe a body massage to get the aches pounded out of her tired back. All these will not set her back very much in the check book. Even so, what of it? If the kids want anything, they get it, don't they? Well, the mama wants a little bit of youth back into her system, and the best way of getting it is to doll up.

No doubt her face, hands and arms have a lingering evidence of tan, so a little homework will be necessary to prevent her from looking mottled as time goes on. For the complexion, we suggest a few hot compresses after the face washing, to loosen discolored skin scales. Hands and arms should be scrubbed with a brush when soap is used. The more cream used the better, because the complexion is weather-beaten this time of year.

Use a heavy emollient, those of you who are in the same class as the subject of this dissertation, and let it remain on over night. The flesh will lap it up and rejoice.

CANADIANS TAKE BLANKENBERGHE



After more than a quarter of a century Canadian troops are again fighting the Germans on the soil of Flanders—and winning. Top picture shows men of a Canadian regiment entering the Belgian town of Blankenberghe, following closely on the heels of the retreating Hun. Centre picture gives a general idea of the Nazi defences which faced the Canadians in their drive through Belgium. This line of forts was located on the beach road leading into the town of Blankenberghe and lower shows citizens of the town, liberated by the Canadians, swarming over a Canadian armored car as it halted in the main street. Belgians show their joy at being again free of the Nazi heel.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

Fashion Flashes

WINTER ROSES are important this year. We mean, of course, the roses that trim this winter's hats. Black felt, made into a double-cuffed toque, is studded with enormous red velvet roses set in green leaves and posed around the brim. Pale green veiling.

FOR A CHANGE try a brown satin dress! A smart afternoon frock in this medium has a peplum that is divided in front and draped on the hips in pannier manner. Broad self belt with covered square buckle. High neckline cut in one with short sleeves.

DEVELOPED with an eye to very dressy after-dark street-length frocks, as well as for dinner dresses, is a 25-inch long neatly tailored topper with novelty pockets bright with sequins, jewel tone stones and gold embroidery.

PERFECT to wear with satin dinner suit under a fur wrap is a halter dickey of white crepe embroidered in sequins ranging from palest pink to deep fuchsia. Would be nice with black, gray or brown.

HIGH STYLE for the fur trimmed coat does not necessarily mean that a coat must be fur laden. One of the smartest coats we have seen is in American Beauty woolen, its collar, revers and front closing edged with a very narrow band of mink. The fur is also used to outline four slanting pockets, all posed above the belted waistline.

No dearth of new ideas and good ones in autumn frocks. A charming restaurant frock is of black crepe for the entire skirt and back of the bodice. The front of the peplum bodice is of white crepe shimmering with multi-colored sequins in an all-over floral and scroll motif.

Had Real Chance in 8th to Put Game in Bag But Could Not Hit in the Pinch

COUNT IS 5-3

Inability to hit, when hits meant runs cost the local Columbian Squires Juniors their opportunity of stepping right into the provincial softball finals on Saturday, when after establishing an early-game lead against the Toronto Carltons they faded in the later innings to drop the second game of their series by a 5-3 count.

The series between the two clubs now stands all even at one game each with a third and deciding contest to be played on Wednesday afternoon at a point midway between Belleville and Toronto, the site to be decided by the O.A.S.A. conveners.

For four innings Don Boyle had the measure of the Toronto team and supported by some really classy fielding set the Carltons down almost in order. Then the fireworks started and before the dust had settled the visitors were in the lead by virtue of a two-run scoring spree and from that point on were never headed, although the locals did manage to tie it up in the eighth.

From an offensive standpoint the two teams were practically even, both connecting for an even half dozen hits. The Carltons bunched their bingles in the fifth, sixth and ninth innings, while three singles in the eighth was the best the locals could do in the way of bunching their offensive blows. Ten runners left on the base paths tells the story, however, and also gives credit to Chinciluk the Toronto hurler, who although wild, managed to bear down in the pinch, striking out nine of the locals. Boyle struck out three and walked two.

Get First in Second

Belleville got their first run in the second innings as Donovan went all the way to third, when the 2nd sacker muffed his hard hit grounder. He counted when the Toronto catcher muffed the third strike on the following batter. In the fifth the Stramla brothers combined with a single and a double to even the score with the latter brother putting his team one up as he scored on a fielder's choice. Toronto went two up in the sixth as two hits and an error allowed another run.

Had Chance in Eighth

Belleville got their really big chance of the game in the eighth as Fitzpatrick, Bunton and Culkin hit consecutive singles. With the bases loaded and no one out the Toronto pitcher developed a wild streak to force in two runs. Adams, however, struck out and Wardaugh hit into a double play to end the inning. Toronto won the game in the first of the ninth as a walk and two hits provided the winning margin.

Fitzpatrick was the only local player to get more than one safety, while for the winners, Tenesi and Stramla provided the offensive punch with two apiece.

The teams: Toronto — McBriche 3b; Walker 1b; Pogoreselski ss; Chinciluk p; Tenesi cf; Stramla c; Chomyshym lf; Murray 2b; and Stramla rf. Belleville—Wardhaugh 3b; Rollins 2b; Boyle p; Fitzpatrick c; Bunton 1b; Culkin cf; Donovan lf; Moher ss; and Adams rf.

BUFFALO BISONS NEED ONE GAME TO WIN SERIES

Baltimore Orioles Beaten at Home on Sunday by 4-2 Score

ORIOLES ON SPOT

Baltimore, Sept. 25 — (AP)—The International League pennant-winning Baltimore Orioles, their backs to the wall, will depend upon Stan West to preserve their play-off chances when they face Buffalo Bisons here tonight.

West, who defeated the Bisons at Buffalo Thursday night, was manager Tommy Thomas' choice for mound duty in the game which the Orioles must win if they are to stay in the running for the right to meet Newark in the finals.

Playing the fifth game of the Governor's Cup play-off series before a record local crowd of 32,913 at the Municipal Stadium yesterday, the pennant winners took a two-run lead in the first two innings but went down 4-2, giving the Bisons a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven-game series.

Joe Orrell, who defeated Baltimore 9-4 in the first game of the series a week ago yesterday, is expected to be on the mound for the Bisons.

Charles (Red) Embree was charged with yesterday's loss, losing the game because of wildness and the fact that Walter Wilson held the Baltimoreans to seven scattered hits and set them down in the final 7 innings.

Embree allowed two runs by wild-pitching, once in the fourth inning and again in the fifth. Both teams played errorless ball.

In the second frame Bison shortstop Bubber Floyd pulled the old hidden-ball trick to halt a Baltimore scoring threat. Felix MacKiewicz singled and went to second on a wild pitch, scoring when Lou Kahn doubled to centre. Hiding the sphere, Floyd tagged Kahn out a moment later.

In the other opening league series, Newark eliminated Toronto in 4 straight games.

New York, Sept. 25. (AP)—The baseball season is almost over but baseball men can put in a busy winter trying to guess when the war will end. It will have a lot to do with their planning. . . .Late in August a bulletin from minor league headquarters cautioned the inactive clubs against too-hasty resumption because of a doubtful player supply and war manpower regulations that might make it hard to get even those players who aren't in service. . . .Two weeks later another notice pointed out that players and other employees might be coming back from the war during the off season and baseball clubs should be ready to find work for them. . . . Boss W. G. Bramham of the Minors says: "I have never seen the like of interest in baseball that exists now". . . But its another question when and how that interest is to be applied.

Understandable Error.

Shortly after he arrived at Camp Shelby, Miss., ex-Cardinal Alpha Brazle got into a ball game and made a clean steal of third base. Then he looked around and found the sack already had one occupant.

Monday Matinee.

When Redlands U. took a 67-0 beating in its first football game and then cancelled a November contest with Compton "because the Redlands Ration Board would not issue gasoline for football travel", Athletic Director Goldie Holmes of Compton merely wondered what the household alibi would be when the war is over. . . The amateur Hockey Association is embarking on a campaign to popularize hockey in United States schools and may bring the Eveleth Minn., High School team east next winter.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

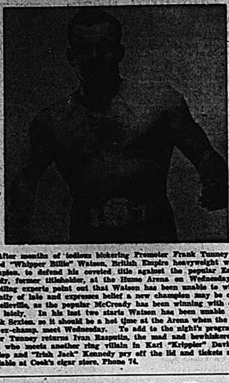
DEFENDS HEAVYWEIGHT CROWN HERE



After months of tedious bickering Promoter Frank Tunney finally signed "Whipper Billie" Watson, British Empire heavyweight wrestling champion, to defend his coveted title against the popular Earl McCready, former titleholder, at the Hume Arena on Wednesday night. Wrestling experts point out that Watson has been unable to win consistently of late and expresses belief a new champion may be crowned in Belleville, as the popular McCready has been winning with consistency lately. In his last two starts Watson has been unable to beat Frank Sexton, so it should be a hot time at the Arena when the champ and ex-champ meet Wednesday. To add to the night's program Promoter Tunney returns Ivan Rasputin, the mad and bewhiskered Russian, who meets another ring villain in Karl "Krippler" Davis. Al Dunlop and "Irish Jack" Kennedy pry off the lid and tickets are now available at Cook's cigar store, Phone 74.

Two-Hit Hurling by Hunter Enables Sacos To Defeat Toronto Electrics Second Time

SCORE IS 5-0

Playing airtight ball behind the superb pitching effort of Jim Hunter, the local SACO Intermediates continued on their way through the O.A.S.A. playdowns on Saturday when at the Fair Grounds they scored a decisive 5-0 win over the Toronto Amalgamated Electrics to take the series two straight.

The Belleville Club is now in the Provincial Intermediate "B" finals and will play the winner of the Sarnia-Port Colborne series now in progress.

Once again it was "Big Jim" Hunter who was responsible for the lion's share of the day's victory over the Toronto team. Allowing only two hits, and one of them being of a scratchy nature, Jim did not permit a single Toronto runner to get as far as third base, while he struck out two and walked but one. On the other hand the locals cuffed the offering of Findlay, the burly Toronto hurler for a total of eight safeties, two of them being run-producing homers by Carson and LaBonne. Findlay struck out three and also walked one.

The game was as sweet a pitcher's battle as could wish to be seen with both sides going down almost in order up to the sixth. Then two hits in a row by Carson and Green put a runner in scoring position with Carson racing home as the Toronto shortstop attempted a double killing on Phil Loft's grounder.

Homers Put Game on Ice.

SACO put the game on ice in the lucky seventh as Hunter was safe on an error. Barriage hit into a force-out with Henn coming through with a single. Carson then stepped to the plate and picking the hole in left centre field lashed out his round-tripper. With no one aboard, LaBonne repeated with his homer in the eighth.

Wardhaugh at third for SACO played heads up ball and could be named the defensive star of the game while Jimmy Barriage and Phil Loft in the outer gardens came through with nice running catches. Wardhaugh's one-handed stab of Koruntoff's bounder in the fifth was a treat to watch, while LaBonne and Henn combined for an out at first, which bordered on the spectacular.

DETROIT TIGFRS HAVE EDGE IN THE SCHEDULE

NEWHOUSER WINS 27TH

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

It is no longer a question of who will stop Detroit Tigers but how can they lose.

Winners of nine of their last 10 starts, 22 of their last 27 games, and not having dropped a team series since July 28, when they lost three straight to Boston, the Tigers clung to their one-game edge in the American League yesterday over St. Louis Browns by beating the Red Sox 9-5 for the fourth straight time.

The Browns, however, refused to concede the flag to the Tigers. Trailing Philadelphia Athletics 2-0 in the last of the ninth inning, they rallied for three runs to pull the game out of the fire.

But the schedule for the remaining week of play is all in the Tigers' favor. Each team has seven games to play, but the Tigers' opponents will be the Athletics and Washington Senators, the tail-enders. The Browns, on the other hand, must meet the Red Sox and New York Yankees.

Once again it was Harold Newhouser who pitched the Tigers to a victory, his 27th of the season. Only one other pitcher in Tiger history since 1900 has won more, George Mullin, 29 in 1909. Aiding Newhouser yesterday was Pinky Higgins, who batted in five runs with a homer

Sox Extend Streak

The Yankees were all but mathematically eliminated from the race when they absorbed a 4-1 licking from Mel Harder and Cleveland Indians. The defeat dropped the New Yorkers 4½ games behind the pace, with eight games remaining.

Sox Extend Streak

St. Louis' champion Cardinals became the first National League team to win more than 100 games for 3 successive years when they won both games from Philadelphia Phillies, 4-3 in 16 innings and 1-0 in nine frames. It was Cards' 100th and 101st victories.

The other games in the National League resulted in even splits for Pittsburgh Pirates and Giants, the Bucs winning the second in 10 innings 3-2 after Bill Voiselle had beaten them 5-4 in the opener; Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers also divided, the Cubs winning the second 4-3 on Bill Nicholson's 33rd homer, after Curt Davis became the first Dodger pitcher to win 10 games as Brooklyn won the opener 10-3; Cincinnati took two close games from Boston 2-1 and 1-0.

Manager Mel Ott of the Giants suspended first baseman Phil Weintraub for the balance of the season for lack of hustle and "improper attitude" in the game of Sept. 23. Before the game, Ott had to summon Weintraub from the clubhouse, where he had retired after being hit on the arm in batting practice. In six official times at bat, Weintraub failed to get a hit, looking at a third strike with the bases loaded.

BELLEVILLE JRS. WIN AND LOSE OVER WEEKEND

Defeat Railroaders 6-0 and Beaten by Alemites by 8 to 1

GOOD CONTESTS

Belleville Juniors won and lost in a doubleheader of baseball played at the Alemite Field yesterday. The juniors beat the C.N.R. "Railroaders" 6 to 0 in the curtain-raiser before bowing to the Alemites 8 to 1 in the nightcap affair. Next Sunday the Juniors and Alemites meet in a final game for the city baseball championship at Alemite Field.

The Juniors scored single runs in the first two frames, Doyle and Philp crossing the plate respectively to gain a substantial lead over the C.N.R. "Railroaders" in the initial contest. R. Bush and Philp scored in the sixth and Kelleher and E. Bush in the seventh to give the juniors a 6-0 win over C.N.R., who counted but three hits. The C.N.R. line-up read: Calpin, Scott, L. Tapp, Day, Dickey, Finnegan, May, Tapp and Hogan.

An east-west schoolboy football series in mid-October may result from negotiations which Winnipeg sportsmen now are carrying on with St. Michael's College of Toronto. It was reported last night from Winnipeg that Frank Hannibal, a past president of the rugby football club there, was the principal in the move to have the 'teen-agers' series played in Winnipeg Oct. 14 and 16.

Two private schools have signified willingness to take part in the series, but one of them, St. Paul's College, has requested that the Toronto team field players 19 years of age or under on Sept. 1 this year, and that they be members of high school classes.

Mimico will be the venue tonight of the second game between that town's mountaineers and St. Catharines Athletics in the best-of-five series for the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association championship. Mountaineers are one down to Athletics by virtue of the 11-3 win scored by St. Catharines Saturday in a game marked by heavy checking in the last quarter.

The United States men's champion, Frankie Parker, and Pauline Betz, women's titleholder, stroked out hard-won victories at Los Angeles Sunday in the finals of the Pacific southwest tennis tournament. Parker defeated Bill Talbert, Indianapolis, 6-4, 6-8, 8-6, while Miss Betz won from Margaret Osborne, San Francisco, 6-4, 6-3.

Ottawa, Sept. 25 (CP) — The Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, in step with other organizations hit a body blow by the war, has been making post-war plans, too, since the annual shoot at nearby Connaught Ranges was suspended in 1940 for the duration.

Yes, those snipers and sharpshooters who have been proving they're pretty handy with rifles in the heat of battle, will be able to prove—and no "line-shooting" will be necessary—just how good they are when the Germans are beaten.

The D.C.R.A. hasn't been idle these war years. Connaught Ranges, rated about the best and most picturesque in the world, is the site nowadays of a military camp. But if the war finished before spring the camp will disappear and shooting meets will be resumed.

Col. R. J. Birtwhistle, Associated Secretary, has a program already drawn up and tucked in a pigeonhole for use at a moment's notice.

The war has engendered a keen interest in competitive rifle shooting. For instance, last winter more than 85,000 soldiers and would-be soldiers participated in the association's small bore meets. More than 1,000 teams took part, 459 from Reserve Units and 553 from the Army Cadet Corps.

Before the war 500 riflemen at the association's annual competition was considered something to boast about. Without going off the deep end, Col. Birtwhistle figures that future shoots will draw more than 1,000.

Connaught Ranges, too, might become the scene of big intra-Empire meets. Plans for such a development are in the blue-print stage, but officials feel that within a year after the war the ranges may become a second Bisley.

And while we're on the subject. Did you ever know that Desmond T. Burke of Ottawa, now a medical officer overseas and considered Canada's most outstanding shot, learned the hard way. He used to lie for hours in his back yard, unloaded rifle to shoulder, opening and closing the bolt.

Shell spinters: The Prices Board, beset by rationing and price control worries, has taken time out to warn nimrods that Sept. 30 is the last day on which permits for small arms ammunition can be obtained. Permits will be good until Dec. 31, but they won't help big game hunters in the Ottawa Valley where the deer and moose season opened today. There isn't a centre-fire shell for miles . . . Ottawa Trojans' stock soared in the O.R.F.U. when Curly Moynahan was lured back to the game—but not for long. Curly tripped over a curb while entering his home and suffered a broken ankle. . . New York Rangers' Frank Boucher, who spent the summer on a farm at Mountain, Ont., will leave any day now for Winnipeg where his team will train . . . Frank says it was a little dry this year for the crops.

LESSON NO. 489

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An opening three bid has been the elusive football in bridge bidding. It has been kicked around by all kinds of experts in all sorts of fields. It is still bouncing around out there.

Sims held it so safe, you seldom had a chance to see it. The Four Aces handled it so recklessly, it was usually fumbled. Ely Culbertson ran it all the way from both ends to the middle and back.

In 1931-33, Culbertson used that bid for length and strength. In 1935, he used it with weakness. That had his followers running in both directions like alternating currents.

Some used it with strength. Others used it with weakness. So, in 1936-37 he used it either with great strength or weakness and called it the "two-way" three bid; a three bid with a two-way stretch.

Ye gods and little fishes! By this time Culbertson players really tangled with each other. But good. So, he abandoned the two-way three bid and in 1941 changed back to strength.

In his earliest days, he said a three bid should have 1½ honor tricks outside of the strong suit. He now says one honor trick (a sure trick in Horse Sense) with the strong suit is enough.

Changing from Helsinki to breakfast and back again, he is right back where he started from. Only he dropped a half honor trick along the way. But bridge players don't let that stand in their way.

♠ A Q 6
♥ A Q J 10 9 4 3
♣ 3

It is too strong for a one bid and not strong enough for a two bid. Even with more than a sure trick outside, bid three hearts.

An opening three bid (in a major suit) shows a re-rebiddable suit and a sure outside trick. That is what it should be in any system. That is what it always has been in Horse Sense.

Sooner or later, Culbertson gets there. All great men do.

AT THE McCARTHY — Abbott and Costello and Arthur Treacher in a scene from "In Society," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL—Frank Graham as Cosmo Jones and Mantan Moreland, his colored aide, appear in "The Crime Smasher," at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "The Desert Song."

AT THE CAPITOL — Dennis Morgan, who appears with Irene Manning in the technicolor attraction "The Desert Song," now showing at the Capitol with the added comedy thriller "The Crime Smasher."

AT THE BELLE — Robert Walker, who jumped to stardom with his role in "Bataan", appears with pretty Donna Reed in M.G.M.'s "See Here Private Hargrove," which has laughs by the minute, and is based on the best-selling book of the same name.

VETERAN PLAYERS IN SPOTLIGHT OF OPENING GAMES

Joe Krol Leads Hamilton Wildcast to 35-0 Win Over Toronto Indians

SERVICE LOOP OPENS

(By The Canadian Press.)

Veteran players were in the spotlight in the three opening games Saturday in Ontario's sixth wartime football season although several younger players came up with performances which stamped them as coming stars of the gridiron.

Triple-threat Joe Krol led the Hamilton Wildcats in a triumphant 35-0 rout of Toronto Indians at Hamilton in the only game in the Ontario Rugby Football Union; Leading Seaman Annis Stukus, embarking on his 10th season of senior football was the kingpin of a Toronto Navy team which sailed to a 22-6 victory over Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes in an Ontario armed services league game at Toronto; Cpl. Joe Richman and Moon Mullins were the top scorers as Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers squeezed out an 8-7 win over St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets in the other services league game at London, Ont.

Krol, probably the best back in the east last season, was passing, booting and running as well as ever. His play and that of 14 other veteran members of last year's Dominion champion Wildcats smothered the yougthful but scrappy Indians all the way. The Windsor native who broke into senior football with the University of Western Ontario tallied 12 points on two touchdowns and two converts.

Rookie Shines.

Four other Hamilton veterans figured in the scoring parade. Paul Miocinovich, hard-plunging back, had six points while Tom Hickey and quarterback Mel Lawson had five. Aging outside wing Jimmy Simpson had one. A new Hamilton star was Joe Seipl, 165-pound outside wing up from high school ranks who had a touchdown and a convert for six points.

Jim Cumming was the standout performer for Indians and he had able assistance from Jack Harris, formerly of the University of Saskatchewan, and Len Cassidy but their best wasn't good enough to halt the marauding Wildcats.

Stukus, leading scorer in the O.R.F.U. last season, got away to a flying start in the new services league scoring 12 points at Toronto as Navy marked up an easy victory. The Hurricanes, led by veterans Sgm. Fred Kijek and Sgt. Doug Pyzer, tallied six points in the opening stages of the game but after that they faded in the face of a hard-hitting Navy line and fleet running by youthful sailor backfielders.

OS. Byron Karrys, OS. Jim O'Brien and LS. Tom Waldon were the three most brilliant Navy youngsters. Karrys and O'Brien each scored a touchdown, the latter dashing 36 yards around the end for his score. Waldon caught faultlessly, started extension runs ably and proved an able pass receiver.

Booted For Single

Richman got the lion's share of the points for Hagersville at London with a fourth-quarter touchdown which overcame a St Thomas lead but FO. Pete Wright, graduate of London high school football circles, got the clinching point in the dying minutes of the game. Mullins who had scored all seven St. Thomas points, fumbled a snap and Wright booted the loose ball over the line for a single.

It was close football all the way. Walter Gibb put Hagersville one point up in the first quarter when his attempted placement went for a single. Mullins got four points for St. Thomas in the third quarter with a single and a placement. Richman's converted fourth-quarter touchdown gave bombers the lead but Mullins tied it up with another placement only to make the game-losing fumble a few minutes later.

Perfect weather prevailed for all three games. Nine thousand fans saw the Toronto contest, nearly 5,000 were on hand at Hamilton and about 2,000 attended at London.

The other two O.R.F.U. teams — Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Trojans—were not scheduled but Trojans took advantage of the open date to play an exhibition game with Verdun of the Quebec Rugby Football Union chalking up an easy 36-6 win before 2,500 fans at Ottawa. Veterans Ted Edwards, Bert Haigh and Arnie McWatters were the leading Ottawa scorers.

Ontario Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

Final games were played in several districts in Ontario baseball during the weekend, while in other tilts teams reached their final series.

At Fort Erie the local team was eliminated 7-2 from the Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate "A" semi-final playoffs, losing to Toronto Baers. The latter had won the first game 16-4. Baers made it good with a four-run seventh inning.

The Sault St. Veronica's won the Northern Ontario intermediate "A" Softball Championship at Sault Ste. Marie by downing North Bay 9-0, winning their best-of-three series in straight games. The winners now wait until a southern Ontario titleholder is declared.

Sarnia won the Juvenile O.B.A. semi-final series at Woodstock by defeating Woodstock 5-0. The Sarnians meet Toronto-Kiwanis for the Provincial Crown.

St. Catharines Lincolns 1943 O.B.A. Junior "B" winners, blanked Petrolia Hard Oils at the Garden City 32-0 in the opening game of a home and home final series. Pitcher Garner racked up 16 strikeouts.

Subbing for Bob Rothmell who was ill, twelve-year-old Glen Johnson Saturday pitched Guelph into the finals for the Ontario Bantam "B" title with an 11-1 victory over London in the third game of the semi-final round. Each team had won previously. Guelph now meets Hamilton.

In the first game of the Midget O.B.A. finals, Hamilton trounced London on its home grounds 14-4 in the first game of the finals.

Behind the pitching of Herb Lake, Fort Erie, coasted to a 12-2 victory over Sarnia to take the first game of a best-of-three final series for the Amateur Softball Championship of Southern and Western Ontario.

At Grimsby the locals won 12-7 over Batawa in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate "C" finals to even the series at one victory each. The third and deciding game will be at Oshawa Wednesday.

ROYAL CONGRATULATIONS

St. Albans, England (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. John J. Baker, of Colney Heath, near here, received a message from the King congratulating them on their diamond wedding anniversary.

HURT BY ROBOMB

London (CP) — Lady Daphne Russell, only daughter of the Duke of Bedford, was injured by a flying bomb while serving in a forces canteen in Southern England.

Thirteen Walks Spell Defeat For Batawa Team

Thirteen walks off the delivery of "Buck" Stacey who tried in vain to find the plate, dispelled any chances the Batawa "Bombers" had of taking the Intermediate "C" softball championship at Grimsby on Saturday and with free passes to the initial sack accounting for many opposition runs, they dropped the second game of their series by a 12-7 count.

Now tied at one game each, Grimsby and Batawa will decide their series at Oshawa on Wednesday afternoon when a win for either team gives them the provincial championship.

Batawa took an initial inning three-run lead but their advantage was short-lived as Stacey quickly developed a streak of wildness and coupled with some timely hits off the "Peachkings'" bats the homesters went into the lead in the second by virtue of five runs, adding two more in the third. The visitors fought back gamely and tied the game in the fifth but Grimsby again went into the lead in their half as they scored a singleton. They won the game in the eighth as they drove Stacey to cover with Ellis relieving him on the mound.

Batawa outhit the Grimsby boys by a 6-5 margin with Aquino connecting for a couple of doubles to lead all the hitters. Two base blows were also clouted by Cook, Kelton and Belcott, the Grimsby hurler.

Score by Innings:

Batawa	300 040 000—	7	6
Grimsby	052 010 04x—	12	5

The War Today—

Germany Pocketed by Fronts, Nazis About Done in Italy

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(Substituting for DeWitt Mackenzie Associated Press War Analyst)

Berlin reports that the Nazis expect an early resumption of the U.S. 3rd army's drive for the Rhine. If Hitler's high command is as smart as we think it is, it expects a whole lot more than that.

Whether through the fortuitous workings of Allied planning or through the coincidence of growing German weakness and successful Allied drives for position, Germany now is pocketed within an almost continuous series of fronts which promise to blaze into climatic action simultaneously.

Russians Mass Strength For Pay-off.

While the Russians have been pressing their Baltic and Balkan campaigns, cleaning up German forces which to a considerable extent are already out of the war, they undoubtedly have been massing strength for the eastern front pay-off—the cutting-off of East Prussia and a renewal of the drive toward Krakow, 35 miles ahead and 40 miles from German Silesia.

In the west the Allies have had just about enough time to solidify their gains and reorganize their supply. Many rear echelons which were in Britain until a few days ago are now in France. German forces in western Holland are reported retiring en masse through the gap north of Arnhem, capture of which will probably signal the big push.

Nazis in Italy Almost Through.

After the bitter nine-day fight which shattered the Gothic Line, the Allies in Italy may need a breather, but not a long one. The Nazis there appear to be almost through and the next battle probably will be one to prevent their escape through the Alps.

The battle for the Balkans continues largely as a clean-up operation. It's a sort of private war, but is consuming Nazi strength sorely needed in the east and west. That is likely to be its final role.

If renewed drives for the Rhine, East Prussia and Silesia do develop simultaneously, all the old favorite terms for describing broad military action will be out of date. It won't be a pincers movement, for you don't "pincer" with sledgehammers. The one about the "upper and nether millstones" won't do because neither force will be static.

It will be more like the great, multiple-ton presses of Allied war industry, turning out the material which will be rolling toward Berlin from both sides.

CHAPTER 5.

The motorcycle held with him to ninety-seven. Christopher leaned forward, adjusted the supercharger, and immediately the Commonwealth of Massachusetts became a gray blur in space. The needle slowed and stopped at a hundred and eighteen. "Confound it!" Christopher muttered, "that mechanic is slipping, the motor isn't tuned up right". He let the engine break the forward motion of the car down to a reasonable eighty before he began to ease on the brakes. The motorcycle roared up and pulled in front. The cop dismounted, kicked the stand under his machine, and swaggered back to the car.

"Where you going in such a hurry?" he demanded, whipping off his goggles before he smiled. "Say what kind of a car is this, anyway?"

"It hasn't got a name," Christopher told him. "A fellow who used to build airplanes tried to see what he could do with an automobile".

"So he just took the wings off and let it go at that". The cop touched the car's fender with respect. Then he remembered his official duties. "It was a good race, but don't ever let me catch you pushing her like that again", he cautioned sternly.

"I won't", Christopher promised.

The cop swung over his machine and left. Christopher let the car into gear and headed on toward Boston. His thoughts veered away from it. I still don't understand, he thought instead, what a girl like that was doing at a tourist camp this time of year. He realized, with something of a shock, that he hadn't learned anything about her, not even her name.

He shifted his mind into other channels. There were issues to be met that were more important than the conference in Boston. For one thing he should have left a check for Paul Freund. The dog business was none too flourishing, and the least he could have done was to have paid on the spot for Gretel. Besides, she was a swell pup, and if he'd taken her right along with him, instead of sending for her in a day or two, they could have grown acquainted on the trip.

He pulled into a gasoline station to fill his tank.

The boy at the pump looked bored. "How much'll she take?"

"About thirty-five."

The boy nickered. "Yeah?"

"See what the pump says."

The boy's eyes goggled as the pump clicked up to thirty gallons. "Where are you going, the North Pole?"

"Boston," Christopher answered. He started forward, and made a wide and complete turn, heading back in the same direction from which he'd come.

"Hey!" the boy called after him, "that ain't the way to Boston!"

Some time later, he drove up to the Tru-Frend Tourist Cottages and Kennels. The girl was not in sight, but Paul came out from one of the bungalows and started toward him, his round face wreathed in smiles.

"Boy, am I glad to see you back! he announced with candor. "Haven't changed your mind, have you?" he added with misgiving. "You've got a swell show prospect in Gretel."

"I know it. I'll put her in the puppy sweepstakes, to see if she's got what it takes, and then hold her back until the big show.

Paul nodded, satisfied. "Which will be about the first decent break I've had. What do you want to do, take her along, or do you want me to drop her off at your place?"

"I came back for her."

They walked out to the kennels together, and stood eying the gangling tumbling mass of puppies. "You had another faun here this morning—smaller than the rest," Christopher observed.

"That was Rowena. She's gone."

"Say, you're not doing so badly. I'd count it a red letter day if my kennel ever sold two dogs within a couple of hours of each other."

"I'm only selling one. I gave the other pup away."

"You didn't have to do that. She was better than average."

"I didn't give her away to be rid of her. I wanted to give her away."

He made no further explanation. Christopher suggested that they go over to the house so he could write out a check.

"Who was the girl who was here this morning?" he asked.

"That was Miss Ann Rivers."

Christopher Wain gave undue attention to the date of his check. "What's today?"

"The seventeenth."

"Known her long?"

"Who?"

"Miss Rivers."

"Never saw her until last night." Paul lit a cigarette. "Her car got stuck in the storm down the road. And when she walked in here, she walked into plenty."

"Yes, I know," Christopher interrupted. "Congratulations."

"If it hadn't been for the way she jumped in to help," Paul continued, "the Doc says he'd have never pulled Carol through. I gave her the dog. She just happened to take a shine to the pup."

Christopher repressed a smile. "She certainly did. We almost came to blows over the relative merits of her choice and mine."

"I found that out," said Christopher. "By the way," he queried nonchalantly, "is she upstairs now?"

Christopher had a sudden sense of let-down. He had counted on finding this Miss Rivers, seeing her, and talking to her. He gave the check to Paul, who blew on it to dry it, and then laughed.

"Look, maybe you'd better sign your name to this if you don't mind—"

Christopher laughed too. "Sorry I forgot! Say, where does Miss Rivers live?" He was still holding the fountain pen, ready to write down the address of Ann when Paul looked suddenly blank.

"Search me," said Paul. "I forgot to ask her, and she forgot to tell me. She said she was on her way to New York."

Christopher closed the fountain pen and put it down on the table as a figure appeared in the doorway.

Some legend swept into Christopher's mind—an old blind woman, Otto Freund's widow, knowing more about Danes than anyone in America . . . There was a quality about her that brought him to his feet in deference to something more compelling than the accident of years.

"It's Mr. Wain, Mom," Paul explained.

"My son was worried that you would not come back," the old lady said. "My son worries too much," she added gently. "Last night he was afraid his wife would die. Today she just now asks me for her best lace nightgown—"

Paul's feet carried him halfway to the door, before he remembered his guest. "Go on up to her," Christopher encouraged him good naturedly. "I've got to be getting along anyway." But he had an absurd desire to linger, to make friends with this old lady. It had seemed to him, in that fleeting moment when her sightless eyes had rested upon him, that she had stripped him of all the feverish impedimenta of his material being . . . Speed, gaiety, hobbies—they were one and all escapes from a future which held for him nothing but loneliness. He was poor compared to Paul Freund, who at this moment probably didn't have enough money in the bank to pay for his wife's confinement. He took out his checkbook again. A hundred dollars payable to Baby Freund. He slipped it into the old lady's pocket.

"This is for the dog?" she queried, gratefully. "Thank you, I will give it to my son."

"No," said Christopher, "that's for the new grand-daughter." He pressed her hand and was gone before she could thank him.

It was Rowena's first trip in a car, and almost anything could have happened—but didn't. Eventually to Ann's profound relief, the Great Dane pup decided to take a nap and made dogdom's three memorial circles of the narrow space allotted her, widening her orbit and crowding Ann over against the window with each turn. Then she settled herself, stretching her big head comfortably across Ann's lap. Her jowls fluttered under the exhaling impetus of a great sigh. Her eyes closed.

"That just makes it perfect for the driver," Ann remarked. "If I'd known I was going in for Danes I'd have bought me a truck."

She had already begun to have serious reservations about the whole thing. She tried to envision Rowena in her one room apartment, and found herself faced with a constant procession of lamps, small tables and miscellaneous pottery commuting to the repair shop. There was the problem of clothes, too. One affectionate brush against the side of the only decent rag she owned, a dark blue tailored suit, would leave her looking like a fur rug, and one swipe of tongue would entail a cleaner's bill to remove the iridescent aftermath.

Elevators would be something of a hurdle too, to say nothing of revolving doors. She revolved a number of doors daily on her job-hunting expeditions, which brought her to the inescapable issue of transportation. No more busses, no more subways; it would be either taxis or shanks' mare. And as for the job itself—even if she succeeded in landing a position before Rowena tore the office to pieces — there would come that moment when she would have to say, "You wouldn't mind if I brought my dog along every day?"

Her thoughts were distracted by the winding streets of New London and then her slowed progress was stopped entirely by the traffic lights at one of those three-way intersections. Three-way interesections always got her down. There were too many arrows and lights and little squares which said walk and go. This one was particularly complicated because it also had a large assortment of additional signals: Turn right, turn left, straight ahead, north bound and south bound. Ann crumpled. She decided to just stay put until something happened.

But after a moment or two, horns began to toot on all sides of her, and with an air of knowing exactly what she wanted to do, she drove around the intersection, only to end up in the same spot. If I keep this up, Rowena will get car-sick, she thought as she embarked upon the circular journey for the third time. Then suddenly it came to her that there was something familiar about the intersection. One way led to New York, but if you bore right it would lead you into the short cut to Myles. Why not? She ought to see the farm anyway before it was sold, check up on its general condition and go over accounts with Tompkins.

Besides, it would be a good place to get in touch with Paul Freund and tell him that she had been too impulsive in accepting Rowena, and that perhaps she had better wait a year or so before taking on the responsibilities of Great Danes.

With her mind made up, she bore across the pedestrian lane which was fortunately empty at that moment, took a diagonal course bisecting the North and South Bound lanes and then straightened out on the right turn channel.

"That was quite a business," she remarked to Rowena. "Towns with such traffic systems ought to provide pilot service."

"All I did was turn right!" said Ann.

"Yes, lady," the officer agreed in a voice like hot syrup, "and you broke about thirty-seven laws doing it. Obstructing traffic—" he began to enumerate the charges upon his fingers —"Turning against th lights—Crossing on-coming traffic—Crossing pedestrian thoroughfare — making a lefthand turn around a right-turn traffic marker."

"Did I do all that?" Ann marvelled.

Before the officer could reply, a horn began to blow loud and long from the car directly behind and, in the midst of the din, Rowena decided to add her voice to the controversy. There was an answering bark from some dog near by, and then the car jolted Ann's bumper. It was a sharp abrupt jolt, carrying with it the authority of purpose and intention. It was followed immediately by a second bump.

Strikes Reported In Piedmont

Rome, Sept. 23 — (AP) — The clandestine pro-Allied radio in northern Italy — Radio Milano Liberta — reported today that a general strike had broken out in Piedmont intended to hamper the German retreat toward the Brenner Pass.

The broadcast said the Nazis had been moving out supplies and troops for several days.

There was no immediate Allied confirmation of this report but the special attention the M.A.A.F. has given communications in the Milan-Alexandria areas indicated substantial enemy movements.

Finnish Parliament Ratifies Agreement

New York, Sept. 23 — (AP)—The Finnish parliament unanimously passed the bill ratifying the terms of the Soviet-Finnish armistice at the final reading today, the Finnish radio announced in a broadcast recorded by the United States Federal Communications Commission.

In a later broadcast the Finnish radio said withdrawal of Finnish troops to the 1940 frontier line, as required by the armistice terms, would be completed tomorrow.

Robot Nudging

London—One of the methods used by R.A.F. Spitfire pilots to deal with flying bombs was to range alongside them and shoulder them off their course so that they would crash and explode harmlessly on open ground.

This "bomb-nudging" procedure was the impromptu discovery of a pilot who ran out of ammunition after destroying two flying boats. Deciding to take a chance with the third, he ranged alongside the "diver," delicately slid his starboard wing beneath its port wing, flicked his control column, threw the bomb's gyre mechanism off balance and sent the machine spinning to the earth.

The pilot promptly reported the success of the manoeuver and all fighter stations were informed, but the novelty of the method led to its being rather discouraged and it was not officially sponsored until scientific investigation proved that at high speed the air cushion between the two machines sufficed to deflect the flying bomb.

The story has been told of one anti-aircraft battery in a Kentish village on the barrage line which witnessed with a delight that overcame apprehension a performance which climaxed the rush of a flying bomb towards their gunsite with three Spitfires in hot pursuit. All were so close that the gunners could not fire without hitting the pursuers. The flying bomb faltered and then dived straight on the gunpost. One of the Spitfire pilots spurted level with the bomb, flicked at it with his wing-tip and swerved it off its course, crashing it 250 yards clear of the gunpost and adjacent cottages.

A New Zealand pilot, flying a Tempest, destroyed four flying bombs in one patrol, tipping three of them off course by the newly-established wing-tip tactics.

Bomb-nudging was not invariably successful because, after the first attempt, the gyro-pilots of the high-flying divers sometimes enabled them to recover balance, compelling the attacking fighters to repeat their dash twice or even three times before achieving their object.

A Mustang pilot accidentally found another road to conquest. Screaming down in a power dive onto a flying bomb, he overshot it and tore ahead. Pulling out of the dive, he saw it splash in the Channel and realised that the slipstream of his aircraft had thrown the bomb out of control, downed and drowned it. This method, too, was added to the list of the killers' recipes.

The original direct method, however, never went out of favor. It was, for instance, operated when two Tempest pilots patrolling the Channel saw an American lightning fighter cruising along completely unaware that a flying bomb was close on his tail and rapidly overtaking him. The Tempest pilots did not trouble to warn him, but dived and blew it into the sea in fragments.

Allies Can Use The Ledo Road To Help China

The paper said the juncture of the vital overland link with existing arteries in China first was learned from a "visiting source close to the Chinese Embassy." It was confirmed officially by United States army engineers in Washington, D.C.

"Future usefulness of the route as a source of 11th-hour supplies to beleagered Chinese armies is contingent upon efforts to stave off mounting Japanese pressure on the Yunan 'feeder' roads," the paper pointed out.

Extending from the Ledo railhead in eastern India, the road passes through the jungles of northern Burma and joins roadways of China's Yunan Province at Trunghka, Burma.

"Surfaced by gravel carried in the head-baskets of Indian women, the road is in part a two-lane highway, meandering in places to elevations up to 4,300 feet."

WHY TAXIS HAVE FEW ACCIDENTS

Over the past 25 years, taxicab drivers have the lowest per car accident rate of any group of drivers in the country. One of the reasons why they have fewer accidents is that they never fool around with faulty brakes. If your brakes are not in 100% working order, drive in today. Have them relined or adjusted.

TO MY FELLOW CITIZENS—

This week in our city and district we are again being asked to back the attack on the home front. Many of our gallant sons have made the supreme sacrifice and yet thousands ready on the field of battle are willing to do likewise. The war clouds hanging heavy one year ago seem to be lifting and we again are beginning to see the light on the horizon, as the lights come on again.

Great Navies, Great Armies and Great Air Forces are made up of men and women whose minds are at ease knowing that their loved ones are living in communities of good environment.

Struggling to build up the defences of our city and district are four organizations of which we are justly proud. I refer to the Salvation Army, The V.O.N., The Y.M.C.A. and The Children's Aid Society. In these organizations rest the preservation of a decent living, Christian characters and healthy bodies, which are not only essential in war time but most vital in time of peace.

Fellow citizens, next week this four-in-one campaign is asking your support. Give generously, give your most, not your least. I know that the good name of Belleville will not be found wanting for the success of the campaign assures care for the needy and the probation of youth for another year.

Meet your canvasser with a smile. Do your utmost, that is all I can ask of you.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. Rollins

NEWS BLACKOUT PLACED ON ARNHEM BATTLE

SUPERFORTS ATTACK TARGETS IN MANCHURIA

Germans Report British Airborne Division Wiped Out

Canadians Continue Heavy Attacks Against Calais

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 26 — (AP) — The Allied Command put a mantle of secrecy upon the fierce battle for Dutch Arnhem today and a few hours later a German propaganda agency declared the entire British airborne division there had been wiped out.

The latest news from Allied quarters before the security ban was imposed was that the "Red Devil" division on the north bank of the upper Rhine near Arnhem was being thinly supplied, and had high morale.

A broadcast by the International Information Bureau, a Nazi propaganda agency, declared 1,400 British wounded had surrendered, and said that "this morning the last 600 British paratroopers west of Arnhem put down their arms."

Still Holding Say Other Reports

Other German broadcasts however declared the band of sky troops still was holding out in a nine-day struggle at that gateway to the German Ruhrland.

Ten miles to the southeast, British and American forces fought through the forest approaches to Kleve, northern bastion of the Siegfried Line, in a double-header invasion of the Reich from Holland.

Canadian troops, meanwhile, continued the knock-out attack begun yesterday against the 7,000 Germans holding Calais. They broke through bitter defences southwest of the town and pushed in deeper against bitter resistance.

(A wholly unconfirmed French broadcast said Kleve, eight miles inside Germany, had fallen.)

The Berlin radio also asserted that U.S. troops far to the south had launched a big push in the Epinal-Remiremont sector of France, apparently in prelude to an offensive against Belfort, 30 miles to the southeast. Belfort's fortresses guard the Mountain Gap into southwestern Germany.

Fighting For Time.

As for Holland, the enemy asserted fierce German blows were intended to win time and delay the "final Allied assault on Germany until winter, when defence conditions would be most favorable".

At last reports parts of three or four Nazi divisions were hammering at the pocketed "Red Devil" airborne soldiers fighting west of Arnhem—holding an Allied foot in the door to the German Ruhr, rich in war factories.

Amphibious trucks and assault boats of the British 2nd Army were ferrying a thin trickle of reinforcements and supplies across the upper Rhine to the airborne men, said the last announcements before Gen. Eisenhower imposed the news dim-out.

This security step was designed to keep the Germans from obtaining useful information from Allied sources in the touch-and-go battle described officially as fluid. The British Press termed it a crisis.

Ban Speculation.

Accounts of troop dispositions were restricted and speculation on future developments was banned as British forces restored their thin, thrice-cut lifeline north to the Neder Rhine west of Arnhem from Eindhoven and stabbed ahead seven miles through Deurne and Helmond in a supporting thrust to the northeast.

A front dispatch said 2nd Army units had taken Oploo, 10 miles from the border of Germany.

It was the first time since the invasion started June 6 that a lid of security silence had been applied in such a situation—a situation which had been described some days ago as critical. Almost invariably in the past absence of news for a few days has meant that good news has been in the making.

The greatest intensity of the battle was being diverted to opening and holding open an adequate supply corridor through Nijmegen to the south bank of the Neder Rhine. The Germans were opposing that effort with S.S. Panzer troops and more airplanes than they have risked for a week.

Break Supply Route.

The Germans broke the supply corridor midway between Eindhoven and Nijmegen last night for the third time, keeping a five-mile stretch of the road cut for five hours before the British forces hurled them out.

The lifeline was even thinner to the north between Nijmegen and Arnhem, and it was learned the Germans had held the mid-way town of Elst on this main road for several days. Second army supply columns were moving up over parallel secondary roads to the west, with even these sometimes under fire.

Two attempts to relieve this situation could be disclosed as developing. One was the thrust through Deurne and Helmond, seven miles southeast of Veghel where the Germans have mounted some of their strongest attacks. The second was a patrol thrust across the Waal or lower Rhine 18 miles west of Nijmegan at Ochtem, and about 15 miles from Utrecht. The patrol reported Germans digging in both along the Meuse and Waal.

A solid seal-off wall was being built up to the south.

British troops of the 1st Canadian army captured Turnhout, 25 miles northeast of Antwerp, and some British 2nd army men shoved west of Eindhoven to Rousel, nine miles from Turnhout.

Defences Stiffen.

The whole German defence had stiffened along the rest of the front, from north of Aachen to the Belfort trap.

North of Aachen, German lines suddenly opened and the Nazis herded several thousand refugees out into No Man's Land and toward the American line. These persons were described only as non-German. It was not clear why the enemy gave them up, unless it was to be rid of the burden of feeding them.

East of Aachen, U. S. 1st Army men met strong reaction to any push toward Duren on the road to Cologne. Extremely heavy artillery fire roared in this sector.

The see-saw tank fight for the Lorraine plain east of Nancy widened to the south. It was heavy going, but United States and French troops of the 3rd and 7th Armies scored gains up to several miles. Near Dieuze, 25 miles northeast of Nancy, six German tank and infantry attacks were stopped yesterday.

Poll Expert Says U.S. People Show Marked Superiority Complex

By R. J. ANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 26 —(CP)— The people of the United States not only are "generally right in their thinking about public issues, they show more common sense than their leaders in Washington," says William A. Lydgate. As incidental intelligence, Americans think Canadians, inhabitants of a land they vaguely associate with ice and snow and hockey, are just about as good as they are.

In "What America Thinks" (Thomas Crowell Co.) out today, Mr. Lydgate analyzes the American people under the impact of war and the Rooseveltian New Deal, discussing their thinking processes over the last eight years. Mr. Lydgate, editor for the American Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll), draws his conclusions from facts disclosed in public opinion polls.

Interesting to Canadians is Mr. Lydgate's somewhat troubled comment on the attitude of Americans to other races and countries. He notes that only five nationalities are viewed "'as good as we are in all important respects,'" listing them in order: Canadians, Britons, Hollanders, Scandinavians and Irish. Mr. Lydgate writes:

"In their aptitudes toward most other races and countries of the world the American people show a marked superiority complex. They have become so deeply imbued with the chauvinistic idea that Americans are the best and most accomplished of all peoples, and the good old U.S.A. the best of all countries, that the majority are willing to consider fewer than a half-dozen other races or people our equal in any important respect . . . All in all, the snobbery of the American people is not an encouraging factor for the future of the United Nations."

That sent this writer post-haste to Mr. Lydgate who agreed that Elmer, the average American, knows comparatively little of the Dominion. He merely reacts, said Mr. Lydgate, to the name "Canada" in expressing his preference for Canadians above all other races. Johnny Canuck is a "good guy" and that's all Elmer needs or wants to know.

The author also agreed a strong anti-British undercurrent was prevalent in the United States—he guessed it would be one-third the population—but contended the majority like their cousins across the sea want to continue to co-operate with Britain in the post-war years. He thought the one-third minority contains those who hold a "picture-book idea of Englishmen."

In his book Mr. Lydgate admits the American public is not always well-informed. In the mass mind are many "areas of ignorance," he days, noting that a third of the people have no clear idea of what is a tariff, two-thirds do not know that the United States has been receiving reverse-lend-lease from Britain and few can name a single provision of the Atlantic Charter. But he argues there is a hard-headed sense among the people, that they seek guidance and interpretation on world affairs.

BRITISH HAMMER ACROSS HISTORIC RUBICON RIVER

Several Bridgeheads Won, as Canadians Capture Bordonchia North of Rimini

DESTROY GOTHIC LINE

By NOLAND NORGAARD
(AP War Correspondent)

Rome, Sept. 26 — (AP) — The British 8th Army has hammered across the historic Rubicon and the Allied commander in the Mediterranean expressed hope today the crossing "will lead, as with a famous commander in the past, to a decisive victory" for Allied forces in Italy.

Crossing of the little stream which Julius Caesar made famous when he invaded Italy from Gaul (France) in 49 B.C., came after German counter-attacks slowed advances of both the 8th and the Allied 5th armies. The Rubicon flows into the Adriatic just north of Rimini.

Today's communique said "Dominion" — probably Canadian — troops of the 8th Army captured coastal Bordonchia, six miles north of Rimini, in a night tank and infantry attack. The Rubicon was crossed further inland and several bridgeheads were won.

South of Bologna, the 5th Army was driving along several valleys running in a northeasterly direction after breaking the Gothic Line.

Field Marshal Kesselring has flung reinforcements of seasoned troops into the sector 20 miles south of Bologna in an effort to set up a new holding line, a front dispatch said.

Troops Congratulated.

Gen. Wilson, Allied Mediterranean commander, congratulated Gen. Alexander, ground commander in Italy, on destruction of the Gothic Line and expressed the hope the Rubicon crossing would lead to destruction of the German army in Italy.

"The skill and speed with which the 8th Army was regrouped", he said, "once more completely surprised Field Marshal Albert Kesselring".

Gen. Wilson commended the determined attack of the 5th Army through the mountains which "breached the Gothic Line at its strongest place".

Northeast of Fiernzuola, Americans smashed three counter-attacks near Monte La Fine and were reported fighting in the streets of Moraduccio, 22 miles southwest of the Po Valley road centre of Imola.

Britain Will Do Utmost To Prevent Hun Criminals Finding Refuge Abroad

—Churchill

London, Sept. 26 — (CP-Reuter) —Prime Minister Churchill, in a statement to the House of Commons today, declared that the British government was resolved to do its utmost to prevent Nazi criminals from finding refuge in neutral territories.

He had been questioned about the statement — attributed to Sir Cecil Hurst, Chairman of the United Nations War Crime Commission—that if Hitler managed to escape to a neutral country the Allies could do nothing in the matter.

Mr. Churchill said:

"I understand that the remarks attributed to Sir Cecil Hurst in the newspapers do not represent accurately what he said.

"It is one of those cases of taking out detached sentences from their context and not having a proper regard to all the necessary and limiting phrases and, which are proper to a public standpoint.

"His Majesty's Government are resolved to do their utmost to prevent any Nazi criminals finding refuge in neutral territories from the consequences of their crimes."

Sir William Davidson, Conservative, said that in a subsequent explanation, Hurst had declared that the existing extraditional machinery was inappropriate to the circumstances, and that some new arrangements might be insisted upon to ensure surrender.

Churchill Gives Answer.

Sir William suggested that it was essential for Britain, the United States and Russia to take immediate steps to warn the neutrals that they will not be permitted to shelter Hitler and the other war criminals from receiving their punishment.

Mr. Churchill replied:

RESTRICTIONS ON POWER TO BE LIFTED OCT. 1ST

Ban Will Apply in All Provinces Except British Columbia

WILL LIGHT WINDOWS

Ottawa, Sept. 26 —(CP)— Restrictions which have kept street lights dimmed, shop windows and advertising signs blacked out and some newsprint mills on curtailed production for more than two years will be removed Oct. 1 in all provinces except British Columbia, Munitions Minister Howe announced last night.

Mr. Howe said the power supply situation now is sufficiently good to allow removal of the restrictions everywhere except in British Columbia where "an unprecedented drought combined with a most difficult oil situation makes it absolutely essential that all restrictions now imposed locally be obeyed."

The restrictions to be removed were those aimed at conserving power. Those imposed by defence authorities for security reasons will not be affected.

Removal of the restrictions will be particularly felt in Ontario and Quebec where a power-conserving policy enforced Sept. 20, 1942, forced newsprint mills to reduce their hours of operation in order to provide more continuous power to war plants. Street lighting was curtailed in the two provinces, highway lighting was prohibited

Reichchancellery Directly Hit By Allied Bombs

Madrid, Sept. 26 (AP)—Allied bombers scored direct hits on the Reichchancellery, Hitler's Berlin headquarters, Propaganda Minister Goebbels' home, the Adlon Hotel and the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger Printing Plant during a raid Sept. 15, according to a traveller from Germany, who was in Berlin during the attack.

The traveller, who arrived here yesterday, said the chancellery was "almost a complete wreck," and that Goebbels' home nearby was badly damaged. Goebbels, he said, emerged uninjured from an elaborate bombshelter beneath his home.

He described Germany as "a nation of weary people who now are little more than mechanical men, too tired to do anything save their appointed jobs."

DUE FOR DISMISSAL

New York, Sept. 26. (CP)— Gen. Heinz Guderien, chief of the German General staff, is scheduled for dismissal shortly because of reverses on the western front, the American Broadcasting Station in Europe said last night.

CHURCHILL WILL SPEAK TO HOUSE ON THURSDAY

Likely to Define Govt. Attitude Toward Post-War Germany

PRAISES WHITE PAPER

London, Sept. 26 — (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill, cheered from all quarters of the House of Commons as he took his seat, omitted statements on major war questions today in preparation for a full-dress statement Thursday.

Foreign Secretary Eden arose in the Prime Minister's behalf to set that date for the start of a two-day debate which may well bring disclosure of Britain's attitude on what to do with Germany after the war.

In answer to the first questions directed to him, Mr. Churchill confined himself to reference to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, saying no commitments had been reached there as yet on post-war plans.

This conference, among representatives of Britain, the United States, Russia and China, he said, was seeking agreement "upon a set of proposals for the establishment of an organization to maintain peace and security and further social and economic co-operation among peace-loving nations." He added:—

"If, as we greatly hope, we succeed in framing such joint proposals they would be communicated to the other governments of the United Nations concerned as a basis for discussion at a joint conference of all United Nations."

Praises Polish Army

Mr. Churchill took opportunity to praise "the heroism of the Polish Home Army and the population of Warsaw who after five years of oppression had yet fought for nearly two months to contribute all in their power to the expulsian of the Germans from the capital of Poland."

He asserted the British government was "too far away from the scene" to take responsibility for ordering an uprising in Poland, but said it had contributed supplies and endeavored to promote co-operation between Poland and the Soviet authorities.

Heavily Engaged

He added the Soviet armies were heavily engaged in other fighting at the time "but when operational plans permitted they sent supplies to the Polish forces and provided air cover and support."

Debate is scheduled for Thursday and Friday.

It was generally believed here that Mr. Churchill's address would touch on his government's attitude toward the post-war fate of Germany, as parliament reconvened after a seven-weeks' recess.

Mr. Churchill arrived back in London today after returning to Britain yesterday following the recent Quebec conference.

Prime Minister Churchill, returning from the Quebec Conference, arrived in London today and was greeted at Euston station by several cabinet ministers.

REDS SQUEEZE GERMANS BACK TO ESTONIAN COAST

Begin To Organize On Two Key Islands Guarding Baltic Sea Approaches to Riga

SOVIET FLEET ACTIVE

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 26—(AP)—Russia's powerful northern armies hammered the final small pocket of German resistance in Estonia today and began organizing an assault on two key islands guarding the Baltic Sea approaches to Riga, the besieged capital of Latvia.

The islands — Ristna and Osel— dominate the entrances to the Gulf of Riga, to the southeast, and the Gulf of Finland, to the northeast. Lying some six miles off Estonia's west coast, they could be by-passed indefinitely by the Russians, but as long as enemy garrisons remain there they will have a certain nuisance value.

On the west coast of the Estonian mainland, Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army has captured all important ports except Virtsu. A communique last night announced the fall of Haapsalu, Estonia's 3rd. port, 63 miles southwest of Tallinn. The Soviet forces also hold Parnu, on the southwest coast.

(There were several indications that the Soviet Baltic fleet was joining in the battle to reduce the Estonian islands. An official announcement two days ago said Soviet naval forces had captured the seaport of Paldiski, midway between Tallinn and Haapsalu.

(Helsinki dispatches last night reported heavy gunfire from the Finnish gulf and belief was expressed in that capital that the Red fleet had moved in strength into the Baltic Sea. The gunfire lasted for hours.)

The Battle of Warsaw, now in its 56th day, brought no fresh news from Russian official sources, but Polish forces just back from the Vistula front line declared the Germans were being shoved back steadily.

German - Hungarian reinforcements appeared to have parried temporarily the Red Army's invasion thrust to southeastern Hungary. No Russian advance has been mentioned there in the past 48 hours.

The Moscow communique announced advances in southern Poland, including capture of Berehy Gurne, three miles from the Czecho-Slovakian frontier.

Menace of Parachute Mine in 1940 Beaten by Scientists, Navy Heroes

British authorities disclosed last night that "extensive damage and casualties" were caused in Great Britain during the 1940-41 aerial blitz when the Germans dropped land mines and heavy bombs by parachute. The following story of that blitz was written by Flt. Lt. Fred Backhouse, formerly of the R.A.F. and later of the R.C.A.F., officer commanding an R.A.F. Mobile Bomb-Disposal squad in England during 1940-41. He now is on the staff of The Canadian Press New York Bureau.

By FRED BACKHOUSE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 26. (CP)—So intensive were the attacks by two-ton mines showered upon Britain by parachute from German aircraft during the winter of 1940-41 that at one time the missiles almost blocked Britain's vital supply ports. And knowledge of their deadly effectiveness was inadvertently given to the enemy by Britons themselves following one of the earliest attacks.

Although for nearly four years millions of Britons knew of the parachute mines and thousands had been killed by them, the British government did not relax until last night its tight censorship rules forbidding cabling of stories of the parachute mines' destructiveness or even of the weapon's existence.

In May, 1940, a crippled Heinkel bomber was shot down on the little east coast town of Clacton, taking the first British civilian lives as it exploded. Among the wreckage of 100 or more houses was found long, dark-green canister, an unexploded parachute mine.

Correspondents covering the story had all mention of the mine censored from their cables, but through the censorship to the press of the world went long descriptions of the trail of havoc left through the town as hundreds of dwellings were either destroyed or badly damaged.

The Germans learned that the parachute mine, originally meant for dropping into harbor waters, was a first class terror weapon for use against the civilian population.

Following the Clacton incident the Germans for months dropped their para-mines spasmodically on British ports and sometimes inland. As an anti-shipping weapon the mines were meant to sink to a certain level below water and could then be blown up in a number of ways — by a magnetic device, by the pressure of water above, or by the vibration of the motors of a passing ship.

Havoc was created in major British ports from Liverpool in the northwest around the coast to Hull in the northeast. The Admiralty, alive to the menace, organized flying squads to volunteer mine-disposal officers.

Manchuria Last Bombed By American Planes Sept. 8

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—B-29 Superfortresses of the 20th Bomber Command today attacked strategic military targets in Japanese-dominated Manchuria, the War Department announced. Further details will be released as soon as information is available, the department said.

The Tokyo radio in a broadcast heard by The Associated Press reported the raid on Manchuria and added that Japanese air formations were waiting for the raiders "and engaged them in heavy fighting."

Manchuria was last bombed by American planes Sept. 8, when a formation of Superfortresses blasted important industrial targets identified by the Japanese as Anshan, Penhsihu and Antung, whence comes much of Japan's steel, coal and aluminum. Tokyo said more than 100 planes participated in that foray.

BRANDS STATEMENT "LIE"

London, Sept. 26. (AP)—L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India, today described as "libels" statements published in the United States that the Indian Army was "a purely mercenary one" and that its quality and morale were low.

At a Press Conference, Mr. Amery attributed publication of these statements to Columnist Drew Pearson, "apparently for purposes connected with electioneering manoeuvres in his own country".

BODY FOUND IN DITCH

Napanee, Sept. 26. (CP)—The body of Edgerton Hall, 67, missing from his home for the last ten days, was found in a ditch near the Canadian National Railways right of way during the weekend. A veteran of the First Great War, he won the Distinguished Conduct Medal and was mentioned in dispatches. Coroner Dr. D. R. Hall said death was due to natural causes.

29,000 WOUNDED FLOWN

London, Sept. 26. (CP) — The R.A.F. Transport Command announced yesterday its planes have flown nearly 29,000 wounded soldiers from France and the Low Countries to Britain since D-Day without the loss of a plane.

PLANES SUPPORT HARD-PRESSED AIRBORNE TROOPS

Liberators From Italian Fields Attack Greek Harbors

24 PLANES DESTROYED

London, Sept. 26 —(CP)—Allied planes again supported hard-pressed troops in the Arnhem area of Holland today with rocket and machine-gun attacks on German troop concentrations, gun emplacememnts and other targets along the Eindhoven-Ninjmegen corridor.

British Mosquitos before dawn bombed Mannheim on the Rhine opposite Ludwigshafen, which American planes attacked yesterday.

Unescorted Liberators from Italian fields attacked Greek harbors for the second straight day yesterday, bombing Salamis, Skaramanga and Piraeus. Following all-day attacks on troop masses and communications in northern Italy, medium bombers struck during the night in Milan, Verona, Genoa and south of Bologna, starting many fires. The Balkan air force ripped up roads and rails in Yugoslavia, Albania and northern Greece. Eight planes were lost in the south.

SENTENCED SELF TO DEATH

London, Sept. 26 — (CP Cable)— The pilot of a buzz-bomb-carrying Heinkel sentenced himself and his crew to death at dawn today when he released the robot over the North Sea. Wing Cmdr. L. J. Mitchell, 43-year-old pilot of a Mosquito night fighter, saw a burst of flame as the flying bomb was projected and it gave him an accurate pinpoint of the position of the Heinkel in the dim early morning light. Mitchell poured fire into the parent craft.

DOUBLE CARROT GROWS TO FORM A "V"

Even the growing vegetables are taking on a victory complex these days. Recently while harvesting his crop of carrots in his Cannifton victory garden, Ed Shorey came upon a double carrot, that had grown to form a perfect "V" for victory sign, made so popular among the Allied nations by Premier Winston Churchill.

TWO AIRMEN GRADUATE AS AIR BOMBERS

Two airmen, one from Belleville and the other from Trenton have graduated as air bombers from the air observer school at Malton, it is reported by R.C.A.F. headquarters. They are Flying Officer G. T. Giles, 164 Church Street, city, and Sgt. J. G. Sharrard, 27 Edward Street, Trenton. F/O Giles remustered to train as a bomber after serving overseas. He is married to a former Corbyville girl.

Many Fleet Teal Fall Victims To Hunters' Guns

The outer defences of the Duck Line around Massassaga and Huff's Island, and the Bay of Quinte, were broached yesterday morning by rubber-booted, besweatered invaders, who encountered no more aerial opposition than some reconnaissance squadrons of fast flying blue-winged and green-winged teal.

These "Mosquitos" of the Duck Air Force did a bit of low-flying and many were brought down by the shot-gun flak of the long-underweared marksmen. All the hunters returned safely.

However, there was some consolation for the luckless, duckless, nimrods. Flying a thousand feet in the air was a large "umbrella" of black ducks headed in an easterly direction last evening, probably thumbing figurative "bills" at the hideout Henries, who gazed wistfully at the feathered armada well out of range.

On other parts of the duck front, however, some good bags have been reported.

Boy Is Injured Stealing Ride On Oil Truck

After being cautioned and ordered to refrain from catching a ride on the rear of an oil truck driven by Albert Titterson, 83 west Bridge St., nine-year-old Earl Fitzgerald of No. 4 East Bridge St., sustained severe injuries, while clinging to the rear of the truck while it was passing over the C.P.R. crossing at South Front St. late Monday afternoon. The injured lad was taken to the Belleville General Hospital where he was attended by Dr. E. MacDonald.

According to information obtained when Inspector J. C. Hayes investigated the accident, Mr. Titterson had halted his oil truck at the Front St. C.P.R. crossing to allow a freight train to pass. It was at this time the driver observed two boys attempting to board the rear of his truck and immediately Mr. Titterson cautioned the lads and warned them to stay away from the vehicle. However, when Mr. Titterson started his truck over the crossing he did not observe the young Fitzgerald lad run out and grab hold of the truck rear bumper, eye witnesses assured police. It was while passing over the tracks young Fitzgerald was seen to fall to the pavement. It is believed he caught his foot in the rails. Eye witnesses added Mr. Titterson could have had no knowledge of the lad's presence clinging to the bumper.

Today x-rays were ordered at the hospital to determine whether or not fractures of the lad's ankles had resulted.

Training Centre, Cornwall, Moved To Camp Borden

Ottawa, Sept. 26 — (CP) — The infantry basic training centre at Cornwall is to be moved to Camp Borden, and reorganized from a 4-company centre to a two company centre, defence headquarters announced last night. The change takes effect Sept. 30. Army officials said they did not know at present whether the Cornwall centre, used only for basic training, would be closed altogether or whether it would be used for other military purposes.

Personnel who become surplus as a result of the transfer and reorganization and who are eligible for overseas service will be released to the overseas reinforcement stream. Staff for the reorganized centre will be selected from the present staff.

A short time ago it was reported in unofficial circles that the centre was to be removed from Cornwall, but that the site might be used as a training centre for the Canadian Army Technical Corps, which trains pre-service age personnel in various trades until they are old enough to enlist.

Four in One Community Service Drive Needs Full Support of Every Citizen

Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen are going into battle daily. Some of them are worried. Not because of what is ahead of them, but because of news from home. Perhaps a wife has to go to hospital. The children, who will look after them? Or maybe those young scallawags of sons are running around a bit. Mother needs help.

Tense, ready for action, Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen go into battle. Some of them aren't worried about things at home. For they have heard that the family is being taken care of by the home town community services. The children are being looked after. Those harum-scarum boys have an outlet for their youthful energy in the Y.M.C.A.

The annual campaign for Belleville's Four in One Community Service opened on Monday. Its objective is $15,000, a sum representing roughly one dollar a head for the city's population. A large number are, of course, too young to give financial assistance, so that their contributions must be made by their elders.

This is an appeal which citizens are obligated to support, for the work done by the four agencies, the Salvation Army; Children's Aid Society; the Y.M.C.A. and the Victorian Order of Nurses, sharing in the benefits is of an indispensable character, from the viewpoint of social welfare.

One Big Drive.

The convenience and efficacy of this method of collecting money, so urgently needed for the carrying on of these benevolent activities, are well recognized and appreciated by the majority of residents who are grateful for the services rendered by the fund. But for this combined annual campaign, there would have to be a separate appeal for each agency, with the increased cost and inevitable loss of efficiency involved. The expense of collection, distribution, administration is exceptionally low, so that recipients derive the fullest possible advantage.

Wartime Demands Great.

Demands on the services are now greater than ever. In wartime with men in the fighting services and women working in industries there arise problems which are not met with in such exaggerated forms in times of peace. This entails extra effort on the part of organizations functioning for the welfare of the public and the betterment of social conditions in general.

The sum asked for is the minimum required for the maintenance of the work of the different organizations ministering to the young, old, the unfortunate, the erring and the distressed. Support of the "home front" is just as much a duty for the patriotic citizen as is support of the fighting front. Give and give generously; there must be no impairment of these vital community services.

Messages of Comfort Are Read At Memorial Service for Pte. Sager

Amid an appropriate setting of flowers and with the church Honor Roll resting on the communion table, memorial service for the late Pte. R. E. Sager, of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sager, 75 Dundas Street, was held in Bridge Street United Church on Sunday with Dr. James Semple conducting the service. Memorial hymns were sung by the choir and a message of comfort given by Dr. Semple.

Pte. Sager was killed in action in Italy on August 6th of this year, his death being confirmed by a letter from Major Edgar J. Bailey, chaplain of the regiment.

"It is with deep regret that I confirm the news of the death of your son," wrote the chaplain. "He went forward on a fighting patrol with his company over the Arno river into Florence before the city was completely ours. They forded the river and advanced to the second road beyond when firing broke out behind them. They fought back until they ran out of ammunition and then made for the river.

"Your son had a bullet through his body and his comrades carried him back across the water on their shoulders where the stretcher bearers fixed him up. He was unconscious throughout. They loaded him on the ambulance and brought him back, but it was too late.

"Later that day we picked a lovely spot on the outskirts of Florence and laid him to rest with four more of his comrades, including the officer who led the attack, Lt. J. C. Butler. The commanding officer attended the little service and we prayed for you, that God would strengthen and comfort you to bear bravely his loss. He died for peace and victory."

Pte. Sager's death was further confirmed by a letter from a unit officer, Major McDougall. "Your son has been with me for several months now," he wrote, "I always found him an excellent soldier and he died doing his duty. He was a member of a patrol that did an excellent job."

Both letters received by Mrs. Sager were read by Dr. Semple at the memorial service.

Little was known of the parachute mine's explosive devices until the secrets were discovered by a team of British scientists who worked night and day at a secret headquarters near London.

Almost as fast as the scientists found some way to "kill" the mine's six or more fuses the Germans inserted new and more cunning devices — some of them designed to kill tampering bomb-disposal men.

The full story of the naval men's heroism cannot yet be told.

The menace of the parachute mine finally was beaten by the brains of British scientists who invented de-fusing gadgets and by the courage of hundreds of unsung officers of the Royal Navy.

Officials of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission stated this morning that they have had no instruction from the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario with reference to the lifting of power restrictions on Oct. 1.

Munitions Minister Howe announced last night that all restrictions on the use of electric power in Ontario and Quebec will be lifted on that date.

Commissioners here raised their eyes in surprise when informed of the announcement of the Minister in view of the fact that only two weeks ago Dr. Thomas Hogg, H.E.P.C. chairman, stated that restrictions would not be lifted while the war was going on.

Increased Consumption.

In addition, it was stated by Hydro officials here, a general increase in power consumption has occurred since retrictions came into force. Consumption at the present time is well above figures of power used previous to Sept. 20, 1942 when the curtailment of power was ordered.

In October, 1941 kilowatt hour consumption here was 2,152,800. In October, 1942, with restrictions in effect consumption increased to 2,157,660. In August of this year, it amounted to 2,313,120. Naturally with restrictions lifted, this figure will be increased by a substantial amount.

In September, 1942, when restrictions came into force, the peak load was 7,561 horse power. Curtailment through restrictions decreased this amount to 6,650 h.p. but gradual increase has brought the load to the present figure of 8,000, or 500 h.p. above that used in pre-restriction times.

Domestic Use Up.

Increase in power consumption has been apparent mostly in the domestic phase of hydro distribution. In these days of wartime prosperity, Mr. and Mrs. John Public, with plenty of money, now "cooks with electricity," leaves the extra light on, and in general does not use the thrift apparent in the not-so-good pre-war days, insofar as electric power is concerned.

With the lifting of restrictions here advertising signs and show windows will again be lighted. Street lighting will return to its former illuminating status as will highways wherever power is used.

Noted Medical Officer Treated Local Boy

"My son-in-law, Major George Bastedo, of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, writes me of the splendid work being done by Canadian doctors on the field of battle", Rotary District Governor Tom Rogers, Toronto, said in the course of his address to Rotarians here yesterday.

Listening with interest to Governor Rogers' speech and especially to his tribute to Canadian doctors, was Lieut. "Stew" McBride, returned wounded veteran of the present war.

At the mention of Major Bastedo's name, "Stew's" face lighted up. Later, it was learned through Rotarian Dr. James Semple, that the major was the doctor who saved "Stew's" life when he operated on him on the field shortly after he was critically wounded by an 88-millimetre shell while directing fire from the top of his tank in Italy.

Major Bastedo has since been decorated with the Distinguished Service Order. His home is in Stratford.

Henry Wallace Of Ivanhoe Laid to Rest

Ivanhoe, Sept. 26 — (Special) — The funeral of Henry Wallace, who died suddenly at his home here on Saturday morning, Sept. 23rd., took place from his late residence on Monday afternoon and was very largely attended, the cortege being two miles in length. An impressive service was conducted in the home by the Rev. W. H. V. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Eric Larson of Madoc, the Rev. O. E. Wager of Ivanhoe and Mr. Kenneth Stewart of the West Huntingdon United Church circuit. During the service a vocal solo was rendered by Miss Annie Fleming, with piano accompaniment by Miss Bessie Fleming.

Interment took place at West Huntingdon Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Tom Fleming, Albert Clement, Albert Duggan, James Haggerty, Sam Donnan and Chester Sills.

The late Henry Wallace, who was in his 75th year, was born in the 5th. concession of Huntingdon Township and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wallace; his mother's maiden name was Eliza Smith. For many years he farmed in Huntingdon Township and for the past sixteen years he made his home at Ivanhoe. In addition to farming, Mr. Wallace was also a successful auctioneer. For a considerable time he was active in the cheese industry and was a past president of the Kingston Cheese Factory. In the affairs of the township and county Mr. Wallace took a keen interest and was a councillor and later Reeve of Huntingdon and a member of the Hastings County Council. In township and county affairs he rendered valuable service. For twenty-eight years Mr. Wallace was the efficient tax collector for Huntingdon Township.

In the death of Henry Wallace the community has suffered a distinct loss. He was a man of most estimable character and in the regard of many friends by whom he will be much missed, he held a high place.

In religion Mr. Wallace was a faithful member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, and took an active part in the work of the congregation, being at the time of his death an elder and chairman of the Board of Managers. Fraternally he was a member of Keystone Lodge A. F. & A. M., Stirling, and Beulah Loyal Orange Lodge, Ivanhoe.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Minnie Webb; one son, Mr. John Wallace, residing on the homestead; two daughters, Mrs. Ernest (Nellie) Chambers, Corbyville, and Mrs. Roy (Hazel) Belshaw, Belleville; two sisters, Miss Jennie Wallace and Miss Eliza Wallace, Dresden, Ontario. A son, Milton, died some years ago.

Notice of Motion Asks By-Law Be Put to Voters Requesting Closing of City Gas Plant

Motion to Have Half of Aldermen of City Council Elected for Two-Year Term is Approved

OTHER BUSINESS

A by-law will be introduced at the next municipal election asking the electors to approve of the first seven aldermen elected to serve for a two-year term, while the remaining seven will serve for a year, when the Notice of Motion, introduced by Alderman McDougall at the last regular meeting of the council was approved by the members at their regular meeting on Monday evening. Ald McDougall in speaking to his motion stated it would guarantee a continuity in council, there would be a better vote and would put the election of the council on the same basis as the Public Utilities and the Board of Education. Ald Harvey favored the motion because he stated that a man elected the first year simply got his bearings but Ald Clapp countered with "some are here six years and don't know what it is all about." Ald. Chamberlain wanted all members elected for a two-year term but the original motion was carried unanimously when voted upon.

Notice of Motion.

Ald. Pringle introduced a Notice of Motion that a by-law be prepared for submission to the people at the next election asking for the closing of the Gas plant. The motion asked first, "Are you in favor of discontinuing the operation of the present gas plant and gas service both for residential and industrial users as soon as it is in the opinion of the City Council possible to do so?" and second, "if said gas plant is closed are you in favor of the present gas users being given some fair compensation in changing to electricity?" This motion will be discussed and voted upon at the next regular meeting of the council. A motion was introduced and passed "That the Public Utilities Commission again be written, that they comply with the Public Utilities Act and pay to the City Treasurer quarterly the surplus from the Waterworks department and render proper statements as requested by law."

Committee to Report.

Another motion introduced by Ald. Follwell was passed requesting that a committee be formed to investigate the fire protection of the rural municipalities adjoining the city by the Belleville Fire Department and if this be approved that the committee set the fee for the protection. The acting Mayor, Aluderman Clarke stated he would not appoint the committee until the return of the Mayor to the city. Many of the Aldermen thought that having a shortage of help in the fire department at the present time it was not advisable to render assistance to neighboring municipalities. Ald. Pringle thought the good neighbor policy should be continued but the Acting Mayor cut short the discussion stating that the motion had been passed and it was now up to the committee to bring in a complete report and then the members could discuss the question at length.

Will Not Turn on Lights.

Under the heading of general business Ald. Chamberlain requested that a piece of sidewalk at the corner of Pinnacle Street and Victoria Avenue be repaired as the Chairman of Public Works was not present the City Clerk stated he would report the matter to the City Engineer. Ald. Follwell made it plain that the lights in the store windows would not be turned on as many had believed on October 1st. He stated that the comptroller of power had stated there is still a shortage of power and that the lights would not probably be turned on until the termination of the war. The Alderman also advocated that public skating rinks for the children be taken under advisement at the present time so that no delay would occur as did last winter. He advocated that if the school grounds were not available that citizens be asked to contribute their property and that with the co-operation of the fire department and the public utilities these lots be flooded. "There is no need for cushions or boards just a place for the kids to skate," said the Alderman. Aldermen Clapp and Woodley explained to the Alderman that this had been taken up by the Regional Planning committee and that progress had been made with the Board of Education for the use of the school grounds.

Recommendation is Lost.

A recommendation "That a committee be appointed to investigate and report on the feasibility of having all fire insurance premiums now contributed by property owners and residents of Belleville paid into the city treasury and the owners protected by the city, in two years the surplus would be used to reduce real estate and business taxes. It is recommended that the City of Belleville carry their own liability insurance by building up a surplus for same". Aldermen Hyde, McDougall, Harvey and Follwell were appointed on the committee but the recommendation never reached the formative stage because it was defeated in open council. Alderman McDougall spoke against the recommendation stating it was not feasible and that he believed the Municipal Board would turn down the request if made. He stated it would require an extra large staff to handle the details and would cost the city in the neighborhood of $15,000 a year to operate. Ald. Hyde the originator of the motion stated it would save large sums of money being sent out of the city. Ald. Follwell was of the opinion that the committee would only bring in an adverse report and Ald. Pringle was against the city launching into the insurance business. Ald. Harvey stated it was a complicate process and that the member was on the wrong track but Ald. Butler thought the motion had some merit.

Many Lots Sold.

Lots in the city were sold to E. B. Farr, Orliff Lloyd and James Alexander with the usual building clauses inserted and Roblin Dulmage was also sold a piece of property on West McDonald Avenue. Six by-laws were passed, five for the transference of property sold by the city and one licencing pin machines, at $50 each. Daniel C. Garrison, George E. Meades, George C. Brown, Robert W. Howard, Irvine McGrimmon were all sold city property on which houses will be erected in conformity of the district in which they are built. All must be built within one year. Roy Wardle was granted leave of absence from the Fire Department while on active service. A tarpaulin will be purchased to cover the garbage truck in use in the business section of the city. H. M. Clarke was released from his convenant with the city. The tenders received for the property at 194 William St., were not entertained but the special property committee was authorized to sell the property by private sale and the present tenderers will be given an opportunity to modify their offers if they so desire.

May Issue Debentures

The City Solicitor was authorized to prepare a by-law for the issue of $50,000 in debentures for the purpose of acquiring property and making the necessary road and parking lots on the Riverside Drive and that he also prepare the proper question to be placed before the electorate at the next municipal election. The City Engineer was also authorized to have the information required by Messrs. Gore and Storrie in connection with the sewage disposal plant completed not later than September 30th. Aldermen Clapp, McDougall and Butler were named to accompany the City Solicitor to Toronto to interview the Department of Municipal Affairs regarding the Riverside Drive and report back to council. The Library Board will be furnished with another copy of W. C. Mikel's History of Belleville. A committee of Aldermen Wilbur, Chamberlain, Hyde and Clarke was appointed to investigate salaries and wages paid to all civic employees with a view of making advances or reductions in said salaries and to decide whether or not the offices are properly staffed and their findings are to be reported back to council.

Inquiries Answered

Under the heading of inquiries, Ald. Follwell asked if the trees were being trimmed at the present time. He will receive an answer later as the Chairman of Public Works was not present in council. Ald. Hyde asked about the unsightly building that was covered with signs in the city and he was promised action. Ald. Woodley asked if all the street signs were in place and was informed by Ald. Clapp that the work was going slowly. Asked if the men putting up the signs were hired by the day or hour, he was informed "by the hour". Ald. Allin reported that the houses used by the O.S.D. and leased by the government had not been turned back to the owners and until the leases are terminated nothing can be arranged. Ald. Harvey asked if some pressure could not be exerted. Ald. Allin wanted to know why the suppressors that are working so satisfactorily on the traffic lights at the main intersection could not work at Victoria Avenue and Front Street. He was informed by Ald. Follwell that suppressors will work in one locality and not in another and that the C. G. E. was carrying out experiments to find out why.

Cause of Delay Given

Ald. Allin inquired why the fire department was delayed ten or fifteen minutes in arriving at a fire just outside the city and Ald. Woodley, Chairman of Fire stated that when the department arrived at the edge of the limits, the owner of the house on fire told the department that everything was under control but as soon as they left, the blaze again started and that he gave permission for the department to go to the assistance of the owner. Ald. Chamberlain asked if any replies had been received from other municipalities re the anti-noise by-law and the City Clerk stated that Chatham had sent along their by-law and others were expected in the near future. There being no further business the council adjourned.

FRENCH YOUTHS EXECUTED FOR TREASON

CHURCHILL WILL

Among the official party greeting the Prime Minister were Deputy Prime Minister Attlee and Home Secretary Morrison.

Mr. Churchill, wearing his favorite Trinity House uniform and yachting cap, was in buoyant spirits.

Home on Queen Mary

Mr. Churchill emerged from the train which brought him to London from a Scottish port, where he debarked from the Queen Mary yesterday, with the inevitable cigar locked in his mouth at a jaunty angle.

His weather-tanned face wreathed in smiles, Mr. Churchill shook hands warmly with Lord Woolton and said: "I must congratulate you on your white paper." He referred to the government social security plan announced in this morning's newspapers.

The gathering at the station was almost an informal outdoor cabinet meeting. Foreign Secretary Eden, who also attended the Quebec Conference but returned earlier, and Sir John Anderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, were among the ministers present.

The problem of what to do with Germany after the war was brought sharply to the fore this week by disclosure of a difference of opinion within President Roosevelt's cabinet.

Sidestepped Issue

While Mr. Churchill was out of the country government officials cautiously sidestepped getting involved in the dispute between United States Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, who wants to convert Germany into an agricultural nation, and War Secretary Stimson and State Secretary Hull who object to complete de-industrialization.

The British press, too, while giving prominent display to the stories on the American dispute, for the most part has avoided comment.

However, the Manchester Guardian asserted "There is general hope that Mr. Churchill will go beyond the military narrative of these last stirring months and will re-define the European policy of the Allies and, in particular, of our own country."

Rotary District Governor Visits With Local Club

Tom Rogers, Toronto, Gives Outline of Objectives of Rotary International

INTERESTING TALK

Declaring that when hostilities cease, the "world will go surging along, sweeping aside old barriers, going on in swiftly moving tides," Rotary District Governor Tom Rogers, Toronto, warned against sitting back to enjoy the luxurious days of the old peace and walking backward into the future clinging tenaciously to the days of 1920-30 and 40, in an address to the Belleville Rotary Club on Monday.

In typical Rogerian eloquence, interspersed with anecdotal humor and illustrative story, Governor Rogers outlined the objectives of the Rotary International and their place in the order of things to come.

This service organization recognises something more in a man than his classification, he said. While there is a distinct versatility in its representatives of different professions and vocations, there is also power in its nationalities.

Humble People Mentioned

"One does not have to be a great man to perform a service to his fellow man. Humble people perform great deeds in life of which the majority of us are not conscious. By the same token ability for service does not depend on the magnitude of the business in which one is engaged. Great principles may be wrapped up in the smallest transaction."

The ordinary citizen does not have to rush around the country in order to perform a community service, Governor Rogers said. "It can be done in the office, the factory, the church, the home and in all human relationships to make life better and brighter. Helping people we don't know is the spirit that should actuate community life."

He warned against the nation becoming nationally minded. "There will be repercussions, and economical and political changes after the war is over, and we cannot settle down and do nothing about it. Rotary speaks for international understanding and peace among men who are united in service. Destructive methods never built a new world. The German nation must be brought to a low ebb if it is to forget its Nazi training, if it is to deal with the rest of humanity."

Must Sell Grain Surplus

"Our grain surplus will likely be sold to the markets of the world. If so, all well and good. But if it isn't, will we let it rot in the granaries and elevators like we did before—or will we be broadminded and distribute to those in need in the world."

The Bretton Woods Conference is trying to make an increased standard of living available to the world. In Montreal, representatives of the United Nations are deep in a conference to make arrangements for better environment for wartorn nations. "We in Canada can well afford to be internationally minded."

Praises Local Club

"The Belleville Rotary Club is well organized and efficient but that does not mean that every one is doing his full share. As Rotarians we should be stepping upstairs, not staring up the steps. We must exert ourselves by action, not diction."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Dr. James Semple, while President Orland Pinkston expressed the club appreciation. Guests at the luncheon included two youthful veterans of the war, Lieut. "Stew" McBride, C.A.C. and Douglas Diamond of the Royal Canadian Navy. Jack Deacon's fine voice was heard in "Rule Britannia" with Leo Riggs at the piano and "Sandy" Burrows leading the chorus.

The Meeting Ground for Mutual Understanding

ONCE more Canada has welcomed the leaders of two great nations to a familiar meeting-place high above the historic St. Lawrence. John Bull and Uncle Sam have got together again with their partner Johnnie Canuck.

Successful as comrades-in-arms, it is essential that the British Commonwealth and the United States continue to work closely together as partners in peace. On this co-operation depends to a large extent the future security of the world.

In linking the two great partners—England and the United States—Canada has a vital role. Of all nations, we are best situated to assure continual co-operation between them. Close neighbour of America . . . and a key member of the British Commonwealth . . . we are the mutual friend . . . the link that joins. To further the deepest understanding between both partners is the duty and the privilege of every Canadian.

In our hearts is the same concept of freedom!

FAR back in the 17th Century Calvert, a famous English statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, was one of the earliest pioneers in joining together, for the good of mankind, the Old World and the New.

In 1622 Calvert founded a colony in Newfoundland and, later, a colony in Maryland. Thus, over 300 years ago, Calvert forged a link between Britain and America which has strengthened throughout the years.

The mutual understanding existing between the British Commonwealth and the United States today . . . fostered three centuries ago by Calvert . . . is exemplified by the Quebec Conferences. Meeting place of two great nations, Canada proudly shares the partnership . . . strengthens that spirit of co-operation essential to Victory and Peace.

Tourist Industry

Touring is not of the past. It has been more or less under restriction owing to the emergencies of war which have laid a heavy hand on gasoline and rubber to maintain the mighty allied forces at the many fronts throughout the world. It will be of vast importance after the war.

At a meeting at Windsor General LaFleche, chairman of the National Tourist Advisory Committee, opened the committee's first wartime conference, saying "the war is not won, but it is well adavnced toward victory. A year ago we could not with honor have given a great deal of consideration to these plans. I feel we can do so with honor now," and he said, "I do feel that we must prepare now so that we can meet the highly competitive conditions that will prevail in the tourist industry immediately following the war." One has only to think of the appeal of Europe after the war and of the efforts which will be made to attract tourists into many lands to help swell their scanty treasuries and develop their trade.

Tourist travel will be a part of the life after the war. There is no doubt of that. Every American and every Canadian who has felt the restraints upon travel will want to exxplore the rest of the continent of North America and there can be no doubt of a vast amount of touring from as far north as Northern Canada to the southern part of Mexico.

The General believes that no country stands in a more favorable position than Canada to benefit from the tourist traffic.

As far as the western world is concerned while Europe will have problems to face which will require a great deal of attention and much work of reconstruction interest in the New World of North America which has played so prominent a part in the struggle for the defence and maintenance of liberty will be marked. Many a European will look to Canada and the United States as countries to be visited at an early date or a land in which to make new homes if he thinks of leaving Europe for it is thought there may be considerable migration to the Western World from parts of Europe.

So the tourist industry is seen to be of imposing possibilities and probabilities in the post-war era.

Forced to Yield

The German aggressor is finding that while he could seize vast territory he could not hold it. In the interval between his coming and his withdrawal he has committed crimes and sins against humanity. The record of the enemy occupation of Greece is one seared with results which have made deep marks through starvation.

One of the most tragic events in history is that the barbarian who boasts his superman qualities and his superiority as a race tried his modern infamous methods upon the Greeks who have a history which antedates that of the rest of modern Europe. The ancestors of the modern Greeks were the greatest custodians of freedom in the ancient world. They fought at Marathon, Thermopylae, at Salamis and saved western civilization with results which have flowed down the centuries to this day. In the year 1941 a modern savage broke through the Balkans and wreaked his criminal instincts and barbaric methods upon the descendants of those old Greek heroes, these descendants themselves having been of heroic mould as their deeds in the defence of their country and allies revealed. in that year.

But wreak his criminal aims upon the Greeks as he tried the Hun could not crush Greece. This land of heroes is now feeling the liberating influence stemming from the Allied victories in the east, west and in the south of Europe (Italy.)

The race that developed a Plato and a Homer is being cleared of the enemy who is trying to evacuate under the difficult conditions in which he has been caught as in a trap, far from Germany.

It is the same in other parts of Europe, the Hun's grasp is slipping. He did his best to cash in on the advantages of the material resources of these countries and of their strategic importance but even these have failed him. He has to drop his seized territory in Greece and Albania. In Yugoslavia he has never been able to dominate and the Patriots have ever been his active foe. In Norway are thought to be a quarter of a million Huns in occupation and when the time comes to withdraw these, Hitler may find the task impossible.

His withdrawals are those of a defeated gangster, he dislikes leaving what he his grabbed but at the last and often too late, he has tried to withdraw. France is a case in point like Russia where Hitler's failure to recognize the danger facing his rule would not withdraw until forced to—the result being great Allied victories and colossal Hun defeats. France is nearly almost all freed, Russia is now engaged in lifting the Hun incubus from the central European and Baltic nations. Liberation is coming in The Netherlands and Belgium knows what restoration of freedom means.

The international thief has been forced to disgorge, and has been made to lose millions of men in all these theatres in the futile effort of trying to hold in the foolish hope of incorporation of them into the Reich.

The peoples of these lands which were caught in Hitler's sweep of power in the first half of the war have given the most amazing demonstration of courage and endurance for their patriots have never lost heart and today are helping to put the handcuffs upon the Germans.

Through Three Wars

(W. L. Clark, in Windsor Star)

During their leisure moments in France, our Canadian soldiers will be talking to young men like Windsor's Colonel E. S. Wigle, who will recall vividly how they have seen their beloved France invaded three times by the Germans.

There were the Prussians in 1870.

There were the Germans in 1914.

There were the Nazis in 1940.

Whether they be Prussians, Germans or Nazis, they are all from the Reich, all Germans bent on conquest. After the Franco-Prussian War, the French were getting their breath and recovering, when the Germans invaded again in 1914. France had not recovered from that blow before the Nazis stormed through in 1940.

The French must not forget that German habit of wanting to run over French territory as a shortcut to world conquest. Neither can the other nations. As long as the world exists, there will be a German threat unless the other nations insist on slapping down the Germans every time they make the slightest stir toward war.

New Ambitions

(U.K. Information Service)

Boys in Scotland are now receiving new opportunities for taking their part in post-war reconstruction. Crafts learned at school have provided new ambitions, and many of these boys are now leaving the Edinburg School of Building and Crafts, ready to take up their first job as apprentices in the building industry.

For 45 weeks the hundred boys who completed the course had been attending this novel school, acquiring every day a little more knowledge of the various trades of which the building industry is composed. All of them could have left school at fourteen and found blind alley jobs as message boys or young laborers at double the wage.

Applies Also to Dogs

(New York Sun)

Thieves who entered a New Jersey restaurant took not only cash and cigarettes but a six-month-old dog that had been left to guard the place. The owner evidently is not aware that advice against sending a boy to do a man's work has its counterpart with respect to dogs.

With the American planes victors in Manila Bay areas over Jap ships and planes, Japanese have a further sign of the coming of punishment to Japan.

FAMILY CHORES

I met him at the club, and he Seemed troubled as a man can be,
And questioned why, his head he shook
And said: "Here's my instruction book!
The list of duties for the day,
Penned in woman's hand I read:
"Do not forget to make your bed.
Lest while you're out the rain should fall
Close doors and windows, one and all.
Defrost the ice box! Don't forget,
Turn off the gas stove's every jet;
Me sure the bird and dog you feed,
The dog gets meat, the bird gets seed;
Take in the papers from the porch;
Don't leave the milk outside to scorch;
Sweep down the steps; dust twice a week
Draw all the shades, lest neighbors peek
Cut back the larkspur; spray the phlox;
Give water to each flower box;
Be careful not to spill the ink,
And don't pile dishes in the sink!"

"All written down for you!" I said,
"And she just keeps them in her head!"

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

There is no native species of monkey in the United States.

When Europeans came to America they found no native species of monkey in the New World north of the Rio Grande, although many members of the monkey family inhabit Mexico, Central America and South America. The Mexican spider monkey occurs in its natural state as far north as Lattitude 26 degrees and is the most northern monkey in North America. The petrified remains of small monkey-like animals that supposedly lived in prehistoric times have been found in caves in the United States.

In monkeys and apes the number of pairs of ribs varies from eleven in some species to fifteen in others. The orang-utan, like man, has twelve pairs, while gorillas and chimpanzees have thirteen. Only the New World night apes have as many as fifteen pairs of ribs.

If the filament in electric light bulbs were made red hot in the air it would oxidise and burn up. Therefore the bulb must consist of a vacuum or it must be filled with a gas in which there is no oxygen. The air is pumped out of ordinary electric light bulbs until a vacuum or nearly a vacuum is produced. When such a bulb is suddenly broken a popping sound is often produced by the outside air rushing into the vacuum.

Some electric bulbs are filled with nitrogen and they do not pop when broken because the pressure inside tends to equalize that outside.

The custom of conferring honorary college degrees on Presidents and ex-Presidents of the United States started with George Washington. Up to date Herbert Hoover leads all the Presidents of the United States on the number of such degrees he has received. He already has 26 to his credit.

Representative Ralph A. Gamble, of New York, is a son of Former Senator Robert J. Gamble of South Dakota.

"Amethyst" is composed of two Greek words meaning "not to be drunk." The ancients believed this gem, consisting of a violet-blue variety of crystalline quartz, would keep the wearer sober. In those days drinking cups were made of amethyst to prevent the users from getting drunk. The amethyst is known as bishop's stone because it was formerly widely used in the bishop's ring, a ring worn by bishops on the third finger of the right hand, symbolizing that the bishop is wedded to his diocese.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Congratulations'

Montreal, Que.,
September 25th.

Editor,
"Ontario Intelligencer".

To your highly esteemed citizen, Capt. Wm. H. Bottum, I send sincere birthday greeting on his 79th anniversary.

Long may he be spared to enjoy many more, and grace your fair city with his presence.

It is given to but few, to claim the host of friends and admirers as he can, yet each year only adds more, for he is the type of man who makes friends wherever he may go.

And too, let no one think as they see "William Henry" taking an easy gait on Front Street, that he hasn't a wealth of Golden Memories, and to be able to sit with him for just one hour, and learn of his experiences of sixty years back, when hard work meant hard work, is in itself an education, and few of the modern youth of to-day, if any, would care to tackle the "Rough Road" that it was his lot to travel.

And to-day he sits in reverie and smiles, as he wanders back over "Memory's Lane", and wouldn't exchange those years even were it possible.

So — Many Happy Returns Cap!
From your old friend,
"Ernest".

With Ontario Naturalists

A cave overlooking Cavern Lake, 30 miles northeast of Port Arthur, houses an estimated 5,000 of these mouse-like winged quadrupeds every winter, says C. E. Garton, a Port Arthur school teacher, and Dr. A. E. Allin of Fort William, who visited the cavern together.

The first chamber of the cave, used by local fishermen as a normal refrigerator, provided quarters for only a few hardy bats willing to brave the chill of icicles hanging from the vaulted roof. In a second warmer chamber of the cave, the roof was crowded with the dormant creatures. Few of them wakened at the intruders' approach.

Nine species of bats are found in Ontario. They are harmless and useful mammals which consume large numbers of flies and mosquitoes.

Like a ghost of the forest, an albino deer has roamed the remote northern areas of Algonquin Park for several years and Park rangers report the handsome buck with massive antlers has been seen on several occasions this year by Nazi war prisoners cutting wood in the area.

Although albinos are reputed to be solitary and shunned by their own this specimen has always been seen in the company of other deer of normal hue.

Veteran rangers say of all animals of the bush, the moose is the most inquisitive. The sight of a man carrying a canoe on his head has so aroused the animal's curiosity that woodsmen several times have been followed by moose while carrying their craft over portage trails. One ranger was knocked down when the inquisitive animal reared to investigate the canoe which he smashed with his forefeet.

Rarely seen in Southern Ontario, Ghost Moths were frequently observed in Algonquin Park this summer by students of the Summer Nature School there.

Of a buff or yellowish color, these moths are of a strange, primitive type with both front and hind legs virtually the same, pointed shape. With a wing expanse of more than three inches, the insects fly swiftly and erratically swinging from side to side like a pendulum presenting a weird, ghostly appearance.

White cabbage butterflies which flit about the countryside of North America by millions, are descended from stowaway specimens which reached Quebec in a steamship in 1860. In less than 20 years the butterfly spread over the length and breadth of Canada and the United States.

THE ONSET OF OLD AGE

At first blush, if you have not lost that faculty, it may seem absurd when I say that in my judgment a person who can roll a somersault (of course never for an instant losing contact with floor or ground) and come up on his feet smiling and fit to navigate is young regardless of chronological age. And vice versa.

In the pink 'un, Invitation to the Somersaulttauqua, which tells what rolls are good for and describes the technique (for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address — but I shall not regard a clipping of this item as a request) I say: "I believe this medicine is so good that I take it myself." And that, brethren and sistren, is praise from Sir Hubert.

I say also in the pink 'un that half a dozen of more rolls before breakfast every morning and half a dozen or more at any time in the middle of the day and half a dozen or more at bedtime every night will do as much toward keeping you young as any other prophylactic or treatment I can conceive or suggest.

I need not add here that what I don't know about the nature, prevention and treatment of old age fills many ponderous tomes — and that clearly distinguishes authorities on the subject of old age from the conductor of this column, for I tell what I don't know about it in a few little pamphlets, an occasional talk in this column like this one, which I mean seriously enough but so many readers choose to take otherwise, and such personal messages as I may be able to end to correspondents who seem to have arrived at the borderland.

After all what do we—I should say the authorities or real doctors or I know about the onset of old age? Who can say even approximately when or how old age sets in? For that matter can any recognised authority on the subject or any real doctor devise a better test of an individual's functional or physiological age than the individual's ability to roll a somersault, and come up on his feet smiling and neither dizzy nor sea-sick nor flustered about it?

Remember the familiar saying that a man is as old as his arteries —and a woman as old as she looks.

I don't know who said it first nor who brought the woman into it, but in my judgment, and here again I assure you I am not trying to be facetious, there is more truth in the part about the woman, for a reason which I shall try to make clear.

Almost at a glance even a child distinguishes a colt from an old horse, a cub from an old bear, a pup from an old dog or a playmate from the playmate's grampa by the unmistakable bounce, resiliency in the young one and lack of it in the old one. The daily rolling of somersaults, I believe, tends to preserve bounce, resiliency, elasticity and to retard the onset of stiffness, which is old age.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

It is D With Calcium, Not B1

Have been taking the calcium and B1 shots twice a week. Have to wait around a long while for the nurse to give these shots. Isn't it possible to take it by mouth? (Miss R. H.)

Answer—From your inquiry, and numerous others like you. I fear there may have been a misprint. I know of no particular reason for taking vitamin B1 with calcium. In my opinion calcium is best taken by mouth in 99 cases out of a hundred. Only in rare emergencies are "shots" (a moron word for hypodermic injections or injections into muscle or injections into the vein) necessary or justifiable. Not vitamin B1 but sunshine vitamin D should be taken with calcium—vitamin D is in fact essential for assimilation, utilization and retention of calcium, whether it be the calcium in food (milk, cheese, green leafy vegetables, peanuts, beans etc.) or calcium in medicinal form. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask for (no clipping) the pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatis" or the pamphlet "Adult Tetany and Growing Pains." If you want both pamphlets inclose ten cents.

Obesity and Maternity

I expect my baby in February and the doctor says I should lose weight, as I weigh 170 pounds and am 63 inches tall. He just said vaguely to cut down on starches and fats (Mrs. A. J. T.)

Answer—Too serious a problem—if your doctor can't handle it, he should refer you to another.

RESTRICTIONS ON

and the use of power for rural extensions was prohibited. Few similar restrictions were enforced in other provinces.

No Increase in Output.

Although official comment could not be obtained immediately some officials of newsprint companies said the removal of the restrictions would not bring about any increase in their output.

Newsprint officials in the Ottawa district said they now had plenty of power but were short of woodpulp. They believed this situation was fairly general in most parts of Ontario and Quebec, except possibly in the Saguenay river district.

Mr. Howe said that any restrictions which had been imposed on any other industry would also be lifted.

Diminished storages had been restored to a point which made removal of the restrictions possible. However, Mr. Howe warned that there may be occasional peak shortages in certain areas and he asked the public not to waste power.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

(By The Canadian Press)

With R.C.A.F. Bomber Group in England, Sept. 26. (CP)—FO. Dave Dakin of Kimberley, B.C., has finished an operational tour as captain of a Thunderbird squadron aircraft, a tour crammed with excitement.

Over Cambrai one night a Junkers 88 peppered Dakin's aircraft with cannon fire. The starboard elevator was smashed, the controls were partly jammed, the starboard inner propeller was holed and the starboard wing peppered. But he got back safely and later visited Cologne, Dusseldorf, Sterkrude, Frankfurt, Hamburg, Wesselring, Freidrichshafen and Essen.

FO. M. A. Henry, of Lindsay, Ont., is now an instructor in the radio division of Bomber Group. His operational record includes four trips to Berlin and sorties against Hanover, Frankfurt, Leipzig, Bochum and Dusseldorf, but the Mannheim job was the "shakiest do" of the lot. Flak put one engine out of order and ripped 49 holes in the aircraft. It had to be landed at an emergency airfield on returning to Britain.

Sqnd. Ldr. F. G. Lord D.F.C., of Sherbrooke, Que., (31 Newton St.) has completed his first operational tour as flight commander with the Ghost squadron. His sorties included 15 major operationals against Stuttgart, Mannheim, Leipzig, Hanover and Berlin. And he won an immediate D.F.C. for an attack on Amiens, France. Although his inner starboard engine "packed up" soon after he crossed the English coast, Lord continued to his target and successfully bombed it.

According to FO. Tommy Atkinson of Thorhild, Alta., it is more than a coincidence that any navigators in the R.C.A.F. are ex-school teachers. Tommy was a teacher in peacetime, became a navigator and has now finished an operational tour with the Thunderbird squadron.

"The nature of the work makes it a logical conclusion", he figures. "We're always poring over books, charts and maps and doing what you might call rapid calculation. There are a lot of us school teachers wearing the navigator's badge."

Excitement ran high at the R.C.A.F. Nighthawk squadron when Trixie their rusty-colored mascot, gave birth to a record litter of six male pups in the "A" flight ground-crew room. Now, nestled comfortably in a warm blanket inside a packing case, Trixie gets service deluxe from the ground crew men, with her meals delivered in a mess tin.

The first R.A.F. fighter-pilot V.C. of the war, Acting Wing Cmdr. James B. Nicolson, has been awarded the D.F.C. for "consistently showing himself to be a courageous and enterprising leader". He won the V.C. in 1940 for refusing to jump from his blazing Hurricane — wounded in the eye and the foot and up to his waist in flames with the flesh on his hands blistering on the controls— until he had shot down the ME that attacked him over Southampton.

Verna was presented with five dollars, the presentation being made by Rev. Father Farrell. Verna expressed her thanks and was congratulated by Rev. Father Farrell and the president.

The president appealed to the members to make donations to fill ditty bags to assist the War Workers and also for new and made-over garments to be put on display in Toronto. Also a letter was read from Bob Williams of Peterborough, who had kindly engraved the Honor Roll.

The president then discussed the coming bazaar and asked the group conveners to canvass the members for articles for the fancy goods table.

Father Farrell Addresses Meeting.

Father Farrell then addressed the meeting asking the members for their co-operation in the coming bazaar to make it a success as usual. He led in prayers for Corporal Leo O'Connor who was killed in action in Italy on August 27th., and one minute's silence was observed in his memory.

The president thanked Miss Mary Hughes and Mrs. Rose Johnston for their work in putting together a number of quilts and Miss Hughes asked the aid of the members in quilting them.

Father Farrell in his pleasing tenor, favored the gathering with two songs, "Danny Boy" and "The Rose of Tralee" with Mrs. James Black at the piano.

A few games of bingo were enjoyed and delicious refreshments were served by the ladies in charge, after which the meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem.

WEDDINGS

SLATER—FOX

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was adorned with gladioli and asters on Saturday, Sept. 23, when Padre A. G. Macpherson, 6 R.D., R.C.A.F., Trenton, united in marriage Jean Estelle Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Fox and LAC. Her long white tulle veil was caught to her hair with a beaded coronet. She carried an arm bouquet of red roses and wore a locket and bracelet, gifts of the groom.

She was attended by Miss Eileen Stowar, a cousin, as maid of honor, wearing a long chartreuse crepe dress and matching half-hat.

Miss Mary Slater, sister of the groom, and Miss Georgina Fox, sister of the bride, as bridesmaids, were wearing long mauve crepe dresses and matching half-hats.

Children of Mary Extend Welcome To New Director

The highlighting feature of the first meeting for the Fall season of the Sodality of the Children of Mary on Monday evening, was the welcome extended by its members to Sister Mary Lenore appointed as new director of the organization, a position formerly occupied by Sister Mary Hilda.

The meeting opened with the President, Miss Gertrude Lynch, in the chair, who conducted the general routine of business. Sister Mary Lenore, in expressing her thanks to the Sodality for the honor it had bestowed on her in appointing her as its director and supervisor, spoke in glowing terms of Sister Hilda, who had done so much to further the success of the Sodality in the past years. Sister Lenore urged that each and every one of its members strive diligently in the coming year to carry on and/uphold the fine name of the Sodality, and to strive for this end by working together in every phase of its activities.

Miss Agnes Gallagher added a note of much interest to assemblage by her very highlighting discussion on the origin and aims of the Sodality of the Children of Mary. An expression of appreciation for her account was the presentation made to her by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson.

Monsignor Nicholson brought the meeting to a most appropriate conclusion by speaking further of the Children of Mary. He directed his remarks directly to its members to serve as keen incentives for them to co-operate with one another in the attainment of an ample and successful year for the Sodality.

FASHION FLASHES

REAL FLATTERY lurks beneath the brim of a real hat, not a doll-sized affair. Black beaver felt makes a large Watteau type hat, the brim lifted in back and filled in with natural pink silk and velvet roses and black picot-edged ribbon bows. The brim has a slightly raised curve in front.

Interesting neck and sleeve treatment mark many of the new dresses. An after-five dress of black crepe has a low scalloped neckline filled in with black sheer, this detail repeated in the long, tight sleeves.

There's no need to wear the short, flared boxy fur coat if you don't like that fashion. Many shops are showing trim, beautifully fitted, double-breasted fur coats, mostly in such furs as Persian, Bombay lamb, sealskin and nutria.

Never so many smart coats as are being shown this season. A topper model, that swings out and dips slightly in back, is of American Beauty woollen with a suede finish. It has a full, deep yoke and tiny upstanding collar of black velvet, the yoke laced with a ribbon of the woollen that ties in a bow in front.

Good to know, if you are a blouse and skirt fan, that there is a wide variety of separate skirts on display, with plenty of peplums, wraparounds and side-drape models. Side-draping continues the most popular fashion, though, and it is shown in a black crepe skirt with apron wrap effect and a bow at the side waistline.

Little girls will be wearing jodhpur riding pants or general utility and play wear this autumn, the jodhpurs taking the place of ski pants, overalls or leggings. Jodhpurs in cavalry twill with suede leg patches are smart and useful. Also shown in hound's tooth checked woollen.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

One Love at a Time

Can a man love two girls at the same time?

I seriously fear that he can. But we all know that he mustn't — or he will find himself in some such distressing dilemma as George X, the much too susceptible young sailor who has just written asking my advice.

Before enlisting, George lived at home with his mother, a frail, adoring woman of fifty who cannot think of life without him. He was also "practically engaged" — how often that expression occurs in the love-stories of real life nowadays!— to a girl of 20 whom he has known for years, and who, it can easily be seen, is deeply in love with him.

As George's mother is particularly fond of this girl, the expectation naturally is that on returning home when the war is over he will marry the devoted home-town girl and that will then be formed a household of three, including the mother.

"But," the sailor confided to me, "since leaving home I have come to know a very lovely and dashing WREN. She has swept me off my feet. She dazzles me. In fact, I think she could do pretty nearly anything with me she might want to.

"I have told her this. I have even told her that I want to marry her, which is the truth. But she is noncommittal. I don't even know whether she is in love with me. But she is positive about one thing, namely, that if she did marry me, she would not allow my mother to live with us.

"All this time I am still really very fond of my little girl at home who is so sweet and cuddly and who loves me so much more than I deserve. And I am deeply devoted to my mother who wouldn't dream that I could think of deserting her.

"Now, I am not a bad sort of fellow and I don't want to cause unhappiness to anybody. But I am nearly beside myself with what I suppose is love. Anyway, I never felt anything like it before. What in the world shall I do?"

For the present, I think George will have to give up the idea of marriage altogether. His obligations at home make it quite impossible that he should mention another word of marriage to the pretty Wren. Call it a flirtation to be forgotten as soon as possible. It is probable that the Wren hasn't taken George seriously but is merely collecting scalps.

On the other hand, it would not be fair to marry the girl at home until he has entirely recovered from his present infatuation. This will certainly happen if he doesn't see the siren any more. Meanwhile, I suppose there is no use in preaching a sermon on constancy, badly as George needs it. One can only hope that for the sake of the girl who is really his fiancee, he'll come safely back to her after a while with no further entanglement.

The Marry-Go-Round

Girls—And Other Girls.

Many a girl who is too fastidious to wear a borrowed hat thinks it rather smart to borrow some other girl's boy friend or husband for a little luncheon party.

They used to call it scornfully "woman's work"; but these maidless days, many a man washes his own socks and feels a glow of pride when he helps with the housework or tosses up a tasty hot dinner while his wife finishes her war job at the factory. Work, like crime, is no longer a matter of sex.

Men seem to have invented about everything the human being can desire except a drink that will quench the thirst as well as plain water, and something that will satisfy a girl's soul, heart and vanity as well as plain bona fide love.

There is probably nobody on earth quite so humbly grateful as a brilliant intellectual-girl who discovers that a man admires her for her "beautiful eyes", her "cute ways", or her "little, retrousse nose" instead of for her "mentality".

A man never becomes so cynical that he won't believe any attractive young thing who tells him that he's a "wolf" in spite of his bald-spot, or that she loves him—in spite of all his money.

Racketeers thrive on a man's foolish desire to get something for nothing; philanderers thrive on a woman's foolish willingness to accept nothing for something—usually for hard cash.

Just about the time a woman has decided that her husband doesn't measure up to the hero in the feature-picture, along comes the "comedy" and shows her a husband so much lighter and less responsible than her own. So she decides to hurry home and get John a nice hot dinner.

This will never be a Woman's World so long as a man can go over his face with a safety-razor, give his hair a couple of licks with the brush, stick a flower in his buttonhole, and look as nifty and dolled up as a girl who has spent three hours being parboiled in a beauty parlor.

Adam didn't make such a poor bargain when he traded a superfluous rib for something to amuse him, flatter him, nurse him, cook for him and take all the petty routine office-work off his hands.

CANADIAN Y·M·C·A WAR SERVICES

The weekly activities of the Red Triangle Hostess Club under the supervision of Cecelia Rolland and her Red Group were concluded with the Saturday night dance at the Armouries and the picnic on Sunday. The dance was held with a fine attendance, good orchestra, and smooth floor. The two spot dances were won by Gena Hicks and LAC. Blain Archibald and LAW. Jean Nixon and AC1 Jerry Deshaies. The winner of the lucky number draw was LAC. Brick Ward.

The last picnic of the season on Sunday was held at the "Scuttle Hole" beside the Moira River. Seventy-five picnic enthusiasts enjoyed the various games including bridge, cribbage, chess, crokinole, not to forget the rousing game of softball which created everyone's appetites for the delicious assortment of lunches that each girl had prepared. The "Y" picnics were really a success this year. On only one Sunday did the picnickers have to remain at the Y.M.C.A. due to unfavorable weather. The success of these picnics is not only due to the groups in charge of them but also to the splendid and efficient supervision of Mr. H. McKeig, and his assistant, Mrs. McKeig.

During the past week, the following have extended hospitality to service personnel: Mrs. J. Wilfred Holmes, 55 Queen St.; Mrs. Albert McGowan, Marshall Road; Mrs. F. E. Houston, 6 Pine Street; Mrs. H. McKeig, 19 Highland Avenue; Mrs. W. E. Burrowes, 170 Dufferin Avenue.

The Smart Woman's Way Of Attaining Distinction

By HELEN FOLLETT

THE CHIC woman has no desire to be just pretty. She does not want to look flashy. Heaven forbid. She does not go in for extreme fashions, neither does she annihilate her eyebrows or use too heavy an application of the rosy glow on her lips.

She makes an effort to appear distinguished, a little apart from the big push. She may not be blessed with perfect features or the divine shape, but that does not bother her. She has good taste and knows that it serves her well. With good taste she can make no mistakes in make-up or clothes. It is a force that directs her along the good looks path.

Proper Fitting Clothes.

She shuns unfriendly colors as she would run away from the plague. She is fussy about the fit of her clothes. Say what you will in these days of conveniently purchased ready-to-wear goods, due regard is not always given to selections. Many plump women wear clothes that are too snug, many skinnies wear frocks and coats a size too large, fancying that they hide their bones and angles. A dress should be precisely right—neat, trim, of graceful lines and becoming length.

One can't judge by sizes; they vary. One must try on, take a careful survey, front, back and sides. Delicacy the Watchword.

The wise lady realizes that to carry make-up that is scenic is to be old-fashioned. Delicacy is the watchword.

She avoids the severe unwaved coiffure because she knows it makes her face look brittle. Above everything else, she dresses according to her age. For the middle aged woman to array herself as for the pinafore period is to look ridiculous. It is being done all the time. Goodness knows styles are youthful enough. There is such a thing as having them too juvenile.

Wardroom Pantry Amazes Reporter After Army Food

By DOUG HOW
(CP War Correspondent)

Aboard H.M.C.S. Prince David in the Mediterranean, Sept. 26. (CP) —After considered study of the two ways of life, we now feel justified in propounding the theory that the chief difference between Canadian soldiers and sailors is the food they eat and the liquor they drink.

There are other differences but you have to sit down to a navy meal to appreciate the one great chasm that does yawn between these two arms of the services.

As this is written we have been aboard this infantry landing ship nearly a week and with each passing day we look with deepening apprehension upon the inevitable return to army ways. The initial shock of having a white-jacketed waited politely inquire "how would you like your eggs done this morning?" has passed and we now are solid in our mastery over such terms as boiled or friend or scrambled and "pass the ketchup please" or "I'd like my steak well done".

We have also mastered the enthusiasm which led to the emission of a gleeful and embarrassing whoop at the sight of the contents of the officers' wardroom bar where such extinct luxuries as gin, whisky, beer and rum are available.

Only one who has survived months of taunting his thirst with Italian wine, vermouth or cognac can understand the instinctive shudder that broods over thoughts of a return to their mercies.

There has been no moment of higher benevolence in this past week than the day Tubby Little of Ottawa, a member of the engine room staff, poured us a tumbler of navy rum. We were in Halifax again and schooner was in from the Indies and the rum flowed free.

Many Similarities.

That, then, is our finding in a study of contrasts between these two forms of service. But there are similarities.

We found that sailors spawn rumors as virile as those of soldiers.

(When we came aboard the report circled the ship that this was the clincher for a return home. We were going on this operation, then we'd sail for Canada aboard the David.)

Sailors want to go home as much as soldiers do but they figure overseas service in terms of months, soldiers in terms of years. Sailors have a great interest in Canadian soldiers. (We were pumped dry of news of the corps in Italy and one of the chief complaints was that they seemed to get everything but Canadian Troops aboard.)

Their beefs about mail are roughly similar to those of soldiers, only censorship for them seems more difficult.

(We named the David immediately in our news story of the new French landings; Lieut. George Buckingham of Montreal, said they wouldn't be able to mention the Mediterranean or the landings for two weeks at least.)

Sailors probably have more justification in their complaints of monotony. As we lay out in the sun one day talking about the night spots in Hull, Tubby Little got around to the subject.

"They rush us away from Canada two days before Christmas, see", he said. "Claimed we were needed bad overseas. And what happens? We sit around the Clyde for weeks. Then we sails south to England sit around Cowes, in the Isle of Wight, for three solid months.

"It got so that when one of the officers said something one day about this being a fighting ship I piped up 'yeah, everybody's fighting to get off her'."

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Forty Is An Attractive Age

Just what is middle-age, anyway? We ask you. Eighty years is a long life span and, I suppose, at forty, one is at the peak of the hill, thereafter going down. Even so, it doesn't seem fair to call our Forty Girls middle-aged. There's not much difference between them and their daughters, who are in their late teens. Coiffures are the same, clothes identical, spirits high. No! Middle-age, as we visualize it, is farther along than that.

Eighteen and twenty year olds want to be pretty and they are. The Forty woman seeks something more compelling; it is her desire to be chic and charming, to be distinguished from her sisters, above everything else to be interesting. She's certain that she is happier than when she was younger, because youth is self-conscious; every slight disappointment is a tragedy. She isn't afraid to be natural. She has acquired ease and poise. She can have all the pleasures of youth, plus the calmer joys of added years. Yes sir! Forty is an elegant age.

Our Forty Girl knows that good-looks are a priceless blessing, she'll hang onto hers at all costs, but there are other qualities that mean more in the long run. Graciousness, for instance.

Amiability is a quality of loveliness beside which the alabaster complexion and ambrosial tresses fall into second place. You can't love a woman just because she is beautiful, but you can be crazy about her if she is sweet, sympathetic, understanding, has charming manners.

Youth is often inclinded to be arrogant, because youth knows everything, and regards older individuals as so many mildewed dodos. But, by the time a woman is forty—if she has brains in her head— she realizes that conceit and haughtiness are evidence of stupidity. You have to be a terrible sap to stick up your nose at people; they're human beings too, just like yourself, liable to errors of judgment, likely to give way to bad moments.

Nice manners are cultivated by older women because they are expressions of a kindly spirit, of culture, of mental splendor. A lot of young people these days seem to regard nice manners as old fashioned. They'll learn better.

About the best way to acquire a persimmon face is to be primed for argument and dissension. Smart Forty doesn't do that.

She may feel a bit low about grey hairs and crinkles around her eyes, but not for long. For every mark Time places upon her countenance, he compensates for by bestowing a new element of charm.

We're not saying that middle-age is always appealing. We say it should be, because by that time a woman should have learned something about the art of living, and getting along happily with her fellow creatures. Of course a Sour Puss, at any age, never learns anything.

GEN. EISENHOWER IS 'MAN'S MAN' REPORTERS FIND

General "Ike" Hates Publicity, Plays Hookey from Correspondents, Likes Informal Sessions Better

By MARSHALL YARROW
(Reuters War Correspondent.)

Advanced Allied Command Post, Normandy, Sept. 26. (CP-euters)—A few minutes with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower convinces you he is a "man's man" as well as a "soldiers' soldier". It does not take long to feel the impact of those qualities which brought him to the supreme command of the armies of democracy.

Just as quickly, you become aware of that friendliness and warmth that have endeared him to all those privileged to address him affectionately as "Ike".

It is not hard to sense that he is embarrassed by his position. It is evident that the high sounding title of "supreme commander" is a little too rich for the blood of this democratic, midwestern soldier.

Being a correspondent covering Gen. Eisenhower is as enjoyable personally as it is difficult professionally. He wants to help the newspapermen yet he is eager to avoid creating any suspicion that he wants the limelight.

Such is his modesty that Gen. Eisenhower detests the phrase "press conference". He prefers to "inform" correspondents and let them write their articles as if they had dug up their information from any other source in the world except from the supreme command.

These information sessions are a sheer delight. The general is always punctual and makes his guest feel at home at once.

He appears a bit shy at the start. After giving what information he has he settles back for questions. He never parries them but answers fully and straightforwardly. As he relaxes he warms up and unveils a keen sense of humor. You feel as if you were in the parlor of an old friend instead of at the headquarters of the general who is directing the mightiest war in history.

Gen. Eisenhower likes publicity—for anyone but himself. If a correspondent wants to write a story which makes Joe Doakes appear the most important man in the army that is all right with the commander.

Gen Eisenhower has laid himself wide open to any cuts the press might want to take. He issued a directive that criticism of him shall not be censored from correspondents' stories merely on the ground that it is against the supreme commander.

He does ask, however, that his commanders be not subjected to criticism. He takes the stand that they are carrying out his orders and if there is any blame, he, as supreme commander, should shoulder it.

It is amazing how completely he has been able to divest himself mentally of his United States nationality. He thinks only in terms of the Allied armies—not British, American, Canadian or French. In fact, such references irk him considerably. He has frequently and emphatically stated that he is an Allied soldier.

Recently a British parliamentary party visited him at his headquarters here—at the general's invitation. He felt they should know what was going on.

Hilary St. George Saunders, assistant librarian in the House of Commons and author of the best seller "The Battle of Britain", summed up the party's reaction thus: "It is a grand tonic to meet him".

Wave of Killings Sweeps N. Italy

Bern, Switzerland, Sept. 26. (AP)—A wave of killing was reported sweeping German-occupied Northern Italy Monday where the newspaper Regime Fascista exhorted Blackshirts to avenge the execution in Rome of Pietro Caruso.

The Fascist Press reported eight killed in Turin, nine shot in Bologna, seven executed on charges of subversive activity in Reggio Emelia and ten Partisan prisoners shot at Gravelano—a total of 44.

Conditions in Bologna, one of Italy's largest cities and almost in the frontline since Allied armies smashed the Gothic Line, were reported frightful. Hundreds were said to have been put to death there this month. The latest bombings were reported to have broken down utility services. Hospitals were crowded with wounded and sick. Medicines and water were lacking. Traffic was reported paralyzed and the streets were said to be scenes of frequent blood-letting in clashes between Fascists and Partisans.

Reports reaching the Italian frontier said 10,000 had been arrested in Bologna alone during September.

Lone Survivor of Nazi Paratroop Regiment

When the U. S. airforce bombed Cassino in Italy, only three men of the 100 men of the 2nd Company, 3rd Nazi Paratroop Regiment of General Heidrick's famous First German Paratroop Division, survived. Since then one was killed by Canadian shell fire, another died of wounds and this Nazi, Senior Private Ernst Markert, 19, surrendered to the Canadians only after his last round of ammunition had been fired. He had seen his entire company wiped out, retreated more than 250 miles, surrendered on the Gothic line and still believes in Hitler and that Germany will win the war. He is a member of the Hitler Youth Movement and wears the Iron Cross of the Second Order for service at Cassino.—(Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

Soviet Letter

(Written for The Canadian Press)
By V. KOZHEVNIKOV

Moscow, Sept. 26. (CP)—The battles being fought today by Russian troops are court, trial and execution for Germans who took such sordid toll of the Soviet people.

Take the case of 18-year-old Ivan Gromak for example. On Aug. 28, 1943, when the 3rd Russian assault battalion was fighting for possession of Hill 244 near Potapova village in the Smolensk region. Gromak killed 16 Germans and documents found on one of them revealed the German participated in the murder of Zoya Kosmodemy-Anskaya in the Perishchev village near Moscow in 1941.

And today black and swollen corpses of Germans lie in the western borders of the Soviet Union as retribution overtakes the Nazi legions.

Yet another murderer who participated in the hanging of Zoya was discovered more recently when the Germans were caught in what the military people termed the "Vitebsk Sack". This Prussian hangman was caught in the cottage of Woodsman Pishuko. He had killed the woodsman's wife and was eating a mess of leavened dough when three Partisans found him and hanged him on the spot.

New honors have come to the men behind the front who backed the Soviet fighters—the industrial workers and their executives. Vyacheslav Malyshev, People's Commissar for the tank industry, received the high title of hero of Socialist Labor in recognition of his services in organizing the production of tanks and self-propelled guns and for laumching the production of new types of fighting machines.

When the battle of Moscow was going on and the tank industry was being evacuated to the east, Malyshev organized tank production in the capital. Fighting machines turned out at Moscow factories went straight into action from the assembly line.

Aikens W.M.S. Holds Monthly Meeting

3rd Sidney—The September meeting of the Aikens' Woman's Missionary Society was held at the church on Thursday afternoon.

An exceptionally fine program was prepared and conducted by the Secretary of Community Friendship, Mrs. Murney Jeffrey.

The parable of the Good Samaritan as recorded in the tenth chapter of Luke, was read by Mrs. S. Spafford. The lesson on the Scripture was given by Mrs. S. Westover.

A poem was read and prayer offered by Mrs. Harley Hubble.

Readings "Our Duties" and "The Stranger Within Our Gates", were given by Mrs. G. Brickman and Mrs. E. Hubble.

"A Welcome to British War Brides" and "I Was a Stranger" were stories told by Mrs. Jeffrey, relating incidents which had occurred in the life of a Community Friendship Secretary.

A piano solo was played by Mrs. Lee Grills.

The Study Book "West of the Date Line", was introduced by Mrs. S. Spafford and Mrs. Fred Westover.

This timely program theme which is a resume of work and conditions in the Southwest Pacific and Southeast Asia, is for all the North American churches for 1944-45, and should prove especially interesting at this time, as this area is becoming more involved in present war. Also in this area, the Gospel of Jesus Christ has seen some of its greatest triumphs.

In the study of this book, preparation will be in the making, for the part women will have to play in the post-war world. Our failure to win the peace after the war is fought, "to make the world safe for democracy", can be traced in no small measure to our lack of an intelligent understanding of world issues, not to our lack of a desire for just and durable peace.

The peoples of Asia and the South Seas which are a large percentage of the world's population, will have their part to play and their share in determining the nature of the post-war world. If we really believe that the world fellowship of Christians can unite to create a more Christian world, we need to know and understand the peoples of other lands.

A talk on the books on Southeast Asia that can be procured from the W.M.S. Book Room in Toronto, was given by Mrs. E. K. Hubble.

After the closing hymn the meeting was closed with prayer by the President, Mrs. Hubble.

"I am glad to see the manifestation that you know there can be no real peace without the unity of all countries, specially Russia", Mr. Robeson said.

Participating in the draw were Col. Nicolai Zabotin, military attache of the U.S.S.R. embassy in Canada; Sergei Koudriatsev, First Secretary to the Embassy; and James A. Northey, newly elected president of the Canadian Aid-to-Russia Fund.

First prize, a $5,000 mink coat, was won by Mrs. E. Howman, R.R. No. 3, Weston, Ont. There were 39 other prizes.

World Series Between Brownies Or Tigers Against Cardinals Shapes Up Like Hurling Fiesta

Each Club Boasts of Excellent Pitching Corps and Good Hitters

CARDS FAVORED

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Sept. 26 — (AP)—The world series between St. Louis Cardinals and either Detroit Tigers or St. Louis Browns should be one of the best-pitched since the days of Christy Mathewson, Chief Bender and Jack Coombs four decades ago.

The Tigers, should they win the American League flag, will present Hurricane Harold Newhouser and Paul (Dizzy) Trout, two of the best pitchers in baseball. The Browns have an exceptionally strong hurling corps in Jack Kramer, Bob Muncrief, Nelson Potter and Denny Galehouse while the Cardinals boast of Mort Cooper, Max Lanier, Ted Wilks and Harry Brecheen.

Newhouser and Trout, between them, have registered 53 of the Tigers' 84 victories to date. The left-handed Newhouser's record is 27 wins and nine defeats, including 5 shutouts and 23 complete games, while Trout boasts a 26-12 record, including six shutouts and 31 complete games. Newhouser also is the leading strikeout hurler in the majors with 171.

The Cardinals' No. 1 chucker and probable first-game choice is Cooper, winner of 22 games this season, topping the 20-victory mark for the third successive year. He leads all pitchers with seven shutouts. In Wilks, the Cards boast the freshman pitching sensation of the majors. Wilks has a 17-3 record for a mark of .850, the best percentage ever achieved by a Cardinal tosser. In Lanier and Brecheen they have two of the finest left-handers in the National loop.

If the Browns win, their pitching staff, although not on a par with that of the Cards' on paper, should give a good account of itself.

Kramer, usually a cool-weather pitcher, has won four of his last five starts for a creditable 16-13 record. He leads the Brownie hurlers with 17 complete games. Muncrief (13-8), ranked as the Browns' ace until sidelined by a sore elbow, has shown marked improvement of late. He could well be the "dark horse" of the series.

Potter, the club's biggest winner, has won 18 and lost seven while Galehouse, a tardy starter this season, closed fast for an 8-9 mark, after losing his first four starts.

The teams play at St. Catharines Wednesday night and at Mimico Thursday night.

Masters tallied seven goals for the Mountaineers and other standout performers before the crowd of 1,300 fans included Alvin Doyle, Blain MacDonald, Vern Steggal and Al McLean. Roy Mortimore played sensationally in goal.

Doug Cove, Norm MacDonald and Roy Morton spearheaded the St. Catharines attack with two goals apiece and Frank Madsen and Bill Whittaker also played well.

BROWNIES CATCH DETROIT TIGERS IN RACE TO WIRE

St. Louis Wins Over Boston and Tigers Drop Tilt to Philadelphia

SIX GAMES TO PLAY

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

President Will Harridge had the American League constitution out for an airing today, studying the rules relating to a pennant race tie as St. Louis Browns again settled down in first place, deadlocked with Detroit Tigers.

The rule book said a one-game playoff would determine the winner and the site of the tilt should be determined by the toss of a coin. Both Steve O'Neill and Luke Sewell were reported polishing two-headed coins.

Chances were against the Brownies sticking up there as a four-game series with the persistent New York Yankees follows two more games with Boston. Detroit has Washington coming in when the Tigers get rid of Connie Mack's troublesome A's after two more tilts. Each team had six games to play.

Nelson Potter put the Brownies back in a tie by stopping Boston, 3-0, with two hits, singles in the third inning. Chet Laabs and rookie Boris (Babe) Martin from Toledo, who would not be eligible for the world series, if and when, were the hitting stars of the timely triumph.

Connie Mack continued to take a hand in the race from a seventh-place position. The A's, who belted the Yanks out of the lead 10 days ago, toppled Detroit, 2-1, yesterday on the four-hit chucking of lanky Russ Christopher.

The Yankees stuck in there, three games back, trimming Chicago 3-1 in 12 innings and 5-4 in regulation distance behind rookies Mel Queen and Walt Dubiel. Cleveland's "Specs" Klieman blanked Washington, 6-0, in the other American league contest.

St. Louis Cardinals scored three unearned runs to mark up win No. 102 by a 3-1 edge over Brooklyn. Buddy Kerr's lead-off homer in the ninth enabled New York Giants to top Cincinnati, 3-2.

Pittsburgh clung to a big lead for an easy 13-8 victory over Boston in a "suspended" game from Aug. 1 but lost the regular tilt in 13 frames, 5-4. Chicago downed the Phils twice in a twi-night double, 7-6 in 10 innings and 4-1.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Sept. 26. (AP)—Bill Crowley, veteran football official who will advise J. Basil Maguire in organizing the New York Club of the Trans-America (Chick Meehan) League, argues that so many good football players are developed in the colleges that one pro league can't use nearly all of them. . . We never have heard a pro coach complaining about the over-supply. We never thought 17-year-old freshmen could play college ball, either, but they're doing all right these Saturday afternoons. . . Leading hitter in the minors during the past baseball season was old Ripper Collins, Albany manager, with a .396 average. . . The American Hockey League won't follow the National by barring players who are subject to military call or who have war jobs. They haven't any Canadiens to worry about.

Baseball Game At Alemite Field To Entertain Fans

While the Belleville Columbian Squires are battling the Toronto Carltons in a third and final junior O.A.S.A. semi-final game at Port Hope on Wednesday, local sport fans will have the opportunity to take in an important exhibition baseball game at the Alemite Field.

Last week the local Alemites, strengthened by Bill Turner, Russ Collins and Doc Empson, played an exhibition game versus the Mountain View "Bombers" at the Bombing School station grounds. Tomorrow Ernie Smith will do the pitching for the Alemites in a return game with Bill Turner, former senior player, holding down the initial sack for the local team. The game will get under way at the Alemite Field at 5:30 p. m. when the Bombers will try to capture their first win in Belleville.

Over at Port Hope the winner of the Belleville-Toronto junior third and deciding game later meets the Hamilton-Windsor winner for the junior O.A.S.A. championship of Ontario. Don Boyle will pitch for the locals.

GAME IS CALLED IN FIFTH FRAME DUE TO DARKNESS

Reliance Girls Leading 11-1 When Umpires End the Hostilities

PLAY WEDNESDAY

If the Belleville Ladies' Softball League hope to conclude their 1944 championship series it is quite obvious future games will have to commence earlier. Monday night, Reliance and SWACO tried it in a sixth attempt and the game had to be called in the fifth inning on account of darkness and the fact Reliance was leading 11 to 1 meant little or nothing as the necessitated seven innings had not been completed. In an effort to complete the series Secretary Eddie Schreider announced today the series would continue on Wednesday afternoon, commencing precisely at 5:45 p. m. The championship series now stands at three games to one in favor of the 1943 champion Reliance team.

Reliance seemed headed for another pennant when they scored 2 runs in the first inning on singles by Aileen Wright, Clancy Elliott crowded in with Helen Garrow's double. It looked to be all over but the shouting, when Reliance scored seven times in the third, but the prolonged inning paved the way for the subsequent calling of the game at five innings as Reliance racked up seven safe blows, Coathup, Stairs, Blaind, Elliott, Garrow and Wright pumping out singles with Rita Bukler driving a double out of the park. Colden and Elliott hit doubles to score two more for Reliance in the fourth. O. Fralick's double in the 5th produced SWACO's lone tally, as Jackson and Corneal hit singles in the third for the losers, but could not score as Reliance tightened up.

Millie Foster was on the hilltop for Reliance and allowed but three hits and struck out three, while walking one. Lois Calcutt went the route for SWACO, being touched for an even dozen base hits, while whiffing one and passing the same number. The teams will resume the city championship series Wednesday twilight.

BUFFALO BISONS LOSE TO ORIOLES

Baltimore, Sept. 26 (AP)—Buffalo Bisons, fourth-place team in the regular International League season, face the pennant-winning Baltimore Orioles here tonight in the last game of their series for the right to meet Newark in the finals for the Governor's Cup.

Baltimore tied up the series at 3-3 last night, taking a 9-3 decision before 12,189 persons as Sam West tossed a four-hit game while his mates were collecting 11 off Joe Orrell and Emery Bresko.

Andy Seminick was the only Bison who could do anything against West, punching out two home runs.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the Ontario Hockey Association has announced that the O.H.A. sub-committee has decided to operate four series during the 1944-45 season; senior A, intermediate A, junior A and junior B.

The announcement said the organization of the senior A series will be left until the annual O.H.A. meeting scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 18. The junior A series will be organized at a sub-committee meeting in Toronto Oct. 1. All 10 clubs which had teams in this series have been invited to send delegates to the meeting.

Entries for the intermediate A and junior B series will be accepted by Mr. Hewitt and the sub-committee will arrange the groupings.

Leading Seaman Annis Stukus of Toronto Navy and Joe Krol of Hamilton Wildcats show signs of continuing this season the friendly rivalry for scoring leadership which marked their performances in the Ontario Rugby Football Union last year. Stukus, playing with Navy in the services league, already has amassed 12 points. Krol, runner-up to Stukus a year ago, also has 12 points. Following Stukus in the services league is Moon Mullins of St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets, who has seven points.

A harbinger of the hockey season is word from Port Arthur that St. Louis Fliers of the A.H.L. have begun a three-weeks' training period, which about 40 players are expected to attend.

INCREASED COAL OUTPUT

Pretoria, South Africa (CP)—For the 17 weeks ending July 24, 1944, the total output of Transvaal collieries was 672 tons more than the corresponding period in 1943.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By HAROLD FREEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 26 (CP) — Right about now, we figure it's high time hockey fans across the country got a formal introduction to Miss Dorothy Pinard. She's a lady well known to National Hockey League governors and to Montreal sports writers but her name is rarely mentioned elsewhere.

Which seems a bit strange because Miss Pinard has been secretary of the N.H.L. for four years, the only woman ever to hold such an august post in the hockey world. Looking at it another way, she's the only N.H.L. secretary to work with the only two presidents the N.H.L. has ever had—the late Frank Calder and Mervyn (Red) Dutton.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara suggests that probably Miss Pinard could get double the salary in any other job. We don't know what her salary is but we are inclined to string along with the O'Meara verdict.

Miss Pinard was born and brought up in Toronto but Montreal doesn't really hold that against her. She has followed the N.H.L. "since I was in school and even before"—which probably wasn't so very long ago at that. There's precious little she doesn't know about league and player records, and even less that she doesn't know about the inside workings of the world's top hockey loop.

Not that Miss Pinard gives out much of her confidential information about the league. She'll oblige at any time concerning past figures and performances but when it comes to divulging league secrets she's one of the best talk-a-blue-streak-without-saying-anything persons we know.

It seems only right that the fans should know about Miss Pinard because as Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson puts it, she's really running the league right now. President Dutton is away in the west, probably won't be back until after the season is in full swing. General Manager Lester Patrick is busy in New York, putting his Ranger roster in shape. Miss Pinard takes care of N.H.L. headquarters here and does most of the work connected with league affairs.

Just an example, there was that little matter of the schedule this year. The governors met and set the schedule, decided that it should be released Sept. 19, and then left town. It was Miss Pinard who put it in shape and then cajoled the printer into working all night so it would be ready in time for The Canadian Press to mail it to each newspaper before the deadline.

With all the trouble the N.H.L. seems to have getting a permanent president, it wouldn't be surprising if one of the governors started a "Dorothy for President" campaign one of these days.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 400

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Stunt triers often pop up among bridge players. All at once one of them thinks he has invented something clever. When that happens, he hotfoots it to the nearest bridge table for a tryout.

Such a cunning idea hit the country a few years back. It was the shortsighted fad of opening a three bid with a weak suit of length and nothing else. Experience has shown it up as a losing practice.

The rightful use of an opening three bid (in a major suit) is with a hand that contains a re-rebiddable suit and an outside sure trick. Anything less is just too bad.

Such a hand should produce from seven or eight tricks. And it has a good foundation for a slam. Anything less is not enough. As the responses from partner must be considered.

A three bid with a long weak suit and no outside strength is a menace. For the doubtful purpose to which it is put, the resulting losses in all other respects are too big a price to pay.

Like other bad experiments, many players were enticed into using the weak three bid by famed experts. When the experts learned it was a mistake, they changed. But many followers did not.

By that time it had become a habit with many. Some did not keep up with the correction. Some, even thought it confused their partners, were too stubborn to change. And still are.

That's why some players still start an opening of three hearts with a hand like this:

♠Q 9 5
♥A Q J 9 8 7
♦8
♣Q 8 4

That heart suit is not strong enough or long enough to stand an opening three bid. Nor is there an outside sure trick to back it.

In fact, this hand doesn't even have the two sure tricks you would promise by an opening bid of one. Did you think it was an opening bid of one heart? Shame on you.

Finance Minister Sees Jobs for All Who Want Them

Toronto, Sept. 26 —(CP)— The fact that the climax of the present war is near is no reason that Canada should immediately reach the climax of her war-finance activities, Finance Minister Ilsley said here last night.

Addressing the Fourth Victory Forum sponsored by the Canadian Association of Personnel Publication Editors, Mr. Ilsley sounded the key-note of the Seventh Victory Loan campaign which opens Oct. 23 with a minimum objective of $1,300,000,000. He said "a combination of continued war expenditures and increased private expenditure hold promise of jobs for all who want them in the period after the collapse of Germany."

The end of the war against Nazism will be accompanied by inevitable cut-backs in production, releases from armed services and general employment changes, but there did not seem to be cause for alarm.

Other speakers at the forum were R. J. Dunlevy, Public Relations Advisor of the National War Finance Committee and William Rattray, president of the C.A.P.P.E.

Some Scarcities.

Despite his optimism about the prospects for post-war employment, Mr. Ilsley warned Canadians that they should not look for a general easing of controls immediately after the war. Some scarcities are bound to continue, especially of foods and various goods for consumers.

"We cannot expect the reduction in war expenditures and war production will be such as to leave room for all consumer demands to be met . . . We must continue to keep spending in check by Victory Bonds, fairly high taxation, price control and where necessary, rationing," he said.

"We cannot stop the huge war machine and turn it in a new direction overnight. There are great costs involved in stopping it or even slowing it down.

"Continued war expenditures and further Victory Loans will be rendered necessary by our participation, to which we are committed, in the Japanese war."

The first meeting of the Presto Music Club for the season of 1944-45 was held at the home of Mrs. W. S. Northcott on Monday evening.

After the business meeting a short program was given. Dr. Locke played the violin solo "Meditation from Thais" by Massenet.

Miss Gertrude Post, as guest artist, gave a short history of the Ballet and also three solo numbers, one of which was her own interpretation to music written by her cousin Miss Joan Bennett, of Toronto and formerly of Belleville. Miss Post is a student at the Volkoff School of Ballet, Toronto.

Canadian Fags Welcome Gift Letter States

Cigarettes are certainly the ideal gift for the boys over here. It actually seems to make life much brighter when one can smoke a good Canadian cigarette," wrote Pte. V. Whiteley to express his appreciation for cigarettes received through the Belleville Kinsmen Fag Fund while on active duty.

"When we are on the move and cigarettes are hard to procure it always seems the shipments of fags from home get through by mail just in the most opportune time," added Sergt. Gord Yearwood, who claims it is hard for the cigarettes to keep up with the Canadians advancing in Italy. "Canadian cigarettes are treasured by our boys," added C. J. Frawley in a letter to Chairman Buster LaBarr of the Kinsmen Fag Fund, while C. S. Robinson wrote to say it was practically impossible to obtain or purchase smokes in France, except those sent from Canada. Scores of such replies continue to be received by Chairman LaBarr urging the continuance of the flow of Canadian cigarettes to Belleville's fighting sons.

Last week the Kinsmen list of Belleville boys sent cigarettes was not published, but this week the following local boys were sent 300 cigarettes each through the Kinsmen Fag Fund:

Donald Tucker, Oshawa, Held

Oshawa, Sept. 26 (CP)—Donald Tucker, 22-year-old resident of Oshawa, was arrested at his home by police last night in connection with an incident in nearby Port Perry Friday night when an armed man handcuffed two unarmed police officers who were seeking to arrest him.

Tucker is charged with theft of an automobile, reckless driving and assaulting a police officer. A girl companion whom police said was his wife also was arrested.

The officers involved were police Chief George Holmes of Port Perry and County Constable George James. James spotted a car in Oshawa and pursued it to Port Perry at a 75-to-80-mile-and-hour clip and there took the man and woman occupying it into a home and called on Holmes for help.

When Holmes came with handcuffs, the man drew a gun, forced the officers to handcuff each other and drove away.

James and two Oshawa detectives made the arrest last night.

The War Today—

Allies Issue Call to Millions Of Foreign Laborers in Germany

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Gen. Eisenhower's call for action by organized cells among Hitler's enslaved foreign labor indicates his confidence that Allied armies will soon be in Germany in force, and gives the first official intimation that the Allies expect any real help from inside.

By every report, Germany has kept a tight hand on her imported labor. These men and women from all over Europe have been confined only to a slightly less degree than prisoners of war. They have had little opportunity to learn the country, or even to meet privately.

Eight to Twelve Million.

Out of the 8,000,000 to 12,000,000, of course, there are a great number, even though a small percentage, who have nursed the fires of vengeance, sabotaged the German war effort, and organized for V-Hour. They are closely watched, and may be able to do little until Allied armies are so near that industry would be disrupted anyway, but in the aggregate the effect may be considerable.

At any rate they may be emboldened by the knowledge that their serfdom is almost over. Eisenhower's call, and today's dimout on news from the Holland front, add to the growing feeling of several days that the big push is about on. That, too, is the meaning of repeated German counter-attacks along the Westwall, whose only purpose can be an effort to unbalance the forces we have poised for a major effort.

Kleve Reported Captured

A report from Paris that Allied forces have captured Kleve is unconfirmed, but that it is now invested would seem probable. That we would throw in everything needed to clear up the situation around Arnhem has been obvious for several days. The dimout could be due to a crisis in that sector, where the Germans have held on unexpectedly. But the Germans undoubtedly know our every move at this pinpoint. It is more likely that Eisenhower wants to cover, as far as possible, his preparations for breaking into Germany in force.

Travel Bureau Greatly Enlarged Is Advocated

Windsor, Sept. 26. (CP)—An enlarged and more adequate Canadian Government Travel Bureau with a skilled editorial division, staffed by writers who know Canada's attractions for the tourist, was suggested here yesterday by D. Leo Dolan, present chief of the Bureau. He was speaking to delegates attending the three-day National Tourist Advisory Committee Conference.

Mr. Dolan said he had a plan which would expand present services to bring Canadian attractions and a knowledge of Canada before an increasing number of prospective visitors. "The Dominion must face this duty or lose out in the highly-competitive bidding for the tourist dollar", he said.

Stating that large sums had already been spent by every state in the United States, Mexico and South American countries on tourist attractions, he said "all are out after more tourist dollars and Canada must keep its sights high".

Following discussion the committee suggested that a minimum of $750,000 be sought from the Federal government for tourist promotion. Previously the figure was set at $500,000.

Mr. Dolan said that in normal pre-war years the nation netted several times the figure set from tourist revenues.

Earlier Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche, Minister of National War Services, told the meeting he was "prepared to go along with you. You give me good proposals from this gathering and I'll do my utmost to see they are implemented".

A sub-committee was appointed to prepare a resolution setting forth ways in which it is hoped to provide employment for returned servicemen in the tourist industry.

Two Queen's Students Given Exciting Ride In Stolen Automobile

Trenton, Sept. 26. (Special.) — Picked up by two men in a car stolen in Toronto, two Queen's University students were really "taken for a ride", on Monday evening when their car was wrecked after a 75-mile-an-hour chase on the Trenton-Belleville highway.

Passing through Trenton at a fast rate of speed, the car was followed by Constable Barney McColl along the highway toward Belleville when at Bayside the stolen car crashed into the rear of a car driven by E. Moynes, 58 Cedar St., Belleville. The two men in charge of the car jumped out of the wrecked vehicle and before they could be apprehended by Constable McColl escaped through the fields. Investigation revealed the car, a 1940 Plymouth, had been stolen in Toronto.

Remaining at the scene of the wrecked vehicle the two university students were questioned by police and after satisfactorily identifying themselves gave a good description of the two men who escaped.

This morning, two men, who later it was discovered, slept in a barn in a swamp near Bayside, emerged from their hideout to the Trenton-Belleville highway, and attempted to hitchhike rides.

Police were notified and William R. Huddleston, 18, Toronto, and Richard C. McCart, 23, no fixed address, were taken into custody by Sergeant Jack Taylor of the Trenton police force and Provincial Police Constable Soubliere. They are being held in Trenton awaiting hearing.

McCart, police said, was in possession of several loose gasoline ration coupons.

By [illegible]

Laird Cregar, the husky star, used to be the doorman of a New York theatre. Looks the type, doesn't he? . . . What makes a motion picture attractive? Hollywood is sure that stars are the biggest factor. Yet the presence of Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon wasn't enough to make a real hit out of "Madame Curie" and "Flesh and Fantasy," which had a cluster of them, lagged at the box-office. Shakespeare was right, I guess—"The play's the thing." The ladies spend the most money on movies, male stars attracting more customers than the opposite sex.

The gamest fellow in the film game is Bob Hope, who does so many personal shows for worthy causes that one wonders when he has any time to make movies. Recently Hope, who just returned from the Pacific, came to Toronto to perform at Camp Borden, play in a golf game to boost the Community Welfare Chest and appear before a vast audience to spur the sale of War Savings Certificates.

Hope was in Toronto four years ago to help the Red Cross and I spent some time with him. After the show, which took place at the pier auditorium, we escaped from the pursuing crowd into a taxi. A few blocks later a small boy was standing on the pavement and signalling for a lift. Hope had the taxi pick him up.

All the way downtown Hope and the youngster chatted away. I always felt sorry about that lad. Any boy would have given his best marbles to have been there in his place. When the cab reached downtown the boy said so-long and left quickly.

"Going My Way," the Bing Crosby-Barry Fitzgerald film, cost $850,000 to make—a comparatively small amount when compared with big attractions. "Lady in the Dark," for instance cost more than $2,000,000. Yet "Going My Way" will probably be the greatest earner in film history. It has created a problem for many managers because the patrons are acting like kids — staying to see it again.

A disgusted racing fan whose horse had lagged was heard to exclaim, "That horse could run under the apple tree all day and never get out of the shade!" . . . There are more than 86,000 theatres in the world . . . When President Roosevelt was at Quebec he sent for the latest Roy Rogers film, "San Fernando Valley." The president likes Western movies and detective stories . . . Deanna Durbin, whose next is the Technicolor film, "Can't Help Singing," says she won't marry again for five years . . . Errol Flynn has written a book called—of all things—"Be Good Sweet Maid." . . . The family told her that Russ was in Europe and read letters to her supposed to be from him. Reason for the secrecy was that she had a heart complaint.

CHAPTER 6

"Why don't you pull that piece of junk aside and let the traffic move!" a masculine voice called out.

Ann, speechless with rage, stuck her head out to look back. "If you bump into me once more!" she sputtered. Then she saw who he was. And at that same instant Gretel and Rowena identified each other and began to yelp like a pair of separated orphans.

Christopher Wain lifted his hat. "What did you say?" he shouted above the canine vocal reunion, which by this time had attracted quite a crowd of spectators.

"Will you please listen to what I'm saying?" the cop bellowed in despair. "Will you get moving, lady? Will you get out of here? Will you get going?"

There was a gentle tentative bump from the rear. If bumps could convey significance, it whispered: "Go ahead or we'll land in the jug—"

With the full desire to have the last word, Ann put her coupe into reverse and let the clutch out quickly. Her hat tilted forward, Rowena kissed the windshield, and and there was a crunch of fender. "My goodness, that old rattletrap of his must be heavier than I figured," she thought. "The smash sounded like my fender, not his!" Oh, well it was too late to do anything about it. She started forward, and safely made the turn about the monument of the Civil War Hero who sighted steadily across New London's harbor, disdaining such petty contretemps as were occuring about his feet.

It was a straight road now, and Ann settled back in her seat. It occured to her to wonder how the shabby young man with the crepe-soled shoes had turned up again like a bad penny. On the whole, she was glad that he had evidently gone back to the kennels at once for Paul had seemed crestfallen that she had let a prospective customer get away. Or had he said something about Mr. Wain owing five hundred dollars on a dog? Whatever it was, Mr. Wain had presumably squared his account with the Tru-Friend Kennels, or Gretel would not at this moment have been in his possession.

"He's one of those cocksure individuals who's never wrong," she confided to Rowena. "Knows everything about everything there is to know, including danes. If that sister of yours is a better dog than you are, I'll eat my hat!"

Suddenly she noticed a car about to pass her, and pulled to the side of the road. Christopher Wain leaned across his seat. "Hey! I want to talk to you!"

A baker's truck, coming down the highway, drove him back into single file and Ann shot ahead.

When she made the abrupt cutoff toward Broadfields, he was still to her rear. She swept into the driveway and followed it across the lawns and though the orchard to the barnyard. Her heart sank.

What a change in the place during the few short months that had elapsed since her last visit! Branches littering the ground and gullied sides of the road hit her like sharp reproaches.

She stopped against a stone wall, facing across a series of pastures and paddocks. Christopher Wain's car drew up beside her.

"I want to talk to you," he said, and swung out from beneath the wheel.

"I should think it was obvious that I have no desire to talk with you," Ann said curtly, allowing Rowena to scramble across her lap toward space and open air. Gretel joined her in one great leap, and together, without so much as a by-your-leave, they started off across the orchard. There was nothing to do but watch them as they ate up distance in great lithe strides. A horse paced them along fence line and then stopped and whinnied at them. Both dogs came to a halt, and raced back to human protection that did not make strange and terrifying noises.

Then they both laughed which made it impossible to put him back in his place. "Look here," he repeated, "I want to talk to you—"

"If you want to sell a dog," she interrupted crisply, "I'm not interested."

"I don't want to sell a dog. I just want to talk to you—"

"What about?"

"I don't know," he confessed blankly.

She kept a straight face with difficulty. "Are you a professional conversationalist?"

He shook his head, started to speak, and could think of nothing to say.

"You just want to talk," she helped him along.

He nodded. "That's it," he admitted gratefully.

Ann could not understand the change in him. He was no longer cocksure, there was something rather helpless about him at this moment. She noticed suddenly the nice hollows in his cheeks.

"Are you hungry?" she asked abruptly.

He did not answer at once.

"I am," she said.

"You're what?"

"Hungry. There might be enoug food for both of us—"

The sense of New England privacy reared its head. "But I don't know these people," he objected.

"I had begun to think that little things like that didn't bother you," she chided him maliciously. "But anyway, you've been following one of these people halfway across Connecticut, so that ought to do for an introduction."

"Oh," he seemed to be reassorting his ideas. "Somehow I'd thought you were visiting friends here."

"And I was thinking," Ann began when Christopher broke in with, "If you're thinking about chaps who go chasing after every pretty girl they see, you're on the wrong track."

"If that were personal, I might take an exception, but since it isn't, I'm still hungry; so let's see what can be done about it."

"Spoken like a lawyer. Overruled, but exception allowed. I was talking about pretty girls. There might be a distinction in language."

Ann studied him for a brief instant; then moved off toward the house. "What do you know about lawyers? she asked curiously.

"Oh, I know a few of them," he said, and whistled to the pupse who raced across the lawn to his side.

"You told me you were in the dog business," she reminded him.

"I told you I had kennels," he corrected her.

"Is business so slow? Paul Freund was complaining, too."

"It's dull," he agreed soberly; "that is, if you're dependent on what you take in—"

"Then that lets me out—"

"Of what?"

"Starting anything."

"Kennels? Don't." He advised her bluntly.

"Why not?" she demanded.

"Firstly, you don't know anything about danes, and, secondly, you'd lose your — er, investment."

Her lips tightened. She felt like he sister Helen. "Perhaps you're right." she said sweetly, and fitted the key into the latch of the side door.

The house had an unlived-inchill "There's a fire in the library, and we can eat in there," she suggested.

"Fine!" Christopher said.

"Shall I go with you?"

"No, I want to talk to Tompkins anyway. Stay here with the pups, I won't be long."

Gretel lay down with a gusty sigh before the fireplace; but Rowena, possessive and alert, slipped out with Ann.

Christopher, left alone, thrust his hands into his pockets and rocked on his heels. He whistled lightly and tonelessly between pursed lips. He looked about the room. Libraries had a way of telling a lot about the people who used them. The poetry shelves caught his eyes first. The classics, Greek Anthology, Cavalier poets. The moderns were few and choice. Red blooded romanticism with a leavening of Greek sanity, he decided. There were few novels too, the mountain-tops of several centuries. Whoever brought these books together didn't believe in small talk or piffling thought," he told himself.

Then flanking the desk, he came on the law volumes. He wondered suddenly if this girl were married. She didn't look married—nor divoroed, or widowed either. His eye sought further clue to her, and found it—a short row of books by William Rivers. Of course. William Rivers, whose works on constitutional law were guide posts in that field, must be her father. And he had died several years back, leaving his daughter to manage an estate against a world of tumbling finances. Christophe Wain relaxed. Many of his questions had found their answers.

He threw another log on the fire, and with his back against the glowing warmth, stood looking through to the drawing room beyond. The house was old and beautiful, and spelled a civilised, comfortable living that was growing rare. These rooms weren't built or furnished for the hectic, meaningless kind of entertaining that went on in his own crowd. Thirty or forty people barging in at a time, some of them strangers, and hour after hour of shrill laughter, blaring music, liquor, flirtations—and eventually, satiation and disgust.

No. This was the kind of home in which a marriage could form roots and grow, the kind of a home he had wanted to have with Brenda. Instead, he had found himself in a Westchester monstrosity of brick and mortar. He hated it and Brenda loved it. Well it was hers for the taking.

"Hi!" A voice called, and there was a rattling at the door somewhere. Gretel, barking officiously, guided him to the pantry.

"My arms are full," Ann puffed as he opened the door for her. "I've got some bacon, home-cured; you've never tasted the like."

"Wonderful! Look here a second. You seem upset."

"Nothing to fuss about really," she explained. "It's our farmer. Too much drink. The horses haven't been fed, and they were left out last night in all that storm."

"And so you're going to do your own chores?"

"Yes. Tompkins has been dismissed. I gave him until we finish lunch to get off the place."

"You mean that you just up and fired him?"

"Certainly. Now — scrambled or fried?" She held two eggs poised over the pan.

"Scrambled."

Ann cracked the eggs in the pan as she went on, "This farm means a lot of work. The horses must be put in the stables and they get good warm mash and a rub-down, and there are three cows that weren't milked this morning. And then, when all of that has been done, I'll find out where I go from there, and maybe begin to look through my hats for another farmer."

"Maybe you'd better break out a couple of more eggs, I feel hungry already." Christopher tumbled a generous extra tablespoon of coffee into the pot. "I'm quite a cook in my own way," he volunteered.

"Good." She fished into her purse and drew out a checkbook and a fountain pen. "If you're such a cook in your own way, can you finish scrambling those eggs?"

HOW TO RELIEVE

PILE TORTURE

QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is natures' warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reading the paper and waiting for ma to remind him it was time to start to get ready to go around to Mr. and Mrs. Hews's house and play bridge, and he said, Another flood out West. Well fortunately it doesn't seem to be a very serious one this time he said.

Any flood is serious enough if you're right in the path of it for land sakes, ma said. If you saw your last stick and chattel being swept away before your helpless eyes, you'd think the condition was serious enough, I'm sure, she said, and pop said, I suppose that's true, and yet everything's comparative, as the chap smilingly remarked when his wooden leg caught in a bear trap. Somebody's always having worse troubles than somebody else. For instance here's a short news dispatch about an island off the coast of China being completely berried by a volcanic eruption, he said.

That's really terrible, ma said. Just because those poor people are a different color and another race, that doesn't make their suffering any less intense, she said, and pop said, It doesn't to them, that's a cinch. It does you great credit, my dear, to feel such real simpathy for the sufferings of people hundreds and even thousands of miles away, he said.

I'm afraid I'm only human, ma said. I mean most of my emotion is probably relief that my own family is safe and sound. I only hope I'll be able to bare my own tribulations with the same fortitude I show for the troubles of others, she said, and pop said, That's the point I'm coming to, my dear. After all it's a comparatively slight affliction I'm imposing on you when I tell you that I've decided to stay home and read tonight, he said.

The result being ma accused pop of making up the flood and the volcano out of his mind, and pop changed his slippers to his shoes and claimed he couldn't be arrested for trying.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 26. (AP) —Both stocks and commodities lost most of their Monday's buoyancy in today's markets as profit cashing on the swing brought a high degreee of price irregularity.

Staples turned spotty at the start and, while scattered shares continued to edge forward, many climbers of the preceding session backed into losing territory. The direction for securities was cloudy near the fourth hour.

Better performers included Bethlehem, General Motors, Hiram Walker, Sears Roebuck, Schenley, Radio Corp., and American Telephone. Among laggards were Santa Fe, U.S. Steel, Chrysler, American Can, U.S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft and Sperry.

Canadian issues generally were fractionally higher.

Consecon Couple Observes Diamond Anniversary

Consecon — Mr. and Mrs. Walter Locie, of Consecon, very quietly celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday, September 17th. Neither is enjoying the best of health at the present time, so only a very few were at the anniversary dinner which was prepared by Mrs. Locie.

Mrs. Locie, the former Ida Kenny, sister of Rev. H. B. Kenny, a former pastor of the Belleville Tabernacle Church, was married to Walter Locie in Consecon by the Methodist minister. They have been life long residents of the vicinity, he being a prominent farmer near Consecon for many years. One of his favorite pastimes was sail boat riding in the nearby waters.

About twenty years ago he retired to Consecon village after building the lovely and comfortable home on Main Street where they now reside. Mr. Locie did carpenter work in the village until his health forced him to quit about a year ago. Mr. Locie has always been very prominent in support of the United Church, having been a trustee for many years. He still carries on the duties of church treasurer. Mrs. Locie always gave of her time and work to church activities until her health made it impossible for her to continue it.

Mr. Robert Kenny, of Consecon, is a brother of Mrs. Locie, and Mrs. Will Chase, also of Consecon, a sister. Mr. Williard Locie, a brother, also resides in Consecon.

Build Four Million Homes in Britain In Next 12 Years

London, Sept. 26 (CP)—A government aim to build some 4,000,000 permanent houses in bomb-ravaged England within 12 years after the construction of homes is generally resumed was revealed today in the House of Commons.

Thomas Johnston, Secretary of State for Scotland, also announced applications were on hand meanwhile for the erection of more than 221,000 temporary houses.

Mr Johnston said the three types of emergency houses so far approved—all with standard fittings and a calculated life of at least 10 years—would consist of pre-fabricated concrete units, of light steel frames with asbestos cement walls and of prefabricated wood covered with asbestos sheeting.

Would Forbid Any Soldier Fraternizing With German Civilians

London, Sept. 26. (CP) — Lord Vansittart, who favors a sharp Allied crack-down on Germany, asked the government in the House of Lords today to follow the American example and forbid any soldier fraternization with German citizens.

He suggested the order make it clear that "we entered Germany not as friends but as conquerors bent on reducing the German nation to sufficient spiritual humiliation and military impotence to make it impossible for them to behave in the same way again".

Arguing that Allied forces would be in possession of some of Germany's great cities in a few weeks, he suggested immediate announcement of "who is going to occupy what" and who will be responsible.

The Bishop of Chichester and Lord Strabolgi disagreed with Lord Vansittart, formerly permanent under-secretary of the Foreign Office. Lord Strabolgi said photographs of Allied troops being friendly with German civilians in occupied villages shoult be dropped by the millions all over the Reich as an answer to enemy propaganda that "we are advancing to murder and rape and destroy".

Edwin R. McBride, Former Merchant, Dies in 78th Year

E. R. McBride, 139 Victoria Avenue, died in the Belleville General Hospital this morning. He was in failing health for some time.

Born in Kingston the late Edwin Rose McBride was in his 78th. year. For many years he was associated with the late J. J. Haines in the shoe business and managed the Haines store at Napanee and for a considerable time was in charge of the Haines Store here. Upon the death of Mr. Haines, he took over the business here and conducted it successfully until he retired a few years ago.

In the death of Mr. McBride the city of Belleville has lost a good citizen and one who enjoyed the high esteem of many friends. He was public spirited and gave his support to worthy causes. In the work of the Children's Aid Society he was much interested and served efficiently as president of that organization for some time. The Y.M.C.A. also received his enthusiastic support and he was a valued worker in the organization for many years. In religion Mr. McBride was a member of Bethel Hall and by his friends of the congregation and generally in the city he will be much missed.

Surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. George White, Madoc; three sons, Mr. Stewart McBride, Belleville; F/O Cyril McBride, R.C.A.F., Three Rivers, Quebec, and Sergeant Clinton McBride, R.C.A.F., Greenwood, N.S.; four brothers, Mr. John McBride, Kingston; Mr. Thomas McBride, Syracuse, N.Y.; Mr. James McBride and Mr. Charles McBride, both of Rochester, N.Y. His wife died some years ago.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church Street at Victoria Avenue, the funeral announcement will be made later.

U.S. CRACKS DOWN ON ARGENTINA

Flag Ships Must Not Stop at Argentine Ports on Return Voyages

Washington, Sept. 26 —(AP)—In a new crackdown on Argentina, the United States government has ordered American flag ships to stop calling at Argentine ports on their homebound voyages. The order is reported to become effective Oct. 1.

The move apparently was designed virtually to cut off imports from Argentina to the United States.

The action was taken by the War Shipping Administration under a directive issued by the State Department but the Department, pursuing a policy of secrecy on Argentine affairs at the moment, declined to give any immediate official comment on the report obtained from authoritative sources.

No south bound calls of American flag ships have been made at Argentine ports for more than two years. The new order forbids calls on northbound voyages of ships returning home from other Latin countries.

Apparently today's move fell short of a real embargo on exports from Argentina since there appeared to be no provision in the order that non-American ships could not carry Argentine products to this country.

LAUNDRY RECOVERED

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 26 —(AP) —A recent visitor to this city was quite perturbed, she wrote police, because her laundry had been lost here. She explained that she was the fat lady with a carnival which played in Topeka, and said, "When other people lose their clothes they can buy more, but I can't. I am nine feet around the middle and weigh close to 600 pounds." Police recovered the laundry and mailed it.

POLICE COURT

Motorists who continue to violate the parking restrictions by-laws in the downtown areas of Belleville find such infractions come rather high, especially when apprehended and hailed into court. Today seven such delinquents had their names called before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd after they had pleaded guilty and paid the minimum fine of one dollar and one dollar costs. "The parking by-laws in the busy downtown sector must be adhered to and those found in violation will have to suffer the consequences," remarked Deputy Chief Harman.

William Ruttan, 19, of Lindsay, pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining a liquor permit while under the age of 21 years. He was fined ten dollars and costs or seven days in default. As Ruttan had already served a week on remand he was allowed his liberty as having served the default term.

The name of Max Grant, city, was called to answer to a charge of assaulting one George Wallace. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan informed the court the complainant wished to withdraw the charge and had paid the costs of the proceedings.

When the name of Harry Upper was called to face a charge of second offence intoxication the accused failed to answer to his name and the matter was enlarged for a week. On a similar charge R. Sagar, Belleville, paid $53, including costs.

Fines of $5 and costs were collected from M. L. Parson, Mrs. D. Colden and Joseph Foster, all of whom pleaded guilty to charges of careless driving prior to the opening of the day's proceedings. Five inebriates paid the conventional ten and costs drunk fine.

CORRESPONDENT SAFE

London, Sept. 26—(CP)—Edmund Townshend, Daily Telegraph war correspondent reported missing from an air-borne operation over Holland last week, is safe in Brussels and has joined British 2nd Army troops. HOMELESS RABBITS GIVEN HOME

Toronto, Sept. 26 —(CP)— Four homeless rabbits have been given a home by a Toronto family. Their nest was hit by a lawn mower which killed their brother and scared their mother away from home. The day-old rabbits have progressed favorably under a diet served by eye-dropper, eight times a day.

282 Red Planes Drop 300 Tons Food to Poles

Moscow, Sept. 26 (AP)—The Union of Polish Patriots announced today that 282 Soviet planes dropped 300 tons of food and a large amount of cartridges and hand grenades Sept. 13-14 to Poles fighting within Warsaw.

Gen. Bor, commander of the Polish Partisan forces, acknowledged last week the receipt of airborne supplies from Russia.

British and American bombers also have dropped supplies to the underground army.

STRUCK BY TRAIN

Toronto, Sept. 26 — (CP) — Mrs. Emma Wilson, 26, of Toronto, mother of two children, was killed last night when struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train as she walked along the right of way with her father, Frank Smith.

Warsaw's Patriot's Name Is Now Revealed

London, Sept. 26 —(CP)— The real name of Warsaw's patriot "General Bor" was disclosed today to be Lt.-Gen. Tadeusz Zomorowski 48, who became commander of the underground army in the summer of 1943 when the Gestapo caught its former chief.

The Polish forces press bureau said Zomorowski helped defend Warsaw in 1939. After the collapse of Poland he vanished and organized underground forces around Krakow.

Mistakes in Life

Some mistakes men make in handling their personal affairs are often tragic since life cannot be lived over again. Here are situations which need never occur—

—A widow left with a crushing financial burden

—Sons and daughters forced to quit school to help support their mother

—A father totally disabled with no income

—Old people without money

The cost? It's surprisingly small. Even if funds are limited, you need not go without the protection you should have. For instance, $10,000 insurance which includes a total disability benefit of $50 a month, costs only $113.30 a year—15 Year Earning Power Term plan, age 30, with the privilege of changing within ten years to a permanent plan.

CANADIAN TROOPS ARRIVE IN AUSTRALIA

ALLIED AIRBORNE TROOPS LAND IN ALBANIA

Vanguard Pacific Army Greeted By High Commissioner

Predicted Canadian Navy And RCAF Would See Action

Melbourne, Sept. 27. (CP Cable)—The first contingent of Canadian troops to land in Australia, a party of nine officers and 63 other ranks, arrived here today.

Hon. T. C. Davis, Canadian High Commissioner, welcomed the troops and hinted they were the vanguard of a Canadian Pacific Army.

The present small force of Canadians consists of instructional and maintenance experts who will be concerned with the use by the Australian army of Canadian-made equipment.

It was apparent that shortly there would be only one theatre of war—the Pacific, Mr. Davis said. "I do not know what form our contribution will take, but we have a great navy and quite likely it shortly will see action in the Pacific", he said.

"We have the fourth largest air force among the Allied nations and I expect that this fury too will be turned against the Japs.

First Canadian Force.

"I do not know what the precise role of the army will be, but you have the distinction of being the first force of Canadian soldiers to set foot on Australian soil. You will find yourselves very much at home here and learn to love this country and admire its people as I have done".

Australia only escaped invasion by a miracle, Mr. Davis added, and nothing would have given the people of Canada more pleasure than to have sent substantial aid to Australia at that time, but the Allied chiefs of staff arranged for Canadians to remain mostly in the European theatre until Hitler had been defeated.

Arrival of the troops followed announcement last August at Ottawa that between 400 and 500 officers and men—mainly technical personnel—would be attached to the Indian and Australian armies.

They followed an advance guard of twenty officers—attached to Australian, New Zealand and United States forces—sent to the Pacific to study jungle and amphibious warfare. They left Canada early this year and have been in action on several occasions.

Confidential Reports Given.

When the advance guard left Canada there was speculation they would prepare a program for possible active participation by military formations. Confidential reports from these officers have already been received by the Canadian government, but whether or not these reports had anything to do with the dispatch of the new contingent—all general servicemen—was not known.

In sending special troops ahead, the Canadian army is following a practice it instituted as a preliminary to participation in the Mediterranean campaign when a handful of soldiers was sent to North Africa to observe British and American forces at work. They were followed by larger contingents until the Canadian forces were built up to a division and finally a corps.

It was not known whether the new contingent would serve as self-contained units attached to Indian and Australian armies or whether they would be dispersed among various formations. The latter suggestion was considered most likely.

Canada's full part in the Southwest Pacific war is understood to have been blue-printed at the Churchill-Roosevelt conference at Quebec. No announcement has been made yet, but it is understood that Canada's defence ministers—Defence Minister Ralston, Air Minister Power and Naval Minister Macdonald—made definite offers on the size of forces they could send to the Pacific when Germany is beaten.

When that time comes, it is believed Canada will put into the Pacific theatre a corps, composed, perhaps, of two or three divisions.

The R.C.A.F. and Canadian navy also have taken steps leading to active participation in the Pacific. An air mission, led by Air Vice-Marshal L. F. Stevenson, is in southeast Asia, presumably studying the possibility of switching Canadian air power to that area.

AIRBORNE ARMY WITHDRAWN FROM ARNHEM SALIENT

Fought 9-Day Lone Battle for Cross-Rhine Foothold—Withdrawn to S. Bank

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Sept. 27.— (AP) — Britain's lost division — all that remained of it after nine days lone battle for a cross-Rhine foothold at Arnhem—was withdrawn Monday night to the south bank of the river.

How few or how many of the battered and bloody British First Airborne Division got out was not disclosed. Its wounded had to be held behind to become prisoners. Its living had written a new epic of heroism in the records of British arms.

The loss of the tenuous north bank foothold, that might have opened a way for a flanking sweep around the north end of the Siegfried Line was one of the first times since the invasion that the Allies have had to yield a key position.

It was yielded this time not through any lack of battle tenacity nor sacrifice of the hard-fighting British first airborne, but because the "Red Devils" were forced to hold out alone—without reinforcements or more than a trickle of supplies— longer than an airborne division is equipped to fight.

Field Marshal Montgomery's land drive north through Eindhoven was delayed too long in winning the Nijmegen bridge to reach Arnhem while the paratroops still held the bridge there.

Counter-attacks into which the Germans hurled some of their toughest S.S. divisions pushed the paratroops back into woods west of the town.

Then miserable weather prevented the normal strengthening of the pocket by airborne reinforcements and heavier arms. One Polish reinforcement drop was attempted—but the Polish troops landed on the wrong side of the Rhine.

Much about the withdrawal, which had been cloaked under a 48-hour censorship ban on news at the request of Field Marshal Montgomery, remained to be explained.

The British public waited anxiously—for word of how many were killed, how many wounded and left behind, how many got back to the strength of their lines south of the river.

The normal strength of a British paratroop division is 9,000 men. The Germans, in declaring the division annihilated, claimed 6,400 were captured and 1,500 killed.

There was no immediate explanation why, when the withdrawal was made Monday night, a news ban on the grounds of security was necessary until tonight. Presumably it was to allow time for a last few survivors to get clear.

How they crossed the river at all was not disclosed.

British Drives Widen Corridor

RUSSIAN ARMIES TURN FULL WEIGHT AGAINST LATVIA

Three Directional Drive Overruns More Than 300 Communities In One Day

ESTONIA LIBERATED

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

Moscow, Sept. 27 (AP) — The Russian northern armies turned virtually their full weight today upon the German garrisons in Latvia, aiming their strength at Riga, its capital, in a three-directional drive that overran more than 300 communities in one day.

For all practical purposes neighboring Estonia to the north already was liberated.

A communique last night said Red army troops captured 200 places yesterday in clearing up Estonia's west coast. Few Germans now remain on Estonian soil except those on the fortress islands offshore.

New Pressure on Hungary.

On the southern end of the eastern front the Russians appeared to be concentrating new pressure on Hungary. Although nothing was said officially concerning Hungary there seemed reason to believe the combined Russian and Romanian armies are battering at its borders and may already have crossed.

(The Paris radio quoted Istanbul diplomatic circles as saying it was believed "only a question of hours" before Hungary, weakening under the increasing pressure, appeals to the Allies through Turkey for an Armistice.)

But it was at Riga the Germans had been placed in the most obvious peril. The Nazis were fighting desperate rear-guard actions around the port as Red armies closed in from three directions—some six miles away on the south, 37 on the east, and 45 on the northeast.

Hold Narrow Corridor.

The Germans still hold a narrow corridor from Riga along the Baltic coast to East Prussia, but it was under constant Russian air attack.

The enemy appeared to be pulling back into Riga—either for a last-ditch stand or to attempt an evacuation by sea.

Along the Polish-Czechoslovakian border, where heavy fighting is in progress, the Russians battered their way through deep fortifications and seized Turka, 12 miles from the frontier. Nine other communities in that mountainous region also fell.

Reach Meuse River At Points Along 40-Mile Front

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 27 — (AP)—British and Belgian divisions moving a wall of men and armor eastward in a build-up of the invasion of Holland have reached the Meuse River at points along a 40-mile front, and battled today within three miles of Germany.

Eastward and westward drives carried 10 miles or deeper on both sides of the corridor carved to Nijmegen, and from there on a thinner line to Arnhem. They widened the Allied push to split Holland, and won another supply road northward.

May Lift Blackout Soon

Official silence still hid the fate of the British airborne division in the Arnhem area across the Neder Rhine but it was indicated the news blackout there might be lifted soon.

The German High Command asserted the pocket of crack sky troops had been wiped out completely. Berlin said 1,500 Britons were killed and 6,450 captured, 1,700 of them wounded.

South of this bitter battlefield the wedge into Holland had been broadened by the British 2nd Army.

British forces struck eastward through mediocre resistance to Boxmeer, 13 miles southeast of Nijmegen and 13 miles southwest of Kleve.

They were along the Meuse for five miles from Boxmeer south to Groningen, and three miles from the German border.

Eight Miles from Kleve

This thrust was south of the double-pointed British-American push into Germany which had carried within eight miles or less of Kleve, northern anchor of the Siegfried Line.

Some 30 miles farther south along the Maas, Belgian troops reached the west bank of the river on a 10-mile front between Wessem and Dilsen, within sight of Germany. The Allies were closing up toward Maas from the Boxmeer to Wessen areas for a solid front.

In westward pushes, British units shoved out 10 miles to the town of Oss, 16 miles southwest of Nijmegen.

Farther south, a British formation drove west from Eindhoven and linked with the right flank of the 1st Canadian Army near Arendonck, forming a solid assault line through Turnhout to Antwerp.

American air freighters carried reinforcements and supplies into Holland yesterday. Berlin reported fresh British airborne landings yesterday southeast of Nijmegen and near Veghel.

6,000 TONS BOMBS DROPPED ON SIX CITIES IN 24 HRS.

Karlsruhe, Frankfurt Bear Brunt of Strong Force Which Sets Many Fires

DAYLIGHT RAIDS

London, Sept. 27 —(CP)— More than 1,100 American heavy bombers attacked railroad yards and industrial plants at Kassel, Ludwigshafen, Cologne and Mainz, all in western Germany.

The big U. S. bombers struck out in the third straight day of heavy attacks on German communications and war plants behind the western front.

The Germans had been using Karlsruhe as a supply and reinforcement centre for the southern end of the western front. A reconnaissance pilot saw smoke 8,000 feet above the city.

Frankfurt, a Prussian industrial city of 547,000, is a meeting point of a net of railroads and the home of several large chemical plants. Specific night targets there were not named.

4,000 Planes in Action.

More than 4,000 Allied planes were in action over the continent yesterday, counting fighters and fighter-bombers. Ten American and four British bombers were lost.

While none of the bombers was challenged in the sky, German fighters tangled with American fighters and at least 44 German planes were destroyed. R.A.F. fighters based in France destroyed another 15 over Holland. A lone Junkers-88 bomber was knocked down off the English coast.

A strong force of British Lancasters and Halifaxes set fires at the inland German port of Karlsruhe, and at Frankfurt last night in attacks costing two bombers. Karlsruhe is on the Rhine 100 miles beyond Metz for which Americans are fighting. Frankfurt is about the same distance from Luxembourg and both cities are supply centres for the embattled German armies.

It was estimated that 6,000 tons of explosives plummeted on six German centres during the last 24 hours.

CANADIAN TROOPS HAMMER CLOSER TOWARD CALAIS

Overrun Heavily - Fortified Perimeter Defences on Two Sides of City

1,100 PRISONERS TAKEN

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Cp War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army, France, Sept. 27 — (CP Cable) — Canadian infantry hammered closer toward the outskirts of Calais and across its inundated western approaches today as the little channel port still smouldered from the second straight day of heavy R.A.F. bombing and prepared for more.

The Canadians have already overrun the most heavily-fortified perimeter defences to the west and southwest of Calais, taking more than 1,000 prisoners.

The Germans still hold tough fortifications near the coast within a mile of the town, but elsewhere have been withdrawing behind flooded flats and a canal line.

Strengthen Bridgehead

On the 1st Canadian Army front south of Antwerp, British forces hold the town of Turnhout and have strengthened their bridgehead across the Antwerp-Turnhout canal in the area of St. Leonard.

Canadian troops in the Antwerp area have been sweeping up and down the south bank of the 25-mile waterway which joins the Escaut Canal near the eastern outskirts of Antwerp after giving up a bridgehead against which the Germans counter-attacked in strength.

(Another front dispatch said today Canadian forces were across the canal "in considerable strength.")

The Nazis still have forces north of Antwerp, particularly around the factory area of Merxem across the Escaut which opens into the Antwerp dock area. This dock area now is in Canadian hands.

Attack Strongpoints

Except for strongpoints around the area of Les Baraques and Fort Lapin near the coast west of the entrance to the port of Calais, the Germans have been driven out of nearly all their major positions guarding the town from the west and southwest.

Western infantry today were attacking coastal strongpoints as other western troops scrambled forward toward the water barriers around Calais itself.

BRITISH EXTEND ALL BRIDGEHEADS ACROSS RUBICON

Some Units Fight Way Into Outskirts of Bellaria Says Communique

GERMANS COUNTER

Rome, Sept. 27 — (CP) — The British 8th Army has extended its bridgeheads across the Rubicon, one-time boundary between Rome and her ancient Empire, running through the southeastern edge of the Po Valley, and elements have fought their way into the outskirts of Bellaria, nearly eight miles northwest of Rimini on the Ravenna road.

Meantime a strong German counter-attack in which, an official report said, the enemy "expanded liberally his personnel," drove American forces of the Allied 5th Army from part of the Monte La Fine Hill Mass, 20 miles south of Bologna.

Reports last night said Canadian infantry and tanks of the 8th Army had driven forward six miles beyond Rimini along the Adriatic coast to take Bordonchio, next large coastal town north of the fallen Gothic Line anchor.

They broke through the main body of the German 1st Parachute Division after extremely heavy barrage in which the enemy was believed to have suffered serious casualties.

Take Many Prisoners

On their left, British and Indian units of the 8th crossed the Rubicon at several points southwest of San Arcangelo, taking many prisoners and seizing Palazzuola, eight miles east of Firenzuola, and Marradi, four miles farther east.

British units occupied San Beneditto, 23 miles south of Imola.

Northwest of Firenzuola, the Americans cracked enemy resistance and seized Monte Beni, 22 airline miles due south of Bologna. They also won the south slopes of nearby Monte Freddi. Casellaccia, 2½ miles southwest of Monte Freddi, was taken.

Northeast of Firenzuola the 5th Army captured Monte Acuto and Monte Pratolungo, connected by a trunk highway which passes through the mountains to Imola in the Po Valley 15 miles away.

On the 5th Army right flank, British forces captured Bsconi, 21 miles southwest of Forli on highway 67. Other British columns were slowed by increased resistance.

1½ Years Needed for Japan's Defeat After Germany's Fall

Washington, Sept. 27 — (AP) — The job of crushing Japan is expected to require an "absolute minimum of 1½ to two years after defeat of Germany, the United States Office of War Information said today in a summary of war agencies' data.

Indeed, the psychological effect of an end to the European war is apt to favor the Japanese rather than the Allies, O.W.I. said, figuring it this way:

"For the United States, defeat of Germany will mean that a halfway point has been reached in the global war, and will bring extensive changes in the war economy, which might induce a let-down in effort and morale.

"To the Japanese, the end of the war with Germany will mean that Japan's war with the United Nations is just beginning. It might well heighten Japan's determination and fighting spirit."

Factors which may enable Japan to prolong the war were said to include the ability of Japan to increase her production of "almost every category of war equipment and military supplies." On the other hand, O.W.I. related, Japan has "failed to capitalize" thus far on her conquests, limiting war production to capacity of the Japs' pre-war industrial plants.

Geography Factor

Geography is another factor fighting on the side of Tokyo, O.W.I. said, adding that before Allied might can be brought to bear it must be based within striking distance of Japan's homeland. To this end, the B-29 Superfortress raids, while possible now only at periods of 10 days or more, were called a "definite advance."

The agency pointed out that tremendous shipping problems must be solved before a major invasion can be launched against Japan, and added it may be several months before shipping to be transferred from the Atlantic can be made effective in the Pacific.

Listing Japan's manpower situation on the asset side of the Tokyo ledger, O.W.I. estimated there now are 4,000,000 men in the enemy army. In addition, there are approximately 2,000,000 available and fit for military service who have not been called up, and about 1,500,000 in the 17-20 age group not yet subject to the draft.

Production Will Count

Turning to advantages of the Allies, O.W.I. pointed out that the United States alone produces 8,000 combat planes a month, compared to Japan's estimated production of 1,400 or 1,500 planes a month.

Pacific commanders, it said, assert that Japan has lost the power "for a strategic offensive beyond the range of her land-based planes." The agency added, however, that the possibility of sporadic raids on the west coast of North America has not been eliminated.

Greeks Resent Announced Plan

London, Sept. 27 (CP)—A Greek government spokesman said today his people would resent the newly-announced UNRRA plan for increased aid to Italy while Greece, the victim of Italian aggression, still was suffering deeply.

He asserted that Greeks feel their country had suffered most of all among the European Allies and had the right to claim the greatest aid from the United Nations.

Relief of not more than $50,000,000 to Italy was approved in a resolution adopted by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in Montreal Tuesday.

Bevin Warns Against Flu in London If Bombed-Out People Not Housed

London, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Unless living accommodations can be provided for thousands of bombed out Londoners, the city, will be threatened with an influenza epidemic this winter which may work "even greater devastation than the war," Labor Minister Bevin said today.

He told builders and repair men "the health of London is in your hands" and said rebuilding of the metropolis ranked as a military operation.

More than 900,000 London houses have been damaged, creating a problem to find living quarters even for the army of repair workers needed to rebuild them.

Used To Harass Nazi Withdrawal From the Balkans

Other Units Landed by Sea Operating on Wide Front

Rome, Sept. 27. (AP)—Allied sea and airborne troops have landed in Albania and on islands off Yugoslavia, the Allied command announced today, in operations to block German detachments fleeing from the Balkans toward the Reich.

"Land forces of the Adriatic" already were operating on a wide front in the Adriatic area of Albania, as a Balkan air force communique said.

Number Not Given.

No indication was given of the size of the units involved. Evidently the purpose was to provide still another facet to the many-sided squeeze on Germans in southeastern Europe.

The Allied naval command said that Royal Naval landing craft, supported by destroyers and light coastal vessels, had been operating since Sept. 15 among the Southern Dalmatian Islands off Yugoslavia, carrying Allied troops and partisans who were striking at German withdrawal routes.

The Allied command's announcement said land operations thus far included destruction of the German garrison at Himara, in Albania. The operation made use of the Albanian coastal road so precarious for the Germans that "the enemy was forced to send supplies to other garrisons by small sea-going craft", the announcement said.

German Forces Massing.

Generally, in the past, Adriatic land force operations have been of a commando type, involving relatively small numbers of troops.

The Germans have been reported massing along the Greek frontiers of Yugoslavia and Albania, preparatory to a trek back toward Germany. Those who have crossed the borders have been attacked by the partisans.

The Allied naval command said Royal Navy landing craft, supported by destroyers and light coastal craft, have been operating among the Southern Dalmatian Islands since Sept. 16, carrying Allied troops and partisans.

Allied naval coastal units operating in the Aegean Sea drove a small enemy ship ashore on the Island of Melos. In that region Allied naval forces have been waging a determined campaign to break up enemy efforts to evacuate their garrisons from the Aegean Islands.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force announced five of eight bridges carrying rail traffic across the Danube between Budapest and Belgrade have been made impassable. Four were cut by American bombers, the statement said. Partisans apparently knocked out the fifth.

Germans Admit Landing.

London, Sept. 27 (AP)—A German Transocean agency dispatch broadcast by Berlin reported Allied landings today "from Albania along the whole Dalmatian coast to the north."

In another broadcast, D.N.B. said: "Strong naval and air forces attacked the island groups off the Dalmation coast "on a broad front" and fighting was still going on. The Associated Press recorded the broadcasts.

D.N.B. quoted Berlin military circles as expressing the view that the "action in the Adriatic area doubtless means a landing attempt of the German Allies.

The broadcasts made no mention of airborne operations previously announced from Allied headquarters in Italy.

Early Increase In Liquor Ration For Ont. Forecast

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Possibility of an early increase in the liquor ration in Ontario was forecast Tuesday night by Attorney-General Blackwell.

Speaking to a Progressive Conservative meeting, he said the government had realized last April 1 that unless the ration was cut, Ontario liquor stocks would be sold out and all liquor stores closed "by about Christmas," and for that reason the monthly ration per permit holder was set at 13 ounces.

The 13-ounce ration was planned for the warm months "from June to autumn" to permit accumulation of stocks so that "we would go back to 26 ounces for the balance of the year."

He said he was not prepared to announce the date of the increase "but stocks were being studied closely with this in mind."

WARREN GANNON HAD RANK OF CORPORAL

Reported last week as killed in action in Italy, the rank of Warren Gannon, Coleman Street, was that of a corporal and not as private as was published in the Ontario Intelligencer on Saturday. INJURED BAT FOUND ON FRONT ST. SIDEWALK

Feminine pedestrians stepped mincingly around a small living object on the Front Street sidewalk this morning and were just a bit more shy in passing when a closer inspection revealed it to be a bat which was apparently injured to the extent that it could not use its wings. Just where the nocturnal winged mammal came from at mid-morning is not known but he did cause a small flurry of excitement until the manager of a shoe store gathered him up in a box and took him away.

DAY OF ATONEMENT OBSERVED BY JEWS

Members of the Jewish community here today are observing Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. This is regarded as the most solemn day of the year. It is the day of fasting and prayer, from sunset on the eve of Yom Kippur until the beginning of the night of the following day.

On this day every Jew petitions God for forgiveness so that he may begin his life anew for the coming year. During the day Memorial services, (Haskorath Neshomoth) are held in memory of loved ones who have passed on.

PELICAN SEEN NORTH OF NAPANEE

Although this story may be discounted by many, Russell Brown, a farmer in the Moscow area north of Napanee, firmly contends he saw a pelican on the shores of Mud Lake near his home recently. Mr. Brown insists it was no optical illusion or overgrown domestic water fowl.

It must be granted that seeing a pelican in this area of country would be something of a novelty, except perhaps in a circus or carnival. The usual habitation of this fish-eating bird is much further south in latitude. However, Mr. Brown insists his eyesight is perfect, so it just could be the bird is a fugitive from a passing carnival show menagerie.

FLT.-SGT. A. WELCH REPORTED MISSING

An official cablegram brought the news today to relatives that Flight Sergeant Arnold Welch, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Welch, McDonald Avenue, is missing after enemy operations on September second.

Flt. Sergt. Welch joined the Royal Canadian Air Force two years ago and did considerable training in Canada before going overseas in 1943. He is a former student of Prince of Wales School and the Collegiate Institute. He is a brother of F.O. H. Welch, D.F.M.

Mischievous Boys At Street Corners Cause Disturbance

Disturbances caused by mischievous boys kept city police busy on Tuesday evening, when organised gangs of teen-aged lads persisted in causing general annoyance to the community.

At the community Tourist Camp, complaints were received, that a number of juveniles were amusing themselves by throwing stones at the Grace Chapel building at the corner of Albert and East Dundas Sts. The names of the boys were obtained by police and further action was promised.

On numerous occasions this past summer residents and pedestrians alike have complained to police regarding the boisterous actions of a group of boys on Victoria Ave., near Front St. At times pedestrians are forced to move into the street in order to gain passage as this gang of teen-aged boys not only make themselves a general nuisance, but cause obstructions to the walking public. Last night police had to be called to disperse such a group and although several of the lads escaped detection the names of four were taken and recorded at the police station. Police officials today asserted the culprits would be severely dealt with in court and the continuance of such practice would be more seriously dealt with.

Traffic Officer Chas. Siple apprehended Andrew Sharrow, of Hoganville, N.Y., on Highway No. 2 west of Shannonville late last night on a charge of intoxication. Complaints that a man had been fighting with his wife along the highway lead to the arrest. When police arrived, however, all parties had disappeared, except Sharrow, who was found walking alone on the highway. He was held.

Stirling Mother Receives Letters Of Condolence

Stirling (Special)—The following is a letter received by Mrs. Stoneburgh who lost her only son Alvin on active service in Italy:

Dear Mrs. Stoneburgh: I really do not know how to begin this letter as I have some very bad news for you,

It is with very deep regret that I inform you that your son Pte. Alvin J. Stoneburgh was "killed in action" on Aug. 26. Words cannot express my feeling in the loss of your son, Mrs. Stoneburgh.

On the afternoon of Aug. 26 our regiment was very near the enemy lines. Along with several boys from the regiment, Alvin was resting by a house situated near a church on top of a hill. A shell landed nearby and Alvin was hit and killed instantly.

I have known Alvin for a long time, Mrs. Stoneburgh, having worked with him for several years, while in the army. As orderly room sergeant I was very close to Alvin and loved him like a brother. It is rather hard to believe he is gone. He was one of the first boys to join the Intelligence section of the regiment. His loss is a severe shock to the regiment and to the boys he worked with. He was loved by all. I know it will give you some comfort to know that your son Alvin died while serving his country.

Alvin was buried by our Padre H.-Capt. Goforth. He was given a lovely burial. Later I presume his body will be removed to a Canadian cemetery.

My thoughts and prayers are with you all at this sad moment and should you require any further information please call upon me. I shall be more than glad to help, if I can. Please do not hesitate to ask, I remain,

Yours very truly,
Sgt. Ashley Kirkey.

Second Letter

Sept. ... 1944.

Dear Mrs. Stoneburgh:, By the time you receive this letter, you will no doubt have heard from official sources, that Alvin was killed in action.

As his officer I wish to extend to you my deepest sympathy. I have known and worked with Alvin for several years and we will find it very difficult to replace him. He was of great assistance to me, as his steady efficiency, was one of the factors which helped to keep the section together, under adverse conditions.

Alvin was buried by the Unit Padre and many of his friends attended the service. His grave is clearly marked with a white cross, and eventually he will be removed to the Canadian cemetery in Italy.

Once again may I extend to you, from the section, and myself, our heartfelt sympathy.

Sincerely,
J. W. Hornbey, Lt.

Belle Theatre Being Redecorated By Belgian Artist

With the soft blendings of sky blue and rose forming the chief decorative motif, the Belle Theatre will shortly emerge from its former Spanish style of interior decoration into a new modernistic and colorful garb.

Under the skilled fingers of Rene DeVos well-known Belgian scenic artist and decorator of Toronto, and his staff, the theatre interior is undergoing a complete transformation.

Centre ceiling panels are done in a buff surrounded with sky blue. Blending softly are rose colored walls and relief plaster in ivory and gold. A white scroll design stands out on the upper part of the walls. The lower part is done in a reddish rust shade.

The projection room will operate in a setting of olive green. The lobby will be done in a modernistic design with glazed walls of four intershading colors. Rest rooms will be decorated in the same style.

The orchestra pit will get a new autumn garb, in color designs, while the theatre organ will gleam in a new coat of white.

Mr. George Forhan has installed new modern Super Simplex projection machines, equipped with Peerless Magcar lamps.

Mr. DeVos studied in the Academy of Art, in Brussels, for two years prior to coming to Canada in 1927. He has three brothers in Belgium from whom he has not heard since the war. He decorated the interior of the Belle Theatre fifteen years ago.

Work is expected to be completed within the next two days. Matinees have been stopped temporarily to facilitate the work, but evening shows are held nightly.

Reinforcements Flown In.

Both sides rushed in reinforcements as the Netherlands battle flamed to new intensity. The Allies sent gliders towed by C-47 transport planes to the corridor.

The transports were the first Allied supply planes to land in the Netherlands, coming down in a grassy pasture within sight of the smoke of battle and disgorging jeeps, men and weapons.

Previously the supplying and reinforcing of the corridor had been done by gliders or by parachuting men and material.

Advices from the front said the Germans still were pouring tanks and heavy guns into the battle as they fought the Allied attempt to break around the northern end of the Siegfried Line and into Germany's industrial Ruhr.

Nazi military police were reputed halting every beaten German unit in southern Holland. These units were reorganized at collection centres, given an added stiffening of some S.S. Panzer Grenadiers and sent back into the line.

Alternate Road Opened.

The alternate supply route to Nijmegen was opened by British armor striking along the west side of the corridor. In this operation the Nazis were knocked out of Oss, 10 miles west of Grave, and from Heesch, eight miles north of Veghel.

Twenty-eight miles southeast of Eindhoven Belgian forces of the British 2nd army were driving toward the German frontier east of the Belgian border town of Maaseik (Maeseyck) on the Maas.

Over 1,000,000 Foe Casualties.

It was estimated that total German casualties since June 6 in troops killed, captured, badly wounded or hopelessly cut off now amounted to more than 1,000,000—more than twice the enemy force now believed to be lined up along Germany's western frontier.

Credit for successes achieved by the Allied 1st airborne army in Holland was given to the men at Arnhem by the London Daily Express, which said:

"Whatever happens, their stand will not have been in vain. If it had not been made it is certain we should not have captured the vital bridge over the lower Rhine (the Waal) at Nijmegen, because the Germans would have sent the troops and Panzers they used at Arnhem to hold us off there."

Black and White Holstein Show Feature Attraction Of Stirling Fair Tuesday

125 Cattle Exhibited by Holstein Breeders of the Quinte District

SPLENDID EXHIBITS

Stirling, Sept. 27 (Special) — Threatening skies, which spilled a few drops of rain during the morning hours failed to dampen the enthusiasm of patrons and visitors at Stirling fair on Tuesday, when some of the best Hostein stock in the Bay of Quinte district was featured at the annual Black and White Day, now the fair's major attraction. With eight district Holstein breeders showing, there was a total entry of 125 cattle in the Black and White show.

True the threat of rain possibly kept away a considerable number of district farmers, who would otherwise have attended the fair, but those who went were more than repaid for the time spent as they viewed the large showing of livestock and inside exhibits and enjoyed the fine card of running and carriage races. Included among the attractions was a drawing contest which attracted a throng of interested spectators.

Fine Showing of Produce.

One of the features of the inside exhibits, which saw a fine showing of seasonal fall grains and vegetables, was the Red Cross exhibits of the Stirling and Rawdon Red Cross branches. Here all manner of sewing and fancy work was the object of interest on the part of women attendants at the fair. The horticultural exhibit was another object of interest while there was also an interesting junior section for school children and a good display of home cooking and preserves.

A well-patronized midway featuring the ever-popular "merry-go-round," proved an attraction for members of the younger generation, while adding to the enjoyment of the afternoon were musical numbers by "Danny Boy" Smith of Belleville and the Trent Valley Ramblers.

6,000 TONS BOMBS

Many heavy bombers and swarms of lesser planes crossed the channel on this third successive day of concentrated aerial attack.

Karlsruhe apparently bore the brunt of last night's assaults the Air Ministry reporting the city was hit by "a strong force" of Lancasters which left large fires from which smoke rose to a great height.

Two Planes Lost.

Two planes were lost in the overnight raids and one German plane was shot down off the British southeast coast.

First reports from British coastal observers indicated that the daylight raids today were being carried out in great strength.

Later The Associated Press listening post reported German radio programs interrupted with the announcement that enemy aircraft were over western and southwestern Germany.

Italian-based R.A.F. bombers attacked a 1,500-foot railroad viaduct near Borovnica, Yugoslavia, 40 miles northeast of Trieste, in the Balkan bridge-wrecking campaign.

The span is on the main Vienna-Trieste route. Partisans had destroyed 600 feet of the viaduct but the Germans managed to repair it and reopen the line.

U. S. medium bombers knocked out six Po valley bridges behind the German lines including a 1,250-foot railway bridge at Ostigli, 40 miles north of Bologna, that city's last traffic link to the north.

DOCTOR FOUND NEGLIGENT

Windsor, Sept. 27 —(CP)— A coroner's jury inquiring into the death of 11-year-old Lawrence Mayes from hydrophobia Sept. 2 found that Senator Gustave LaCasse, Medical Officer of Health for Sandwich East, neglected to take proper steps to locate the rabid dog which bit the boy or to inform the proper authorities.

The jury said further that Dr. LaCasse showed "a certain amount of neglect" by "not administering preventive treatment for rabies when the unknown dog could not be found within 14 days after occurrence of the bite."

Project at Roblin Lake Outlined To Kiwanis Club

An initial outlay of $8,000 by the Kiwanis Club on the Roblin Lake property acquired through deed of gift by Kiwanian George Wallbridge will make that property in Ameliasburg Township one of the finest Boys' and Girls' health centres in the entire province, members were informed by William Watson, architect and landscape artist, at their weekly luncheon at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. Lorne McDougall, chairman of the committee, was in the chair, the president and other members being at the district convention at Quebec. Harold Carruthers led the community singing and Fred Lewis collected the fines. Leo. B. Riggs presided at the piano.

Aubrey Coe reported on the activities of the Ki-Y softball league stating 200 boys under the age of eighteen participated. They were under direct supervision at all times and the total cost to the club was $35, which the speaker said was a worthwhile investment. Jack White reported on the calf project stating that the club now had 26 pure bred calves and 11 grade calves but the committee was undecided whether the animals would be sold this fall or next spring. Mr. White explained that the cattle were worth a lot of money and the committee was using its best judgment in the matter. He thanked the farmers who so kindly donated the calves and had given such fine co-operation. The chicken bingo for the club will be run the two days preceding Thanksgiving Day.

The speaker was introduced by Mark Vanner and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Jack White. Mr. Watson stated that the project could be worked into a most beautiful spot for the use of children through the summer months. He explained what repairs had to be made in the immediate future to insure the use of the camp next summer. He stated the house was of the finest architecture with cut stone chimneys. He thought the stone shed should be demolished and on the foundation a banquet hall be built. He told of the mechanical equipment, plumbing, sewage disposal that was needed and also the amount of work required to fix up the outside grounds.

The speaker stated the barn required a great deal of repair but could be used for a playhouse in the rainy season. Sixteen acres of fields will be sufficient for an excellent baseball diamond, softball diamonds, volley ball courts, tennis courts and other forms of amusements, while the lake itself will provide abundance of swimming, diving and water sports. It is the intention of the club to build a number of punts for use next summer at the camp. A number of questions were asked by the members at the conclusion of the address. J. J. Morch, who is chairman of the furnishing committee, stated he would be unable to assist much in committee work due to pressure of business but donated $100 for furnishing that will be required. The property will be surveyed by an Ontario Land Surveyor and the correct boundary lines of the property defined.

Statement Said Made By Accused Man Allowed in Evidence

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 27. (CP)—A statement police said was given to them by Douglas Alfred Dunsmoor and saying he started a fire in the Moose Hall last May 23 was admitted in evidence by Mr. Justice J. A. Hope today at Dunsmoor's trial on a charge of murder. He is charged in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Martin, 33, one of the ten persons who lost their lives as a result of the fire.

"I went into the meeting hall and through the door that leads to a cloakroom at the rear of the hall", the statement said in part. "In this cloakroom I saw a piece of burlap covering something. I had no idea what was underneath. I bent down and struck a match and put it to the burlap and it started to flame. I walked out of the door into the small hall. I think I closed the door behind me and I walked out of the building".

The statement said Dunsmoor walked around the block and back to the building.

"When I walked back I heard screams and realized what I had done. A man in an auto said there was a fire in the hall which I already knew".

When he reached the hall, police and fire departments were already there and he started to help with the injured people on the lawn.

"After I saw the condition of the people, I realized what a terrible thing I had done", said the statement telling how he went for a drink of water at a nearby apartment and how "I got sick at the smell of burning clothes, or whatever the smell was". He remembered nothing further until he recovered consciousness at the hospital from where his father took him home the next day.

The statement by the 26-year-old former employee of the Royal Oak Dairy, whose employees were having a dance party in the hall the night of the fire was the subject of keen debate between opposing counsel.

Objects to Admission.

Defence Counsel E. D. Hickey objected to admission of the statement. He argued that it was unusual the two Hamilton detectives who said it had been given to them by Dunsmoor—Ernest Barrett and Sam McGee—were able to give such definite evidence on the statement given in the police station but had not recalled anything that might have been said in the police car while they were taking Dunsmoor to the station.

Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch argued that there was no evidence of fear or prejudice or hope of advantage being held out to Dunsmoor in taking statements from him.

Mr. Justice Hope agreed with the Crown Attorney, saying the statements were taken by experienced and able officers and "I think they were entirely voluntary."

The statements had been given to the court last night with the jury excluded and then were entered in evidence this morning, with Barret on the witness stand.

He said that statements were taken from 50 persons after the fire, one from Dunsmoor on June 1. Further inquiries were made into Dunsmoor's previous places of employment and he was asked to come back to the police station.

Statement of Officer

"I said to him, 'Doug, we've been checking on statements and previous places of employment and we find in checking on you that at some of the places there have been mysterious fires'.

"He said 'For instance, what, Mr. Barrett'?

"I said at Hill's Bakery, Brown's Bread, Brown's stables on the mountain, at Trinity United Church, at Semmens and Evel and at the Moose Hall.

"The accused said: 'I plead guilty to them all with the exception of Semmens and Evel. I want to make a clean breast of it all'."

The detective said he had warned Dunsmoor that he was charged with arson and possibly other charges and that Dunsmoor gave a voluntary statement.

Read to Court

The statement was read to the court. In it Dunsmoor said he had six glasses of beer before going to the Moose Hall dance May 23 and at the hall he and another man shared two small bottles of brandy with acquaintances in the basement. The statement told of further drinking during the evening and told of setting the burlap on fire about 11:45 p. m.

"I make this statement voluntarily and it is true," the concluding paragraph said.

Barrett testified that Dunsmoor had produced a newspaper photo taken at the fire and had circled a face, which he identified as his. Later, said the detective, accused told him he had been treated by police "better than I deserve." He had said there was nothing but the truth in the statement and it could not be altered because truth could not be altered.

He had also told Barrett: "The consequence of this fire that took 10 lives and left children parentless never occurred to me when I started this fire."

Responsibilities of UNRRA for Aid Clearly Defined

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, Sept. 27 — (CP)—The world's greatest joint humanitarian project, launched by 44 nations and associated nations—the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration — set out today armed with fresh authority and clarified aims as a result of the 10-day council meeting concluded here.

Its director-general, Herbert M. Lehman, told the closing plenary session late yesterday that the administration now was down out of the skies and its responsibilities for aiding the needy people of war ravaged lands clearly defined.

He expressed the hope that the administration would never be placed in the position of seeking aid from any of the member governments.

The second council meeting of U.N.R.R.A. closed with many speeches in praise of L. B. Pearson, Canadian minister to Washington who was elected council chairman.

Praise also was given his alternate members on the council, Brooke Claxton, Member of Parliament for the Montreal riding of St. Lawrence-St. George and parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister King.

Representatives Heard

Representatives of many nations, prominent and obscure, spoke at the closing session but Russia was silent as it has been during most of the meeting.

The first meeting of the council was held in Atlantic City last November immediately after the representatives of the 44 nations had affixed their signatures to the U.N.R.R.A. declaration at Washington.

This was the second meeting — the constitution calls for two each year — and it is expected that the next meeting will be held abroad. Mr. Lehman, in his closing speech, said he hoped it would be one of the liberated countries.

Mr. Pearson said UNRRA offered a great example of co-operation to the world, and warned that if it failed there could be little hope for world organization for peace.

Richard K. Law, head of the United Kingdom delegation, observed that stress here had been laid upon European relief but he said that was because the need there was more urgent.

He expressed the hope that no one would lose sight of the fact that UNRRA has the same responsibility to the war ravaged peoples of the Far East, and would discharge that responsibility.

Tsingfu Tsiang, Chinese delegate, said his country realized, and all others should that those countries which were described as "contributing countries," were not giving up their surplus but were taxing themselves heavily, and going short in order to share with more unfortunate people.

JACK STEWART SUSTAINS WOUNDS IN FRANCE

According to official communication from Ottawa word was received here recently announcing that Pte. Jack Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stewart, No. 5 Pine Street, had been wounded while serving in France.

The information stated Jack had sustained shoulder wounds as the result of being struck by bomb fragments during a German bombing of the Canadian front lines. Pte. Stewart is convalescing in an Allied hospital in France. He was with the Canadian armoured corps when injured.

SOFT FOR PUPILS

St. Paul, Sept. 27. (AP)—Rural School teachers in Minnesota cannot require pupils to sweep floors, carry water or coal or build fires. Attorney-General J. A. A. Burnquist has so ruled in an opinion formulated at the request of Dean M. Schweickhard, State Commissioner of Education. Furthermore, the ruling said, a teacher has no right to send a pupil on an errand of private business without the pupil's consent.

U.S. Bivouacs On Both Sides of Line East of Eupen

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
(CP War Correspondent)

On the German Frontier, Sept. 27—(CP Cable)—The Siegfried line in the region east of Eupen is an imposing array of pill-boxes, concrete tank obstacles and deep anti-tank pits. It stretches as far as the eye can see and on both sides of the line there are the bivouacs of American soldiers who have taken over from the supermen.

Through a dark pine forest we drove for two miles along the line. The road to Germany was muddy and treacherous and Lieut. Dave Campbell of Hamilton, Ont., could not prevent the jeep from skidding into a big tree as we slowly rounded a corner.

Anything can happen up here. During a halt before reaching Eupen, a town of German-speaking Belgians near the frontier, we met an English woman from Sheffield and her Belgian husband. At her home she brewed a pot of blackmarket tea and then played the piano as her husband played sentimental songs on the violin.

Near Dolhain, where the German frontier ran before 1918, we began to hear German spoken in the streets. Belgian flags flew in Dolhain but there were only two or three in Eupen, and a member of the resistence movement said 80 per cent of the population of Eupen were Nazi sympathizers.

Belgium merges into Germany inconspicuously and even after entering the formidable fortifications of the Siegfried line you would hardly know you were in a different county. The only clues are signs in German above the shops and the absence of Belgian flags. There are few people in the streets and the odd ones you see are surly.

R.C.A.F. Fighters Destroy Hun Craft

An Advanced R.C.A.F. Airfield in Belgium, Sept. 27 — (CP Cable) — R.C.A.F. fighter pilots, meeting their first opposition in many weeks, destroyed 10 German aircraft over the Arnhem-Nijmegen battle area of Holland Monday and according to field reports from Reuter News Agency added another eight yesterday.

The Germans put more than 100 fighters and fighter-bombers into the air Monday in a vain attempt to knock out the important Rhine bridges in the British 2nd Army's salient. With local superiority in numbers they showed willingness to fight.

But the Canadian airmen, eager for action after a long period of uneventful patrols, tore into the enemy formations and outfought them.

The victories were scored by wings flying from Belgian airfields. Six aircraft were shot down by pilots under command of Group Capt. W. R. MacBrien of Ottawa, while squadrons of the wing commanded by Wing Cmdr. Dal Russel, D.S.O., D.F.C. and Bar, of Westmount, destroyed and damaged two more.

Among the airmen of Russel's squadron, Flt. Lt. G. W. Johnson, D.F.C., of Hamilton, Ont., knocked down two ME109s and damaged another. Flt. Lt. Russ Bouskill of Toronto destroyed an FW190 and damaged an ME109 and Flt. Lt. Don Laubman destroyed an ME109. The victories were Johnson's eighth, Bouskill's fourth and Laubman's sixth.

Preliminary R.C.A.F. reports gave the City of Oshawa squadron credit for two of yesterday's victories and for a third plane which was damaged.

Flt. Lt. John McGill of Waterdown, Ont., near Hamilton also shot down a FW190 in the Arnhem area.

No Superforts Lost in Raid On Manchuria

Washington, Sept. 27 — (AP) — The "large force" of B-29 Super-Fortresses which struck targets in Manchuria and occupied China yesterday returned to Chinese bases without loss of a single plane, the War Department reported today.

In addition to the previously-reported blow against industrial installations at Anshan in Manchuria and against the dock areas at Dairen, the 20th Bomber Command said the aerial giants also hit military targets at Loyang and Haifeng in occupied China.

Results of the Manchuria blows "were not conclusively known since the bombing was accomplished chiefly through a heavy cloudcover," a communique said, adding, however, that crews returning from Loyang and Kaifeng reported 'good' results.

Enemy aircraft fire was weak and fighter opposition light, the bulletin said.

Japanese broadcasts had claimed 13 planes had been downed.

The Berlin radio said today that Superfortresses had been launched against the Bonin island of Iwo Jima Monday. A Transocean agency dispatch, datelined Tokyo, asserted eight of 30 Superfortresses which attacked Iwo Jima had been damaged by Japanese defences. There was no American announcement that B-29s had been used in such an operation.

The War Today—

Crux of Pacific Situation Appears To Be in China

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
Substituting For Dewitt Mackenzie.
(Associated Press War Analyst.)

The United States government has chosen today, when Allied spirits are lower than at any time since heavy bombing failed to break the Germans at Cassino, to tell us that we will be fighting through all of next year and into 1946.

It is just as well that way. The situation with regard to Japan has been obvious. But now, rather than when the Allies are over-running Germany, is a much better time to emphasize that the end of the war in Europe will merely give us a chance to hitch up our pants and spit on our hands.

In passing, and while awaiting the end of the news blockade regarding Holland, it is worth noting that the battle of Arnhem may be, temporarily, overplayed in its relation to the whole western front. Word that the British 2nd army is swinging eastward toward Germany may mean that the Arnhem situation is decided and that we must get on with the invasion of Germany, leaving the city to be enveloped as other Allied forces clear the enemy from western Holland.

Crux of Situation in China.

But to get back to Japan. It is a coincidence that today's O.W.I. report should come immediately after a new operation by the B-29s, of which the Allies are so proud.

At present the crux of the situation seems to lie in China, where lack of supplies, lack of political unity and inept and sometimes even corrupt military leadership, have permitted an exceedingly dangerous situation to develop. As a fighting force, despite the individual willingness of her millions, China is almost impotent.

As a prospective base from which Allied forces could clear the Japanese from the mainland and envelop his home islands, she is rapidly being overrun. Only a relatively narrow strip of coast remains toward which the Allies may operate, and that by way of fortress Formosa. The much—touted Ledo road, a narrow often-washed-out military track, is but another eye-dropper in the supply situation. There is no slightest present indication that our leaders expect any help from Russia.

British Penetrate Behind Japanese Base at Tiddim

Kandy, Ceylon, Sept. 27. (CP)—Allied headquarters disclosed today that its troops were operating in the area of Fort White in Western Burma, indicating that a force had penetrated behind the Japanese base at Tiddim.

Fort White is 12 miles southeast of Tiddim, the base from which the Japanese launched their ill-fated drive into India several months ago.

It is believed likely that Tiddim is undefended, with the Japanese continuing their withdrawal to a mountain fighting line in the Kennedy Peak-Fort White area.

PROFITABLE FOX HUNTING

Simcoe Sept. 27, (CP)—Richard Harding, who works on a farm in the nearby Port Dover district, finds fox hunting a profitable hobby. Less than a month ago he shot his fourth fox of the season and collected a $20 bounty for each from the Township of Woodhouse. The date for the bounty was schedueld to end August 31, but the Woodhouse Council decided to make it effective for another month and Harding promptly went out and shot three more foxes for another $20.

Pink Elephant Proves Real Enough to Hubby

Hollywood Sept. 27 —(AP)— Eugene Joseff's friends were helping him celebrate his 26th birthday when in walked a pink elephant 15 feet high. Convinced he might not live to be 27, Joseff was about to take the pledge while diving through a window, but friends got him to read the tag around the neck of the real, live pachyderm, which had been sprayed pink. It read: "Birthday greetings from your wife."

KIDDING THE REICHSWEHR

With the 8th Army on the Adriatic, Sept. 27 —(AP)— Hitler has supplied most of his divisions with political officers who are trying to raise slumping morale by advising troops in Italy that "the loss of France makes very little difference," and that they will soon be eating ice cream in south Italy.

SKUNK ROUTS SOLDIERS

Wallaceburg, Sept. 27. (CP)— A sleeping denizen of the wilds put a group of members of a company of the 2nd Battalion of the Kent Regiment to hasty flight the other night. The company was on outdoor manoeuvres with one platoon on the defence and other attacking. The attack was going well until Private Bill Joyce of the attackers flushed a skunk from its resting place. The skunk turned on the attackers.

The Rubicon Crossing

Twenty centuries divide from today the stirring event which took place at the River Rubicon in 49 B.C. when Caius Julius Caesar crossed the Rubicon, a little stream dividing Italy and Cisalpine Gaul, where he had been warring against various tribes, to battle in Italy with Pompey who was the leader of the senatorial party at Rome. The crossing of this river came in time to bear a deep significance and later a symbolic meaning. Caesar in time became the dictator of Rome, the founder of the Roman imperial line of Caesars and his name lives today in the German word Kaiser, the Russian word Czar and also in the title of the British Monarch, the Kaiser-i-Hind or Emperor of India. The decision of Caesar to cross the Rubicon from Gaul into Italy meant war with the Senate.

The crossing of the Rubicon by the British and also by the Canadians in September 1944 means victory in another sense. It is seen as leading to the destruction of the German army in north Italy. Destruction of German armies would have delighted Romans of old and Italians of later days who have had enough tragic experiences with German marauders.

It happens that the leader of the Allies at the Rubicon is Alexander, which was also the name of the brilliant young military leader and ruler of three centuries before the day of Caesar and whom Caesar greatly admired, Alexander known as "the Great." Caesar could not have hoped for a better coincidence by one bearing the same name as the young king conqueror of Macedon, who was his idol.

General Wilson's message to the troops on the crossing was expressed the hope that this event "will lead, as with a famous commander in the past, to a decisive victory."

Canadians are proud that Canadians took part in the crossing of the Rubicon with the Huns retreating before them. Canada like the other Allied nations crossed the Rubicon in this war to demolish the agents of aggression and to bring liberty to all Italy, and freedom-loving states, and the world at large. That is the great goal, the supreme victory at which Canadians and all the Allies aim.

A Hitler Rumor

There is a story going around that Hitler may plan escape from Germany in a submarine along with vast riches of golden store to pay his expenses. His U-boats have had so checkered a career and have suffered such heavy losses that it might seem incredible that the neurotic Fuehrer would ever think of so precarious a route out of Germany and it would seem the very last device he would think of. If he left in a U-boat there would be good hunting for some one. Then as to the gold he would not need much of that to pay his way into Davy Jones' locker.

It might not be so easy to plan an escape now. In the time of war Hitler has never dared to leave Germany, having to content himself within his orbit and that of Mussolini and to meet the former Duce mostly in the Alpine area. There was a day generations ago when it was not difficult to lose one's self on a continent but today with automobiles, airplanes, submarines, wireless, sub-chasers and what-not, the way of the fugitive is not so attractive. If he tried to escape the whole course of his life might suddenly change. If by any means he should manage to get out of the prison which Germany will soon be for such men he would find it unlikely that anyone would want to harbor so monstrous and notorious a figure.

The German Wail

The world has missed that unspeakable condition which the Germans threatened upon mankind, a Nazified world, thanks to the courage and steadfastness of the Allied peoples, many of whom have gone through an aeon of horrors for liberty's sake. Only those who know what a hell on earth Nazism has been in their overrun lands can describe something of what the world would have been like had Hitlerism forced its way upon mankind. It would have been something likely even more horrible than the Nazi occupation of overrun territories.

Now there has been some talk of what to do with Germany. The Morgenthau suggestions have started a howl of protest from the German radio. Of course it was propagandists who were doing the speaking on the Berlin radio and one of them said that "Morgenthau is outdoing Clemenceau" and raised a wail of horror at the suggestion of occupation by the Allies.

Well, Germany will be occupied by the Allies for their troops are now on German soil in places and Germany cannot hold out against the weight of the retributive forces which have tracked the German wolf to his lair. The weight of Allied armies pressing from three wide fronts against the Germans will assure that there will be a grand march into Berlin. The enemy that entered Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, and many other capitals and threatened to continue until all nations and all capitals fell before them, can protest little at the time the United Nations armies march into the German capital—there to do justice, not to do what the Germans did in the capitals they invaded, dethrone justice and elevate tyranny and aggression.

Howling will be a part of the German propaganda machinery while the invasion and conquest of Germany proceeds. They will protest to the heavens but their protests have the Nazi ring to them. The enemy propagandists of course plan that their wails will be possibly effective in diminishing the severity of the just sentences that will be passed upon Germany. But Germany that threw robot bombs at Britain from launching platforms and from planes should keep their howls and wails unheard for justice is going to be done, justice that will satisfy the United Nations and the spirit of free humanity. That justice is, that Germany will not have the chance to rise again as an outlaw against the peace of the world. That will be part of the justice that will be imposed on Germany.

12,000,000 U. S. Boy Scouts

(Detroit Free Press)

At an observance in Chicago, a twelve-year-old Wisconsin farm lad named Preston Ellsworth Koentop was the central figure in a memorable ceremony. It signified that young Preston was the 12,000,000th American youth to enter the ranks of the Boy Scouts of America.

Here, indeed, is a figure to ponder. Twelve million is the equivalent. It is a measurable sum. It is, therefore, different from the achievements, the good works, the better citizenship and Americanism which 34 years of American Scouting have produced. For these are beyond any measure.

Place it for contrast alongside the terrible betrayal of the young in the Nazis' Hitler Youth and in the Japs' universal dedication of the young male to the "ideal" of dying for the emperor!

The goal of the Scouts is as everlastingly opposite to all that as anything could be. It is one of the movement's chief glories that it trains for better life and cultivation of all the decencies and the dignity of man.

For such valid and durable reasons the Boy Scouts of America are moving forward to greater accomplishments.

No More Runs?

(Christian Science Monitor, Boston)

Whoever still thinks it is a man's world hasn't read about the new process discovered by a chemical laboratory which impregnates stocking fibres with a plastic that resists heat, water, and most chemicals—and, best of all, does away forever with that bane of womankind—the run in the stocking.

Office managers can now let the wooden chairs for the stenographers grow rough along the edge with a clear conscience. Girls can wind a carefree leg around the old bentwood again. They can bend a careless knee to dust under the davenport without a worry. They can play with the kitten and smile when somebody cries, "Look out, he'll catch your stocking!"

What a free world it is going to be for women!

JUST FOLKS

THE JOYOUS SIDE

Against all change there still can be
The joy of company for tea
And rest, for one and all who tire,
In chairs before a blazing fire.

Who sums the woes of life should tell
Its many pleasantries as well.
Is not a birthday cake aglow
Worth living through a year to know?

And is it not a pleasant thing,
Grown old, to hear young voices sing,
And stand beside a little bed
At eve while prayers are being said?

Oh, there are loss and pain and strife,
And heavy burdens all through life,
And tasks we have no wish to do,
But there are countless blessings, too!

HAITI OR SANTO DOMINGO

There is a difference of opinion what the West Indian island comprising the countries of Haiti and the Dominican Republic should be called.

Some years ago the Pan American Union said it should be Santo Domingo, while the U. S. Geographic Board favored Haiti.

"Haiti," meaning highlands or mountainous country, was the name applied to the island or part of by the natives when Columbus landed there in 1492. Some authorities, however, suppose that the word was merely a local name for the western part of the island. They say that the natives on the eastern side called their country "Quisqueya," meaning "mother of the earth." For that reason, they argue, it was never correct to call the entire island Haiti.

Columbus called it "Espagnola," which was Latinized into "Hispaniola" and which signifies "Little Spain." When the French obtained possession of part of the island they named their colony "Saint Dominique." In 1795 the French obtained the rest of the island from Spain by treaty and "Saint Domingue" was then applied to the whole island.

But when the Negroes drove out the French in 1804 and declared independence they revived the aboriginal name Haiti. Shortly after this the Spaniards reestablished themselves in the eastern part of the island and retained the French name modified to Santo Domingo. In 1821 they lost control, and from 1822 to 1843 the entire island was under one government—the Republic of Haiti.

It was in 1844 that the eastern part declared itself independent of Haiti and set up the present Dominican Republic. Owing to the long controversy over the name some authorities favor calling the island "Haiti-San Domingo" or returning to the early Spanish "Hispaniola."

Haiti, whose Negro inhabitants speak French, comprises about one-third of the island, while the Dominican Republic, whose inhabitants speak Spanish, comprises the other two-thirds.

Wild Life In Town

One marvels at the ability of our small furred and feathered friends to adopt their simple lives to the mechanized civilization of a great city. Their adaptability is most apparent at feeding time, writes Hig in a Chicago Tribune column.

Portly-bosomed pigeons strut their stuff before vending machines on "L" platforms, foraging for fumbled peanuts or encouraging riders to share their penny purchases.

Red-waisted robins, heads cocked knowingly hop around while janitors sprinkle their two-by-four, concrete-hedged-in lawns. The wetting down operation simplifies the problem of worm excavating.

All Winter long the little hobo squirrel clambers up the tapestry brick wall of our apartment as easily as though it were the trunk of a tree, to scratch at our window for walnut handouts. He doesn't abuse a good thing, however, because we never see him during the Summer months.

But the strangest practice of all is that of a flock of sparrows perched high on a telephone pole near a bus station. The sparrows sense the exact instant of arrival of the next out-of-town bus. Before the road behemoth rumbles to a stop they swoop down in a feathered cloud upon windshield and radiator grill. Unmindful of the noise and confusion of the bus station, they dine luxuriously on the insects which have been collected and dissected from all over the countryside.

Resourceful little friends!

Money Won't Buy This Little Wolf

(Written for The Canadian Press by MRS. W. E. KEETCH)

Bruce Mines, Ont, (CP) — Most people try to keep the wolf from their door, but not the Norman E. Robinson family of this pioneer copper-mining town on the north shore of Lake Huron. They not only open the door to the scratching of Gyp, their pet wolf, but they give her all the comforts of home.

Gyp was one of a litter of seven wolf pups found last April on Geo. White's nearby farm. Mr. White collected the Ontario government bounty on the other six but Gyp was given to Mr. Robinson who wanted her for a family pet.

Three days old when adopted, Gyp now is domesticated and affectionate. She follows the Robinson children, obeys their calls and whistles, rules the houses and bosses the family cat. She claims the most comfortable chairs in the house and leaves the Robinson family in no doubt that she considers it her personal and private property.

Raised in her earlier days on a milk and sugar mixture, Gyp has a more advanced appetite now with a special fondness for cheese and cookies and likes field mice, bugs and frogs. But she won't eat any raw meet offered by her owners. She may have to change her views of this subject if she ever decides to take leave of domestic life and answer the call of the wild.

Freedom isn't denied Gyp and she responds readily to a whistle or call. Only once did she fail to respond to that and then Chuck Robinson—a budding Harry James—gave out a few notes on his trumpet that brought her on the run.

Gyp is as playful as any pup. She chases the family cats, chews cloth, paper and shoes and has a particular fondness for silk stockings—although she isn't the only wolf with an eye for them.

Mr. Robinson says there isn't a more affectionate animal than a wolf and he'll probably spend the rest of his life arguing in defence of that statement. When chastised Gyp is never content until she is forgiven. When she is hurt she will cry like a baby. But training is difficult. Kindness and patience may be factors in handling a dog but to a wolf a clout is a caress.

She gets along perfectly with the family dog and they sometimes sleep snuggled up together.

Money can't buy this little pet. Already the Robinsons have refused an offer from a Massachusetts wolf and bear farm. They're going to keep her, unpenned and untied, until she decides herself she wants to live the life of her kind.

4 Prisoners Foiled In Plot to Escape From Welland Jail

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, said today a report had been received yesterday from the Sheriff of Welland County that four prisoners had attempted to escape from the county jail at Welland.

The attempt was made Sunday afternoon when the four men assaulted a guard only to find that he had no keys which would let them out of the jail.

Mr. Neelands said the sheriff was instructed to make a report on the incident and to consult with the Crown Attorney of Welland County about laying "appropriate charges."

DOES CHOCOLATE CAUSE PIMPLES?

I have a lot of blackheads and pimples. I am 15 years old. I use only the finest cold cream and a little lipstick. Our doctor says I will not get my skin clear of this trouble until I stop eating chocolate. He calls it acne something or other. Please tell me what to do.

(Miss W. J.)

First, Wanita—hey, what's wrong about that name, shouldn't it be spelled Juanita?—first, I remember how much I suffered from a lot of blackheads and pimples—acne vulgaris—when I was your age and so I have deep sympathy for any youngster so afflicted, and especially a girl.

When I was young the quack doctors were going great guns in their unrestricted ballyhoo. So, being young and credulous and enlightened only with public school physiology—which was pretty sad stuff, I assumed that the "skin eruptions" on which the quacks held forth so frightfully included syphilis and simple blackheads and pimples as well. Thank heavens we were so poor that it was out of the question for me to consult the quack who was making the most noise at the time.

Then, too, the vicious superstition which the gossips of that epoch propagated with great relish, and which is still resurrected on occasion, I infer from the letters young people write, was another kick in the teeth for the kid with acne. That was the belief or suggestion that blackheads and pimples implied not only impurity of the blood but moral impurity too.

Of course only any individual of the lowest grade of intelligence entertains or utters any such thought today. The truth is that acne vulgaris, excessively oily or greasy skin, blackheads and pimples may be regarded as virtually a normal, physiological manifestation of youth—perhaps too rapid development of sebaceous glands in the skin for a year or two.

Now about chocolate. Many physicians perhaps some authors of textbooks on Dermatology (diseases of skin) mention chocolate among the innumerable causes or contributing factors of acne. Remember, now, I'm no specialist and what I don't know about the human hide and its diseases or blemishes fills many tomes and several epitomes, but Wanita asks my opinion and this is it. I do not believe chocolate in itself is responsible for any such skin trouble, but in a later talk I'll try to explain that what generally goes with chocolate flavor is, in my judgment, a sure enough cause of blackheads and pimples.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Trench Mouth

I live in hotels and eat in restaurants wherever I find them — which, I suppose makes trench mouth a dire possibility, if not other infections, especially in war time. Can you suggest any mouthwash which would be of any value in preventing trench mouth, sore throats, colds?

(Mrs. S. M.)

Answer—Frequent use of solution of boric acid, especially after eating, as mouthwash, may be of value in that way. Prepare your own solution by dissolving one-third to one-half teaspoonful boric acid powder in half glassful of water — enough to last a day.

Split Hairs

Daughter, 34, had beautiful hair, but in the last two years it has seemed to lose its natural life, the ends split and no amount of attention will keep it looking nice.. Her health doesn't seem so good either, altho apart from bearing three children in seven years there seems to be no special trouble.

(Mrs. H. D.)

Answer—Poor condition of hair, nails and skin is often due to nutritional deficiency, particularly B-complex and D deficiency. Send stamped envelope bearing your address (or daughter's) for pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks", which tells how to correct such deficiency. If you would like also the pamphlet "Care of the Hair and Control of Dandruff" inclose ten cents and ask for it—do not send a clipping.

Recurrence of Hernia

Have had two hernia operations, but my hernia came back a few weeks afterward. I am told there is now a non-surgical method of curing hernia, and would like to know what it is, what it costs and how successful it may be. (H. J. K.)

Answer—Hernia (rupture, breach) recurs after radical operation in from 10 to 25 percent of cases. Recurrence rate after ambulant (injection) treatment is certainly not greater, perhaps lower. For pamphlet on Hernia send stamped self addressed envelope — no clipping, please.

Honey Production May Be Down 40 P.C. By Hot, Dry Weather

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Hot and dry weather which shrivelled up clover blooms is held responsible for an expected 40 per cent drop in Ontario's honey production this year. Thomas H. Shield, of the Ontario Honey Producers Co-operative Ltd., said the province's crop will probably not exceed 12 million pounds as compared with last year's 19,212,000 pounds.

CALF WITH "V" ON SHOULDER

Williamstown, Ont., Sept. 26 —(CP)—A calf born on Otto Schleissner's farm near here has a distinct V on its left shoulder. Otto thought it would be nice to send a photo of it to Winston Churchill while he was at Quebec. A few days ago, Otto received a letter from Mr. Churchill's secretary expressing appreciation.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

(By The Canadian Press)

With the R.C.A.F. in France, (CP)—In a 1,000-year-old chateau from which William the Conqueror is reputed to have planned his invasion of Britain, the first Malcolm Club on French soil was officially opened by Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary of state for air.

Present at the inauguration ceremony were the Deputy Supreme Commander, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Lieut.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, commanding the U.S. Strategic Air Forces in Europe, Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, A.O.C., A.E.A.F., Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham, A.O.C., 2nd. T.A.F., and Lady Tedder, who conceived the Malcolm Club idea and who directs the organization.

When the village in which the chateau stands fell to the 2nd. Army troops, the grey stone building was derelict. During the occupation, German troops had been billeted there. It has been completely renovated by an R.A.F. airfield construction company.

The club is directed by Flt. Lt. Duff, an R.A.F. welfare officer assisted by a Canadian in the R.A.F., Flt. Lt. R. E. Maggs of Montreal, who looks after the financial side of the enterprise.

Two veteran Spitfires of the RCAF "Red Indian" squadron, with approximately 300 flying hours behind them, are soon to be retired. One is "S" for Sugar, flown by Flt. Lt. B. T. Gilmour of St. Thomas, Ont., and Olso by FO. John Hamm of Saskatoon. The other is "X" for X-ray, piloted by Flt. Lt. Roger C. Wilson of Toronto.

"For the first time in my life I think it's safe to call him "Junior," said Flt. Lt. James Beatty, St. Catharines, Ont., (30 Cherry St.) "He won't mind because it's all in fun; you see I'm only five minutes older than he."

Beatty was talking about his 21-year-old twin brother, FO. William Beatty, who also flies a Typhoon fighter-bomber from this advanced Normandy airfield. James is a flight commander in the City of Ottawa "Beaver" squadron. William joined the City of Montreal "Wildcat" squadron a few weeks ago.

Australia's Spitfire squadron of the 2nd. Tactical Air Force destroyed at least 15 enemy aircraft in two months after D-Day, and made enemy mechanised transport their particular target choice. During July alone the unit destroyed, damaged or probably destroyed 158 vehicles, including tanks and armored cars.

First Australian pilot to land in France after D-Day was Keith Daff, of Moorabbin, Victoria, who had engine trouble while patrolling the beachhead.

There are moments when Sqdn. Ldr. D. A. Brewster, Chief technical officer, must think he's back teaching school at Fernie, B.C. Three of his former students at Fernie High School also are serving at his airfield. They are: FO. Dean Washburn and two fitters, Cpl. William Blackie and LAC. K. Burt.

Spying Out the Spies In Occupied Holland

Two unusual underground newspapers carry information concerning Nazi Gestapo agents to members of the Netherlands Underground. Distributed by a sharply restricted circle, these sheets differ sharply from the rest of the underground press in the "Keep this to yourself — reprint prohibited" injunction which they carry. They have helped patriots keep tab on their most dangerous enemy.

(From Netherlands News)

The greatest enemy of Holland's underground is beyond a vestige of doubt, the Gestapo. At every turn of the road someone of the "Geheime Staats Polizei," is sure to be watching; every "suspicious" act, every word thoughtlessly uttered may cost the lives of many patriots, or even destroy a complete underground group.

Who are these informers, these men and women working for the Gestapo? It would be naive to think that since it concerns a German institution, only Germans are used for the hunt on Dutch patriots. That would, indeed, make the recognition of Gestapo spies too simple a matter.

The enemy knows better than that; and so he employs by preference creatures of Dutch nationality cowed into betraying and selling their compatriots, with or without adequate remuneration.

These spies take on an almost endless variety of disguises; in the Gestapo spy school they have been taught to employ a maximum of cunningness which — they know — is of far more value to them than daring. Gross callousness has replaced the subtle "code of honor" which before the advent of Nazism was prevalent in political espionage. No longer is strength of character a prerequisite for this nefarious, insidious work.

By preference the Nazis choose people with weak, vacillating natures who, either for personal gains or driven by stark fear, are made to carry out orders which the "honest" informer of olden times would have refused to obey. It is largely a matter of intimidation. The annals of the Netherlands underground are filled with stories concerning acts of betrayal carried out by people who under normal circumstances would be too mild to "harm a fly."

The tactics which the Nazis follow to make such weaklings carry out the most obnoxious tasks, are—like all Nazi tactics—based upon a primitive principle. Nothing is easier than to provoke emotionally unstable men or women into some minor act of resistance, punishable by the all-embracing Nazi laws and decrees.

Once such people have been arrested, have listened to the menaces of some ruthless bully and know that their lives are henceforth dependent upon his whims, they will—practically without exception—turn into obedient slaves, and harm their fellowmen without limits as long as they can save their own wretched existence.

More difficult to "convert" are the genuine underground workers who have been caught red-handed. They are placed before the choice of heavy punishment or turning informer. Many are brave and suffer; others surrender to the enemy.

• •

It is easy enough to condemn such people — from a safe distance. The stuff human beings are made of varies greatly in its composition.

Very few of us would prove to be strong and unbreakable when on the torture rack of the Nazi inquisitors—alone, far from the admiring plaudits of an audience. Having one's nails pulled out or feeling the burning end of a cigarette pushed into ones' eyes, tends to make cowards of most people.

To the Dutch underground these Gestapo helpers have been a far greater peril than the wiliness of the professional spy, or the arrogant craftiness of the typical German "bloodhound." While protection against the two latter groups is comparatively simple, it is more difficult to recognize the first. Under the disguise of "illegal workers" these men and women have tried to win the confidence of true patriots—only to betray them at the earliest possible moment.

Of course, any underground movement will do the utmost to protect itself against newcomers, no matter how glibly they might express their abhorrence of the Nazi doctrines, and no matter how detailed are their descriptions of humiliation and agonies suffered at the enemy's hands. Every new arrival will be treated with suspicion — even if he endeavours to allay this by carrying out dangerous acts of sabotage under the very eyes of his co-workers.

But it is practically impossible to extend this suspicion to the inner underground circles, to members who have previously given ample proof of their loyalty but who, after having been caught by the Gestapo, return to the secret movement in an entirely new role — that of informer. To safeguard against such betrayals is much more difficult.

And yet, protection there must be or the activities of the underground would be doomed to wholesale failure. The first measure is, of course, a close examination of every underground worker and his expulsion whenever there is the slightest doubt as to his loyalty. But next to this the underground must be warned against those who try to penetrate into the hidden haunts of the secret movements.

To that purpose there appeared in October, 1943, two new underground papers, the "Signalementenblad" (Gazette of Personal Descriptions) and "Contra-signaal" (Countersignal). While most illegal news sheets do all they can to attain as wide as possible a distribution, urging their readers to pass on the material to others, these new pappers asked the restricted circles among which they were distributed not to communicate the contents to anyone else. "Keep this to yourself; reprint prohibited," the recipients were warned.

The purpose of both papers is to publish at regular intervals the names and personal descriptions and a summary of the activities of Gestapo spies of every variety. In an introductory article, the "Signalementenblad" described at some length the ruses which Nazi informers may apply to get into underground meetings.

They begin by "diving under"; in other words, they break all ties with relatives and friends, adopt a new name and generally lead the life of a genuine fugitive from Nazism. This may be continued for many months during which the budding Gestapo informer tries to get in touch—and generally succeeds—with real "under-divers." Almost invariably he gains the confidence of at least some of them.

He has a variety of means to achieve this purpose. For instance, he may show his victims the latest photographs from London, or he may furnish them with accurate details about events in Netherlands circles aboard.

Some of these men possess samples of the most modern English or American weapons; some others claim ownership of a secret radio sender through which they pretend to be in constant touch with the Netherlands government in London. Still others know "camouflaged air fields from where patriots may be flown to England."

"Such a camouflaged air field really does exist," one of the papers commented, but it is in the hands of the Gestapo. It is a farm with secret hideouts and runways, leading through meadows with removable fences. It is on this airfield that so-called English parachutists drop down on the unsuspecting underground."

"Often," the paper continued "these spies wait for four to six months before arrests take place, and even then the Gestapo takes good care not to arrest the entire group. Those who 'escape' are tragically unaware that they are allowed a little more freedom in order to avoid suspicion against the informer. But they are constantly shadowed, their telephones are tapped, and when they mail a letter it is immediately intercepted. In this manner the Gestapo weaves its net for a further raid."

A perusal of the lists of names published by the two papers emphasizes two outstanding facts. The first is the painstaking detail in which the writers describe the personality and the activities of the men under their scrutiny; the second is the almost complete absence of any overlapping of names in the two lists. In only a few cases do certain names appear on the lists of both the "Signalementenblad" and the "Contra-signaal."

It proves that the editorial staffs of the two papers belong to different underground groups with apparently no communication. Yet, in the few cases where the same names appear in both lists, the details are in complete agreement. This confirms the effectiveness with which the underground counter-spy departments work, and the accurate way in which the biographical notes have been compiled.

The personal description of the informers include their full names, aliases and complete addresses; their height, color of hair and eyes, scars, special marks and social background. In addition there are, in most cases, photographs of the individuals, concerned.

Infantry Gives Driving Force to War Machine

By DOUG. HOW
(C.P. War Correspondent)

With the Canadians in Italy (CP)—The most magnificent sight of them all is unfolding in the dust below. The infantryman is moving up.

He comes up the road in endless, plodding silent columns. His helmet is heavy on his head and he has pushed it back with the camouflage net and shell dressing that burden it further. His face is tanned and tired and impassive. His eyes squint in the dust.

He seldom speaks and when he does he doesn't say much. There isn't much to be said. His shirt is open and his brown chest sweats in the sun and the dust. His rifle is slung over his shoulder, his water-bottle and mess-tin and gas cape hang from the web belt buckled about his waist. In his hand he carries a small shovel. It will soon be time to use it on the Italian soil.

They call a halt and somebody pulls out the cigarets and he has a smoke. He lays aside his helmet, takes his rifle off his shoulder and leans it against a wall.

He looks back down the road with vacant eye at the convoys of trucks and jeeps and carriers and ambulances that have been slogging along this narrow Italian road for three solid days. Great and relentless and powerful is the machine that backs him up. Invaluable are the tanks that coat him now with dust, indispensable the guns in the fields beside the road that draw his hollow gaze.

But they are only spokes in a wheel and he is the hub. He is the spearhead, the key, the backbone of it all. He knows that and feels it and is too tired to care.

A Silent Column

He picks up his rifle with the rag knotted over the muzzle and rejoins the endless, plodding silent column. He doesn't swagger, doesn't wisecrack, doesn't whistle. He seldom speaks and when he does he doesn't say much. There isn't much to be said.

His shoulders slouch, his eyes look down and stare for minutes on end at nothing but the baggy pants of the man in front of him, and doesn't see a thing. He puts one boot in front of another and does it again and again until he has covered yards and miles in his dogged, measured stride.

He hears the guns and sees their flashes in the fields. He is in shelling range and the enemy lurks ahead. The front is fluid, and near. The front is hell. He'd like to be home, in England, anywhere but here on the road near the front. But he puts one boot in front of another and goes on and on and on.

The trucks roll by and push him to the side of the road and cover him with dust. He hears the guns and hears the planes and senses the atmosphere of the front. He knows them all, accepts them all with dead disinterest. The thrill they might once have brought has long since passed away and there is just one boot pushing itself ahead of another until they seem to do it automatically.

And finally he is lost in the dust and the distance, he and his baggy, weary, earthy magnificence. He is the king in his domain, the master of the scene and too damn tired to care. He is the infantryman moving up.

As a consumer each of us wants the costs of living kept down.

If prices are to be kept down, then costs of production including salaries, wages and raw materials must also be controlled.

WEDDINGS

HEASMAN—FREE

The Rev. F. C. Beazer, of Roslin, solemnized the marriage ceremony in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, September 23rd., at three o'clock, of Mary Isabel Free, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Free, Belleville, to Edward Heasman, son of Mr. William Heasman, of Stirling, and the late Mrs. Heasman.

Gladioli and ferns in shades of colorful Autumn bloom decorated the chancel and altar and formed a charming setting for the occasion. Mr. Fred Porter, Thomasburg, played the wedding music during the ceremony and at the signing of the register Master Douglas Warham was soloist.

Entering the church to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She was radiantly gowned in the traditional gown of white slipper satin and bridal veil of tulle illusion, caught to her hair with an elegant halo coronet. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Luella Sherry, Belleville, as maid of honor, and Miss Verna Morton, Toronto, and Mrs. Bill Coleman, Campbellford, as bridesmaids, were dressed in models of yellow, blue and pink taffeta respectively. The maid of honor carried a nosegay of yellow roses and baby 'mums while both the bridesmaids had nosegays of pink roses and baby 'mums.

Mr. Harry Heasman, Stirling, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Jack Wilson and Ernest Carr, both of Stirling.

For the reception following the ceremony at the home of the bride, the bride's mother received the guests wearing an Air Force blue crepe suit complemented with accessories in the same shade. She was assisted by the groom's sister, Mrs. John Kane, attired in a rose crepe suit and black accessories. Acting as serviteurs were Eleanor Bush, Evelyn Bush, Goldie Langabeer, Olive Carter, Phyllis Heasman and Verna Casselman.

On the honeymoon to Ottawa, Montreal and Lake Placid, the bride donned a woollen suit in golden hue, chocolate brown accessories and Russian squirrel furs, gift of the groom.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Heasman will take up residence at the groom's farm near Stirling.

Mr. Mrs. H. Coulter Celebrate Silver Anniversary

Tweed.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Coulter, Tweed, were "At Home" to their relatives, neighbors and friends on Monday evening to celebrate the Silver Anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Coulter were married in Christ Church, Thomasburg, Sept. 24th., 1919. Mrs. Coulter was the former Irene Mouck, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Mouck, Thomasburg.

Mrs. Coulter's bridesmaid, Miss Nettie Mouck, of Belleville, and the groomsman, Dr. S. B. Beatty, of Madoc, were present and assisted the bride and groom of twenty-five years ago in receiving the guests. The bride and bridesmaid were attractively gowned in two-piece mauve dresses of similiar designs and wore corsages of pink roses.

During the evening, Mr. Fred Porter played several piano numbers and Rev. Mr. Beazer, Roslin, paid tribute to the high esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Coulter are held in the community.

The groom ably responded, reminiscing about many happy events which had taken place during the years. He also thanked those present for gifts received and the many messages of congratulations.

Among the bride's lovely gifts were a silver tea service from the groom, a large silver tray from immediate relatives of the bride and groom, and silver hot and cold water pitchers from the cousins.

Later in the evening the bride cut the beautifully decorated wedding cake and dainty refreshments were served. Those assisting were Mrs. A. C. Porter, Mrs. J. R. Bateman, Thomasburg; Mrs. Howard Countryman, Tweed; also the nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Coulter, including, Mrs. Albert Clare, Moira; Mrs. Newton Foster, Kingston; Mrs. Milton Reid, Stirling; Mrs. Percy Blakely, Tweed; Mrs. Stanley Geen, Thomasburg; Mrs. Russell Redford, Batawa; Mrs. Harry Coulter, Foxboro; Mrs. John Blakely, Tweed and Mrs. Burton Coulter, Tweed.

There were about two hundred guests present and included friends from Belleville, Madoc, Stirling and Kingston and all wished for Mr. and Mrs. Coulter many more happy years of wedded life together.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

Tabloid Philosophy

The essential ingredients of a happy marriage are congeniality, tolerance, tenderness and mutual sex-attraction. Oh yes, and of course love! Add to these mutual admiration and mutual tastes in friends, food and amusements—and you have the Millenium! Yet there ARE such marriages.

When a man falls in love through his senses, he usually falls out quickly and lightly and lands on his feet. But when he falls in love through his imagination, he falls out with a crash and wakes up with an awful headache.

Timing is as important in love and marriage as it is in radio speaking. "Incompatability of tempo" is one of the main causes of divorces. Sometimes a man doesn't even wake up to the fact that he's in love with a girl until she's tired of waiting and ready to fall into another man's arms. And sometimes a wife likes to go to sleep with the birds, while her husband wants to play or read until the milkman comes around.

It's wanting to do the same things at the same time—to work, play, dance, eat and rest—that makes for good companionship. It's feeling happy and gay at the same time, and sad at the same moments—and even tender and romantic at the same moments. "Timing"— that's one thing that is paramount in marriage! Yet nobody has ever thought much about "Incompatibility of Tempo."

Nature plays no favorites. When she hands a man an extra portion of good looks and charm, she sometimes short-changes him on backbone and willpower. And when she hands a girl a good figure and plenty of "glamor", she often evens things up by cutting out her commonsense and giving her poor judgment in love and the choice of a husband.

For years, men have wasted a lot of effort in trying to find a good definition of "love" but finding the love itself takes about all of a girl's time, energy and ingenuity.

Sometimes a girl marries a man just because she thinks he is too attractive to be left around loose for a lot of other girls to "spoil."

Invitations to an Engagement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

In honor of an engagement (no previous announcement being made) is it proper to invite relatives and friends to one's home for cocktails and a buffet supper between the hours of 4 and and 7? If so, what would such a gathering be called? If etiquette frowns on such a plan, would you please make some suggestions as to how an engagement could be announced, preferably not a dinner? F.M.

Yes, it is proper, either to announce an engagement or in honor of an engagement, to give a late afternoon party. This is usually called a "Tea" (even if cocktails are to be served), or it may be called a cocktail party. Sometimes too, it is called an "At Home". Such an early-hour party is usually not called a "buffet supper" . . .a buffet supper usually begins around seven o'clock, the hour when this party is ending.

The party given to announce an engagement is given by the parents of the girl. . . the engagement announcement is their privilege and honor. But any relative or friend may give a party in honor of the engaged couple, after the engagement has been made public.

Nowadays engagement announcement parties are usually very simple, and more customarily at a late-afternoon party than at a dinner, at which the number of guests is necessarily more limited. The usual way of making the announcement at a tea, and to my taste the nicest way, is for the girl's mother and father, as hosts, and the engaged couple, as guests of honor, to form the receiving line; as the mother standing next to the daughter, greets each arriving guest, she turns to her daughter and says, "Here's Ruth", and then, turning to the young man says, ". . and her fiance, Phil Worthy". Or there may be no receiving-line and the sudden appearance of the solitaire on "the" finger of the fiancee may proclaim the news.

A Semi-Formal Wedding.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Our wedding is to be a semi-formal one, at seven o'clock. My gown has a medium-length train; my veil is finger-tip length. My attendants will wear evening dresses. The men in the wedding party will wear tuxedos.

My mother and the bridegroom's mother prefer to wear dressy street-length dresses, and I agree that this would be acceptable under present conditions. The family argue, however, that this would be highly improper. Who is right?

L. H.

Why don't the mothers want to wear long dinner dresses? If it's a question of expense or of some special inconvenience, their street-length dresses would have to be considered "acceptable". But to be dressed consistently with the other plans for your semi-formal evening wedding, they should wear dinner dresses, floor-length, simply designed, of becoming shades, and of shades that harmonise with each other. "The family" is right.

Birthday Gift For a Co-Worker.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Recently I was surprised to receive a lovely blouse as a birthday gift from a co-worker. Today I found out that her birthday is next month, and I would like to give her a present too, but I am at a loss to think of anything because she is well-to-do and doesn't need anything I can afford to give her. Could you suggest something that would be appropriate, and inexpensive too, for I haven't much money to spend on this gift.

Peggy.

I know this friendly girl will welcome your sweet thought of her, and I'm sure she'd welcome one pretty handkerchief enclosed in a warm-hearted birthday note or birthday card. Choose a sheer white handkerchief, and perhaps have it embroidered with the facsimile of her signature. . . this "surprise" will delight her too, particularly if the embroidery is in her favorite color. Or buy a handkerchief with her first name on it. Or give her one of the new sparkling combs for her hair-decoration; you'll find lovely, inexpensive ones. Or give her a gay pencil for her purse.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Lines Across The Forehead

It is a wise plan to train your eyebrows to behave. Some brows are much too lively for the good of the feminine face. When they are lifted to express doubt or surprise, they etch crosswise gullies along the northernmost area of the portrait. Pull them together and you have frowns.

Eyebrows should live a calm, tranquil life. They are purely decorative, though there is a notion that they were placed there for the purpose of keeping perspiration from flowing into the eyes.

The upswept coiffure is still going strong and the forehead is accented thereby. No woman is made more attractive by the presence of little railroad tracks running from temple to temple, and she will be sure to have them if she indulges in eyebrow acrobatics. Tissues on the forehead are thin, haven't much substance, are close to the bones, take on wrinkles easily. An untroubled brow is a necessity if we are to skip along the beauty speedway. One must mind one's facial manners, or pay the price. You can't run to a plastic surgeon and get a facelift these days.

Suppose those little irrigation ditches are already established. What then? Get after them, hammer and tongs. Purchase a massage cream of such heavy consistency that it offers resistance when spread upon the flesh. You are going to rebuild depleted tissues erase unlovely tracings.

Have the surface of the skin scrupulously clean when starting the treatment. Use soap and water fairly hot so the flesh will be warm, in a condition to absorb the oily emollient. Rinse with warm water. See that the flesh is as dry as a bone; if it is even slightly moist, the treatment will not be as effective.

Place the fingertips of both hands in the center of the forehead, each group of fingers facing the other. Move one group up, the other down, while both groups travel the length of the lines. This is a favorite movement of facial operators.

The next step is a hammering movement over the entire area. Follow with a brisk slapping and patting.

Place the thumb at the lower end of the frown lines, first finger above it. Hold the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb. This movement lifts the flesh out of the groove.

While the cream remains on, frisk an ice cube over the forehead. While you are at this job, go over the face and neck. Do not remove the cream.

In the morning dash on cold water, dry gently, apply your favorite astringent or skin tonic.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mistake for G I Joe to Indulge His Pride to This Extent.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When Lettie W. decided to accept me, I couldn't do enough for her. I went in debt for a square-cut diamond as an engagement ring, put all my saving in the down-payment, and have been paying for it every month since. I was ordered away from the post near her home. Her letters were few and indifferent, yet I kept on paying for the ring.

Six weeks ago she wrote it would be unfair to marry me, as she had fallen in love with someone else and they expected to be married Thanksgiving. I've continued to pay for the ring as she has never returned it to me, or said anything about giving it back. I'll admit I'm pretty angry, but I thought I might bring her to a realization of the shabby thing she has done, by not demanding the square-cut back. Do you think I'm a fool?

G. I. Joe.

You've had enough to contend with, my dear G.I. Joe without having me call you hard names, but to let a little grafter like Lettie W. get away with a square-cut diamond is not only foolish to the nth degree, but encouraging her in downright dishonesty.

Write to the jeweler and tell him you're stopping the payments on the ring. Also I'd ask Lettie W. to return it, and if she doesn't I'd put the case in the hands of a lawyer. If you had given her an inexpensive ring, $10, $15 or $20, you might take her appropriation of it calmly, but a square-cut diamond represents a small fortune. I beg you not to be too soft.

Says She's a Warning to All Girls Not to be Too Trustful.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was very much in love with a soldier, and I thought he loved me. He asked me to marry him, and I was so happy that I gave in to all his wishes. And now I have his baby

When I first told him about it, we set our wedding day, which was to be about five days before he went across. I don't even hear from him now and have asked him to send me some money, but he pays no attention. I suppose he's probably breaking some other girl's heart the way he did mine.

I feel as if my life was over and that I can never trust another man. I'm a good girl and am ashamed for what happened, but if I had not trusted him so much it would not have occurred. I don't think it's fair that the men get off without being punished. Isn't there some way I can make him help?

This is a warning to all girls who read my letter—think before you leap; it's too late for me. Do you answer personal letters?

Yes, certainly, I answer personal letters. That's the only satisfactory way a letter like yours can be answered. If you have any letters from this soldier acknowledging that he's your baby's father, the matter of settlement may easily be arranged.

Takes Presents From Two Marines, Fearing to Lose the Right One

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 18 years old and in love with two sailors, both of whom live in my home town. One of these boys is overseas and the other expects to be shipped out soon. Both of them have told me they love me and expect me to marry them when the war is over.

I have received expensive gifts from both boys, although mother advised me not to accept them. I've been afraid of losing the wrong boy, so I've accepted gifts. And I don't want to hurt either one of them. Please advise me what to do.

Undecided.

I wonder if you're really as deeply in love with these two as you are with the thrill of having two men wanting to marry you. And the expensive gifts you received from each have probably added confusion to your belief that you love them both.

At 18, and feeling the way you do about them, it seems to me it would be a grave error in judgment to decide on either at present. And do you think this playing fast and loose with their affections is fair? First make up your mind if you insist on marrying.

LONDON LETTER

By J. H. MURDOCH
Canadian Press Correspondent

Dublin, Sept. 27 (CP)—Conservatism and old fashioned methods of farming will be swept away in Eire when the government's $85,000,000 rural electrification plan, patterned after that of Ontario, is completed.

A government white paper on the plan has just been issued and the cost is estimated on 1939 prices. It will take about 10 years to complete and a total of about 400,000 farmsteads will be supplied with electricity for the first time. In all these cottages farmers at present rely on oil lamps for light and there is, of course, a complete lack of electrical equipment on the farm.

For this plan electrical experts and engineers studied rural electrification in about a dozen countries and decided to adopt, in the main, the electric scheme in operation in Ontario. It appears that the farming requirements of Ontario are closely akin to those of rural Eire for electrification purposes.

Steam generating plants will be erected but most of the electrical current will be generated from rivers, especially during the wet seasons.

Communications between Eire and Britain are gradually returning to normal. One of the big steps in this direction was the restoration of the telephone services between the two countries. Telephonic services were stopped April 6 for security reasons while the Allies were preparing for the invasion of Europe. Exactly five months later the ban has been lifted.

In the last couple of months the travel restrictions between Britain and Eire have been greatly relaxed. There is a possibility that all travel restrictions may be completely removed soon.

Airman Describes His First Flight Over German Target

Written For The Canadian Press by Flt. Lt. R. V. Dodds, R.C.A.F.

Editor's Note: Flt. Lt. R. V. Dodds, former member of The Canadian Press, Vancouver Bureau, was injured when he and his pilot crashed their Mosquito as they attempted a one-engine landing in Britain after a bombing trip to Stuttgart. From a hospital in England, Dodds wrote the following story of his first operation and in a note enclosed with the story said, "I guess I'm pretty lucky to be alive."

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Sept. 27 (CP)—It was my first raid, the chance I'd been waiting for ever since that December day in Vancouver, back in 1940, when the R.C.A.F. told me my application had been accepted.

Charlie, my pilot, swung our Mosquito "D for Dog" on to the course I gave him and we pushed off into the darkness over the North Sea. In a Mossie the navigator works like the proverbial one-armed paperhangar and when next I had a chance to look out I could see the outlines of the enemy coast in moonlight.

Dead ahead we could see tiny flashes in the sky, like a cluster of glow worms. Only it wasn't glow worms, it was flak. Swinging around to avoid it we crossed the coast and started in to our target, a smoke-pot in Happy Valley or 'an industrial area in the Ruhr' as the communiques say.

Calculating our course and ground speed I found we were in danger of arriving late.

"Step on it a bit," I said to Charlie and Charlie did.

Into The Searchlights

We saw scores of searchlights weaving the skies and tiny flashes on the ground told the flak batteries were coming into action. Making sure that our 4,000-lb. cookie was fused and ready to do its share of damage when it went down, I crawled up into the nose to get a better view of things.

Picking out what seemed to be the centre of activity, a spot between two fires, ringed with searchlights and flak guns, I directed the Mossie over it. Down the drift wires came the target, and I gave the necessary corrections to our course. "Ri-i-i-ght, left, left, steady." Our target came smack into the sights, and I pressed the bomb release fervently hoping that our cookie was on its way to prang something good.

The flak was getting worse, and a second after I sent our bomb down, a blinding white flash went off seemingly under my nose. Things were getting hot.

I scrambled into my seat beside the pilot, and at that moment the searchlights got us. Twisting and turning we tried to get away from them, but they hung on and as we scooted away from the immediate area of the target, the flak followed us, bursting under our tail.

However, five minutes flying left the searchlights behind, and we set course for home, with the beams still waving about, slicing the blackness into segments, and looking as disappointed as anything not of flesh and blood can look.

The enemy coast was crossed and before long we were over England. Our own drome came into sight, and Charlie slipped her in for a perfect landing and as we rolled up to dispersal we looked at one another and spoke the same words, "Well, so far, so good!"

Road and Air Travel Outlook Seen Very Bright

Kentville, N. S., Sept. 27 (CP) — Addressing the opening session of the Interprovincial Conference of Highway Ministers here today W O. Robertson, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Automobile Association, predicted a great future for both road and air travel in Canada.

He said he felt the automobile and the airplane will prove auxiliary to each other rather than competitive in post-war transportation, and added automobile clubs are looking forward hopefully to the future development of air transport.

Within 10 years of the end of the war 2,000,000 motor vehicles may reasonably be expected to be in use in Canada, as compared with present registration of 1,500,000. The resulting increase in revenues to the provinces in the first post-war decade should approximate $1,000,000,000, at present rate of taxation, thus affording a solid backing for financing extensive provincial road-building programs.

Robertson predicted the lifting of restrictions on motoring shortly after the close of the war.

Leading traffic authorities in the Dominion, including the Ministers of Highways and their deputies of all Canadian provinces, are holding their fourth interprovincial conference. They are prepared to handle the largest road building program in their history, and will hear technical reports from engineers of every province to enable them to complete the blueprint of post-war roads.

Ambitious Woman Builds Own Home

Woodstock, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—"Spare time can always be used to good advantage," says Mrs. Ruby E. Laister of Woodstock, who spent six months of her "spare time" in building a house for herself. Her home—Willowmere Cottage—is an example of what a woman can do when she makes up her mind.

Mother of a family of five, now grown-up and away, and until recently proprietor of a nursing home, Mrs. Laister spent only six months building her house, with a little outside help.

The cottage, a comfortable and compact home with a large living room, two bedrooms, kitchen and sun-porch, is made of frame and is attractively painted in ivory and red. There are clothes closets and built-in cupboards and the large sun-porch has windows on three sides.

Everything except the cement foundation and completion of the chimney was done by the ambitious woman. Steps to the basement and the cement cellar floor are her own handiwork. She did all the electrical wiring, improvised a chute to the coal bin, built a garage, levelled the grounds and built an outdoor fish pond.

This took a little longer than she expected, Mrs. Laister said. Yet she lost no time in the making, for she began her home the first thing in September, 1943, and finished it March 8 this year.

Rubber Production Up in New Guinea

Canberra (CP) — In the twelve months ended June 30, this year, 1,816 tons of rubber were produced in New Guinea, an increase of about 30 per cent on the previous year's production.

An External Territories Department report that reveals this says the rubber will not affect the Australian tire making program because Australia is committed to the world rubber pool, and New Guinea production goes into this pool. The report adds that it has been necessary to cut down the Australian and American service tires production this year, mainly because of manpower difficulties.

Dinner in Paris Awakens Gaiety of Pre-War Days

By MARGARET ECKER
(C.P. War Correspondent)

Paris (CP) — An invitation to dinner in Paris, in a French home, is a glimpse into the soul of a city and its people. It's watching a Lazarus emerge from a tomb, with laughter and tears intermingled.

The invitation came the day we reached Paris, tired and dirty. We had just glimpsed the bread queues in Paris then and it didn't seem right to eat the food of the people we met in the lovely house in a quiet suburban garden.

It was difficult to decide which was most refreshing, the people or the room into which we were ushered with a volley of welcoming greetings. Perhaps the room struck us most, because it was the kind of room people live in on the other side of the Atlantic.

The walls were pale green, with beautifully designed modern furniture in apple green. A couple of chairs were covered with black and white pony skin, and the bookcases, the little tables, were simple and good.

The room seemed to radiate hospitality. The men were courtly and kindly, but to two girls in crumpled khaki, the women were entrancing.

They were chic, attractive, any one of them would have been at home in a fashion magazine. It was a glimpse of the pre-war past at home, but before the evening was over we heard how carefully the smart suits, the pretty white flannel frock, the cheerful summer prints had been treasured and kept trim.

The conversation tinkled like cocktail glasses, half French, half English. There was a story in every one of these people, we saw them gay and laughing, but the dark clouds were behind them.

Light for 20 Minutes

Suddenly the host shouted, "Voila" and soft, indirect lighting flooded the room. "For 20 minutes a day we have electricity, so let us enjoy it." So the radio was turned on, and you could see from the faces it was the old days back again. It would be hard in Canada to appreciate that moment.

And so we went to dinner in another lovely room with yellow covered chairs and many mirrors. First there was steak, rare, tender, and then thin French fried potatoes, then slices of cold roast beef served with peas. And through the whole dinner, one had all the Sauterne one cared to drink.

For dessert was preserved fruit, very sweet and spicy. "For four years we hid that from the Germans," the host said. "They took everything from us they could find. This is all food we took from the Germans. It makes us happy to give it to you."

Suddenly the lights went out. There was laughter and the maids came in carrying candles. And so by candlelight the meal finished and we went back to the drawing room for small, potent glasses of cognac.

There was more chatter, and then the host opened a small portable gramaphone and brought out gramaphone records of dance music. Champagne appeared too, and the party was on.

"This is the first time I have danced in four years," one girl said.

Our French friends took down their hair in grand style. They laughed and danced and later dug into a cupboard and produced false faces, monstrous noses and false wigs. It would have been just another party at home, but to these people it was their first long draught of freedom.

Cardinal Villeneuve Received in Audience By His Majesty The King

London, Sept. 27 (CP Cable) — Cardinal Villeneuve, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Quebec, was received in audience by the King today on the eve of the Cardinal's departure for Italy where he will report to the Pope and visit Canadian army and air force units.

Air Commodore J. A. E. Charest, director of Roman Catholic Chaplain Services in the R.C.A.F. who accompanied the Cardinal to the palace but was not present at the audience, said Cardinal Villeneuve was "overjoyed at the honor" and was "very pleased" with the lengthy audience.

Air Commodore Charest will accompany Cardinal Villeneuve to Italy.

His Majesty later received Prime Minister Churchill at lunch and heard a full account of the Churchill-Roosevelt Quebec conference.

Says U.S. Earns Right To World Leadership

London, Sept. 27 (CP)— Karl E. Mundt, United States Republican congressman from South Dakota, declared in an interview that the United States had earned the right to world leadership as a result of the "major role she has played in two bloody wars."

In present and future world conferences, Mundt said in an interview shortly before leaving for Washington, the United States should insist upon recognition above the rank of junior partner. He said frank and full discussions and an enduring understanding between English-speaking peoples were necessary, "for if we should fall apart, civilization would fall asunder."

Cooks and Nurses of Hospital Unit in France Accomplish Wonders Under Difficult Conditions

By MARGARET ECKER
(C.P. War Correspondent)

With the 1st. Canadian Army in France (CP) — There's always something in the hair of the army unit cook over here in France. On a hot day it's sand, flies and wasps, and then the rains come in blankets of water that put out fires and the ground under his feet is as slippery as yellow oil.

But come sun or high water, Canadians over here eat well, on the whole, though they'd never admit it to their cook.

The hospital unit is a good example, although maybe the food's a bit better here than some, but the cook has all the headaches of field cookery and he's never left in one place long enough to get himself organized.

The rain was coming down in torrents and we slipped and slithered in gummy mud when Lieut. Mary Attree, of Winnipeg and Gordon, Man., the hospital dietitian, took me down to the field where Sgt. Sam Pladager of Vancouver, was supervising the cooking of one meal, and the washing of dishes from another, all outside.

Food in huge, closed metal containers was cooking on black coal cookers that spluttered and fumed in the rain. In spite of the downpour, wasps were still bothering Peter Shawnes, of East End, Sask., as he made a pudding for dessert, while Cpl. Bill Hardowa of Moose Jaw, in the bell tent where the bread and supplies are stored tried to keep food dry under leaking canvas.

Back up at the nurses' mess, the two cooks, Herb Grummett of Grandora, Sask., and Nick Sarotuck, of Montreal, with their assistants, Fred Lavoie of Camrose, Sask., and Albert Fingler of Saskatoon, were splashing through a puddle of water about two inches deep as they cooked dinner.

Difficulties Overcome

The rain got into the gasoline, fuel for the two, two-burner stoves on which they do all the cooking, but we still had steak, beautifully cooked, for dinner.

As we went around to the wards, from behind a serving table improvised out of packing cases, Frances Coneman of Regina, was serving plates of roast beef, mashed potatoes and peas for the patients.

"We put all the best cooks in the hospital kitchens," said Lieut. Attree, who was a dietitian in a Regina hospital before she enlisted. "We try to have a good baker who will look after desserts and make them appetizing for the patients. Men back from the front line appreciate food prepared as attractively as possible. Sometimes men haven't eaten for a good many hours when they get back here."

Besides field rations, the patients get extra medical comforts, such as ovaltine, fancy biscuits, fruit, custard and salmon.

"We're all eating better than we thought we would," she went on. "We have had a good supply of meat and the rations are more generous than we thought they'd be We buy no food here at all, everything we eat is brought across the Channel.

"The cooks become very interested in patients, especially men on special diets. Sometimes I find one of them in a ward feeding a man he's cooked something special for. No matter who else goes without, we always see that the patients get the best food we have."

Store-Closing Plans For V-Day Celebration Arranged in Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Arrangements for stores closing on V-Day were agreed on here today by representatives of trade groups, Business Men's Association, Retail Merchants' Association and Canadian Retail Federation.

If the end-of-war in Europe announcement comes during a business day, all stores will close as soon as possible; if it occurs later, stores will close the following day.

Chief of Police D. C. Draper warned that merchants take proper steps to protect their merchandise from persons who might take advantage of the confusion.

Ridgetown Woman Veteran Cobbler

Ridgetown, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP)—Mrs. Frank Korycan of Ridgetown, one of the first woman cobblers in Canada, began her shoe repairing activities just before war started. She has been helping her husband in his shoe repair and harness shop on the town's main street ever since.

Expert shoe repairmen were hard to find even before the war, says Frank Korycan, whose wife was busy at a man's job before other women had entered the masculine world of war time jobs.

Mrs. Korycan received her initiation into the art of shoemaking and repairing in her native Czechoslovakia where her father and husband were cobblers. An expert nailer and finisher, she has proved a decided asset to the business, her husband says.

Says Canadian Major Attempted To Secure Channel Isles Surrender

London, Sept. 26 (CP Cable) — The German news agency claimed today that a Canadian army major "who also is a member of the Canadian parliament," attempted to obtain the surrender of the Channel Islands yesterday.

The agency said a German speedboat met the Canadian major who was on a British warship, and that the speedboat then sent a radio message to the Channel Islands commander saying the Canadian major wanted to discuss the military situation with him.

The agency added that the commander's reply was that he must decline the meeting.

The Channel Islands, off the west coast of the Cherbourg peninsula, have been under German control since 1940.

New Spitfire Dubbed The Praying Mantis

London (CP) — A Spitfire which folds its wings has given the Royal Navy a big increase in fighter strength of carrier-based aircraft.

Officially it is known as the Seafire Mark III. But to the Fleet Air Arm pilots it is the "Praying Mantis." It made its first operational appearance on D-Day and later took part in the invasion of Southern France and got its nickname from its resemblance; when its wings are folded, to the mantis, a pugnacious insect which waits for its prey in an attitude of prayer.

LIEUT CLARK KILLED

Lieut. Murray Clark of Toronto, Ont., son of Gregory Clark, well-known Canadian newspaper writer now overseas as a war correspondent, was killed in action Sept. 17, between Boulogne and Calais. Lieut. Clark was a nephew of Joseph W. G. Clark, Director of Public Relations of Canada's three armed forces.

Britain Trying to Boost Civilian Goods Output

London, Sept. 27 (CP) — Richard Stokes, Labor, today in the House of Commons questioned Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, on whether he had done anything to match the United States decision "to switch over 40 per cent of total production to peace purposes" after Germany collapsed and whether his department would follow "the great enterprise being shown by Amricans in sending travellers overseas now."

Mr. Dalton replied that he was seeking every opportunity to increase the production of civilian goods both for home and for export as the claims of war production allowed.

He retorted to Mr. Stokes' second question: "You have personally applied for facilities to travel abroad and they have been granted by my department."

Further Rationing In Transport Coal

Camberra, Sept. 27 (CP)—A decrease of 7,000 tons a week in coal consumption on all Australia's railroad systems has been forecast by Prime Minister John Curtin who has told state premiers it will be necessary to make a 10 per cent reduction from present consumption.

Following an increase in railroad transportation of troops and war materials, civilian transport in the Commonwealth has been reduced—in Queensland by 80 per cent and throughout the rest of the states by 50 per cent.

A permit system for inter-state and country traffic has been in operation since June, 1942. Transport within the states of all non-essential goods has been prohibited for the same period.

In New Zealand rail services have been curtailed because of the coal shortage.

South Africa Aids War Against Japan

Johannesburg (CP)—Prime Minister J. C. Smuts, addressing the second supply conference here recently, said that in the second stage of the war against Japan, South Africa might decrease its munition production but would undertake the extension of ship repairs.

The Union would continue to supply coal which during the past year had averaged 400,000 tons monthly.

London (CP) — The 10th, Indian Division is serving in Italy as part of the 8th. Army.

Young War Visitors To Adopt Australia

Camberra, Sept. 27 (CP)— The 577 British children who have been Australia's war guests since 1940, may be allowed to remain in the country after the war, the government has decided.

The children may stay only with their parents' consent or if parents themselves intend to settle in Australia. Prime Minister John Curtis said an agreement between the Commonwealth and British governments would be necessary to place the children under Australia's governmental control.

British Railways Have Big Air Plan

London, Sept. 27 (CP)—The possibility that the four great railway companies of Great Britain will seek a wider outlook for the air "powers" granted them by parliament is foreshadowed in an editorial in the London and North Eastern Railway magazine.

The magazine says the railways are prepared to operate the whole of the internal and continental services required after the war without a subsidy, provided all other operators are on the same basis.

"It is a bold offer which the government can scarcely ignore," says the magazine.

Aussie Holds Jap Tougher Than Nazi

London, Sept. 27 (CP)—Capt. S. C. Carter, one of a group of Australian soldiers who reached Britain to help in rehabilitating Australian prisoners-of-war, reported the Jap is a far tougher fighter than the German.

"They use noises a good deal," said Capt. Carter. "They pay a lot of attention to noise because they are afraid of it themselves."

Carter and his companions termed the Japanese a "fanatical fighter, very clever in retreat, very clever in individual jungle fighting and in the open—very foolish."

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT:

As residents of a community that has an enviable record in all wartime activities—enlistment in the Armed Services, war production, Victory Loans, Red Cross drives and in all the many phases of our war effort—we are this week called on to give generous support to our own United Service Campaign. The four local organizations which have united in the joint appeal—the Children's Aid Society, the Salvation Army, the Victorian Order of Nurses and the Young Men's Christian Association—have, each in its own sphere, given unusually fine service to the City of Belleville and County of Hastings.

This year the total objective is $15,000.00 and when one considers the nature of the work that is being done and the benefits received by the community at large, the amount asked for is little enough. The drive is the year's UNITED appeal for support by those social service groups who have adopted this method in preference to the old one of conducting separate canvasses.

When the people of Belleville open their doors to the canvassers, it is an opportunity to open their hearts and purses and I sincerely trust that these canvassers (all of whom are volunteers) will be greeted with an immediate and generous response. Some one has called this fund a Bank of Goodwill. Let us all see that it has ample funds for its purposes. If we are to assure the continuance of the excellent work of these organizations, each must do his share.

In the past we have been open-handed in appeals for our fighting men and women and we have supported the Red Cross in its work of mercy. But we must also remember those at home who need our assistance — the under-privileged, the sick and aged, our young men and women. To these, our neighbors in the closest sense, we owe a duty which we now have a chance to discharge in an efficient, orderly and controlled manner.

Let us all welcome the canvassers and invest for a better and happier community.

Sincerely yours,
"C. A. CAMERON,"
HONORARY CHAIRMAN.

Marty Marion, Cards' Fielder, Dominates the Infielders In World Series Now Coming Up

St. Louis Has Decided Edge Over Tigers or Brownies in This Spot

HAS EXPERIENCE

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Sept. 27 — (AP) — Marty Marion, generally regarded as baseball's finest shortstop, dominates the infielders in the world series this year.

The presence of Marion give St. Louis Cardinal infield a decided edge over both Detroit and St. Louis Browns' infier works.

In addition to Marion, first baseman Ray Sanders, second sacker Emil Verban and hot corner guardian Whitey Kurowski round out an infield that ranks over the Tigers' inner cordon of Rudy York, Eddie Mayo, Joe Hoover and Pinky Higgins, and the Browns' infield of George McQuinn, Don Gutteridge, Vernon (Junior) Stephens and Mark Christman.

It is difficult to exaggerate Marion's fielding wizardry or his importance to the National League champions. The slim six-foot-two sensation ranks with the greatest fielding shortstops of all time.

Good Fielder, Hitter

In addition, Marion has a distinct advantage over Stephens and Hoover in that the series is no novelty to him, having participated in the last two. Against the Yanks last fall, he led the hitters with a mark of .357, including a home run. In the field he made but one error in 23 chances.

Enjoying his most successful season this year since joining the Cards in 1940, Marion owns a .270 batting average. With 62 runs batted in "Mr. Shortstop" has made but 19 errors in 703 chances including 89 double plays, for a .973 fielding percentage, tops among all shortstops.

Stephens is more in Marion's class. A good fielder, with a .954 mark for 721 chances with 33 errors, Stephens' forte is his hitting. Junior has flirted with the .300 mark all year, presently hitting .299, and has driven in 103 runs, aided by 19 homers, to lead his league. Stephens may be the first shortstop ever to lead the American League in the R. B. I. column.

Rudy York of the Tigers gets the nod among the first basemen. A slugger of the old school, the big Indian is a constant home run threat with 17 to his credit and has batted in 95 runs. Rudy is fielding at a .982 gait, including 106 assists and 17 errors.

LITTLE DEMPSEY

Local boxing fans will recall Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler as one of the sluggingest mittsters ever to draw on a glove in a local ring when he battled under Belleville colors a decade ago or more. At that time Wheeler was commonly referred to as "Little Dempsey" and still carries potent power in both his fists. When the Reliance Boxing Club brings back boxing to Belleville Friday night Wheeler will meet Georgie Palmatier of Belleville in the main bout of an all-star card arranged by Promoter Bill Crawford between Oshawa and Belleville boxers. Nine bouts are scheduled in all.

ORIOLES PITTED AGAINST BEARS IN FINAL SERIES

Baltimore Wins Right for Finals by Defeating the Buffalo Bisons

SCORE IS 9-4

Baltimore, Sept. 27 — (AP)—Baltimore Orioles, International League pennant-winners, were pitted against Newark Bears tonight in the first of a four-of-seven final play-off series for the right to enter the Little World Series against the American Association champion.

Manager Tommy Thomas was expected to start Baltimore pitcher Sam Lowry while Ken Holcombe was named to take over mound duties for the Bears, idle since they took four straight from Toronto. The teams were scheduled to play here again tomorrow night, moving to Newark Friday.

Louisville has won three straight from St. Paul and lost none in the American Association finals.

Baltimore took the seventh and last game in semi-finals last night, defeating Buffalo Bisons 9-4 with a display of home run power before a crowd of 22,138.

Coming from behind as they have been doing all season, the Orioles snapped a 3-3 tie in the fifth inning with home runs by Stan Benjamin, Felix Mackiewicz and Sherm Lollar.

FIVE GAMES LEFT AND TWO TEAMS STILL IN A TIE

Detroit Shutout A's While Rookie Hurler for Browns Stops Boston

CARDS WIN

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Sig Jakucki could be the key to the American League pennant race today for the footloose former soldier boy who was a June sparkler, but an August washout for the Browns, had earned a most important victory that sent St. Louis back into a first-place tie with Detroit.

With five games to go for the coleaders and New York Yankees who have been hustling along with their fingers crossed three games back, Luke Sewell had his pitching staff straightened out with five trusted starters. Detroit again had to fall back solely on Hal Newhouser who goes today and Paul Trout, who probably will go tomorrow and so on. Stubby Overmire's sore arm had complicated Steve O'Neill's problems.

Jakucki's feat, sensational enough on its own merits for it was a brilliant five-hit 1-0 victory over Boston, gained added stature, for the rookie had not started in 16 days and hadn't won since Aug. 21. Three earlier victories over Boston prompted Skipper Sewell to call on him last night and he brought home the bacon.

After the Browns finish with Boston today the schedule calls for four "toughies" with the Yanks while Detroit entertains last-place Washington. Despite this, St. Louis has started selling world series tickets on the strength of their super-duper pitching down the stretch.

Trout has his 27th win and the Tiger pair are within one of tying the modern record of 55 set by Jim Bagby, Sr. and Stan Coveleskie of Cleveland in 1920. "Modern" means since the advent of the lively ball.

The Tigers avenged their 2-1 defeat at the hands of Philadelphia Monday by a 6-0 triumph yesterday with the help of homers by Dick Wakefield and Rudy York.

New York still has hopes, though remote and vanishing fast, after topping Chicago, 9-5.

"Grandpa Joe" Heving set a new American League record for relief men by appearing in his 62nd game but Cleveland lost to Washington, 8-3.

St. Louis Cardinals banged out 14 hits to beat Brooklyn, 8-7, Cincinnati took two from New York, 8-5 and 6-4, Pittsburgh drubbed Boston, 6-2, and Chicago shut out the Phillies 15-0, in the opener but bowed, 10-1, in the second on a twi-night double.

New York, Sept. 27 — (AP)—That war bond tour by Sweden's Gunder Haegg, Arne Andersson and Haakan Lidman is quite a puzzle to the track experts . . . American runners have been out of training since the Nationals last June and during the football season would merely be jogging around cross country courses . . . The speedy Swedes want to be home by Christmas — a month before the indoor season opens — but Haegg, at least, seems to be figuring on racing on the boards . . . and the A.A.U., which normally would make arrangements for such a tour, seems to know little except that the cities where meets might be held have shown no great interest.

Efficient Official:

They tell this one on King Clancy, the old hockey star who calls 'em now in the National League, and nobody has questioned the yarn yet . . . seems King was refereeing a game last season and volunteered a little aid to the official scorer: — "Goal by Smith from Jones and Brown." . . . The scorer protested: "Why, Clancy, Jones wasn't even on the ice." . . . "Well, he should have been," the King persisted, "and if he had been there he would have been in on the play."

Shorts and Shells:

Best laughs of the season are found in Fred (Nashville Banner) Russell's new book, "I'll go quietly" which includes the choice items of 15 years of sports writing ... Betsy Ochum of the South Bend Blue Sox hit .296 to lead the All-American girls ball league hitters and major league scouts probably are wondering if she'd be eligible for their clubs.

Edmonton, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Chances that Edmonton will regain the position in International Women's basketball circles established by her Grads are very slim says J. Percy Page, silver-thatched coach of that great team.

"Squads good enough to compete successfully in international play are not built over night," he said. "Years and years of training are necessary and I can't see any person at present having or taking the time to supervise it."

Page, whose Grads won 502 of 522 official games during a 25 year career which ended in 1940, is also pessimistic about the game's future here. "When the Grads started to play the game was a novelty and naturally was popular. However, it's a novelty no more and I doubt whether the same interest would be taken in it."

The famous cage mentor says he is finished with basketball as far as coaching is concerned. His duties as a school principal and provincial legislator occupy most of his time. "I'll leave that part of the game to younger men."

Diamond Boom:

Sixty-eight games in a four-team circuit drew an average of 1,500 spectators. Some Sunday contests drew as many as 9,000 fans to the stands.

League champions were United States Army Yanks, a club boasting several former U. S. diamond professionals. Two Edmonton civilian clubs and another U. S. Army nine were also members of the league.

Baseball men are making plans to keep the sport at the peak of its prosperity. Promotion of minor league competition will be launched next year with the senior circuit providing equipment and coaching.

Post-war Punts:

M. Q. (Moe) Lieberman, Edmonton barrister and staunch backer of Edmonton Eskimoes when they toiled in the western Conference, is confident the city will have it place in the post-war football sun.

He says if the Western Conference is revived it is almost certain Edmonton will have a representative.

Lieberman points out that the juniors have not only kept the game alive in the city during the war but also have educated the populace in its fundamentals.

London, Sept. 26. (CP) — For 38 years Jockey Joe Thwaites has been riding the turf of England on some of the nation's best bloodstock. Now, at 53, the iron man of racing has decided to retire in favor of a new career. He wants to be a trainer.

As a jockey, Joe didn't rank with the best such as Steve Donoghue but up north they'll remember him as long as they remember John Peel.

Joe, like John Peel before him, was a huntsman. One bitter day in the fall of 1929 he rose before dawn and while the mist lay on the hills went hunting with the Staintondale Hounds. Later in the day he motored to his native Stockton-on-Tees and rode the winner of the first race. Then he raced down to Middlesborough for a football match he "wouldn't 'a' missed for t'world".

From there he dashed off to Scarborough and played for the local team in a hockey match against Hull. The game ended in near darkness but Joe, whose stamina is a legend in the North, hadn't yet rounded off the day. Before retiring he engaged in a series of billiard games.

The year previous at Ayr his mount, Oh Lummy, fell on him during a race. Joe wanted to ride in the next race but was persuaded not to because of serious injuries. At Stockton in 1931, Joe was kicked when his horse was in a collision with three others. He remounted, finished the course and rode in two more races that day, all the while bleeding profusely

A specialist who was asked to examine him after the collision said "What, is he still alive?"

At the height of his career he was first jockey to Lord Glanely. But it wasn't the winners he rode but the way he rode horses that made him a favorite of turf followers. He had a rare pair of hands, could get the best from a horse without using a whip, and would ease up rather than push a willing mount beyond its capacity.

Maj. Maurice Joseph Turnbull played and died for Britain. The Welsh international cricketer, rugby and hockey player, and England cricket test selector, was killed in action in Normandy. He was 38.

Native of Cardiff, Wales, Turnbull had been captain of the Glamorgan County cricket club since 1930 and scored at least 1,000 runs each season. Son of a Welsh hockey international, he won his cricket Blue at Cambridge and appeared in nine test matches for England.

Blonde Ivy Benson, vivacious leader of an all girl's dance band that rates among the best outfits in Britain, hit eight runs as the band defeated a local girls' cricket team at Morecambe, Lancashire, by one run. Miss Benson, who recently entered the greyhound racing field by buying a couple of fast dogs, was aided by her ace trumpet player, Twiggy Birch, who handles a cricket bat almost as well as the post-horn when she gives out on "The Post-Horn Gallop".

BOAT-HOUSE OWNER LIFEGUARD ON SIDE.

Vancouver (CP)—Rescuing young yachtsmen from English Bay has become a routine job for Frank Fraser, boat-house operator. Frank estimates his rescue list totals "somewhere around 200 persons" in the 18 years he has been running his boat-house.

"I've reached the point now that I sort of keep an eye on boats in the bay when I'm going about my word around the boathouse," Frank said.

When Earl McCready held the British Empire heavyweight wrestling crown he defended it in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. However, owing to war conditions "Whipper Billie" Watson has not had the opportunity to travel afar and match his ring prowess with other Empire grapplers. Of late Watson has not been as successful in his wrestling endeavors, being unable to pin Frank Sexton in two successive starts, one of which he lost. The wrestling experts are beginning to wonder if Watson has run out his string, but no doubt all of this will be answered at the Hume Arena tonight when he defends his Empire crown against the strong and rugged McCready. Added attractions include a bout between Ivan Rasputin, the mad Russian, and Carl Davis as well as a hot preliminary.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

Keep Dreaming

"I've decided what I'm going to do," said Edgar. "I'm going to find a nice little wife. I'll have a cosy home, well cooked meals, my slippers will be ready for me when I get home at night, my pipe will be handy, and peace and contentment will reign for the rest of my days. Don't you think it a great idea?"

"You never ought to marry, old chap," said his married friend.

"Why not?"

"Well, when a man has a beautiful dream like that he shouldn't run the risk of waking up."

He, Hum.

Holidays are just dandy, it's the return to the old mill that doesn't rub so well.

And that's doubly true after spending most of the time with the Toronto Sunday Morning Class girls' softball team at the world's softball championship tournament in Cleveland for over a week.

As guests of the "Classers" we took in the entire world softball tourney and travelling with a finer group of ladies couldn't be possible. T. E. Schwab, local girls' softball maestro, also made the trip, but "Ted" became "air-minded" and hopped a plane home midway through the tourney.

At this point we might say the Sunday Morning Class girls were not only the nattiest dressed, but the finest behaved team in the tournament and a credit to Toronto, their sponsor and Canada in general. It was a privilege to be associated with them.

As for the tournament, the "Classers" were eliminated in the semi-finals and even then on a split decision between the two umpires. However, the Toronto girls took their defeat in true Canadian sportsmanlike style, even though unbiased Cleveland fans, such as Stella Walsh the great athlete and others, admitted the "Classers" had been given the "business."

There was 13 teams in the girls' world tournament and a similar number in the men's tournament. The girls' championship was won by Portland, Oregon, while as repeaters the Hammer Field "Flyers" from Frensco, Cal., won the men's championship without being scored upon.

The American game of softball consists of ten men, the odd player being what's termed as a shortfielder, playing behind second base, which adds much to the defense of the game and tends to materially keep the score down. After seeing some eight or ten title games, aside from three major league ball games, we will attempt to compare the American game with the Canadian game at some future date. Actually the American game reminded us of the old Ottawa Senators' "kitty-bar-the-door" hockey style, purely a defensive game. But more later.

Around the Town.

Considerable sport activity has passed by the boards in the past two weeks and we find both our Junior and Intermediate softball teams in the thick of the O.A.S.A. championships..Harry Rollins announced today the Toronto Carlton-Belleville Squire junior saw-off game would be played at Riverside Park in Peterborough this afternoon at five..Softball fans tell us there never should have been the necessity of a third game, but the fact remains it's here....Surely by now the local Squires have learned never to discount any team in a provincial playdown....It's nothing short of suicidal....As for the SACO "Marines" they are in the Intermediate finals, but won't see any action before Oct. 7th., which seems like a rather late date for softball playdowns, even south of the border....Maybe they're going to compete with the world series... Fort Erie beat Sarnia in the first game of their semi-final round, which continues at the Tunnel Town come Saturday....But what if Sarnia ties the round up?....Then what happens to the Oct. 7th date, Convener Rollins?....Not satisfied with having the British Empire grappling title bout at the Market Street sports palace tonight, Promoter Frank Tunney added Ivan Rasputin, the mad Russian who thinks nothing of taking on a flock of grapplers in one performance.... However, the "one-man show" won't have things too easy against Karl "Meanie" Davis....Tilly Donihee's Reliance gals are going to try and windup the ladies softball finals and tack up their second league flag at the Armouries this evening commencing at 5.45, but the SACO gals have other ideas in the matter.... See where Bill Crawford, who slung a mean mitt as a boxer in his own right has lined up a galaxy of Oshawa mittmen to battle local leather-pushers at the arena this week.... It will seem like old times to see Howard Wheeler back in action, as Howard is action personified in the ring.

Remember When.

Babe Ruth, pitching his first major league game in nine years, hurled the New York Yankees to an easy 9-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox in an American League game 14 years ago today. The home-run king of baseball allowed 11 hits.

Then Max Schmeling (smelling to all now), former world's heavyweight boxing champion, stopped Mickey Walker in eight rounds at New York, 12 years ago last night. The same night at Chicago Max Baer—who became titleholder in June, 1934—pounded Tuffy Griffiths for seven rounds before the fight was stopped.

Annual Awards.

Sunday sees the wind-up of a grand season at the Belleville Golf Club. The club championships will be decided in the morning with a two-ball mixed foursome in the afternoon. Added surprises are awaiting the disciples of following the little white pill around the links and the day will conclude with the award of club championships and cup awards.

Collecting Paper...
To Speed the Victory
Twenty thousand tons of waste paper are needed every month for the use of our Armed Forces. It is made into paperboard for shell cases; containers for blood plasma, food and medical supplies. It goes into building boards; is used for interior fittings of aircraft cockpits and for bodies of ambulances, the component parts of small arms ammunition and shells, gaskets and gas masks. It is turned into newsprint for pamphlets dropped from planes or shot into enemy lines from guns.
As more territory is taken, the need of Paper grows. So don't wait. Gather your waste paper today. Have it ready when the Paper Salvage Collector calls.

AFTER THE WAR AIRPARK FOR PLANES

With everyone flying his own plane in the post-war years, space must be provided for landings and take-offs, near big cities' centres of business, if possible. Answer to this problem is the metropolitan airpark. Here, on an actual photo of a large city, is an artist's conception of an airpark within a block or two of the main business district. This park has two X-ed runways, each 300 by 2,000 feet. Estimated cost of these airparks runs from $25,000 to $50,000.

Horse Sense Bridge

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

First an expert tells us this. Then an expert tells us that. Thus we stay in dumbful bliss, never knowing where we're at.

A three bid (opening of three in a major suit) can have but one correct meaning. Its interpretation comes from the standard basic purpose given to jumps.

A one-jump shows strength without saying anything about length. A double-jump shows length and strength. A triple-jump shows length only. The signals apply in any spot.

An opening three bid is a double-jump starting bid. So, it shows length and strength. In length it has seven cards or more. In strength, it needs power in the suit and a cinch trick in some other suit.

The long-strong suit should be practically solid with not more than one loser in it. The cinch outside trick should be an ace or K Q. And such a hand should produce from seven to eight tricks.

Unfortunately for smooth bridge, experts got players all fussed about three bids. Besides changing their minds from year to year, they could not agree with each other or with themselves.

It got so that a bridge player never knew what would happen when he opened with a three bid. Or what kind of an answer partner expected when a three bid was used.

As he sat in any bridge game, he would say or hear: "What three bids do you use?" Or, "Let's not use three bids." Or, "I use the new (or old) three bid." Or, "I use two-way three bids."

Obviously, an expert who changes his mind every couple of years must be wrong somewhere along the line. And just as apparently, if you use the true basic meaning, you will be correct most often.

Clap your peepers on this hand:

♠A K J 10 8 4 2
♥None
♦A 9 5 4
♣Q 3

It is a typical opening of three spades. It has a practically solid suit. It has a sure trick outside. It counts eight tricks: four high cards, three short hearts, one short club.

Don't let some chameleon talk you out of it.

Sees Movies at 77 Says Here to Stay

A Newfoundland Port, Sept. 27 —(CP)—Mrs. Margaret Trico, 77-year old Newfoundlander born at Petty Harbour, has seen her first movie—and she thinks that the invention is here to stay.

Mrs. Trico's property adjoins a rest camp for sailors at Donovan's, eight miles from St. John's and Lieut. Harold Mitchel, R.C.N.V.R., of Regina and Toronto, special services officer at the camp, thought it would be a nice gesture to invite their popular neighbor to one of the tent-shows which are a regular feature of camp entertainment.

Mrs. Trico, a favorite with Canadian sailors at the rest camp, does a lot of washing and pressing for them.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for his appetite, and some man with no necktie on and holes in both shoes stopped going passed and said to pop, Mister, I haven't had a bite to eat since yesterday, and if you can spare the price of a cup of coffee I assure you I'll bless you for it and appriciate it, mister.

You'll need a lot of sugar in that cup of coffee to make up for not having eaten since yesterday, pop said, and man said, You said it, mister, so maybe you can even spare a little exter for a sanwitch, seeing as how you understand so well what I'm up against.

Brother, this is your big day, pop said.

And he gave him a whole half a dollar and we kept on going, me saying, G, pop, do you really think he didn't eat since yesterday?

On the contrary, pop said. I think he still had a half a hamberger sanwitch in his pocket with lots of ketchup that he was too full to swallow, and I think his clothes were stuffed with money, including his shoes, which probably explains why they were coming apart, he said. Then jimminy, pop, why did you give him a half a dollar?

Because yesterday another panhandler tried to touch me for a cup of coffee and I turned him down because he was better dressed than I was, and afterwards I had a hunch that he really was down and out, so to ease my conscience I slipped this other chap a half a dollar, pop said, and I said, But gosh, pop, then the guy that really needs it still hasn't got it and now the guy that has plenty has still more.

That's the way it usualy turns out in real life, so all we can do is shell out an occasional half dollar and hope for the best, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

CHAPTER 7

Christopher busied himself at the stove and Ann, seated at the kitchen table began counting out some mental arithmetic on her fingers. "How much is twenty-two-thirtieths of a hundred and ten?" she queried, when her eight fingers and two thumbs had failed her.

"Eighty dollars and sixty-seven cents," he replied after a few seconds of mental arithmetic. "Do you like Worcestershire sauce in the eggs?"

Ann nodded her whole-hearted approval. "And anchovies," she added.

He was enchanted. "Have we anchovies?"

"Nope. Nor Worcestershire either."

She wondered about this Mr. Christopher Wain. The small pieces of the jig-saw personality didn't fit, and didn't make a clear picture. He raised dogs and didn't look as if he was very successful at it; he liked Worcestershire on an egg; he knew how to figure like an adding machine, and he wore crepe-soled shoes which she detested. Withal, however, he was chaming. His voice was that of a gentleman, and his hands were really fine, with strong rounded nails and no signet ring. Somehow it seemed a part of dog business.

She folded the check. "I'll be back in a minute."

"Let me take it over for you. He might want to argue the matter or be nasty."

"You tend to the eggs, and I'll take care of Mr. Tompkins," she replied grimly. "And I like my bacon crisp."

Christopher stirred the eggs, in conflict. On the table beside him lay the open checkbook, and within him was consuming curiousity. Or was it curiousity? Part of his business in life was making sense out of people. Her generalship the night before in the Freund crisis was grotesquely at odds with the picture of a young woman violating ten traffic laws at one and the same time, and her mental arithmetic was in direct opposition to the clear thinking which enabled her to fire an ugly-tempered farmhand and take over his not inconsequential duties without batting an eye.

His indecision resolved into ignominious surrender. He moved to the table, and gave a smug grunt at what he saw. Very obviously Miss Ann Winters was a young woman who bogged down in the mysteries of a checkbook, for eighty dollars and sixty-seven cents subtracted from one hundred and eleven dollars and five cents did not leave forty dollars and forty-eight cents. Undoubtedly there would come a day when the bank would inform her that things were wrong to the extent of ten dollars and ten cents.

He felt like a very unpleasant person sticking his nose into other people's business, but as he couldn't feel any more unpleasant about it, he turned over the preceding stub and glanced at that, too. It wasn't a very difficult calculation. If she had her dates right, she had drawn twenty dollars to cash, sixteen days before. Not a very active account, he noted. The pictures made just a little to much sense to be ignored He let his gaze run out across the lawns to the meadows which filed away in neatly fenced squares to the distant woods. This was a pretty big show for a girl without capital to swing, he decided somberly, and she was coming up against a wall which was too high a jump for her to take.

The sharp insistent barking of a dog broke in on his thoughts. He knew his dog barks, and this one wasn't the idle vocalizing of a pup who hasn't anything else to do, nor was it the guarded welcome that a dog gives to a stranger. No. This was the deep throated announcement of displeasure that a Dane delivers himself of before he goes into action, and Christopher remembered with an anxious frown, that Rowena had trotted out after Ann.

He left the eggs to care for themselves, and started for the farmer's cottage. The door was open. He heard a man's hoarse shout of panic, and Ann's voice rising in importunate entreaty. "Down Rowena! Down Rowena!"

The dog had Tompkins cowering in a corner and was snarling at him with bared teeth. "Come here!" Christopher commanded. Rowena trotted to his side, meek as a lamb, and so did Ann. He had to smile and then he could see the realization in Ann's eyes of her automatic response.

She flushed angrily. "Rowena slipped her collar, that was all. You needn't have bothered." She adjusted the chain around the dog's neck, and Christopher could see that her hands were trembling.

"How did all this get started?" he asked sternly.

"The dog attacked me!" Tompkins burst out in a thick voice. "And I'm going to fill her full of lead!"

Christopher regarded the swollen, ugy face with contempt. "Get out of here or I'll finish what the dog began," he ordred in terms which even an enraged ruffian had to respect. The man's bluster wilted to a snivelling fear. It was plain that the dog might be the lesser of two evils.

"Did he get nasty?" Christopher demanded, as Tompkins beat a hasty departure, with his bags knocking against unsteady legs.

"Very," Ann admitted. She felt a catch in her throat. There was something about a man and a dog when they became protective that was hard to resist. It had been so long since she had had anyone to lean on, so long since anyone had offered to fight her battles for her. There was Tom, of course. But Tom didn't fight battles, he smoothed things over so that there'd be no battles. He'd have called the farmer, "My good man," for example, and have given him ten dollars extra to clear out of the place. I like the other way better Ann decided. More oomph!

The eggs had become a tan leather omelette in their absence but they ate it anyway, and unashamedly. Christopher dunked the heel of the bread into his steaming cup of coffee.

"Mind?" he queried.

"I'm not crazy about it but go ahead if you're having fun."

"Ever dunk yourself?"

"No, I don't like to get my hair wet."

She giggled foolishly. She hadn't giggled, really giggled, since her father's death. "What are you going to do now?" Christopher asked while he dried and she washed.

"I told you. Milk three cows, and feed nine horses."

"After that, though?"

"Find someone to care for the stock until I can dispose of it,and then go on about the business of selling the place. I should have sold the animals a long time ago, but I held on, hoping against reason that—" She didn't put her hopes into words. They had been forlorn and fruitless things, a sort of make-believe that time would bring its own solutions, and that somehow she could make enough money to hold things together.

Christopher held a glass to the light and squinted at it. "It's a bad time to sell property," he remarked.

"When you have to sell things, it's always a bad time to sell them." Ann spoke from life's recent and slightly bitter experience.

"Well, why don't you rent the place and let somebody else hold the responsibility until things perk up for you?"

"Oh, because there isn't anybody wanting to rent an establishment like this. It's a farm not a resort for three months of the year. And anyway, when you make a decision, a good clean cut is better than long drawn out tearing of things that go deep into you."

"That's true," Christopher conceded. "But maybe you don't have to do as much tearing as you think Someone is probably looking for just such a place as this. There's the right person for everything in life."

That was very close to a platitude from the lips of Christopher Wain, Ann decided. "Well, if there is, I haven't found him," she said shortly. "You'd better be getting on now."

"Where?"

"Wherever you were going when you didn't go there."

"Lady," he said, "this is where I was going, but I didn't know it. I'd be right proud to milk a cow or two for you, if I haven't forgotten how. And I've fed and bedded down a few horses in my time."

"I wouldn't dream of putting you out," said Ann.

Christopher smiled affably. "Then I'll stay," said he.

Ann found her milking stool somewhat precarious. It had three legs, and seemed to want to balance on only two of them. She had been fourteen when, under her father's amused audience and the farmer's tutelage, she had milked her last cow. Now she discovered that there was much in bovine technique that could be forgotten during a lapse of eight years. The milk, instead of pouring fulsomely into the pail before her, seemed to remain an unobtainable quantity within the cow. Also a cow's tail was a more important factor in milking than she remembered it to be. It swished incessantly, tickling her cheek, and on the off strokes whipping across her neck with the sting of a lash.

"This is definitely a three handed business," she concluded, as the cow seemed about to sit in her lap, and then, with an abrupt change of mind, planted one foot in the milk pail instead.

"Oh, such a nice Bossy," she ironically applauded.

There was a chuckle from the next stall, and the clap of an authoritative hand. Then silence, and the efficient oscillating sound of milk spattering into a pail. She was still struggling with the bossy's non-co-operative right hind leg, when the quick spurts of milk in Christopher's pail became ostentatiously foam-deadened.

His kind of efficiency was unbearable. "I suppose," she threw out in a cutting non sequitur, "that your driving record is absolutely clear, too. How come you didn't throw it up to me—the jam I got in today?"

"As a matter of fact," he confessed, "I almost got arrested myself this morning."

"For what?"

"Speeding."

"How fast were you going?"

"About a hundred an hour."

She snorted. "In what,"

"My car."

She snorted again.

"You don't blieve me," he said grievedly.

"I wouldn't believe you on a bet."

"But why not?" he asked her curiously.

"Don't be silly," she answered, woman-like. "Let's be quiet for a time." It was next to impossible to talk and milk togeter, a little like the game children play of patting their heads and rubbing circles over their tummies at the same time.

A thin stream played across her ankle. "Bad aim, sister," she muttered. But she was getting back to the knack of it. By this time, she was matching practically every hiss into Christopher's pail with one of her own.

"I hope you're properly impressed with the sounds you hear," she mentioned after a small silence.

"I am," he said. "And I'm even more impressed with the cows, who seem to have an endless supply of the richest looking milk I ever saw."

"My father believed only in blooded stock."

"Good for him!"

"That's why I've shied away from a wholesale exodus to the slaughter-house. Even the chickens are aristrocrats in their own way."

"Are there chickens, too?" Christopher asked.

"There'll probably be hundreds of eggs accumulated, what with Tompkins loafing most of the week."

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Christopher, "what a place for the Baron!"

"The Baron?"

STAGE BRIEF STRIKE

Perth, Ont., Sept. 27 —(CP)— Perth Collegiate students, numbering about 200, staged a brief strike yesterday, marching from the school in a body when it became known that the school would not be represented by its track team in the Lanark County intercollegiate track meet here Oct. 7. The students returned after E. M. Sabiston, chairman of the Board of Education, said the grievances would be looked into.

Hunter Victim Of Novel Accident

It may be that the wild ducks congregating around Prince Edward County are mounting armament in their wings, but the fact remains that Mr. J. P. Williams, Picton, was the victim of a novel accident the other day.

Mr. Williams was sitting in a boat in a cove down Black Creek way. Two other hunters were downstream. Twenty yeards out flying toward Williams came a flock of ducks. Trusty shotguns roared. A duck fell dead in front of Williams, but at the same time a shotgun pellet struck him in the forehead, (he forgot to "duck") passing through his heavy felt hat, narrowly missing the eye, and embedding itself in the skin.

Examination of the duck revealed no wing or turret cannon, so it is presumed the pellet ricocheted from the flying dinner.

MOSTLY FIST FIGHTS

Winnipeg, Sept. 27 —(CP)— The Winnipeg Tribune said yesterday "clashes" have occurred between general service troops and members of defence units stationed at Camp Shilo, Man., in the last few weeks. Most of the clashes had been fist fights, the paper said.

Over the past 25 years, taxicab drivers have the lowest per car accident rate of any group of drivers in the country. One of the reasons why they have fewer accidents is that they never fool around with faulty brakes. If your brakes are not in 100% working order, drive in today. Have them relined or adjusted.

Italian Fleet Was Held At Bay by 3 Warships

(By ALAN RANDAL)
(C.P. Staff Writer)

London (CP) — Early in 1942 three British cruisers, the Naiad, Dido and Euryalus were all that stood between Mussolini and domination of the Mediterranean.

In fact, it can be said, Mussolini really had domination of the Mediterranean and didn't know it, or at least make any attempt to use it, because against this handful of British ships under Rear Admiral P. L. Vian, the Italians had five or six battleships, eight-inch gun cruisers and a number of fresh destroyer flotillas.

This story is told in "The Mediterranean Fleet," the Admiralty's account of naval operations from April, 1941, to January, 1943, which continues the story of the Royal Navy begun in "East of Malta, West of Suez," and is written by Paymaster Capt. Lewis Ritchie, otherwise known as "Bartimeus."

The story records the succession of British reverses in action including the evacuation of Greece and Crete and it discloses that the cruiser York was torpedoed in Suda Bay, Crete, by a one-man dinghy which penetrated the defences at high speed.

During this period the 14th. Destroyer Flotilla attacked an enemy convoy of five merchant ships with an escort of three destroyers bound for Tripoli. In an action which the captain of the destroyer Jervis dismissed as "a skirmish off Sfax," the British ships sank all the enemy and lost one of their own.

Severe Losses

A month later the destroyer Greyhound was sunk in four minutes after an attack by eight dive bombers. And while the Germans were machine-gunning the survivors, the cruiser Gloucester was set on fire and the cruiser Fiji was sunk by bombs.

Then came the Axis attack on Crete and the fleet battled to stop a seaborne landing and prevented German convoys reaching the island. At one sweep they sank ships with 4,000 Germans aboard but in the end the Allied troops had to be evacuated and again it was the Navy's job.

From Crete, so this booklet recounts, a force of 140 Royal Marines, after fighting a rearguard action across the island, left in an abandoned landing craft with sails made of blankets. They had no navigational instruments and landed in Africa after ten days, having had to "wear" ship by jumping overboard and pushing the bows round.

Another phase of navy action in this period was the work of the famous "inshore squadron" which carried supplies to the beleaguered garrison of Tobruk and in the end took off and replaced the whole Tobruk garrison.

The word "TRUST" is sometimes associated with the idea of "combines" or "monopolies"; and there are people who think that the business of a Trust Company has to do with controlling, in some mysterious way, great so-called "trusts" for the benefit of powerful vested interests.

Such a notion is as harmful as it is absurd but doubtless, in the course of time, this myth will be completely dispelled as the real nature of Trust Company services and their true value to people in all walks of life come to be more widely understood and appreciated.

Canteen Luxuries Prove Welcome To Canuck in France

By MARGARET ECKER
(C.P. War Correspondent)

With 1st. Canadian Army in France (CP) — Canadian reinforcements were landing in Normandy. They were coming off the floating dock and toiling up a road with their packs on their backs.

They plodded over the ridge, and when they looked down into the little hollow below they broke into a grin and walked a little faster. In the leeside of the ridge was the Y.M.C.A. canteen where men and women in grey uniforms were serving cups of tea, biscuits, and selling cigarettes, soap, razor blades.

"This is the first cup of tea I've had since we reached France and I'm sure glad to get it," said Pte. Ford Perry of Vancouver, as Mrs. Nora Eastwood served him.

There wasn't much room in the canteen and as she shuttled back and forth getting what the boys wanted it was a bit of an obstacle race. "But I love it," said the trim, grey-haired woman. "I've always been interested in Canada even if I've never been there. I used to write for the Toronto Star."

When the boys got their tea they stood around and talked. "This is the first time I've been in the field," said Peter Chartrand of Herb Lake, Man., and Montreal. "It's what I've been waiting for for a long time. I hope we go right up to the front."

"Say, how much is a franc?" put in Pte. Ed. Walton of Carroll's Landing, near Trail, B.C., as he fumbled in his first roll of French money.

"I'm glad to see France, but I'd like to see Calgary more," said Pte Dave Downie of Calgary. "This country looks like the foothills."

When we left the canteen, which is a large, kitchen-equipped truck, the boys were still coming over the hill and queuing up for a cup of tea and a bar of soap.

Converted Convent

Down the winding road, through Ryes where men snipers harassed the Canadians, we came to Sommervieu, and a group of buildings which for centuries have known the extremes of war and the peace of a religious life and selfless service to others.

One building is now the headquarters of the council of Voluntary War Work, under which the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., Salvation Army, Toc H, Catholice Women's League and other church groups carry on welfare work among the men of the Allied nations in France.

Centuries ago some forgotten French baron founded the establishment as a moated chateau, later it became a convent and a seminary, with tiny white chapel. When the Germans came, S.S. officers clanked about where nuns once trod, and now, under swastikas, portraits of Hitler painted on the walls, and such slogans as "There must be no other end but the termination of England," the Y.M.C.A. plans and provisions such morale building canteens as the one we saw on the beaches.

Mrs. Olive Sherington, a striking grey-haired Australian who is well known in Canada, was directing the provisioning of a canteen for Bayeux. "There are many Canadian soldiers there who have no canteen," she said.

In 1940 she was in France driving an ambulance. Her bravery in bringing wounded out of France five days after the capitulation earned her mention in dispatches.

"I lost my sense of security then, but the moment I came back to France I regained it," she said.

Marines Advance To Within Mile Tip of Pelelieu Is.

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 27 (AP) — Marines by-passed strong Japanese hill positions on Peleliu and advanced to within a mile of the island's northern tip yesterday as the enemy death toll for the Palau campaign rose to 8,288.

Silence cloaked movements of the US. 3rd. fleet from which carrier planes smashed objectives in the Philippines last week. American confirmation was still lacking of Japanese-reported attacks on Manila and the central Philippines, Friday and Saturday (U.S. time.)

Southwest Pacific bombers continued to patrol the southern Philippines, and one of them contributed one of the war's most unusual feats. A lone Catalina flying boat destroyed a seaplane tender and two destroyer escort in Davao Gulf with four bombs in a single bombing run.

Other southwest planes sank a 10,000 ton Japanese tanker and damaged a 3,000-ton freighter in Dutch Celebes.

Gregory Clark's Son Is Killed

Toronto, Sept. 26 (CP)—Lieut. Murray Clark 23, a member of one of Toronto's best-known newspaper families, was killed in action with the Canadian army between Boulogne and Calais Sept. 17, it was made known today.

Lieut. Clark was a son of Gregory Clark, Toronto Star war correspondent. His grandfather, Joseph T. Clark, was editor of the Star at the time of his death in 1937. His uncle, J. W. G. Clark, is director of Public Relations for Canada's armed services. Murray himself left the Star in 1942 to enlist.

Surviving are his parents, a brother, Gregory, with the R.C.A.F. at Yorkton, Sask., and a sister, Elizabeth.

Argue Women's Place In Shipbuilding Work

Vancouver Labor Divided on Recognition of Sex Equality in Dismissals

Vancouver (CP) — Now that shipbuilding has passed its wartime peak and lay-offs are bound to come in increasing numbers the question of the moment is—who will be the first to go? The men or the women?

Labor in Vancouver is sharply divided on the question. One group demands that "equality of sex" be recognized in dismissals. Others claim there is no such thing as equality of sex in industry, arguing that women are physically unable to pull their weight in heavy industries.

"Women are in industry because of shortage of manpower in industry," said Bert Adair, of the Amalgamated Electrical Workers' Union. "Women can't work on equality with men. They can only lift certain weights in the yards."

Meanwhile officials of the Dock and Shipyard Workers' Union (C.C.L.) protested against statements made by Miss Eleanor S. Morley, manager of the women's section of the Vancouver employment office.

Miss Morley said that women had expressed themselves as happy to have had an opportunity to work in industry when needed and felt no resentment about being paid off.

"Our union takes the view that this is a violation of the principles of organized labor which do not make a distinction on basis of sex, but defend the right of equal pay for equal work; and equal employment opportunities for men and women alike," said W. J. Robson, president of the Dock and Shipyard Workers' Union.

"Contrary to her (Miss Morley) statement women workers deplore the fact that marital status has been the basis of discriminatory termination notices," Mr. Robson said.

Cautions Australians Against Hope Japs Will Soon Crack Up

Washington, Sept. 26. (AP)—Australian troops, cautioned by their commander in chief against any hope that Japan will crack soon after Germany's fall, were told today that in New Guinea and the Solomons alone some 90,000 by-passed enemy troops still must be eliminated.

Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, deputy allied commander in the Southwest Pacific, made the assertion in a broadcast speech, a summary of which was released here by the Australian Army Information Service.

All the powers concerned, Gen Blamey added, "agree that the Japanese conquests must be wrested from them. We cannot do that by . . . wishfully thinking that Japan must throw in the sponge because its Allies in the Europaan mainland thousands of miles away have been or will be defeated".

Cpl. Cambu Does Tricks With Nip Bombs

From The Australian News Letter

(Cpl. Cambu, Solomon Island police boy, had experienced many raids and knew the Japs dropped an occasional delayed-action bomb. He had seen and heard these bombs "bruk bihain" (explode afterwards), killing and wounding natives nearby.)

After a recent raid Cambu was missing for quite a while. He told his story when he reported back to a forward base.

He had taken cover when the Jap planes had come over, but he had seen some of the bombs fall into the sea. Six had fallen near or in his village area. "Palbpela" (five) had exploded, but "sikispela" (the sixth) had not.

He had counted the detonations on his fingers.

Cambu called the village together after the raid and explained that one bomb was somewhere in the village, "strong, no bruk" (alive and unexploded). He asked for volunteers to help find it and take it away. Two natives came forward, and he ordered the remainder, with their womenfolk, to "go bush" for safety.

The trio searched the area, and found the bomb embedded in three feet of coral.

Cambu's volunteer helpers took one look at the bomb and bolted.

Cambu went into a hunt and got a spade to unearth the bomb, then decided that it was too dangerous to use. So he sat down and carefully and laboriously removed all the coral by hand.

By this time the natives had returned to the village, and Cambu again asked for a volunteer to help him carry the bomb away from the village into the bush. But the other natives were too frightened.

He carefully lifted the bomb out of the hole and carried it in his arms to the bush, away from the village.

Sitting down at a safe distance, he awaited developments.

When nothing happened after an hour or more he went and put his ear to the bomb. Finding there was "no nus" (no noise) from inside, he decided that he ought to take the bomb to a lieutenant at a naval station on the island.

Getting the bomb into a canoe for a two hours' paddling voyage was difficult, but keeping the bomb from rolling overside in a choppy sea was his real problem.

Finally he lashed the bomb to the hull and tied one end of the rope on to his right foot with a long lead. This, he explained, was in case the bomb fell overside.

By having one end tied to his foot he said, he could pull the bomb aboard again.

The R.A.N. lieutenant thanked Cambu when he arrived at the station bearing the bomb in his strong arms, and told him to place the bomb along bush for examination.

Then Cambu was invited to explode it from safe range with a machine-gun. Cambu was delighted, and blazed away until the bomb went up with a terrific roar.

He indicated the size of the "bigpela hul" (a hole 15 feet by 6 feet).

"Weren't you frightened, Cambu, when you knew the bomb was 'strong'?" he was asked later.

"Yes," said Cambu, simply.

WAR MAY CONTINUE INTO 1945--CHURCHILL
ALLIED DRIVE MAY TRAP 200,000 GERMANS

German Losses Nearly 1,000,000 Men Since D-Day

Up to 3,000,000 Allied Men on Western Front

(By JOHN F. CHESTER, AP STAFF WRITER)

London, Sept. 28 —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill warned the House of Commons today that, despite German losses approaching the 1,000,000-mark in northwest Europe, the war might still continue into 1945.

He indicated that he considered a new three-power meeting to include Premier Marshal Stalin was essential before revelation of peace plans.

Opening a two-day war and peace debate, the Prime Minister made these points, among others:

1. That perhaps 200,000 Germans are now trapped in Holland and their capture or destruction appeared "highly probable."

2. That German losses in France, Belgium and Holland since D-Day can now be placed officially at 400,000 killed and wounded, with nearly 500,000 more as prisoners.

3. That Allied losses during the same period now stand at 90,000 British and 145,000 Americans killed, wounded or missing.

4. That "no one—certainly not I—can guarantee that several months of 1945 may not be required to finish off Germany."

5. That even after organized resistance ceases, fierce warfare may still be carried on in the German hills and mountains "by numbers of desperate men conscious of their own guilt and impending doom."

6. That the Allies now have landed between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 troops in northwestern Europe, and that nearly 250,000 men rushed ashore during the first 24 hours of the invasion.

7. That "complete agreement on every point" was reached between himself and President Roosevelt at the Quebec conferences.

8. That the British fleet had been offered for the war against Japan and the offer "cordially accepted"—with much of Britain's naval strength already gathered in the Indian Ocean.

9. That the 10 Japanese divisions which were launched against India have been largely shattered, with between 50,000 and 60,000 slain, but that a new enemy offensive can be expected with the ending of the monsoon.

10. That Britain will support Russia in demanding territorial changes in the Polish frontier to give Russia "the security she is entitled to have."

11. That the Big Three are united on a "more close and more effective" basis than ever before, but Marshal Stalin must sit down with the heads of the British and American governments as soon as the military situation permits in order that the big decisions of the peace can be agreed upon.

Deplores Undue Optimism

"I deprecate very much people being carried away into premature expectations of an early cessation of the fighting," he declared in a full-dress report on the Quebec Conference and the war in general.

"I shall certainly not hazard a guess as to when the end will come. Many persons of the highest technical attainment and knowledge and responsibility have good hopes that it will all be over by the end of 1944. On the other hand no one—certainly not I — can guarantee that several months of 1945 may not be required."

Of Polish-Russian differences the Prime Minister said Britain would do her utmost to obtain for Russia "the security she is entitled to have on her west front" and that he expected Poland to have her national sovereignty and independence restored.

He said that there would have to be changes on the frontier and "Russia has a right to our support in this matter."

Looking to peace, Mr. Churchill said it was essential that Premier Marshal Stalin join with the heads of the British and United States governments in a new meeting as soon as the military situation permitted.

Just before he ended the hour-long initial portion of his speech and the House adjourned for luncheon until 2 p. m., the Prime Minister added:

Guerilla Warfare Possible

"There is also the possibility that after the organized resistance of the German state and army is completely broken fierce warfare may be maintained in the forests and mountains of Germany by numbers of desperate men conscious of their own guilt and impending doom.

"We don't consider that the declared date of the ending of the war against Germany must necessarily be postponed until the last desperado has been tracked down in his lair."

The Prime Minister said the Allied invasion of Europe had cost Germany nearly 1,000,000 men killed, wounded and captured and said:—"There may well be 200,000 of them in the coastal fortresses of Holland whose destruction or capture may now be deemed highly probable."

Allied forces in northwestern Europe have swelled to between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 men, he said.

235,000 Allied Losses.

British forces have suffered 90,000 casualties in France, he declared, while American losses in killed, wounded and missing, including those in southern and northern France, have risen to 145,000.

British troops in Europe, he added, are now in proportion of two for every three Americans.

Cheeed loudly as he entered the House, Mr. Churchill opened his report by remarking on the swift change in the war picture during the period parliament was in recess.

"What a transformation now meets our eye," he said. "The foul enemy who for four years inflicted cruelties and oppression had fled, losing 400,000 in killed and wounded and leaving in our hands nearly half a million prisoners."

This was the first official disclosure that German losses in France, Belgium and Holland are close to 1,000,000 men.

The Prime Minister praised American and Canadian advances in Erope as a "model of the military art" and an example of "the propriety of running risks." British advances, he added had not been surpassed anywhere.

GERMAN POSITION AROUND RIGA ALMOST HOPELESS

Troops Attempting To Withdraw Are Subject To Withering Fire Along Coastal Road

NEARING HUNGARY

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 28 —(AP)— Soviet military analysts described as "strategically hopeless" today the position of German troops attempting to withdraw from the Latvian port of Riga along a hotly-strafed coastal road.

The Russian drive, enveloping an additional 200 Latvian settlements yesterday, approached close to Riga on the northeast. The German command decided apparently to move the bulk of its troops out of the Riga pocket, rather than risk entrapment by a possible Russian break-through west of the Latvian capital.

Front dispatches told of rear-guard actions outside Riga and heavy enemy movements westward of the Tukums Road leading to western Lithuania and East Prussia.

Meanwhile other Red army forces, outflanking the key Uzok Pass through the Carpathian mountains, reached the soil of eastern Slovakia. The decisive moment seemed near for the 4th Ukrainian army, led by Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov, to crack the tough German and Hungarian defence zone along the crest of the Carpathians in that sector.

Win High Ground.

Petrov's command, which includes units of the 1st Czechoslovak army, won dominating high ground along the border six miles west of Uzok Pass with an advance beyond the village of Wolosatojoe.

(A Moscow broadcast heard in London Monday said Russian forces were reported to have penetrated 25 miles into Czechoslovakia through Lupkow Pass, northwest of Uzkow Pass, and captured Hummene.)

The Arad Line, which the Hungarians have been building since 1939, extends in depth to the southern slopes of the Carpathians, and there was no attempt by the Russians to minimize the stiff struggle faced by Petrov.

The Red army's main thrust has been beyond the western extremity of the Hungarian fortifications, and is designed to establish a solid juncture with patriot resistance forces in central Slovakia.

The Russian command was silent on the progress of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's campaign to invade Hungary across her south-eastern plains, but it was asserted his drive will be co-ordinated with the fighting in eastern Slovakia. The over-all strategy is to clamp a pincers on Hungary and cut off forces holding northern Transylvania.

Along Malinovsky's immediate objectives was the Hungarian oil field at Tot Komlos, less than 20 miles from the Romanian frontier.

((German reports said Red army forces have already made a 10-mile penetration into Hungary from the Arad area of Romania.)

Bombing Destruction in Germany Used as Lessons Against Japanese

Washington, Sept. 28 — (AP) — German surrender will open Germany as a class-room for an advanced course in how to batter Japan from the air.

The lessons will be those which the Germans are getting from Anglo-American Bombers day after day, the damage being offered as exhibits in how the job could have been done better — if it could have been.

By co-ordinating their reports on damage with the amount and disposition of explosives and incendiaries by the bombers, lessons in destruction are being sent home for use in planning and training for future assaults.

More bad news for Japan is that the United States, having passed up the kind of flying bombs tossed at England by the Germans in favor of development on a broader scale, is driving at a controlled bomb which would have a maximum of effectiveness.

The German flying bombs travelled in a straight line at low and medium altitude. This made them subject to ground fire in addition to attacks by fast fighter planes.

A high-flying manoeuvrable bomb would be extremely difficult for both anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes.

DEAD JAPS KNOCKED OUT BY PACIFIC INVASION TROOPS

Mute evidence of the fierce struggle that ensued near Peleliu airport in the Palaus, Pacific area, are these knocked-out Japanese tanks and the dead men who operated them. Eight of 12 of these enemy tanks were destroyed by Cpl. Edward E. Brooks, of Washington, D.C., turret gunner in a Sherman medium tank.

CANADIAN TROOPS TAKE BELLARIA NORTH OF RIMINI

Americans Also Seize Mount Carnevale Lost in Counter-Attack

NEARING BOLOGNA

Rome, Sept. 28—(CP)—Canadian troops of the British 8th Army have taken Bellaria, eight miles north-west of Rimini while American forces of the Allied 5th Army have occupied Castel Del Rio, about 15 miles south of Imola, Allied headquarters said today.

Regaining the heights lost in a fierce Nazi counter-attack two days ago, the Americans also seized Mount Carnevale, southeast of Castel Del Rio.

British and Dominion troops in the Adriatic sector enlarged their bridgehead over the Rubicon to a two-mile depth over a 10-mile front and closed in on the town of Savignano.

On the Adriatic sector Canadian troops captured Bellaria, a small seaside town which was found in possession of Italian patriot forces.

Other 5th Army troops in the central sector occupied Castiglione Dei Peipoli and Bruscoli, five miles due east. Both are approximately 29 miles south of Bologna, with Castiglione on a main highway leading directly to the big Italian city.

Advancing northwest from Sant' Arcangelo, British troops moved to within 1,000 yards of Savignano, which the Nazis were defending strongly. Breaking through bitter opposition the British also reached within a mile of Mont Albano, on the crest of a ridge running north to Savignano.

Fifth Army troops on the west coast sector captured Qherceta, six miles south of the important town of Messa, and Vallecchia, east of Querceta, despite stubborn resistance and intense artillery fire.

Airborne Landings Made in Holland Says Nazi Radio

London, Sept. 28. (CP) — The German radio said today that new Allied airborne landings were made this morning in Holland.

The Transocean News Agency broadcast quoted Hitlers' headquarters as saying the landings were along the Nijmegen-Bois De Duc Highway.

"The Allied High Command is straining every effort to widen the Nijmegen corridor on its western flank with the utmost speed", said Transocean.

The Agency asserted "this attempt has failed so far", and said "the Germans have launched counter-measures against the newly-landed airborne troops with lightning speed".

Bois DLe Duc (Hertogenbosch) is 27 miles southwest of Nijmegen and 20 miles north of Eindhoven.

Of activity in the Antwerp-Turnhout area Transocean said:

"Most significant are the German counter-attacks carried out during the last 48 hours, which have narrowed down the Canadian bridgeheads at Rejkevorsel and Turnhout. Street fighting took place in both towns last night and the Canadians were beaten back to the south".

RUSSIAN FORCES IN YUGOSLAVIA GERMAN REPORT

Cross Danube River West of Iron Gate at Romanian Frontier

MOSCOW SILENT.

London, Sept. 28 —(CP)— Russian troops have invaded Yugoslavia after crossing the Danube just west of the Iron Gate at the Romanian frontier town of Orsova, the German communique made known today.

In the Danube bend, there was lively reconnoitering activity on both sides of the Iron Gate," said the official war bulletin, broadcast from Berlin. "Soviet forces who have advanced south from Orsova in a southern direction were repulsed and enemy formations who had crossed the Danube were smashed."

Orsova is on the river frontier and only Yugoslov territory lies to the south. Moscow has not yet confirmed an incursion into the territory where Marshal Tito's Partisan army operates, but weeks ago told officially of reaching the Iron Gate—the wild mountain canyons through which the Danube courses through the Transylvanian Alps.

The Germans asserted that several thousand prisoners were taken in Warsaw and that another segment of Lt.-Gen. Tadeusz (Bor) Komorowski's underground army surrendered.

Offensive Wedge Within 25 Miles Of Closing Gap

American Power Drive Heads East of Aachen

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 28 — (AP) — The Allies' Nijmegen lifeline widened today into an offensive wedge which was within 25 miles of walling off in western Holland perhaps 200,000 Germans who may be added to the nearly 1,000,000 already written out of the Battle of Western Europe.

But the loss of the Allies only bridgehead across the Rhine at Arnhem in Holland by British First Airborne Division troops, whose 2,000 remnants trickled back through the corridor, apparently had dispelled hopes of a quick victory over Germany. Prime Minister Churchill advised the House of Commons that the war in Europe might well continue into 1945.

U. S. Forces Lose Toe-Hold

The Germans threw U. S. 3rd Army troops out of their hard-won toe-hold at the entrance to the moat-ringed fort of Driant which guards the west-bank approaches to Metz on the Moselle. The Nazis declared they also had smashed a bridgehead across the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal west of the Nijmegen corridor.

Against these reverses, U. S. 1st Army forces burst through the pill-box-studded six-mile-wide Hurigen forest, 14 miles southeast of besieged Aachen, in a powerful effort to tear open the blocked way to Cologne.

First Canadian Army troops, wearing "Mae West" lifejackets, attacked through the canal lines around Calais on the channel coast. They worked across the western flats into the factory area, converted into a stronghold, toward the port district.

Increasing in Force

Almost everywhere, the Germans said, the Allied attack was increasing in force, from Western Holland to the Belfort Gap.

They admitted the loss of positions in a "heavy fluctuating battle against far superior forces" east of Lure, 15 miles west of Belfort, said strong Allied attacks had started from the Nancy area in a northern direction, and declared new airborne forces had been flung against Shertogenbosch, a scant 10 miles ahead of the British push west from the Nijmegen corridor.

A big gun duel around Metz, the Germans added, was deepening in a prelude to a full American attack on that great fortress.

Costly Counter-Attacks.

The Germans poured in five counter-attacks, one six miles west of Metz near Gravelotte and two at Coincourt and Bezange nine to 11 miles northeast of Luneville south of Nancy, the Supreme Headquarters communique announced. They withered under intense American fire which cost the enemy heavily.

Northeast of Nancy, too, the Germans counter-attacked twice and were repulsed.

It was disclosed that most of the 800 Polish paratroops and British Dorsetshire infantrymen who crossed the Dutch Rhine to aid the withdrawal of the exhausted remnant of the British 1st Airborne Division also had escaped to the south bank.

The British press, still ringing with the praise of the lost division's epic fight for a cross-Rhine foothold, described it not as a defeat—but as a "glorious failure."

"It was a gamble to force a quick end to the war," said The Daily Express. "It nearly succeeded, and it was always worth trying."

88 Hun Planes Lost.

The Luftwaffe again was thrown in strength into the fight—and Allied fighters whittled it down by at least 88 planes in a single day.

British fighters accounted for 47 of the German planes in combats which streaked the clearing skies over Holland. American fighters downed 36 more and destroyed five on the ground in western Germany.

Allied losses in the dogfights were 16 fighters, and Supreme Headquarters said 42 Allied bombers also were missing.

Although Allied sources avoided applying the label of defeat to loss of the Arnhem bridgehead by the airborne army, the reverse tended to lessen hopes of a quick victory over Germany.

A winter campaign appeared in prospect.

Merchant Shipping To Be Used Six Months After War

Ottawa, Sept. 28 — (CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon today announced the signing in London of an agreement between United Nations, including Canada, providing for continued collaboration in the use of merchant shipping for six months after the war.

Under new machinery provided for in the agreement, shipping control bodies will be set up when "general hostilities" in Europe end. They will implement principles which will remain in effect until six months after the suspension of hostilities in Europe or the Far East whichever is the later, unless terminated or modified earlier by unanimous agreement.

Shipping authorities interpreted the agreement as ensuring that disorganization in international shipping would be prevented when peace came. Practically all United Nations seagoing vessels now are under government control and are part of a shipping pool employed as war needs dictate.

Tourist Centres in Canadian Arctic In Post-War Days Are Seen Possible

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 28. (CP)—Stories of life in the Canadian Arctic and opinions on the possibility of developing post-war tourist centres in the north have been brought here by Dr. L. D. Livingstone, for 23 years the Federal government's medical officer in the sub-Arctic.

Dr. Livingstone, who returned to Ottawa this week, told how Eskimos were becoming rich as a result of the good price for furs and he said he believed that Aklavik will become a tourist centre after the war.

"It is quite common for an Eskimo to make $5,000 a year", said Dr. Livingstone, who travelled about doctoring Eskimos and Indians from Baffin Island to Aklavik, the community which lies just below the Arctic circle and to the south of where the Mackenize River empties into the Arctic Ocean.

"It was in the community last Christmas that D. Livingstone encountered the most serious epidemic in all his northern experience.

The Roman Catholic and Anglican hospitals were soon filled to capacity, taking in almost 100 'flu patients. There were another 200 ill and, with no beds available, the best that could be done was keep them in their sleeping bags on the floors of the government building and the frame houses of residents.

Five nurses and the men and women in the community helped with the nursing.

"Fortunately we had plenty of sulpha drugs", Dr. Livingstone said.

Only 12 persons died.

The police merely desired to break the long trip and secured the men here while resting. They were travelling by motor car.

"Butch" Just Doesn't Like The Police

For the want of a better name, he shall be called "Butch".

He is a white bull terrier, a man's dog, and his favorite morning diversion, and for that matter at any time, is fraternising with little groups of airmen who congregate at the corner of Coleman and Bridge Streets waiting for transportation to Mountain View or Picton.

They play with him and sometimes feed him. And "Butch" shows his appreciation by performing his tricks, and wagging his tail with the rapidity of a machine-gun coughing bullets at a Nazi pocket.

But "Butch" has a certain trait. He doesn't like policemen. Show him a cosmopolitan collection of human males, dressed in civilian clothes, the blue of the air force, the navy blue or the army khaki, and 'Butch's' tail will wag his delight. Put a policeman in the line-up and the bulldog's hackles will rise like last war prices, and deep growls will emanate from somewhere down the canine gullet.

Some hardhearted householder termed "Butch" a nuisance, and told police why. The air force doesn't think so, neither do the many residents with whom he has made friends.

"Butch" got "wise". His instincts told him that the blue-coated limbs of the law mean no good when they approach him with candied words and cajoling gestures. He backs away, growls and seeks the solace of an armed services or civilian friend.

To date he has eluded the sweet-worded invitations of the police to enter a discussion as to his immediate future. He warily casts an eye policewards when they approach, and continues to shadow his air force friends.

It isn't likely he will be trapped by police smiles and invitations to lunch at the city dog pound.

GARAGE OPERATORS HEAR DETAILS ON 48-HOUR WEEK

The regular monthly meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators was held early this week at the Masonic Temple club rooms with Mr. Jim Reid, manager of the provincial association being the guest speaker. He gave the 30 local members present up-to-date information on the 48-hour week as it affects the automotive business and spoke briefly on compulsory mechanics certificates.

According to Mr. Reid all automotive retail stores, including service stations and tire retailers come under the order limiting workers to 48 hours each week. The only branch of the automotive trade not affected by the order is the repair garages, which will come under the ruling as soon as the labor supply become more plentiful.

President of the local organization, Mr. Don Brown presided over the meeting. Lunch was served before the members dispersed.

Mrs. Gordon Blue, Two Children Carried to Safety

Trapped by dense clouds of smoke in their home over the grocery store at the corner of North Front and East Moira Streets, Mrs. Gordon Blue and two children, 3 and 9 years of age were brought to safety early this morning by city firemen as flames attempted to gain headway in the upstairs apartment.

The fire was later brought under control with some damage done to the building and contents, mostly by smoke.

Cal Calvert, transport driver, was returning to his home on Harriet Street, when he noticed smoke pouring from a window. He rushed to the side of the house and heard a woman screaming. A minute later Mrs. Blue called him from an upstairs window, stating that she and her two children were trapped by heavy smoke.

"You can't get in and we can't get out. Please run and get the firemen" she asked. Calvert raced to the fire station and firemen promptly responded, bringing the family to the street by means of ladders.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, is believed by firemen to have started under the hallway and near the basement. There was no fire in the furnace at the time, and no electric wiring in the immediate vicinity. Heavy smoke rolling up the stairway effectively trapped the sleeping family.

Two men, one a soldier, Private Wayne MacDonald, Hamilton and a civilian Harry Browne, also stated they heard cries, and rushed to the building. They smashed windows with their fists incurring lacerated hands, which were later treated at the hospital, after they reported the incident to city police officials.

City firemen made a second call to the Blue Grocery store at 8:30 a.m., when a small blaze broke out in a joist. It was quickly extinguished.

Picton Fair Offers Good Purse for Racing

Picton, Sept. 28 — Given good weather, Picton Fair, which opens Friday and continues through Saturday night, should prove one of the most successfull in years. This year the board has included horse racing both days, offering $1,000 in purses and $100 in special prizes for drivers. Several horses which have been campaigning in the United States are expected here today.

Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., officially opens the fair Friday afternoon following a parade of airmen and air women from Picton and Mountain View headed by the Trenton R.C.A.F. band.

In keeping with the times, there will be many displays of war work. School children of the county will have their own fair.

Secretary R. C. Hubbs stated that entries were far in excess of last year and that many new features promised to be popular.

Hydro Restrictions Lifted in Belleville

The Belleville Public Utilities Commission received the official "green light" today and on Sunday, Oct. 1st, all restrictions in connection with the use of electric power and energy provided for the purpose of saving power for war purposes will be discontinued in the city and district under jurisdiction of the Commission.

The official communication authorizing the lifting of the power curtailments was received from the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Consumers of electric energy should be given to understand, the communication stated, that while available supplies of power may be sufficient for the present needs, there is still a shortage of materials and labor which may continue for some time.

Certain types of electrical appliances and equipment may not be available and shortage of labor may delay, in some instances, the supplying of electric service for new uses, or in returning to service equipment discontinued because of regulations of the power Commission.

Apropos of the lifting of the restrictions, city merchants and theatrical managements have been readying lighting facilities that have lain dormant since restrictions came into force in Sept. 1942. The greater majority will once more flash advertising and show window lights.

Rev. H. O. Eastman Given Warm Welcome By Former Congregation

Collingwood—The congregation of the First Baptist Church marked its seventy-first anniversary on Sunday when the members, joined by many others engaged in special services of great value and interest.

The special preacher for the occasion, was a former pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman, who three years ago moved to Belleville, where he is continuing with full effect the splendid ministry and leadership which he gave to Collingwood during the fourteen years he was a citizen here. His sermons were forceful and were heard with undivided attention by a large number of people in attendance.

As part of the services, morning and evening, the choir of twenty voices made a very fine contribution, under the direction of Miss Iola Bristol, A.C.C.M., who presided at the organ. Mrs. W. Edward and Mr. Percy Cook sang a duet in the morning and Mrs. Clara Vancise, a solo in the evening. The choir also rendered two anthems, Miss Isabel Pickering singing the solo part of that in the evening.

Rev W. O. Bristol, pastor of the church, voiced deep appreciation of the return visit of Rev. Eastman, also the people of the town and surrounding country to unite with the congregation in extending him greetings.—Collingwood Enterprise-Bulletin.

Pte. G. Aylesworth Returns Home From Overseas

Twelve soldiers of Military District No. 3 who returned to their homeland on Monday aboard the British hospital ship Aba, arrived in Kingston on Wednesday.

Some of the men had their wounds swathed in bandages, others were in casts, grim reminders of bloody engagements on the battlefields of Europe.

Among those who returned were Private G. Aylesworth, 70 George Street, Belleville, who is now home after being cleared officially through the district depot, and Private L. L. Brenton of Warkworth, who lost his right leg while searching a small French village when an enemy mortar bomb exploded near him while he and other Canadians were making an attack south of Caen.

Among Brenton's prisoners was a young Russian lad, who had been detailed to dig trenches for the Nazis. The German trenches, Brenton said, were well filled with food and warm blankets.

Under the new arrangements drawn up by Military District No. 3 headquarters and civic officials, relatives were able to greet returning soldiers both at Fort Frontenac and Kingston Military Hospital.

Relatives expressed themselves as extremely pleased with the arrangements prepared to enable them to have a reunion with their returned soldier when he arrived at Kingston.

Miss T. McCauley Struck by Car, Leg is Fractured

Wooler (Special)—Struck by a car allegedly driven by Gerald Crowe of Stockdale, Miss Theresa McCauley, of this village is in Belleville General Hospital suffering from a broken leg. She was admitted to the hospital late Wednesday evening, the accident having occurred about nine o'clock. The accident occurred one half mile out of Wooler on the Trenton highway.

In a second accident occurring in the Wooler district on Wednesday, Mrs. Jim Stacey of Stockdale received undetermined injuries when attacked by a cow as she was driving the herd up for the evening milking. C.N.R. Vets Assoc. Have Sent Fags Overseas To Value of $4,926

Cigarettes to the value of $4,926, have been sent to Belleville boys in the armed forces overseas by the Canadian National Railways War Veterans' Association, it is reported by Mr. Albert H. Jones, chairman of the C.N.R. cigarette fund. Shipments of cigarettes go overseas regularly with two having been made this month.

In appreciation of the cigarettes being sent overseas by the C.N.R. Veterans' Association, letters from the boys are received frequently telling of their experiences since D-Day and urging the continuation of the good work done by the Association.

A letter received recently from Spr. O'Brien reads: "Many thanks for cigarettes. They sure brought me joy and comfort. We cannot buy them for love nor money in France or Belgium".

Air Marshal Breadner Writes.

Another letter from Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, air officer commander-in-chief, tells how cigarettes received overseas for boys reported missing or killed in action are divided among other members of the unit.

"Your tobacco parcel for Sgt. Doran unfortunately arrived in the United Kingdom too late for delivery", wrote Air Marshal Breadner. "Such parcels cannot be returned to the senders at home. In the R.C.A.F. these cigarettes are distributed to hospitalized Canadian airmen and among aircrew returning from operations.

"It is disappointing that the parcel could not be delivered as you originally intended, but it may be a consolation to know that your kindness has brought pleasure to other Canadians of the R.C.A.F. overseas. I trust that you will approve of the action taken".

GERMAN LOSSES

Paying tribute to gallant Allied airborne troops he said "casualties have been grevious but for those who mourn there is the consolation that the sacrifice was not needlessly demanded."

Mr. Churchill said a Jewish brigade now being formed would take part in the occupation of Germany. He revealed aso that the number of Italians fighting alongside the Allies on the Italian front soon would be more than doubled.

Indicating the tremendous power exerted by the Allies on D-Day, he reported that 250,000 men swarmed ashore in the first 24 hours and that 1,000,000 men had been landed by the 20th day of the invasion.

Turning to the Far East, he declared the Japanese divisions which had been launched against India had been repulsed and largely shattered. The campaign dircted by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten he described as the largest and most important ground fighting that so far has taken place against Japan. Between 50,000 and 60,000 of the enemy had been killed in this campaign, he said.

Will Press Jap War.

"I can assure the House," he said, "that the war against the Japanese and other diseases of the jungle will be pressed forward with the utmost urgency."

Nevertheless, he added, a renewal of the Japanese offensive could be expected as soon as the Monsoon is over.

Mr. Churchill declared, amid laughter in the House, that Hitler's escape during the recent bomb attempt against him was a stroke of luck for the Allies.

"It would be most unfortunate," he said, "if the Allies were to be deprived in the closing hours of the struggle of the form of warlike genius by which Corporal Schickelgruber has so nobly contributed to our victory."

Huns in Balkans Squandered.

The men he had described as the "squalid caucus boss and butcher" had squandered a large army in the Balkans, Mr. Churchill said, adding that many of the 27 German divisions now engaged in Italy would never return across the Alps.

Mr. Churchill reported that "complete agreement on every point" had been reached at the Quebec Conference, adding that he and President Roosevelt had decided there would be no changes in the chiefs of staff charged with conducting the war.

The scale of the British effort against Japan, he said, will be limited only by available shipping which, with the ending of the U-boat war, would be magnificently magnified. He said he believed that the convoy system could be abandoned shortly in waters of the western hemisphere.

Big British Fleet in East.

He said the British fleet had been offered for the war against Japan, and that the offer had been "cordially accepted". Much of it, he said, is already gathered in the Indian Ocean. "These ships, added to those of the United States, he said, "should give us naval command of the most complete and decisive character".

Just before the start of his report Mr. Churchill left unanswered a query from a Laborite, Richard Stokes, as to whether Secretary Morgenthau's proposal for de-industrializing Germany had been discussed at Quebec, whether it had the approval of the British Government, and why Secretaries Hull and Stimson "did not take part in the discussions".

Foreign Secretary Eden rose in the Prime Minister's place and replied that it would be inadvisable to discuss peace terms "in a piecemeal fashion on questions prompted by rumor and hearsay".

Mr. Stokes persisted, asking whether it would be "totally inaccurate" to say the subject had been discussed at Quebec, but Mr. Eden replied, "I am afraid he won't draw me onto that ground".

Close Alliance

Resuming promptly after an hour's luncheon recess, Mr. Churchill declared that never before had the alliance of the three great powers against Germany been "more close or more effective."

"One by one in rapid succession the satellite states have writhed or torn themselves free from Nazi tyranny," he said, adding that when Hungary was free he expected Hungarians would turn their weapons against those who had led them "to their present ruin and defeat."

Mr. Churchill said some of the worst war criminals were Bulgarians, adding that "they may want to be treated as co-belligerents."

So far as Britain was concerned, however, he said, they would have to "work their passage" for a long time.

The premier praised Poland, but said there would have to be territorial changes in the Polish frontier and that "Russia has a right to our support in this matter."

He added he had "full hopes that the Polish premier and his colleagues would shortly resume conversations in Moscow." He said he believed "a good arrangement will be achieved."

"I have every hope that wise and harmonious settlements will be made in confidence and amity between the great powers," he declared.

Russia Entitled to Security

"I cannot conceive that it is not possible to make a good solution whereby Russia gets the security she is entitled to have — which I am resolved we shall do our utmost to secure — on her west front and at the same time the Polish nation had restored to them the national sovereignty and independence for which across centuries of oppression and struggle they have never ceased to strive."

He declared also he had every hope for the early achievement of "a strong, independent and friendly France."

Looking to peace, the premier declared it was essential that Marshal Stalin should join with the heads of the British and American governments in a new conference as soon as the military situation allows. After referring to the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, he said he did not believe satisfactory agreements could be reached until there is "a further meeting of the three heads of governments."

He declared great decisions could not be taken "without far closer and more searching discussions than can be held amid the clash of arms."

"This is not the time for taking hard and fast momentous decisions on incomplete data at a breakneck speed," he said.

Mr. Churchill ended his speech at 2.45 p. m., after speaking for approximately one hour and 45 minutes.

Army & Navy Veterans' Fag Fund Passes Million Mark

Vets of Previous Wars Know Value of a Cigarette, So Send 1,026,300 Since March 1942

RECIPIENTS REPLY

Canadian fighting men overseas will tell you there is nothing more satisfying from home than a newsy letter first and second a good Canadian cigarette upon which they can "take a drag" to soothe the tired nerves during the strenuous nerve-wracking front line fighting.

In the latter phase the Belleville Branch of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Unit 201, cigarette fund has materially assisted in keeping the morale of Belleville and district boys to an efficient standard by the provision of cigarettes for over two years and six months. This week the Army and Navy Vets' fag fund passed the million mark of cigarettes provided district fighting men. To be exact Secretary James Lazenby announced that with this week's shipment of cigarettes to Belleville boys the Vets had sent a total of 1,026,300 cigarettes to pass the million mark since the fund was inaugurated in March of 1942. To send this number of smokes overseas the expenditure amounted to $3,421.00 of which not one cent was used for administration purposes, such charges being taken care of by the Belleville Branch of the Army and Navy Veterans.

New Shipment.

As an example, the current fortnightly lists of names of Belleville boys serving overseas were sent 300 cigarettes each recently, which totals 50,100 fags in one shipment for the succor of local lads to assure them the comforts they deserve whether fighting in the air, on land or on the high seas.

Assurance that such efforts are appreciated by the recipients can daily be seen in the replies received by Secretary Lazenby from district lads who have been regularly sent shipments of Canadian cigarettes by the Vets. For instance Gnr. Howard Benn wrote recently—"I bet you men who were in the last war would give a lot to be here again. The French and Belgian people have never forgotten the Canadians from the last war and still think we're all tops. But best of all we think it is swell to get smokes from the boys who were here before."

F/L. Gord Farquharson and F/L. A. G. McAuley, both of whom received the Distinguished Flying Cross for meritorious operations against the enemy, wrote to extend thanks for fags received from the Vets recently, as did Jim Mills, Frank Insley, Jim Matthews as well as scores of other similar letters that are received by Secretary Lazenby expressing thanks and urging the continued flow of Canadian cigarettes to our fighting forces overseas. "It's swell to be remembered by the veterans of previous wars. They really know the value of a smoke while under fire," added Jack Westlake. Such appeals speak for themselves. Are they to be denied?

The list of 167 names of Belleville and district lads serving overseas to be sent individual shipments of 300 cigarettes each through the Army and Navy Veterans, Unit 201, cigarette fund this week included:

Farmers Urged To Man Packing Plants in Winter

In 1943, sufficient livestock to produce one billion 800 million pounds of dressed and cured meats was raised in Canada. It seemed a miracle of production in comparison with even the increased production of other war years. Yet, this year over one and a quarter billion pounds were produced in the first six months. The total for this year should reach over two billion pounds; an increase of 40% over 1943.

On Canadian farms today there is livestock which should be shipped and processed into a billion pounds of meat by December 31st of this year. The only obstacle that can hinder the fulfilment of that tremendous quota is shortage of men to operate the packing plants.

Must Have Help.

Packing plants of Canada have the facilities and capacity to meet these tremendously increased requirements. They are the key unit in channeling Canadian livestock as inspected meats to the vast export market. But they must have men to operate the plants.

It is urgently essential that packing plants shall keep both slaughter pens and farms clear of all animals, for various reasons. In the first place, livestock is marketed when it has reached prime condition. Every day's delay in shipping or slaughtering means loss to the farmer, as animals "go back" from peak condition. If kept on the farm, delay means feeding costs as well.

Surplus Produced.

If livestock is produced faster than it can be marketed a surplus is bound to occur. Price structure is threatened. And failure to meet quotas would imperil excellent connections made in the export market. So, Canadian farmers are faced with the problem of devoting as much time as possible this fall and winter in working in packing plants. No other source of manpower can produce the required numbers of men.

Hastings County farmers are urged to protect their own interests by becoming employed at good hourly wages in any one of Ontario's 13 plants. Transportation will be paid and assistance given in procuring living accommodation. By doing so, the farmer profits in two ways: he protects and helps maintain both a very desurable price level for his livestock and a future market that can mean many thousands of dollars to him, and he gets well paid while doing so.

All offices of Selective Service and Employment will give full information, provide transportation and place applicants in plants.

Urges Co-relation Of Transportation

Winnipeg, Sept. 27 (CP)—Unless some action is taken to bring all units of transportation into a co-related whole during the post-war, Canada is apt to find her various agencies of transportation engaged in disorderly confusion, W. Ferguson of Toronto President of the Canadian Industrial Traffic League, said here.

In an address to a dinner meeting of the Prairie Division of the League Mr. Ferguson said that "transportation should be considered as one entity."

He suggested as one principle that should govern transportation, prohibition of "unfair or destructive competition" whether between carriers of the same class or type or between carriers of a different class or type.

War Prisoners Able To Follow Allied Progress

By CHARLES LEOBOLDTI
(CP Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 28 —(CP)—Canadian prisoners of war in Germany are able to follow the Allied victorious march in western Europe almost as well and as rapidly as their folks at home, repatriated soldiers and civilians said Wednesday on their way back from Nazi prison camps.

The party, including 24 disabled servicemen and four civilians, arrived here from Jersey City where they landed Tuesday aboard the exchange liner Gripsholm. Men bound for Kingston, Toronto and London remained in the special car pending resumption of its journey westward.

Men taken prisoner at Dieppe in 1942 learned of the capture of the French port by Canadians last month a few hours after it happened.

Among the Dieppe prisoners was Lieut. John E. Thompson, former Winnipeg and Toronto newspaperman, who lost an eye during the 1942 reconnaissance in force. He was met by his wife and two of his three children and has not yet seen his third child who is three years old. Lieut. Thompson's young daughter, Joan, who is five, interviewed her daddy.

Lieut. Thompson said the food in camp was getting "worse and worse" but that the Red Cross parcels "helped quite a bit."

Civilians since D-Day, when "Nazi morale obviously hit a new low," availed themselves of what Hippeliet Duprez of London, Ont., described as "the new attitude of our guards."

"Many among the younger civilian prisoners managed to escape and, in some instances, it seemed that our guards did not care much one way or the other."

Mr. Duprez, with Rene Vandergust of Clare Creek, Ont., and Gordon McMaster of Portage La Prairie, Man., was taken prisoner in Belgium in 1940. The first two were holidaying while the latter was working in a Belgian coal mine.

"There was open talk of the war being over before Christmas," Vandergust said.

There was one civilian who was captured in eastern Europe: Rev. Edmond Chambers of Regina. Mr. Chambers, before the war, was a member of the Methodist International Mission in Eastern and Central Europe. He was taken prisoner in December 1930, on his way from Lithuania.

Deeds That Will Live

Nine days of fighting in which have been performed deeds of valor that rank with the greatest of all time came to an end with the withdrawal of the British airborne division from Arnhem area on Monday night of what remained of this body of men engaged in the effort to establish a crossing for the Allied forces over the Rhine for a flanking movement around the end of the German Siegfried Line. It was a modern Thermopylae in the importance of the undertaking, a great and outstanding event of the war and in the history of war. Nothing in the annals of British military history can excel the deeds of these men who in the face of modern war conditions were able so long to hold their position in spite of heavy losses.

What these heroes performed, correspondents were told, "the gallant defence of the first airborne division went far to contribute to the exploitation desired. It enabled other elements to the south to hold the bridge at Nijmegen across the Waal which prevented enemy forces in the north from moving south. To counter the Arnhem airborne opposition the enemy was forced to use his best troops—as battle groups." The stand of the British airborne division had the result that they contained those crack enemy forces in that area and prevented their being used as substantial reinforcements in the battle to the south between Nijmegen and Antwerp.

In these nine days terrific slaughter was wrought upon the Germans, the evacuated troops saying that they had never seen so many dead Germans in such a small area as at Arnhem.

British wounded were left behind in the withdrawal but not alone for a number of British doctors and others stayed with the wounded despite the certainty of capture by the enemy. That was true to the British tradition of care of the wounded and instinct of humanity.

German War Plants Moving

In recent dispatches it is said that Germany has begun dismantling war production factories in the Rhineland and moving them eastward.

The distance between the United Nations armies on the east and west and on the south is growing less and less at a rate that will play havoc with the German industrial and military economy.

The routing of the German army out of France, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and in part of The Netherlands must have forced the enemy to make drastic changes if possible in brief time with their industries let alone their plans of defence.

But where can the war industries go? asks the Montreal Herald. "With the Allied bailiffs thundering on its western portals, German war industry faces a black moving day and is forced to seek temporary security for its plants in the east."

"How far east can they go?" Not too far east for there are some tough customers pounding at the back door too.

"Nor do more central areas offer locations where war industries can set up housekeeping with any prospect of peaceful tenure." The Germans cannot achieve what the Russians achieved when the Huns advanced into Russia. Russia had moved her vast organization of war plants far behind the shelter of the Urals, where the Hun could not reach them. From these factories far in the rear mighty Russia poured out implements of war that had a big share along with Allied assistance in halting the German advance and in throwing the Hun back into the territory of his Axis associates.

Germany has not the depth of territory to guarantee security from Allied bombers for its plants anywhere in the Reich. Greater concentration than ever over German and German-held territory is now possible, the saturation of blows on the enemy being due to the shrinking depth and width of the Reich, more and more parts of Germany becoming vulnerable to air blows.

Warsaw

Poland in the five years from Sept. 1939 has written a story of deathless courage and endeavor and its capital city earned immortality of fame as the first of the capitals of Europe which fell under the heel of the modern moloch, the Hitlerized Huns, in 1939. Warsaw has known what it is to endure; what she has gone through is the admiration of the world. What her people have done under Hun oppression merits an everlasting memorial. In Warsaw the spirit of Poland, home of a heroic race, glows like a bright light even over the smoke of battle.

The city has suffered from modern implements of war in the hands of the enemy. But Warsaw like the rest of Poland will arise in the greatness of her sacrifice for freedom and a greater Poland will emerge from the trial by fire and sword through which this people has passed and endured.

The world of free men will not forget the residue of Poles in Warsaw who survive, nor the memory of the many thousands of the inhabitants who died for freedom. In September 1939 80,000 Warsaw Poles died in the cause of liberty.

French Irony

(Detroit Free Press)

Some time ago sale of Hitler's "Mein Kampf" was quietly banned in the Reich, Nazi censors concluding it was no morale-builder for Germans to be reminded about such matters as "the master race," the decadent democracies" and "the degenerate Bolshevists."

Paris' liberation reveals how little the ban was needed in France during the Nazi occupation. One hundred thousand copies of "Mein Kampf" were found unsold in Paris bookshops.

The French appropriated them. For what? To be re-pulped and made into newsprint for liberation newspapers!

There is nothing quite so superb as Gallic irony.

Fooled Mine Detector

(London Spectator)

One of the strange tales from the seat of war concerns that little beetle called the glow-worm. An electric mine-detector gave the usual sign of a buried mine: but no mine could be found. All that was found was a nest of glow-worms.

Whether this queer response is a true tale or not I have no means of telling; but the light shown by both glow-worm and the brighter fire-fly is of great scientific interest. These animals have more or less solved the else unsolved problem of producing light without more than negligible waste of power or heat.

Our wealth would be immensely increased if our men of science could penetrate their secret. You can read print (as I experienced in Argentina) by the light of a single fire-fly and the heat is unappreciable.

London's Barter Boom

(London Daily Mail)

A boom in barter is sweeping Britain.

Every day offers of exchange are advertised in the "wanted" columns of London and provincial newspapers.

One of the most remarkable offers was perhaps this: "Lady will exchange peach bed linen, pure lingerie silk, other goods, for nylon stockings or honey."

Running this close was an offer of a Victorian cheese-dish for a dozen new handkerchiefs.

One "agony column" contained urgent appeals for a fantastic variety of things ranging from a set of frying-pans to second-hand suits for a public school boy and men's old shirts for making into women's blouses.

War On Locusts

Successful attacks against bands of hopper locusts are reported from Tanganika. All bands in Kilimanjaro and foothills have been destroyed and in Masailand the Gelai area has been cleared.

AUTUMN MIRACLE

Always a miracle to me
Appears the fruitage of a tree;
A tree upon whose branches come
The wealth of apple, pear or plum;
A tree that holds its family line
By powers both secret and divine,
And guided by mysterious ways,
Unto its purpose steadfast stays.

Near is a plum tree, adult grown,
Wiser than many men I've known;
More gifted, with more skill designed
Than seems the best of human kind,
For, lured by sweetness, joy or charm,
It never takes what does it harm,
But by some art, to men denied,
It lives its term of years with pride.

Out of the soil, in which the rose
Into its Junetime splendor grows,
A plum tree takes with nicest care
Just what it needs good fruit to bear.
The bee into its blossom comes,
And, lo! upon the branches, plums!
Plums, plump and perfect, purple-hued,
And worthy of man's gratitude!

MOSQUITOES

"Mosquito" is the diminutive of Spanish "mosca," meaning fly or gnat and literally signifies "little fly." In many parts of the world "mosquito" is the usual term for gnat rather than what we call mosquitoes.

The male mosquito does not bite. He is strictly a vegetarian and feeds on the sweet juices of plants.

Only in the female is the probiscus fitted with the piercing mandibles that make it possible to bite and suck blood from human beings and animals.

There are at least 1,500 known varieties of mosquitoes and there is hardly a place on the earth where they are not found.

They are common not only in the vast deserts, where they breed and develop rapidly in temporary pools of water, but also in the Arctic regions, where they breed in icy waters from melting snow.

It is believed that most of the true pest mosquitoes must have blood in order to develop eggs and to reproduce. If that is true, what do female mosquitoes eat, where there are no people or animals? This question is interesting because mosquitoes seem to be always ready to bite human beings and animals and to suck blood from them notwithstanding the fact that in many cases the insects could not possibly have ever tasted such food before.

Apparently the female, like the male, may subsist for a time on a a vegetarian diet in the absence of a blood bank. In certain cases the insects while still in the larva stage seem to store up a sufficient food supply to develop eggs.

It is difficult to see how the hordes of mosquitoes in the Arctic region can be maintained on the animal life available. Of course, there are many wild animals in the Arctic region from which mosquitoes may obtain blood. No doubt there is a high mortality without reproduction among mosquitoes. It is estimated that one female will lay as many as 160,000,000 eggs in her short lifetime.

In general, mosquitoes are not averse to feeding upon any warm-blooded animal at hand, and some of them feed freely upon cold-blooded animals.

Tests show that ordinary mosquitoes when they have a free choice, prefer to bite horses, cattle, pigs and dogs rather than human beings. Some individuals attract mosquitoes more than others. Mosquitoes prefer children to adults and blondes to brunettes.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this Newspaper.)

COME, COME, BE YOUR AGE

As I was saying, medicine has to be good if I take it myself. At least I must believe it is good medicine. And so I take my morning somersaults seriously.

In the talk about the onset of old age the other day I made clear, or as clear as I could, that the best index of a person's functional or anatomical and physiological age, regardless of chronological age, is bounce. Count yourself growing old when you realize you have lost bounce, elasticity, resilience, the characteristic that distinguishes the cub from the old bear, the colt from the old gray mare.

You've lost bounce if you can't run half a mile—at your own speed, no matter whether slow or fast; if you can't jump four feet high; if you can't roll half a dozen somersaults on floor or ground and come up on your feet smiling and fit to navigate —not flustered or seasick or dizzy.

No sooner does a person begin to lose bounce or resiliency than he or she begins to be stiff—perhaps he or she tries to call it being dignified as befits one of mature age. That doesn't fool anybody. Stiffness is only false dignity.

When this stiffness, which is the natural consequence of gradual replacement of muscle cells and elastic tissues by scar tissue, fibrous tissue, which can serve no function—for instance the cells and elastic tissue of the artery walls replaced by dense inelastic fibrous material, progresses to a degree the victim can no longer pretend is dignity, other and more specific names are applied to the condition, such as hardening of the arteries, chronic tired feeling, rheumatix.

Remember, in the talk here recently, we said: "Among the infirmities or complaints of elderly folk whose daily intake of vitamin B-complex, vitamin D, calcium and phosphorus is deficient, deficient not only this week, month or season but deficient through the years, these are the most frequent:

1.—Lack of "pep", need for a good tonic".

2.—Rheumatism.

3.—Cramps in legs (sometimes in arms) disturbing rest nights—adult tetany, I call it.

4.—Fatigability.

None of these complaints nor all of them together spell old age. They spell nutritional deficiency. On request, if you provide stamped self addressed envelope (no clipping will suffice) I'll be glad to mail you a pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks" which tells how to correct such nutritional deficiency.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Thrombo-Angitis Obliterans

My doctor says I have Buerger's disease and that I must absolutely quit smoking. I am thirty and have been smoking for twelve years. Please send me any information or advice you have on thrombo-angitis obliterans (the doctor says this is the medical name for it.)

Signed (———)

Answer—Impossible for me to tell from your given name whether you are a man or a woman. Send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope—and please use your title, whether it be Mr., Mrs., Miss and ask for booklet CVD. It contains a chapter on Buerger's disease.

Ambulant Treatment

Mother, 64, has developed inguinal hernia. She asked her doctor about the ambulant treatment you recommend. He told her "Only quacks use it". Can you recommend a physician in the vicinity of ——— who is qualified to give her the ambulant treatment?

(N. B. R.)

Answer—Your mother's doctor is right where a good many doctors are, where I was twenty years ago. If I had hernia I'd prefer ambulant treatment—in fact I'd submit to radical operation ONLY after ambulant treatment had failed—as it does fail in nearly as many cases as the radical operation does. I knew of two good doctors in your city who are skilled in ambulant method, but both are in military service. Surely not all the doctors left there are old fogies like your mother's.

Of Interest to a Bride.

I'd like to have your pamphlet "Preparing for Maternity".

(Robert H. D.)

Answer— Send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for the pamphlet.

BURRS

Finds 2 Skunks Sitting on Ledge Of Rock in Well

Burrs — On a recent morning when going to water the cows, a neighbor boy found the well to be occupied by two unwelcome guests, two skunks. Not knowing of an expedient methd of removing them without suffering ill effects, he ran for the assistance of his father. The skunks were sitting on a ledge of rock that jutted out above the water and were unable to climb up out of the well. The men returned armed with pitch forks and held the skunks under water until they were drowned. The water was turned a green shade and had to be dipped out and the well cleaned before even a cow could drink the water. The dog of the family insisted on helping and has had to live outdoors since.

DOUGHERTY—GODDARD

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Goddard, R.R. No. 6, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wedneday, September 20, at high noon, when the Rev. T. S. Russell, of Emmanuel Church, united in marriage their only daughter, Maisie Irene, to Harold Edgar, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dougherty, R.R. 3, Belleville.

The marriage ceremony was solemnized 'neath an arch of evergreen and fern banked with an array of roses. Miss Phoebe Wilder played the wedding music for the occasion. During the signing of the register, Mrs. W. Dougherty, Toronto, sang "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a long model of embossed tulle over satin. Her finger tip veil of tulle fell in graceful folds from a Mary Queen of Scots headdress adorned with white gardenias. She carried a white satin Prayer book, from which hung streamers of white satin ribbon accentuated with baby breath.

Miss Noreen Dougherty, Toronto, cousin of the groom ,as bridesmaid, was wearing a charming floor length gown of blush pink net over taffeta. Atop her head sat a dainty half bonnet dusted with a blush pink shoulder length veil.

Mr. Lorne Dougherty, brother of the groom was best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was held at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville after which a reception for a number of friends and relatives was held at the home of the bride. The bride's mother chose an effective ensemble of rosewood crepe complemented with a corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother was wearing Horizon rose crepe and corsage of Talisman roses.

On the honeymoon to Toronto and points west, the bride donned for travelling Chinese blue crepe accented with black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses and baby breath.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal, Ottawa, Fort Erie and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty will take up residence on the Second Concession of Thurlow.

Women's Activities

CHATTERTON W.I.

The September meeting was held at Mrs. Leonard Prest's home with fourteen members and three visitors attending. Mrs. Bert Finkle presided in the absence of the president. After opening exercises Mrs. Harry Reid read the minutes and called the Roll.

Three dollars was sent to Mrs. Brickman for jam making for overseas. Plans were made to pack Christmas boxes for the boys in the services. Donations were received and four ditty bags packed the same day.

A splendid paper "The Heritage of the Human Race" was given by Mrs. MacInnes.

Rev. E. M. Cook, guest speaker, gave a very instructive and interesting address on "Learning from the Past for the Future". He said, "One of the first things is that we must learn to feed the people. Seven persons out of ten are inaquately fed 500,000,000 are practically starving. We must co-operate to live and not fight to live. We must extend education. One half the world is illiterate. We must learn to destroy war or war will destroy us. We may defeat our enemies, but we have lost the war. We cannot progress and forsake religion. Man has not progressed morally and spiritually as he has materially. Materialism is devil worship. Worshipping Baal was prosperity worship" ,he concluded.

After the Mispah, Mrs. Bleecker conducted a contest. The hostess assisted by Mrs. De Mille served refreshments.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Right to Marry?

In a certain town there's a nice, warm-hearted girl, next door to being pretty, who has been answering the questions of a whole family for nearly a decade. Now, at 23, Barbara is writing to ask me a question of her own. Has she the right to marry?

This girl's mother died when she was 15, leaving five younger children. Barbara, whom everybody calls "Big Sister", saw only one thing to do and did it. Leaving school the next day, she put on, she says, a big household apron which she has since then hardly ever had a chance to take off.

With meals to cook, the family washing, ironing and cleaning to take care of, with her father and the youngest child always calling for her at the same moment, it's been hard indeed to find time for what she considers the most difficult but the most important thing of all, namely, to teach the children to be good and to keep both girls and boys off the streets.

What chance has Big Sister ever had to go out with friends of her own age? Practically none. But now she has met a widower of thirty, with two youngsters of his own, who in a sober and quiet way is in love with her and urges immediate marriage. But Barbara has been unselfish and self-denying for so long that she has practically lost the power of considering her own welfare.

"If I married this man", Barbara tells me, "he would allow my two little brothers, 9 and 11, to live with us. And in return I would try to be a mother to his two children. one of my sisters is married and the other could take my place at home.

"But I should be breaking up our family. My father would be very lonely; he has depended on me so. My two little brothers would be missed at home, and the sister who would replace me doesn't really care for housework. I myself should be very happy with this man, for I am really terribly in love with him. But after lying awake many nights, I'm still afraid that my conscience will not let me marry him".

I'm sure you will all agree with me that Barbara has served her turn at drudging under her father's roof and that she has richly earned the privilege of drudging under a roof of her own. If a girl ever had the right to marry, it is she, though it seems a great pity that she will have to take some of her burdens with her into her new marriage. Can't her father find the wife with whom he ought to have supplied himself long ago?

Fortunately, the kind of marriage Barbara is about to make, if she follows my advice, is the kind that usually lasts and turns out happily. With so much duty and sacrifice included in the marriage contract, there won't be any time left for selfish discontent, and you won't hear of any divorce in that quarter.

Fashion Flashes

STILL ON TOP of some of the smartest heads is the turban, intricately twisted and draped. A rich turban is of coffee-cream satin and velvet stripes, draped simply in back, the ends twisted into a big, high-riding bow across the top in front.

NVER NICER is the verdict on the new fur coats. Nutria is used for a very attractive coat made with a big sleeve that is not quite full length and which blouses into a deep, fitted cuff. The tuxedo front has a barely perceptible wavy edge that is very new looking.

JAUNTY and warm is a nutria coat made on the lines of a pilot coat. It is a doublebreasted, has wide revers and a deep collar that can be worn high. It can be worn without a belt and the straps can be unbuttoned from the sleeves,

CANADIANS REACH WESTERN EDGE CALAIS HARBOR

Troops Wearing Preservers Attack Line of Canals and Old Moat

STRONG OPPOSITION

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

With the 1st Canadian Army, Sept. 28 (CP Cable)—Canadian infantry have hammered to the western edge of Calais harbor area and fought their way across the western flats of the channel port into the factory area which the Germans were using as a strongpoint.

Western troops wearing 'Mae West' life-preservers today were attacking eastward across a line of canals and an old moat toward the port and town, now little more than a half mile away.

Yesterday in addition to unloading another 1,700 tons of bombs on the port to help Canadian infantry capture the Fort Lapin strongpoint on the coast and fortifications of the redoubt district around the Boulogne-Calais highway, the R.A.F. flew 286 sorties against German defences.

As tactical fighter-bombers blasted forward positions today hundreds of guns from the 1st Canadian army's artillery concentrations fired over the heads of the infantrymen. Gains of several hundred yards were made and troops were able to get into Calais' southwestern factory buildings, cutting into the zone of fortifications.

Elsewhere along the long Canadian army front there were no major changes. British troops widened their strong bridgehead over the Antwerp - Turnhout canal and pushed north on the heels of a local German withdrawal, but it still did not greatly alter the position there.

A German force continues to hold out north of the Escaut canal in the Antwerp area, which is largely in the hands of Canadian troops. A German division remains on the south bank of the Schelde inside the Leopold canal and at the sea around Zeebrugge, Belgian coastal town which Canadian forces entered three weeks ago.

Progress at Calais now is necessarily slow because of strong enemy defences. Today some German shellfire was directed against the Canadians from positions east of the town where the defences are not as elaborate as elsewhere.

Westerners who captured the Fort Lapin Coastal strongpoint have fought right up to a canal line about three-quarters of a mile west of Fort Risban which overlooks the entrance to the harbor. These troops now are before the old citadel of Calais and the many basins of the town.

Infantry advancing from the redoubt area about a mile to the south are virtually at the outskirts of Calais and have run into hundreds of mines and booby traps.

Harassing fire was directed at the troops advancing on the factory area but the Canadians were able to silence most of it.

U.S. Heavies Blast War Factories, Railway Yards

London, Sept. 28. (CP)— More than 1,000 American heavy bombers today attacked German war factories at Magdeburg, Kassel and Merseburg. The railroad yard at Modgeburg was also hit.

The American bombers swept over the Reich for the fourth straight day, close on the heels of R.A.F. heavies which carried the non-stop air offensive against German transportation through the night with a heavy atack on Kaiserslauter, important industrial city in the Saar.

The night raiders also made a side jab at Kassel, one of the four places attacked in daylight by American heavies which constituted about half the estimated 2,500 Allied planes over Germany yesterday and last night.

Probably close to 2,000 more fighters and bombers pounded enemy troops, railways and fortifications in the Low Countries and along the coast making it one of the busiest air days of the month.

90 Nazi Planes Destroyed.

At least 90 German fighters were destroyed, including more than 60 in the air. Allied losses were 44 heavy bombers and 16 fighters.

Forty-two American heavies out of a force of more than 1,100 were lost on the four-pronged mission to the Rhineland.

The Air Ministry said that in order to avoid clouds over the target the big Lancasters rained their bombs on the Kaiserslautern railway yards from only 3,000 feet, starting fires that were still spreading when the last bomber passed over.

Without loss, the greatest number of Lancaster and Halifax bombers ever sent into action by the Canadian bomber group smashed at the Ruhr early yesterday.

The main force—about 150 of the heavyweights—hit a synthetic oil plant at Bottrop, six miles north of Essen, in an all-Canadian attack. When they turned for home, the bombers left smoke pluming 12,000 feet from their targets.

Factories Distintegrated.

Targets, including gas tanks and factories, were seen to disintegrate in "big bursts of red fire" as the Canadians' bombs struck at Bottrop.

Veteran Flyers such as FO. Arthur Martyn of Tillsonburg, Ont., and FO. Tony Palanek of Windsor, Ont., told of huge factories and gas tanks wreathed in flame and smoke.

Among Canadian squadrons participating were the Ghost, Moose, Thunderbird, Lion, Bison, Bluenose and Snowy Owl.

Sgdn. Ldr. Lloyd Gonyou, Port Colborne, Ont. a flight commander, said he figured that a gas tank had been hit.

Other airmen on the operation included Wing Cmdr. F. W. Ball, St. Thomas, Ont., and Sqdn. Ldr. C. C. W. Marshall, Kingston.

"All of Us" Lit Papers and Burned Mrs. Jamieson

Signed Statement to Police Read Into Records of Trial

NEAR CONCLUSION

Fort Frances, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)—Deputy Attorney General Cecil L. Snyder, Prosecution Counsel, announced early today the Crown's case in the torture-slaying of Mrs. Viola Jamieson, 49-year-old Flanders, Ont., woman, may be completed later in the day.

Four men are on trial in Supreme Court here on charges of murdering Mrs. Jamieson who died in hospital July 2 of injuries suffered June when attacked in her home. They are George Skrypnyk and his brother, Anthony, Eino Tillonen and William Schmidt.

Signed statements of Anthony Skrypnyk's statement said the four accused men came to the Jamieson home July 10 and "all of us" lit paper and burned Mrs. Jamieson. Later they took her and put her on the stove.

Confessing participation in the crime himself, Skrypnyk said he did it because "Schmidt had been after me so much for three years."

The statement said the men planned to torture Mrs. Jamieson to make her tell where a reported $40,000 was hidden. It said Mrs. Bernice Casnig, the murdered woman's daughter, had told Schmidt the money was hidden in a roothouse near the Jamieson home. For three years Schmidt had been coaxing the Skrypnyks to go with him and get it.

Took $1,200 From Roothouse.

Skrypnyk said he went with his brother and Schmidt to the Jamieson home three weeks previous to June 10. They took $1,200 from the roothouse.

Later he, Schmidt and Tillonen went back but only found some War Savings certificates.

He said while they were there they decided to give Mrs. Jamieson "a little torture."

"We all lit papers and burnt her. We took her out and put her on the stove but still she said she had no more money."

Tillonen also said he found $45 at the Jamieson home June 10 and split it with the Skrypnyks, while Schmidt was outside.

A signed statement from George Skrypnyk last night denied he had ever been to the Jamieson home, but evidence given by Sgt. R. W. Wonnacott of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police finger-print bureau, was that his fingerprint was on a glass sealer taken from the woman's house June 17.

Mrs. Pearl Lee of Fort Frances testified that while discussing the Jamieson case with Schmidt he told her "Anthony Skrypnyk was to blame."

Three Repatriates Arrive in Kingston

Kingston, Sept. 28 — (CP)—Three members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who were repatriated aboard the Swedish ship Gripsholm arrived by train here last night.

They are Cpl. James Kenneth Buckley, Cardinal, Pte. Joseph Duffy, Howe Island and Pte. Francis Richard Maurice Page, Peterboro. All three spent months in German hospitals. Buckley was wounded Dec. 13, 1943, in Italy and lay nine and a half hours on a battlefield before being picked up by Germans. He suffered injuries to one arm and leg. Duffy was wounded in Sicily July 25, 1943, suffering fractures of both arms.

Page was wounded by shrapnel in the back on the same day and in the same action.

Pte. Duffy said he was amazed on travel through Germany to Sweden to board the Gripsholm at the damage Allied bombings have caused German cities.

"The damage is simply terrible. Cities of Germany are absolutely flat," he said. "I saw the London blitz damage but it is nothing compared to what you see in Germany even though the Germans try to prevent persons being repatriated from seeing anything much. But the havoc is everywhere.

"All three men agreed Germans know they are beaten but that the German soldiers and people proposed to fight to the last."

44 Planes Downed In Three Days

London, Sept. 28 (CP Cable)—A new Canadian air ace was born in the hours between dawn and dusk Wednesday as Flt. Lt. Don Laubman of Edmonton downed four enemy aircraft and damaged two more to lift his three-day total to eight kills and two damaged.

The 23-year-old Spitfire pilot was flying with a group which knocked down 22 and damaged 10 enemy planes during the day to fatten its three-day secore to 37 destroyed.

Top-scoring squadron with the wing was led by Sqdn. Ldr. Dean Dover of Toronto. It got 26 in that period for a new R.C.A.F. record.

Evidence Given Of Army Record At Murder Trial

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 28 —(CP)—Trial of Alfred Douglas Dunsmoor on a charge of murdering Mrs. Dorothy Martin, 33, one of 10 victims of the Moose Hall fire here last May 24 today went into the third day before Mr. Justice J. A. Hope in Ontario Supreme Court.

Yesterday Mr. Justice Hope accepted as evidence a statement given by Dunsmoor to Hamilton detectives in which he told of setting fire to a piece of burlap in the cloakroom of the hall, which was inside the entrance and one floor below where a dance was in progress.

The Crown closed its case against accused shortly after the confession was introduced and the defence started before court adjourned.

Maj. C. J. L. Day of Military District No. 2, Toronto, produced army records tracing Dunsmoor's brief army career from the time he enlisted in May 1942 until his discharge four months later because of "psychopathic inferiority and emotional instability."

Maj. Day said Dunsmoor complained of a fall in the district depot in Toronto and was treated for head and spine injuries.

Before his discharge he spent some time in a mental clinic, a Quebec hospital and Christie Street Military Hospital, Toronto.

George H. Dunsmoor, the accused's father, said Douglas was born in Hamilton Sept. 19, 1919 and had not been bright at school.

Before calling Mr. Dunsmoor to the witness box, Defence Counsel E. D. Hickey submitted that insufficient evidence had been presented to establish a charge of murder, to which Mr. Justice Hope said that if the defence was submitting an amended plea to a lesser charge, with the consent of the Crown, it might be considered without further evidence.

Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch said, however, "this is not a case where a lesser plea could be consented to."

Aimee McPherson Dies Suddenly In California

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 28 (AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson died unexpectedly Wednesday after 34 years of spectacular evangelism frequently punctuated by sensational episodes in her personal life. She was 53.

Her religious tableaux in her $1,500,000 temple in Los Angeles attracted thousands; the Canadian-born evangelist claimed, only last month, that she had preached to a larger number of persons than had any other evangelist of her time.

Marriages and divorces, court actions and a widely heralded disappearance in 1926 brought her into the headlines so often that she probably was the world's best known evangelist.

Sister Aimee, as she was known to her followers, died of a heart attack in her hotel suite. She came here Monday to assist in the dedication of a new foursquare church. She had been ill for several weeks last spring, but associates said they believed she had recovered.

Found Unconscious.

Police reported the evangelist was found lying unconscious in her suite. Doctors worked futilely to revive her and then called for a police inhalator. Officers worked over her for some time before she was declared dead.

Fiery sermons were her forte. Great crowds flocked to her Los Angeles Temple and she made many successful world tours. She made a striking figure standing on the platform with hand upraised, a cross of brilliants at her breast. Often in the background would be elaborate settings appropriate to religious themes.

Mrs. McPherson was founder of the International church of the Foursquare Gospel. Her temple says there are 400 of her churches in the United States and 200 mission stations abroad.

The erect, attractive blond, born on a farm near Ingersoll, Ont., was regarded as not only a spiritual leader, but a miraculous healer by her literally millions of converts. Off this she once said: "I am not a healer. Jesus is the healer. I am only the office girl who opens the door and says, 'Come in'."

Married Preacher at 18.

Mrs. McPherson began mission work near Ingersoll, where she was born Oct. 9, 1890. In her youth she met Robert Semple a tall, handsome preacher, and, while they were both attending the bedside of two sick children, accepted his proposal of marriage.

She married Semple when she was 18 and the couple travelled as missionaries through the Middle and far Western United States and in China. They both contracted an epidemic fever in the Orient and Semple died. Soon after a daughter, Roberta, was born to Aimee.

In the United States the evangelist continued her mission work and later, in the South, met and married Harold McPherson, a grocery clerk. A son, Rolf, was born of this marriage, which ended in divorce.

After a world tour in 1931, Mrs. McPherson married David Hutton, a plump choir singer in her church. They were divorced in 1934.

The large, cream-colored Angelus Temple, with two balconies and a radio station, was erected by the evangelist and her followers in Los Angeles in 1922.

In addition to the divorces, there were many other court appearances for the evangelist who, in 14 years, was sued 45 times in various civil disputes. Some judgments were obtained against her, but many of the actions were dismissed or never brought to trial.

Vanished in Breakers.

One of the most famous episodes in the evangelist's career began May 18, 1926, when she walked into the breakers at Venice, Cal., and disappeared.

Thousands of her followers patrolled the beach for weeks, praying for her safety. A $25,000 reward was offered for information about her. This offer was withdrawn June 12.

In the early morning hours of June 23 she stumbled into the border settlement of Agua Prieta, Mexico, near Douglas, Ariz.

At a hospital she told reporters that two persons 'Rose' and 'Steve' had approached her on the beach at Venice and asked her to administer to their dying baby. When she was taken to a car, she declared the two clapped a blanket over her head and she became unconscious when a sponge was placed to her nostrils.

She was driven to a one-room shack in Mexico, the evangelist said, where "Steve" burned her fingers with a lighted cigar in an effort to elicit information, the nature of which she never disclosed. One day while her abductors were away, Mrs. McPherson related, she cut the ropes that bound her with a jagged tin can and escaped from the cabin.

Her return to her Temple in Los Angeles was triumphant. Crowds jammed the building nightly.

The Los Angeles County grand jury heard testimony in an investigation of her disappearance, but did not return an indictment.

Conspiracy Charge Laid.

Several weeks later a district attorney's complaint was filed against Mrs. McPherson; her mother, Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy; Kenneth G. Ormiston, former radio operator at the Temple, and a Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Sellaff.

The complaint charged conspiracy to obstruct justice and to prepare false evidence. It alleged that the evangelist "pretended she had been kidnapped," but that instead she had spent 10 days in a cottage at Carmel with Ormiston. Ormiston declared in an affidavit that he had not occupied the cottage with the evangelist.

After a lengthy preliminary hearing the case was set for trial in Superior Court, but later the charges were dismissed at the request of District Attorney Asa Keyes, who said that one of the chief witnesses had "changed her story almost daily."

"Going My Way," Her Topic.

Mrs. McPherson's mother and two children survive her.

Accompanied by her son, Rev. Rolf McPherson, and half a dozen other workers from Angelus Temple, Mrs. McPherson came here Monday to assist in the dedication of a new church, with services continuing until next Friday.

At Angelus Temple, a spokesman said she had been in her usual good health for some time, preaching at three services weekly. Her announced topic for next Sunday evening was "Going My Way."

"For several months prior to the annual convention of her church last June she had been out of her pulpit because of illness of an undisclosed nature, and direction of her worldwide evangelistic enterprise was turned over in the interim to her son and others.

The evangelist in 1933 related from a New York theatre stage the story of her life. Her special mission, she said, was to go into the highways and the lanes seeking to win straying souls to Christ. She likened New York to the black sheep lost from the fold.

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP)—James H. Clark, former speaker of the Ontario Legislature and lifelong friend and schoolmate of Aimee Semple McPherson, Canadian-born evangelist who died at Oakland, Calif., told last night of her childhood in Ontario.

In a telephone conversation from his home at Windsor, Mr. Clark said "other girls were jealous of Aimee because she was smart and energetic." Aimee was born in Salford, near Woodstock.

"She was a strikingly beautiful girl, with auburn hair, but she was just a country girl, thrilled to the heart at going to school in the 'big city' of Ingersoll," said Mr. Clark.

Mr. Clark told of a Woodstock, Ont., newspaper giving Aimee her first chance to travel.

"There was a substantial contest, which Aimee determined to win. I guess she sold more subscriptions than all others put together and as a result she won a trip down the St. Lawrence and Saguenay rivers. She was tremendously thrilled."

"She made her last trip to Canada in 1929, when I drove her from Windsor to Ingersoll and her old home. There she laid a wreath on the tomb of her father."

The War Today—

Jabs Along Front Seen Forerunners Of Red Battle for Germany

By J. M. ROBERTS

(Substitution For Dewitt Mackenzie, Associated Press War Analyst.)

Just as expected, the defeat at Arnhem and Allied failure to walk through the Siegfried Line has resulted in widespread belief that the war has gone to pot. Forgetting how we glossed over defeats two and three years ago, we are now "success-conditionel" and every temporary setback becomes a major catastrophe.

Now we are talking of a winter of frustration on the western front, Mr. Churchill, naturally taking the opportunity to overcome any possible remaining overconfidence, today reminded us that it could be, but carefully abstained from saying it will.

It would have been helpful if the airborne troops could have held the Rhine bridge at Arnhem. But the jabs back and forth up and down the front only the warm-up rounds in the real battle for Germany. Delay now, as at Caen, means only that once again Eisenhower will start his drive when he is ready to start it, and that probably soon.

The Germans keep counter-attacking the American 1st and 3rd armies, while fighting bitterly to contain the still-attacking British, French and American 7th in other sectors. On the Russian front that would mean the 1st and 3rd are building up the strength the Germans fear most. Here it may mean only that slightly less pressure permits counter-attacks in the centre while Gens. Patton and Hodges await the zero hour and complete their reorganization after the headlong dash across France.

The airborne attacks in Holland were generally interpreted as the forerunners of an end run north of the Siegfried anchor at Kleve.

Major forces are poised to the south for what could be direct eastward blows. Whatever it is to be, the Allied supreme command planned it that way, taking into consideration that there would be battles and perhaps setbacks, but without the slightest intention of letting a few days' delay at any point interfere with the main campaign plan.

Maj. J. T. McLoughlin Will Be Cashiered

London, Sept. 28 — (CP-Reuter)— Maj. J. T. McLoughlin, 42, of Winnipeg, Commanding Officer of a Canadian General Pioneer Company is to be cashiered, it was announced.

He was court-martialled at Bordon, England, Sept. 13. Sentence now has been confirmed and promulgated.

He was found guilty of an improper reference to the King in a sergeants' mess, one charge of drunkenness, of improperly consuming liquor in the kitchen of the sergeants' mess in the presence of an A.T.S. sergeant, and of threatening to commit suicide.

In the charge of making an improper reference to the King, McLoughlin is alleged to have stood in front of the King's picture and said "I have no time for that guy or his wife. Eddie is my type of guy."

"Eddie" is a popular term for the Duke of Windsor, the former King who abdicated to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

True Bill Found Against 4 Men On Murder Charge

Fort Frances, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP) —A true bill was returned Wednesday by the 13-man grand jury in the case of four men charged with the murder of Mrs. Viola Jamieson at Flanders, Ont., last July 2.

Trial of the men, Geo. Skrypnyk; his brother, Anthony; Eino Tillonen, and William Schmidt, started immediately after the jury reported to Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow in the Ontario Supreme Court.

Before a crowded court room, the accused pleaded not guilty, and selection of a 12-man jury for the trial started.

The grand jury received the indictment Tuesday afternoon and considered evidence in camera for more than three hours. The jury reported at the opening of court Wednesday.

Mrs. Jamieson died in hospital here July 2, three weeks after she had been attacked in her home at Flanders. The men who entered her home tortured her, forcing her to reveal the hiding place of her money. Her limbs were burned with flaming newspapers and she was placed on a hot stove.

'Whipper' Watson Retains Title In Main Bout With McCready After Challenger Severely Hurt

Each Won Fall and Watson Had McCready at His Mercy When Bell Rang

DUNLOP OUT QUICKLY

Insofar as the records are concerned "Whipper Billie" Watson is still the British Empire heavyweight wrestling champion.

However, in his title bout with Earl McCready at the Hume Arena Wednesday night, "Big Earl" was the victim of an unintentional foul, following which Watson refused to take an unfair advantage and the championship bout ended in a draw at one fall each. Following the bout McCready had to be attended by a doctor and it was announced he would not be able to wrestle for some time. Later Pro[illegible] Watson and the latter assured Mr. Tunney [illegible]y in a return bout for the Empire title in Belleville when McCready had recuperated. Twice Referee Maxwell raised his hand to award the final decision to Watson, but "The Whip" refused to accept the final decision.

The Empire title bout was productive of continued wrestling of the orthodox type with tests of skill, speed, strength and science being continued throughout the match. McCready proved the aggressor in strength and gained the initial fall with a speedy application of his famed rolling barrel leglock after 14 minutes of sustained speed during which Referee Maxwell proved to be so much excess baggage and continually intercepting scientific holds in his lackadaisical official antics.

After breaking from the ropes early in the middle stanza, McCready floored the champ. and it appeared as though the crown had come back home to McCready. Quick, like a bunny, Watson's ire was aroused. He gained his famed "avalanche" hold and with the odd flip all was even, and the fans were happy.

Crowd Turns Favor

Strangely the patrons had been with McCready earlier, but in the final analysis the mob violence turned in favor of the champ, despite the fact McCready was still the aggressor. Finally Watson changed his tactics to apply punishing headlocks and wearing McCready down placed the Auroro farmer against the ropes from which the unintentional foul came. Watson refused to take advantage of the situation and while Referee Maxwell was calling for a decision the final gong sounded ending the title bout even.

Smart Semi-Final Bout

For unadulterated fun the semi-final bout between Ivan (the mad Russian) Rasputin and Karl (He Kripples 'em) Davis was tops. When Davis wasn't beating knots on Ivan's noggin, the bewhiskered and behaired Russian was hitting Davis with everything in the Arena, except possibly the ring posts. The boys grappled to a 30-minute draw, but it wasn't before they gave the patrons more action than they had anticipated. Maybe Davis wasn't at his best because he was the customers' favorite, and that is really something in "The Krippler's" ring life. The fans did get something of a kick out of Davis' attempt to bewhisker the "Whiskered Russian", who resembled something of Tarzan's apes. Marse Tunney could do worse as an advertising medium than rematch this pair, who went the route and gave the patrons everything from throttling each other to appeasing their hunger with human flesh. Ivan strangled Karl with the latter's robe. Not to be outdone Davis throttled Ivan with his towel. It was all even now, so the playful boys rolled Referee Cliff Fox beneath them and the bout ended in a merry mix-up.

Kennedy Wins Smartly

History was made at the Hume Arena last night when "Irish Jack" Kennedy pinned Al Dunlop in exactly six seconds in the opening bout. Dunlop hit Kennedy, they both hit the mat and presto-chango Kennedy was astride and that was that, even faster than you can read it. Promoter Tunney will be back next week with more wrestling surprises.

With the First Canadian Army in France and Belgium (CP) — The Canadians moved through the coastal area of Belgium so far that few shots were fired and civilian damage was extremely negligible much to the surprise and delight of the Belgians.

For the Belgians there were no such ravages as they suffered in the First Great War.

Members of the Belgian resistance movement said the Canadians passed through their towns six days before the scheduled delivery from Brussels farms with which the resistance people had hoped to assist the liberation of the coastal area.

RELIANCE GIRLS AGAIN CHAMPIONS SOFTBALL LEAGUE

Win Fourth Game Required for Title From Swacos by 11-9 Count

EXTRA BASE HITS

CHAMPIONS!

It's repeat champions the Reliance girls softball team are today after winning the 1944 Belleville Ladies' Softball Championship final series four games to one over the SWACO lassies. The defending champions of 1943 not only kept their lead all through the 1944 season but concluded in a blaze of glory to win the fifth game of a best-in-seven series, by the score of 11 to 9 at the armories lawn Wednesday night to ring down the curtain on girls' softball for the current season.

In weather more suitable for football than softball the champions came from behind last night in a game that was productive of much hitting and many errors of omission and commission, attributed to the cold raw weather. A small crowd witnessed the ringing down of the 1944 curtain.

Everett Dickey's SWACO's with their backs to the wall and facing elimination in defeat, started off on the right foot to rack up three runs in the initial frame on singles by Corneal and Rowbotham and a double by Kelleher. Rita Buker's single, two walks and a brace of passed balls gave Reliance two counters in their half, as the champions bounced back to score five runs in the second when Wright and Blaind singled and Millie Foster helped her own cause with a double. Again errors and walks helped Reliance and saw Ev. Reid removed from the SWACO mound in favor of Lois Calcutt. The "Eastenders" from SWACO battle back tenaciously but could not overcome the large lead set up by the champions in the second stanza.

SWACO out-hit Reliance 15 to 9 and had twice as many extra base hits, but the pay-off comes in runs and the four walks issued by the two SWACO hurlers resulted in tallies and coupled with loose fielding paved the way for repeat champions Millie Foster went the route for Reliance and although she did not strike out a single batter, she had good control and failed to issue a single walk. Her support was stronger also.

LAY TRAP FOR TRAPPING STARLINGS

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Starlings had better beware of post-war Toronto.

Mayor Fred Conboy, speaking on a resolution from the Stratford city council on the starling nuisance, told Board of Control here that when a device becomes available and funds are in the budget to purchase it, a large trap covering "an entire boulevard" may be installed in the city for the purpose of trapping starlings.

Mayor Conboy said that large traps are at present being made to destroy these pests.

Detroit Tigers Lead Brownies By One Length in Closest Race in Years in American

Tigers Have Four Games to Play With Senators and St. Louis the Same Number With Yanks

ENDS SUNDAY

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Washington's sorry Senators, picked to win the pennant in March but destined to be a gloomy last in October, hold the key today to Detroit's first pennant bid since 1940.

Granted the Bengals may find the last four steps the steepest after beating the Nats 15 times in their first 18 meetings, but the two opposition candidates, St. Louis, one game back, and New York, three lengths off the pace, will be clashing in a dog-eat-dog series that can easily eliminate both.

With four games to go all around, Detroit's one-game lead looks good because the schedule is breaking in their favor after a long, up-hill struggle. Steve O'Neill's overworked duo of Hal Newhouser and Paul (Dizzy) Trout are not down for duty today but either or both will be on call.

As long as the Tigers get pitching and hitting like yesterday's 4-0 victory over Philadelphia, nobody can get close. When the Yanks and Browns chased one another from April to mid-September, everything seemed to hinge on their closing clash but the Browns' loss to Boston last night took some of the edge off.

Sorry They Played

Rain in St. Louis almost turned things upside down yesterday but the Browns, after moving the Boston finale from afternoon to night and delaying the start for an hour waiting for the drizzle to stop, finally played and were sorry. It was the end of a seven-game St. Louis winning streak and a 10-game Boston losing string.

Pinky Woods, a surprise nominee, took the decision, 4-1, his fourth of the year, but gave way to Red Barrett after a wild spell in the eighth. Denny Galehouse was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the fifth trailing, 1-0, and his relief pitchers failed as the Browns muffed repeated opportunities in the late innings.

It was Newhouser with win No. 28 for the Tigers in the shutout of the A's, boosting the Newhouser-Trout total to 55 victories, tying the old mark held by Cleveland's Jim Bagby, Sr. and Stan Coveleskie.

New York kept its foot in the door by trimming Chicago, 7-2. Cleveland showed Earl Henry, a left-hander from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and the recruit beat Washington, 6-4.

Cincinnati's Bucky Walters picked up his 23rd National League success by topping New York, 8-1, thanks to Steve Mesner's grand-slam homer. Freshman Clyde King hurled Brooklyn to a 3-2 shade over St. Louis, Boston held on to nose out Pittsburgh, 4-3, and Chicago came up with two in the 11th for a 5-3 edge over the Phils, in other senior-circuit games.

Junior O.A.S.A. Game Postponed At Peterborough

Inclement weather forced the postponement of the third and final Junior O.A.S.A. game scheduled to be played between the Belleville Columbian Squires and the Toronto Carltons yesterday afternoon. Dave Leether, Peterboro O.A.S.A. executive member, contacted Convener Harry Rollins here yesterday noon to state rain was falling to such proportions it would be impossible to play the game at Peterboro's Riverside Park last evening. In all probability the Toronto-Belleville junior O.A.S.A. series will continue at Peterboro on Saturday.

The local Squires won the first game in Toronto by a similar score and then dropped the return game here last Saturday by the same score when the Carlton kids evened the series. Don Boyle will pitch for the Squires in the saw-off struggle.

In the meantime the SACO "Marines" are awaiting the result of the Fort Erie-Sarnia Intermediate O.A.S.A. semi-finals before advancing to the provincial softball finals. Fort Erie won the first game of this series with the second game scheduled to be played in the Tunnel Town Saturday.

OSHAWA BOXER

Recently in Oshawa, Jerry Downs, Belleville, made a creditable showing in his fight with "Lil Arthur" King, the sensational Toronto colored lad. Downs evaded King's Sunday punch to the surprise of all and thereby won himself a principal spot on Friday night's boxing show here when he meets Joey McPhee, the pride of Oshawa. Promoter Bill Crawford has lined up nine all-star bouts headed by a go between Georgie Palmatier of Belleville and "Dynamite" Wheeler of Oshawa. Boxing lovers are in for a real treat in the return of boxing to Belleville.

Frankie Skaff Hits Homer With Bases Loaded to Sink Bears

SCORE IS 14-3

Baltimore, Sept. 28. (AP)—Baltimore Orioles, one up in the International League final play-offs, meet Newark Bears tonight in the second game of the four-of-seven series for the right to play Louisville, winner of the American Association playoffs, in the Little World Series.

Charley Embree was expected to start on the mound for Baltimore while the Bears placed their hopes on Phil Page.

The teams will move to Newark tomorrow for two games and will return to Baltimore Sunday unless Baltimore wins four straight.

The Orioles blasted Newark 14-3 in last night's opener before 12,773 persons. Newark had been idle eight days since defeating Toronto four straight, while Baltimore finished a hectic seven-game series against Buffalo Tuesday night.

Baltimore got to Ken Holcombe, Newark's starter, for three runs in the first inning and sewed up the game in the second with five more tallies. Third baseman Frankie Skaff provided the pay-off with a homer with the bases loaded. Skaff drove in six runs in all.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

A strong team, almost the same as that which defeated Mimico-Brampton in last year's Dominion box lacrosse title series, will be fielded by New Westminster Salmonbellies when they open this year's series in Toronto Oct. 7. Heading Salmonbellies' 16-man crew is Bill Wilkes, first string centre man and team captain.

The World's series still has its old lure for Jack McConnell of Winnipeg, who next week expects to see his 24th consecutive contest. McConnell says his record is surpassed only by 80-year-old Joe Page of Montreal, who has seen every series.

It's considered possible that London will withdraw from further Ontario Baseball Association competition following a ruling at Hamilton by the O.B.A. executive forbidding London to use Hank Biasatti in re-play games against Windsor ordered by the executive. Windsor lodged a protest over Biasatti with the executive.

Racing, after lapsing for nearly two months, begins again in France Oct. 6. The Sport of Kings was carried on during the German occupation despite the breaking up of many stables and other disruption which included Allied bombers. But the ponies will run now with the approval of the Minister of Agriculture.

Battle Direct, owned by W. C. Gibbs of Lumsden, Sask., won the 15 pacing trot at the Lexington trots here yesterday. Battle Direct turned in times of 2:02¾ and 2:03 in the two-heat race.

Titan Hanover set a world mark for a two-heat race for two-year-old trotters in winning the $6,500 American Stage in mile heats of 2:02¾ each.

Promoter Jack Allan announced last night that Josep Peralta, Mexican lightweight champion, will be the opponent for Dave Castilloux of Montreal, Canadian welter and featherweight champion, in the top event of the major boxing show at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto Oct. 6.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Written For the Canadian Press)
By ROBERT CLARKE

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP)—This isn't likely to create sports headlines across the country, but this corner has derived a great deal of satisfaction from the knowledge that it has helped solve, it hopes, a problem that has been bothering some of the good people of Rouyn, Que.

The problem arose from a morsel of information carried in the daily sports column put out by press news, the radio news subsidiary of The Canadian Press. The item in question, culled from Frank Menke's encyclopedia of sport, stated baldly that the antelope is the fastest animal—capable of travelling 62 miles per hour.

Since press news serves 40 radio stations, it should be safe to say that at least two dozen sportscasters across the country imparted that breathless bit of information to their listeners. In other words, a good half-million persons probably heard from their radios about the athletic abilities of the antelope.

Only the sports fans in Rouyn, apparently, were unprepared to take the news at face value. Sportscaster Ross Guy of CKRN no sooner had finished his broadcast than the 'phone calls started. Didn't he know that the cheeta made the antelope look like a dawdler? Hadn't he ever heard that the gazelle could take time out to munch grass and still whip the antelope in a match race?

As this disbelief on the part of the people of Rouyn reached alarming proportions, sportscaster Guy decided that the only thing to do was to dump the whole matter into the press news lap—which he did. This caused a great deal of confusion around press news, since no one of the staff had an idea what a cheeta looked like, much less knowing how fast it could travel.

The encyclopedia Britannica couldn't solve the problem. It did have a picture of a cheeta, though. Where to turn? Maple Leaf Gardens probably wouldn't know. Burleigh Grimes had his own worries. His Toronto baseball club was in the International League playoffs, and he undoubtedly couldn't be bothered imparting the information.

Well, the Ontario museum finally came to the rescue. J. R. Dymond of the museum staff admitted that he couldn't say about such matters off-hand, but he'd take a look through some reference books.

Here's what he unearthed: The cheeta can travel 70 M.P.H. but only for a short stretch, around 100 yards; the gazelle swings along at 60 M.P.H. for a half-mile or so; and the antelope is capable of at least a steady 60 M.P.H.

Evidently, then, what Mr. Menke had in mind when he gave the call to the antelope as the world's fastest animal was for sustained speed. And that's the way this corner passed along the information to sportscaster Guy. What we didn't mention was Mr. Dymond's parting shot.

"Actually you're considering mammals, not animals," he said. "Some insects are animals and they're capable of moving at a pretty fast clip."

After all, there's no sense in stirring up another argument in Rouyn.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON No. 492

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Long-winded rules are not up my alley. I strive to construct the shortest rules to cover the most territory. And for the sake of brevity, it is sometimes necessary to compromise.

An opening three bid (in a major suit) fills a gap that is not handled by any other bids. It is the only suit bid that deals with hands too good for one bids and not quite good enough for two bids.

It is a special bid to show a hand with a number of special qualities. To describe all of them and their variations would take too long a rule.

One thing it shows is a practically solid suit of seven cards or more. The suit is so long and strong, it expects to lose no more than one trick without help from partner.

Another thing it shows is a sure trick (ace or K Q) in some other suit. And another thing it shows is ability to take seven or eight tricks without help from partner.

All that would take too many words in the form of a rule. So, I generally put it into these words: A three bid shows a seven card or longer quite solid suit and a sure outside trick.

But many a hand with a six card nearly solid suit can count eight tricks if it has enough other high cards. And the only bid available for it is a three bid.

To include such hands, a brief overall rule could take in both extremes and in between. So, it sometimes seems sufficient to say: A three bid shows a re-biddable suit and a sure outside trick.

Pick up a hand like this:

♠4 2
♥A K Q J 10 6
♦K Q 9
♣A 3

This hand has only a six card suit. But it is not enough for two hearts and too much for one heart. Open it with three hearts.

Hope that your partner has a heart.

BATAWA BOMBERS DEFEAT GRIMSBY TO WIN TITLE

Ability to Hit in Clutches Spells Difference Between Winning and Losing

PLAY AT OSHAWA

Batawa "Bombers" are provincial Intermediate "C" softball champions today as the result of their 8-6 win over the Grimsby "Peachkings" at Oshawa on Wednesday afternoon in the third and deciding game of their O.A.S.A. series. Batawa won the first game of the series on their home diamond with the western lads evening the series on the return trip necessitating a third game.

Ability to hit in the clutches was the factor which meant victory for the "Bombers" as they were outhit by the losers by a 11-9 margin. Errors on the part of the Grimsby outfield also aided the Batawa cause as balls hit for singles were allowed to go through for home runs.

Cuff, hurling for the winners, struck out two while allowing eleven hits, one of them a homer in the last inning with one aboard, while Belcott, the Grimsby pitcher, struck out an equal number.

Winners Win Toss.

Winning the toss for choice of innings, Batawa went into the lead in the first inning when after hitting safely Austin worked around to third and stole home as the Grimsby catcher lobbed the ball back to the pitcher. They added another in the second with Grimsby scoring singletons in the second and third.

Grimsby went into a momentary lead in the fifth as they counted twice but Batawa came back with three in their half of the inning and added three more in the eighth. In a dying effort to pull the game out of the fire, Lane, the Grimsby third-sacker, conked a home run with one aboard in the ninth but following batters were easy outs.

Austin Led Attack.

For the winners, Austin led the offensive attack knocking out three safeties including a triple, while Stacey and Aquino got two apiece. Four of the Grimsby lads, Julkie, Comfort, Fox and Lane also counted two hits apiece. Fielding features were counted by Kelter at second for Grimsby, and by Peacock in centre for the winners.

CARDS HAVE BEST OUTFIELDERS IN COMING SERIES

Musial, Hopp and Litwhiler Provide Plenty of Punch to Attack

DETROIT SECOND BEST

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Sept. 28 — (AP) — You'll find it in the Cards—if you're looking for the standout outfield among the world series contenders.

The potent punch of Stan Musial, Johnny Hopp and Danny Litwhiler paced the St. Louis National League entry to its third straight pennant.

American League partisans may argue that Detroit's Dick Wakefield can match any Cardinal outfielder in all-around ability but in group comparison, neither the Tiger trio of Wakefield, Roger (Doc) Cramer and Jimmy Outlaw nor the St. Louis Browns' outfield patrol of Milt Byrnes, Mike Kreevich and Chet Laabs can stack up against the Cards.

Besides being runner-up for the National League batting title with .344, Musial leads the loop with 50 doubles. He has 191 hits, including 14 triples and 11 homers and has driven in 91 runs. Hopp boasts an average of .333 with 34 doubles, 9 triples, 11 homers and 65 runs batted in. Although Litwhiler is batting only .262, he has hit 13 homers and driven in 74 runs.

Litwhiler is the National League record-holder, having gone through 187 straight games at one time without an error. Hopp has made but one error all season and Musial is among the leaders in assists with 15.

All three have the added advantage of having been in series competition before, while no member of the Tiger or Brown outfield can boast of such experience.

Leftfielder Wakefield's bat boomed for .348 average, including 13 doubles, six triples and 12 homers, and in 73 games he has driven in 51 runs. The 38-year-old Cramer, a veteran of 15 years' standing, has been hitting at a .500 pace since July 4, to lift his average to a respectable .289. Outlaw, a grand clutch hitter and team player despite his .274 batting mark, rounds out the Tiger outfield.

O.B.A. Members May Resign

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 28 — (CP) —Two members of the Ontario Baseball Association executive announced last night they will resign from office today after the executive voted last night to uphold a decision of its sub-committee ordering London, Ont., to replay its senior play-off series with Windsor.

The executive ordered that the games be replayed Sept. 30 and Oct. 4 with a third game if necessary Oct. 7. London will not be allowed to use Hank Biasatti, who played when the London team eliminated Windsor earlier this month. Windsor protested because Biasatti played games in Detroit this summer.

The meeting was told that this decision would lead the London team to withdraw from the O.B.A. series, putting Windsor into the finals for the title with Welland, Niagara district champions.

By a vote of 4-3 the executive rejected a motion by W. G. Ward that the action of the sub-committee be overruled and that London be declared the winner of the London-Windsor series and be drawn to meet Welland.

A. R. McFadyen of Galt, who seconded Mr. Ward's motion, announced he would send his resignation as a member of the executive to O. B. A. secretary William Snyder of Hamilton this morning. Mr. Ward said he would take similar action.

ALL EIGHT TEAMS TO SEE ACTION THIS WEEKEND

Hamilton Wildcats Go to Ottawa to Meet the Trojans

BALMIES PLAY INDIANS

(By The Canadian Press.)

The senior football season in Ontario hits its full stride Saturday with all eight teams in the Ontario Rugby Football Union and the Ontario Armed Services League scheduled to see action.

The 1943 Dominion champion Hamilton Wildcats, who won their first start of this season with a thumping 35-0 triumph over the Toronto Indians, will be in Ottawa to play the Ottawa Trojans who will be appearing in their first scheduled game. Trojans have exhibition victories over Kingston Army, 18-3, and Verdun Grads of the Quebec Rugby Football Union, 36-6, in pre-season games.

Toronto Balmy Beach makes its first start of the season in Toronto against the lowly Indians.

In the Services League, the two leading teams—Toronto Navy Bulldogs and Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers—are scheduled to play at Hamilton. Each team has won it only start and the victor will take sole possession of first place. The other services game is at London where St. Thomas R.C.A.F. Hornets entertain Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes. Hornets lost their only start to Hagersville Saturday, 8-7, while the Hurricanes were downed 22-6 by Navy.

Halfback Joe Krol, Ontario Union scoring leader with 12 points in his one start, will lead the Ottawa invasion of the marauding Wildcats who may need their full strength to match the Trojans who have assembled a potent aggregation of veterans.

Coach Alex Ponton may have Dean Griffing, former Regina star, for the game between his Beaches and Indians but even if Griffing isn't able to start he will field such veterans as Len Staughton, Susie Turner, Bill Zock and Harry Sonshine for wingline duty and Earl Selkirk, Frank Stukus and Sammy Sward in the backfield.

St. Thomas may be strengthened by the addition of FO Jerry Prince, former Buffalo payer who has returned from overseas service. Most potent scorer on the Hornets is LAC. Moon Mullins who got all seven points in their game with Hagersville. Veterans Sgt. Fred Kijek and Sgt. Doug Pyzer are the offensive bulwarks of the Camp Borden squad which hopes to plug the gaps in its wingline by Saturday.

The British team will leave England by air Friday. It is composed of four internationals —one English, two Welsh, one Scottish— and members picked equally from army and air force.

The "invading" side includes such outstanding footballers as Cpl. Stan Matthews, the Stoke City Flash, Flt. Lt. Bernard Joy of the Arsenal, George Hardwick of Middlesbrough, Joe Mercer of Everton, and LAC. Frank Som, dashing forward of Chinese parentage, who plays for Stoke City.

CHAPTER 2.

"The Baron Bismark von Offerin. I told you about him, didn't I?"

"Yes, I remember," said Ann dryly. "Your German Champion stud. You said I ought to meet him sometime."

"You must. He's magnificent. If he had a place like this to live on, the sky woud be his limit."

"Dear, me, what a fellow!"

"He certainly is. Would you—I mean I've been thinking—I mean it wouldn't be such a bad idea, if you'd—"

"Come to the point and stop babbing," she brusquely interjected. "What's on your mind?"

"I'd like to rent this place from you", he came out baldly. "I noticed some good looking kennels behind the stables".

"My father raised setters in those kennels," she said, "but only for a hobby. I'm afraid Broadfields would be a pretty expensive undertaking for a commercial kennels".

He said nothing for a moment, and then he brought out in a rather strained voice, "You think I can't swing it financially, is that it?"

"I think that just the upkeep of a place like this is an enormous responsibility", she explained tactfully. "After all, you mentioned that you were very haeplly ensconced in some place over in Westchester, so why change?"

"I said nothing about being particularly happy over there", he denied a little petulantly. "A farm like this would be heaven next to it, but if you'd rather not rent it, that's that".

She frowned. "That's not the point. You know perfectly well it would be a godsend to me to have anyone living on the place. But it's impossible for you to take it over. It needs two men just to take care of the grounds and the stock."

"I have two men," Christopher broke in. "My kennel men", he amended quickly. "I'd rent as is, assume full responsibility for animals and feed, and pay whatever you feel is fair".

She felt in the position of clutching at a straw. If she could get the burden of upkeep off her shoulders, she'd have time in which to turn around. But could he afford a rental of fifty dollars a month to enable her to meet the taxes and insurance? She broached it to him tentatively.

"For all this?" he expostulated. "Lady, where's your business head?"

"Where's yours?" she retorted. "Don't forget there's a hundred dollar feed bill to add to that. . ."

"For which I'll be getting enough dairy products to support not one kennel but two", he pointed out.

"You're being awfully generous about it", she murmured gratefully, and hoped that he wasn't the ingratiating type of ne'er-do-well who would rather not pay big bills than little bills. After all, what did she know about him? Of course, she might telephone Paul Freund for references, or ask Mr. Wain outright for some assurance of his character, but somehow she could not bring herself to do that.

"How long a lease have you on the Westchester place?" she asked instead.

"I have no lease at all", he answered promptly. "I can send a man and a couple of my best dogs over here first thing tomorrow morning".

Ann gasped. "You certainly move fast", she protested.

"If I didn't, you might change your mind, or pull a farmer out of your hat and say, 'Sorry, Mr. Wain, but I've already found someone to cut my grass and water my stock; the deal's off'."

"Perhaps you're right", said Ann slowly. She looked up to see him standing at her side holding his brimming pail of milk.

"You bet I'm right", he said. "This is the sort of thing that happens to a person once in a lifetime. . . . . Want me to finish your cow for you?"

Ann wanted to tell him that she was perfectly capable of finishing her own cow. But for no good reason that she could think of, she found herself telling him the truth. "My hand is dead", she admitted faintly.

Two hours later, having finished the chores, they started back to the house.

"I reek of horse liniment", Ann announced. "Pfui".

"Not pfui at all—one of the better smells of life", said Christopher. He sniffed. "I'm no rose myself. As I stand, I could get into a Grange meeting without the passwords".

"There'll be plenty of hot water. Would you like to take a tub before you go?"

"Am I going?" he asked. "I thought I was going to stay over to help you in the morning".

"You thought wrong. I can manage perfectly well by myself".

"That's foolhardy. What if that fired farmer takes it in his head to come back?"

"Rowena's here. Just look at her now. Isn't she marvelous?"

Christopher followed her eyes to where the dog, who had been romping ahead with Gretel, suddenly stood at attention, with the hair rising sharply across her back. He smiled. "Belligerent little pup. Always looking for a scrap".

Ann nodded. "I think I'll call her Rowdy for short. It fits her. I wonder what she thinks she sees?"

For answer Rowdy gave a low growl, and a moment later a gray kitten dashed out from the shrubbery followed by a snarling shepherd mongrel. In two bounds the stray dog had the kitten within its grasp, and a thin needlelike scream pierced the air.

"Stop! You brute!" Ann shrieked.

The mongrel stopped, but it was not Ann's call that caused her to drop the kitten; it was Rowdy's menacing approach, with Gretel close behind her. The kitten scurried back into the bushes, limping a little. The mongrel, no longer interested, let it go. Ruff bristling, ears back, she stood ready for the Danes. But they remained motionless, controlled by some ancient dog-law that commanded them to wait for the intruder to declare his position and call the game.

"I don't like the looks of that tableau", Christopher remarked. "Here Rowdy! Here Gretel! Come back!"

The Danes did not move, seeming to indicate that they would behave themselves, but it was too much to ask them to turn their back on a marauder. Growling the mongrel circled toward them, fangs bared.

Christopher waited no longer. "That type of shepherd's a bad customer", he announced. "We better get the pups out of this. It has the makings of a fight".

Before he could reach them, however, the mongrel had circled to Gretel's flank. But even nine months of Great Dane represents a mass of bone and flesh not easily bowled over. Gretel leaped sideways in defense, a livid crimson line appearing on her shoulder. She uttered a cry of surprise for this was her first fight. The cry acted as a trigger of release to Rowdy. She charged in. At once the three animals were a whirling mass of hide and fur and gleaming teeth, and the sound of battle broke across the peaceful valley.

Ann's mind spun in panic. A broom! A pail of water! Ammonia! But who ever had all those things at hand when a dog fight started? She raced forward.

"Stay where you are!" Christopher snapped, putting out an arm to hold her.

"Do you think I'm going to let my dog be chewed to pieces?" she shouted.

He didn't bother to answer but thrust a foot before her, and pushed her. She came into abrupt contact with the ground. She scrambled to her feet again, but by this time there was a long gray-flannelled figure in the whirling blur of dogs. She saw him grasp Rowdy by the legs and fling her. Then he separated Gretel and the mongrel. The fight was over.

Ann's knees gave way with relief. He's got all the nerve in the world, she thought. And then the next instant the shepherd slipped from his grasp, and sprang at him. He tried to ward off the attack with his hand. The vicious teeth closed down on it. White skin became red; the world turned black before Ann's eyes. She grabbed a stick from the ground, and somehow her legs carried her toward him. But a blur of brindle lightning passed her.

There was no sound from Rowdy no threats, no declaration of intention—simply a hundred pounds of dog became animate projectile. The art of canine warfare was suddenly hers, and some primitive instinct pointed out her adversary's vulnerable spot. Rowdy's teeth closed on the mongrel's throat.

There followed a single moment when all action seemed to have been frozen in time. The mongrel loosed Christopher's hand and there was fear and agony in its yelping. Rowdy clung pitilessly to her victim until the shepherd fell writhing to the ground and lay still, utterly still.

The Dane stepped back and looked at the two human beings who had entered her life. She seemed to know that she had committed a breach of dog's contract with man—Thou Shalt Not Kill. Her tail dropped between her legs huskily.

The tone of their voices was sufficient to set Rowdy's world to and she crawled at their feet as if awaiting sentence.

Ann shuddered at the lifeless form of the mongrel, but the sight of Christopher standing beside her filled her heart with gratitude as she patted the dog's head. "All right, girl".

"Good dog, Rowdy! Brave dog! Fine dog!" Christopher praised her rights. She was up on her feet immediately, wagging her tail. The kitten poked its nose out from the bushes. Rowdy flung herself before it, and snuffed at it. The kitten spat, and threw out a clawed pad. The dog ignored the instinctive reaction, and snuffed at it again, raising a giant paw in a clumsy overture of play. Ann felt the tears gush to her eyes. "Oh, thank God, she's not vicious; she's not a natural killer", she whispered.

She looked up to see Christopher's gaze steady upon her. "You're terribly shaken. I'm sorry I had to trip you up, but I couldn't let you get mixed up in that".

A wave of giddy sickness swept her as she saw the hand he was holding half-concealed against his jacket.

"You're hurt! We've got to rush you to a doctor!"

"I'm all right. A vet's more to the point". He knelt beside Gretel who lay on the ground trying to lick the rip on her shoulder with her great slobbering tongue. He frowned. "Tough luck. If that doesn't heal over, she's out of the sweepstakes".

"Sweepstakes!" Ann exploded contemptuously. "As if that matters!"

"It matters a lot in dog business. I bought this pup as a show prospect. It matters to Paul Freund, too", he added soberly.

"How?"

"Because every time a dog of his own breeding goes through to a championship, it means that the Rheingold blood line becomes that much better known". He walked over to Rowdy, running his good hand over her flank, and then picked the kitten up, and felt of its ribs. "The cat and Rowdy seem to be the only ones who came off scot free. Come on, let's find that vet".

He started over to the parking space. Ann ran ahead. "First stop's the doctor", she called back. "Better put Rowdy in the barn while we're gone!"

She slipped beneath the wheel of her own car. "Never mind your old rattletrap", she forestalled him, as he caught up with her. "I can push mine up to sixty in a pinch".

He started to say something, but her motor was already going. "Hop in", she ordered. He grinned, and did as he was told.

It was already dark when they returned to Myles. Ann drove slowly along the river road, guarding against the occasional dips and hummocks that might jar his bandaged hand. The moon had come up, and the unleaved branches of the trees cut patterns across the road. There was a sheen far off to the left on the river, and a night wind had in it a faint nostalgic smell of Spring.

Had Indigestion; Bloated With Gas; Afraid to Eat

"Kept Getting Worse From Day to Day." Back Hurt; Often Felt Dizzy. So Nervous Couldn't Sleep —Says Syntona Helped Him.

MR. RICHARD SPEARING

"I suffered with a badly disordered stomach that kept getting worse from day to day," said Mr. Richard Spearing, 159 Locke Street, North, Hamilton, Ontario.

"I tried to be so careful about choosing my food, hoping that I wouldn't suffer afterward, but everything brought on suffering from gas and indigestion. After meals I felt all bloated and short of breath. Hot, sour liquids came up in my throat. Often I'd get dizzy spells and felt so miserable I was afraid to eat. My limbs and back were aching all the time. I lost a lot of weight and my nerves were so upset that I couldn't get to sleep for hours after going to bed at night.

"I had often read about Syntona helping other people and finally I decided to try it. From the very first bottle I felt some better and I knew by the way it acted on my stomach that it was going to help me. I was so encouraged that I kept on taking it until I can now enjoy my meals without any distress afterward. All the heavy, bloated feeling, the sourness and shortness of breath have disappeared. I haven't had any dizzy feelings since and the aches and pains have gone away. My nerves calmed down, so that I have no trouble getting to sleep at night, and have regained most of my lost weight. I can really recommend Syntona to every one suffering as I did."

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 28 — (AP)—Selected stocks attracted modest investment demand in today's market while many leaders were unable to find worthwhile bids. There were a few soft spots in evidence near the fourth hour although fractional irregularity prevailed.

Kennecott and Gruman aircraft touched peaks for 1944. Ahead the greater part of the session were Bethlehem, Goodyear, Southern Pacific, Du Pont, Dow Chemical, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting and Montgomery Ward. Faltering tendencies were displayed by U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Texas Co., Anaconda and Consolidated Edison. Canadian stocks were quiet.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Dressedweight, Grade A delivered, Hamilton and London $17.50; Stratford, to farmers $17.50 to truckers $17.65; Hull $17.40; Barrie $17.60.

WHY TAXIS HAVE FEW ACCIDENTS

Over the past 25 years, taxicab drivers have the lowest per car accident rate of any group of drivers in the country. One of the reasons why they have fewer accidents is that they never fool around with faulty brakes. If your brakes are not in 100% working order, drive in today. Have them relined or adjusted.

YANKS PUSH 5 MILES CLOSER TO BELFORT GAP

RUSSIANS OPEN THREE-WAY DRIVE ON HUNGARY

Knock Out 82 Hun Tanks in Powerful Surge Forward

Calais and Cap Gris Nez Expected To Fall Soon

(By JAMES M. LONG)
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 29. (AP)—The American 3rd and 7th Armies have surged forward three to five miles through fierce German resistance in Alsace-Lorraine, it was announced today, while to the north the German commander at Calais asked the 1st Canadian Army for surrender terms, while Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's combined British 2nd Army and Parachute Forces closed up to the Meuse river on a 20-mile front from their Nijmegen corridor in Holland.

The two American armies, prying at the Belfort Gap only 11 miles away and knocking at the four main passes through the Vosges to the Rhine, scored the deepest and widest gains on any Allied front. The 3rd Army knocked out 82 German tanks in the powerful onslaught.

Costly Counter-Attacks.

On these southern sectors on the 500-mile front, they shredded half a dozen enemy counter-attacks which cost the Germans heavily, captured eight and ten villages and their bag of enemy tanks was one of the biggest since D-Day.

The U.S. 1st Army, on the middle reaches between British forces on the left wing and the U.S. 3rd Army, pushed the line of assault up to the German frontier in yet another sector, capturing Remich in Luxembourg.

Remich is on the Moselle boundary between Luxembourg and Germany, 11 miles southeast of the city of Luxembourg and 20 miles southwest of the German city of Trier.

There was no word from the 1st Army's salient through the Hurtgen Forest, 14 miles southeast of besieged Aachen, in the push toward the Rhine at Cologne. There the biggest Allied guns —10-inchers —have been duelling with German batteries and knocking at strategic targets.

Two Channel strongholds—at Calais and Cap Gris Nez—appeared ripe to topple into Canadian hands today. At first light an all-out assault was launched on the Cap Gris Nez fortifications.

No Word of Acceptance.

It was reported the Canadians had offered the German commander at Calais surrender terms which expired at 10 a.m., today (Calais time) but the hour passed without their acceptance. Some believed his supposed consideration of the terms was merely a play for time.

Already 2,000 prisoners have been taken at Calais and the city has been under recurrent attack from rocket-firing planes of the tactical air force and from British heavy bombers.

Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army group forces pushing out westward from their salient in Holland, where they threatened to cut off some 200,000 Germans, also moved to within five miles of Hertogenbosch and, closing in from the south, extended their bridgehead over the Antwerp-Turnhout Canal. Canadian troops also had advanced from two to three miles across the canal.

But the fiercest fighting was to the south.

The U.S. 3rd Army struck five miles due east of Pont A Mousson, between Metz and Nancy, and liberated Port Sur Seille, just north of the historic hinge where French troops in 1914 stalemated the German drive through Lorraine and held a pivot on which the whole front swung from the northeast.

Thirteen to 20 miles in an arc northeast and east of Nancy the 3rd held firm against four major counter-attacks near Pettoncourt, Bezange, and Coincourt and smashed ahead to high ground in the forest of Parroy.

It was in and around that forest that the Germans pushed in most of their tank strength— and where they lost the most.

15-Mile-Wide Valley.

East of Lure, smashing through head on, the U.S. 7th Army also won a foothold close to the 15-mile-wide valley that is the Belfort gap to Germany—the break between the peaks of the Vosges and the snow-powdered slopes of the Alps.

They captured Clairegoutte, 11 miles west of Belfort, gateway to the gap.

Along the whole front Canadian, British, American and French forces were getting strong fighter and fighter-bomber support. Their planes flew almost 2,500 sorties of direct support yesterday.

Only 60 to 70 German planes were sighted over the front the whole day.

The 19th tactical air force, which operates in direct support of 3rd Army forces, had one of its biggest days, blasting enemy communications and fortifications over a wide area during 570 sorties. Flying beyond the battlelines these planes reported the destruction of 58 locomotives, 147 railway cars, and seven barges and made 72 cuts in rail lines.

But 1,000-pound bombs dropped on the fortifications of Metz still had not been able to crack those strongholds of concrete and steel.

Admit Loss of Ground.

The Germans in Berlin broadcasts, admitted the loss of territory in the face of the U.S. attack, which they said was on a broad front east of Pont A Mousson.

Berlin broadcasters, betraying nervousness, predicted another all-out assault was about to begin from the 1st Army salient at Aachen, and a burst of inquisitive enemy activity was reported from Holland.

In the latter sector the Germans counter-attacked in numerous places, sending aggressive patrols across the Leopold canal and across the Neder Rhine west of Arnhem to attack the British. All these jabs were repulsed.

Berlin indicated belief that a heavy Allied attack also was brewing from Holland.

"We must not deceive ourselves into believing the present lessening tension is anything more than a brief lull," the German military radio warned front-line Nazi troops.

At the northern end of the Dutch corridor the Allied forces stood along five miles of the south bank of the Neder Rhine south and west of the ill-fated Arnhem foothold. To the north is a dry-land escape route only 25 miles wide for the imperilled Germans in western Holland.

Russian Dandelion Now Being Used In Tire Construction

Akron, O., Sept. 29—(AP)—The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company announced today it was producing tires from the Russian dandelion, Kokasaghyz, and said they appeared to equal tree rubber tires in quality although only small quantities are available.

The dandelion, grown in the Florida Everglades from seeds flown here from Russia, yields up to 200 pounds of rubber an acre, the Company reported.

Rubber, formed chiefly in the foot of the plant, is extracted by a grinding process somewhat similar to that used in obtaining the elastic from Guayulen the Company announcement stated.

Hitler To Use 14-Ton Projectile With Explosive Radius of 2 Miles

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in France, Sept. 23—(Delayed) — (AP) — United States 3rd Army troops have obtained information indicating that a 14-ton projectile with an explosive radius of three kilometres — almost two miles — is scheduled as the third in Hitler's series of vengeance weapons.

V-1 is the robot bomb launched from a platform.

V-2 is the long-range rocket fired from a carrier plane, for which the Germans are reported using the Heinkel III.

V-3, so far as is known here, has not yet been used against either Britain or the attacking Allied armies.

(This dispatch, written last Saturday and only today cleared through Allied censorship, did not expand upon the "explosive radius" of V-3. However, the implication was that its power to wreck or damage buildings extended almost two miles from the point of impact.)

Information on the "V-3," the successor to Hitler's flying bomb and long-range rocket, was obtained by American 3rd Army troops in their drive into enemy territory.

This information disclosed the projectile is just short of 60 feet in length, is five feet, five inches in diameter and weighs 14 tons at the take-off. Propelled by a mixture of liquid air and alcohol, it is shot into the air vertically, then is controlled by radio.

CANADIANS OPEN STRONG ATTACK ON CAP GRIZ NEZ

Three Main Forts And Cross-Channel Gun Positions Now In Jeopardy

LULL AT CALAIS

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadians Outside Calais, September 29. (CP Cable)—Canadian troops, who had fought their way up to the outskirts of Calais from the west and southwest, paused today while other Canadian infantry delivered an attack on Cap Gris Nez with its three main forts and cross-channel gun positions.

The Gris Nez assault came at first light this morning, following an attack last night by heavy bombers.

Maritime and Ontario troops are carrying out the assault while the forces attacking Calais have temporarily stopped their advance upon a German garrison—minus 2,000 prisoners—hemmed in on three sides.

Behind the Canadian-held citadel and immediately to the south, Canadians have crossed a wide strip of flooded territory and worked their way east of the railway lines at the western outskirts of the town.

To the south, Western Canada troops also are right up to the city's outskirts, and an Ontario force has swung round to the south of Calais and started to work in from the east.

Yesterday, in addition to attacks by heavy bombers on eastern gun positions, the tactical air force flew several hundred sorties against German defence points in attacks requested by ground troops.

Dozens of planes circled the town, ready to blast with rockets and bombs any targets offered. The Germans tried to drive them off with anti-aircraft fire.

High Ranking Nazi Dies at Neustadt

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—Joseph Buerckel, Minister in Hitler's government and one of the highest ranking Nazis, died today of inflammation of the lungs, the German radio announced.

Among posts he held at various times were those of civil administrator of Lorraine; head of the civil administration in Moravia, a province of dismembered Czechoslovakia; and governor of the Saar, one of Germany's richest sections on her western boundaries.

Buerckel was 49. Berlin said he died at Neustadt.

The broadcast identified him as "first Gauleiter of Austria" and "one of the oldest and most loyal of Hitler's supporters."

A subsequent Berlin announcement said Hitler had appointed Willie Stoehr, chief of the Nazi party chancellory, as acting Gauleiter or party chief of "Westmark Province" in succession to Buerckel. Westmark is the German designation for the French Province of Lorraine, which Hitler combined with the Saar in 1940 for administrative purposes.

Synthetic Rubber Make 60,000,000 lbs. in Year Future Bright—Howe

Sarnia, Sept. 29 —(CP)— Munitions Minister Howe, speaking at a ceremony marking the first anniversary of the manufacture of synthetic rubber in Canada, today forecast a bright future for the government owned $51,000,000 Polymer Corporation synthetic rubber plant on the outskirts of this city.

Mr. Howe said he favored the plant being retained under government ownership, as was recommended by the War Expenditure Committee of the House of Commons at the last session of parliament.

Mr. Howe said the Polymer plant had demonstrated ability to produce synthetic rubber in sufficient quantity to meet all foreseeable Canadian demands and to produce other chemicals.

"What will happen when natural rubber competes with synthetic rubber, I cannot say," the Minister continued. "But I do know that synthetic rubber is here and here to stay. I cannot envisage a time when the very freedom of the people of North America will again entirely depend upon the product of distant lands and on transport from distant seas.

"Today we need and can use, not only the rubber, but the chemical components created in this great plant. Because of its present output, and because of its potential production, this undertaking could become the very hub of a group of complementary chemical and other industries. We live at the very dawn of a chemical age. In the light of what has been achieved, Polymer need not fear the future."

60,000,000th Pound of Rubber.

During the ceremony, three of the employees—James Morrice, Aubrey Bruyea and Charles Goldsmith—presented Mr. Howe with the 60,000,000th pound of rubber produced.

Stanley T. Crossland, vice-president of the Rubber Reserve Corporation, a subsidiary of the United States' Reconstruction Corporation, spoke of the close co-operation between Canada and the United States in the manufacture of rubber. The combined program has an original rated capacity of 850,000 tons a year but operating experience had shown an actual capacity of 1,100,000 tons which gave a margin of safety over wartime demands and was almost double the highest peace time requirements.

Polymer President R. C. Berkinshaw reported the sales value of the 60,000,000 pounds of rubber already produced was more than $34,000,000.

Polymer's production costs compared favorably with the lowest in the synthetic rubber industry and it was expected the time would soon be reached when synthetic could be produced at a cost equal to or below that of natural rubber prior to the war.

Officials disclosed that the Polymer plant now is running 11 per cent above its original rated capacity and is turning out buna-s rubber—used in tire casings and airplane parts—at the rate of 39,000 tons a year and butyl rubber—used for inner tubes and other purposes—at 4,500 tons a year. Canada's peacetime consumption of rubber was from 30,000 to 35,000 tons a year.

Cost Price Cut to 30 Cents.

During the ceremony announcement was made that the price of Canadian-made synthetic rubber has been reduced from 35 to 30 cents a pound. Original price for the Sarnia plant's product was 40.5 cents a pound. Further reductions are expected after the war when

BRITISH MEETING STIFF OPPOSITION IN ADRIATIC AREA

Americans Seize Three Heights Commanding the Route to Bologna

EQUIPMENT SEIZED

Rome, Sept. 29 (CP)—British 8th Army troops have run into severe opposition in the Adriatic sector of the Italian front, with the enemy launching a series of fresh counter-attacks in the Rubicon river area, today's Allied communique reported.

American troops of the Allied 5th Army have captured Mount Battaglia, 11 miles from Imola, important Po Valley city of the Bologna-Rimini highway.

The Americans also seized three key heights commanding the direct route north to Bologna.

Eighty army forces made gains in the southeastern edges of the Po Valley. The enemy has dug in along strong defence lines that parallel the Fiumcino river, the first major water barrier encountered since the break-through into level country, and is fighting savagely.

Incessant heavy German counter-attacks marked the 8th Army's narrow penetration into the Po Valley.

New Zealand troops fighting with the Canadians met strong resistance along a line 1,000 yards east of the Fiumcino river from the coastal town of Gatteo southwest to Savignano, where a fierce battle raged. The advance to Gatteo represented a two-mile gain from Bellaria.

The Canadians hammered the enemy out of the village of San Mauro Di Romagna, eight miles northwest of Rimini and a little over a mile east of the Fiumcino river. Leading elements established a small bridgehead across the stream.

The 8th Army reported 9,000 prisoners captured in the current offensive in the Adriatic sector, in addition to the seizure of 73 armored vehicles and 43 anti-tank guns.

Allied headquarters gave no specific information on gains on the west flank of the 5th Army, where the Brazilians have been keeping a steady pace, but said "important advances have been made" and "the entire Gothic zone has now been penetrated with the exception of a small area of the west coast."

MCNAUGHTON NOW A FULL GENERAL ON RETIRED LIST

Not Mentioned the Civilian Post to Which He Will Go

LED CANADIAN ARMY

By JACK BRAYLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—The second general in Canadian army history—soldierly and scholarly A. G. L. McNaughton—characteristically was spending this first day of retirement from the army in an inspection of a war plant he had a hand in developing, leaving the question of his future employment unanswered.

An announcement last night by Defence Minister Ralston told of the general's promotion and his retirement and spoke of his natural desire "to make plans for the future."

In an exchange of letters the general spoke of the time having arrived when he should be free to give his attention "to other matters." And Col. Ralston replied that in recent talks he had noted the general's eagerness "to make plans for active work again."

But nowhere was mentioned the civilian post to which General McNaughton will eventually go. It was learned on good authority, however, that for the present at least, the general will not return to his pre-war post as President of National Research Council. It was known that the general desires a post of public service

If he is not returning to the Research Council, which still list him on official records as "President, on leave to the army" the speculation is that he may be going to an executive post with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. His recognized forte for organization and administration are believed to fit him admirably for such a berth.

RUSS PLANES SINK 30 BARGES

New York, Sept. 29—Russian naval aircraft raided the German-held port of Vadsoe in northern Norway and sank more than 30 barges and motorboats and blew up an ammunition dump, the BBC reported last night.

Survivors of Athabaskan Taken Prisoners But Set Free by Allies

Ottawa, Sept. 29 — (CP) — Five crewman who survived the May 29 sinking of the destroyer Athabaskan in pre-invasion patrol in the English Channel have told how the Canadian ship was hit by a torpedo, how they were taken prisoner and how they were delivered by Allied invading armies.

A naval release today tells of the experiences of the five Canadians: Surg.-Lieut. James Fyfe of Crystal City, Man.; Chief PO/ William Mitchell, Vancouver; Stoker John Dolan, Montreal; AB. Edward McCloy, Hamilton, Ont., and OS. Raymond Moar, Chatham, N.B.

The five, with 30 other Athabaskan personnel, were plucked out of the water by German naval craft and taken to a Brest hospital. They were in Brest from May 29 to June 11 when they were removed to a French hospital at Orleans. On June 11, 22 who had recovered, were sent to German prison camps while the other five were liberated by the Allies Aug. 16.

Surg.-Lieut. Fyfe and CPO. Mitchell, both of them suffering from broken legs, are still in hospital in southern England. AB. McCloy is in hospital in Scotland. Stoker Dolan and OS. Moar are completely recovered.

The morning that the Athabaskan was sunk, Fyfe was at his action stations post in the sick bay. Suddenly there was a terrific explosion. The ship lurched heavily, heeling far over from one side to the other.

After End on Fire

He rushed out on deck. The whole after end of the ship was on fire. Debris was lying around the decks. With a group of seamen, he tried to jettison the depth charges on the quarterdeck, but the flames barred their way. "I think a torpedo struck us astern," he said.

The deck became so hot from the fire, raging over the ship, that he crawled up on the torpedo tubes. While standing there, he was knocked unconscious by the force of a second explosion.

He tried to raise himself then, but couldn't. He realize that his legs were broken. "I thought I was finished," he said. "I was completely incapable of helping myself the slightest bit."

At that moment, the ship lurched violently, heeled far over, and Fyfe was washed into the sea.

He remembered making fast to a cork raft. Other men joined him there. He doesn't know who they were. He recalled seeing the Athabaskan burn and sink. He remembered a German destroyer steaming up to survey the scene of the battle and then turning away.

After being in the water four or five hours he and 12 other survivors were picked up by German patrol craft.

Rumors Indicate Hungary May Be Near Desertion

Permission Given Reds To Cross Yugoslavia

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 29 —(AP)— The Red army's three-way offensive against Hungary from Romania and Yugoslavia developed swiftly today while rumors of peace feelers by the Budapest government indicated Germany's last important satellite may be on the verge of deserting.

Hungary's defensive position was dark as strong Russian forces, pressing forward in a 100-mile arc on the Romanian-Hungarian frontier, increased their mountain salient and utilized Marshal Tito's permission to cross Yugoslav territory and strike the Hungarians and Germans from the south.

The Russian war bulletin disclosed that Soviet troops had fought their way into Lupkow Pass leading from Poland into Czechoslovakia, taking Vydran, a Czechoslovak rail station nearly three miles inside the frontier.

(The American broadcasting station in Europe, quoting the Turkish radio, said last night the Hungarian Premier was reported to have asked the Turkish ambassador in Budapest to learn Allied peace terms, and to act as an intermediary in preliminary negotiations for Hungary's exit from the Axis.

Reds Using 30 Divisions.

(Enemy reports asserted Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, commanding combined Russian and Romanian forces, was using 30 divisions, or upwards of 300,000 men, in an offensive that reached to within 15 miles of Szeged, Hungary's second city, and within 102 miles of Budapest.

(A Free Yugoslav broadcast heard by Reuters news agency said Marshal Tito's Partisans had reached the outskirts of Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital. Berlin reports said earlier Russian troops had crossed from Romania into Yugoslavia at a point east of Belgrade.)

In the north Russian forces converging on the Latvian port of Riga captured 50 localities, including Lode, 31 miles northeast of Riga. In Estonia 200 localities were taken by Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's troops, including the port of Virtsu on the west coast.

Strewn With Mines.

Red army assault troops within sight of Riga slugged forward through marshes strewn with mines and dotted with machine gun nests.

Col. J. L. Ralston Now in Italy To Visit Troops

With the Canadians on the Adriatic Front, Sept. 29 —(CP Cable)—Col. J. L. Ralston, Canadian defence minister, has arrived here to visit Canadian troops in action after a flight from New York.

En route to this front Col. Ralston stopped at Lt.-Gen. Wilson's headquarters and had a talk with the Allied Mediterranean commander-in-chief.

The Defence Minister was lunching at one brigade headquarters yesterday when shells fell nearby.

He is here to make a tour of hospitals, base areas, headquarters and units and will endeavor to meet as many soldiers as possible.

When he stopped at a forward reinforcement battalion the Minister became involved for more than an hour in a question bee.

The troops, mostly veterans ready to return to the line, kept gathering until nearly 600 were firing questions at him about discharge, zombies, beer, the Japanese war and other subjects.

Col. Ralston answered all the questions and when he left was loudly applauded by the men.

Hamilton Man Convicted Of Manslaughter

Hamilton, Sept. 29 (CP)—Alfred Douglas Dunsmoor of Hamilton, who confessed to starting five fires in this city, is being held in custody today pending sentence by Mr. Justice J. A. Hope on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Dorothy Martin, 33, one of 10 victims of the Moose Hall blaze here last May 23.

The 25-year-old former employee of the Royal Oak Dairy originally had been charged specifically with Mrs. Martin's murder but it was reduced by an Ontario Supreme Court jury last night when they returned a verdict of manslaughter, bringing to a close the three-day trial. The jurors deliberated three hours.

A statement police said Dunsmoor had given to them voluntarily during investigation of the fire was entered in evidence at the trial. The statement said he put a match to a piece of burlap in the cloakroom of the hall while more than 70 employees of the dairy were attending a dance.

Mrs. Martin was found dead by firemen sitting in a chair on the dance floor. Nine of the other 40 burned and injured died later in hospital.

During the trial four psychiatrists testified to the mental condition of Dunsmoor and in an hour-long charge to the jury Mr. Justice Hope confined his remarks mainly to this evidence.

COST ACCOUNTANTS HEAR INSTRUCTIVE TALK BY J. A. LIZOTTE

The Bay of Quinte Chapter of the "Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario", held its inaugural dinner meeting for the 1944-45 season at the Masonic Temple, last evening with twenty-five members and guests being present.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Mr. Mark J. Vanner, who has with him on the board of directors, Mr. Carl Casey, vice-chairman, Mr. Nelson Allan, secretary-treasurer, Mr. A. D. Counsell, director of publicity and Mr. Ike Stephenson.

The speaker of the evening Mr. J. A. Lizotte spoke on the subject "Cost Finding" and his discourse was one that those present found very instructive. It was not only interesting and educational but practical, as the speaker brought to the attention of his audience the plain truths which management is sometimes apt to overlook.

DONATIONS TO SERVICES FUND REACH $3,500

Up to Thursday noon, donations to the Belleville Community Services Fund had amounted to $3,500, campaign officials announced today.

Canvassers started work at the beginning of the week when the drive for $15,000 to assist the Y.M.C.A.; Salvation Army; V.O.N. and the Children's Aid Society got under way.

Headquarters of the campaign is located at the Riggs Garage on Pinnacle Street with Mrs William Steer acting as secretary. Any one wishing to make donations outside of the canvassers may do so by calling at campaign headquarters.

POLICE RECOVER $17 STOLEN FROM OFFICE

Perhaps it was a case of too great a temptation, but city police did recover some $17.00 stolen from the premises of a soft drink establishment on Gordon Street Thursday afternoon. The money had been taken by a teen-aged lad who frequents the premises occasionally. When approached by the police the little boy readily admitted taking the money from the office desk and promptly turned the cash over to the officer in charge. The child's parents were notified of the incident.

MAGISTRATE LLOYD BREAKS ANKLE BONE

With Magistrate J. L. Lloyd indisposed as the result of a broken bone in his ankle, there was no session of city police court held in Belleville today. After accidentally slipping at the hotel yesterday morning it was first believed Magistrate Lloyd had suffered a severe ankle sprain. However, subsequent x-rays taken at the Belleville General Hospital disclosed an ankle bone had been fractured as the result of the fall. The fracture will be reduced as soon as the swelling recedes. Dr. J. J. Robertson is in attendance.

TRUCK CRASHES INTO RILEY'S PAVILION ON TRENT ROAD

Forced off the highway as the result of oncoming blinding headlights, a laundry truck driven by James Gill, 42 West Moira St., crashed into the building known as Riley's Pavilion, six miles west of Belleville on Highway No. 2 early Thursday evening. The truck plowed through a fence before penetrating the frame structure as the vehicle came to rest with the front portion wedged inside the building. Mr. Gill sustained a nasty cut over the eye as the result of the accident. Traffic Officer Chas. Siple investigated and found considerable damage had resulted to the truck. Mr. Gill assured police he had been forced off the highway by a westbound vehicle with glaring headlights and was unable to bring his truck under control before it crashed thru a fence and into the building, which is adjacent to the road.

FLT.-SGT. A. WELCH REPORTED SAFE BY HIS BROTHER

Reported missing, believed killed in action, on September 22nd., Flight-Sgt. Arnold Welch, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Welch, McDonald Ave., is save and well in England his parents have learned in a communication from a second son overseas, Flying Officer Howard Welch, D.F.M. Details of how Flt.-Sgt. Welch returned to England after being reported missing one week ago were not stated by the brother in his letter to his parents, only that he was "safe and well" and that a meeting had been arranged. Confirmation that their son is safe has not yet been received by Mr. and Mrs. Welch.

THREE JUVENILES WANTED IN NAPANEE

Wanted in Napanee on charges of breaking and entering a private dwelling house by day, three Ottawa juveniles were apprehended at the outskirts of Belleville and held by Traffic Officer Chas. Siple late Friday night. The boys were placed in the city cell block and today turned over to Provincial Constable W. E. Smith of Napanee, who had originally broadcast the alarm seeking their arrest. The boys gave their names as Joseph Molotte, 15, Clifford Molotte, 16, and Ross Leslie 16, all of Ottawa.

Constable Smith alleged the trio entered a private dwelling house near Napanee yesterday and after ransacking the premises stole numerous small articles and cash. A description of the lads was provided by Constable Smith and it was through this medium Traffic Officer Siple identified the boys as they were walking westerly out of Belleville late Thursday.

Social Services Form Vital Part of Community Life

A blue-clad Victorian Order nurse buffets her way through a blinding snowstorm to the little house where a child is in desperate need of medical assistance. A wan smile illumines the face of the mother as the nurse enters the home. In a few minutes, the sick infant has been given much-needed treatment.

A shabbily dressed man, head bowed, stumbles through the doorway of a Salvation Army citadel. The warmth and cheery atmosphere of the place is exceeded only by the welcome extended him by the 'Army'. He is fed, clothed, if necessary, and given a new lease of life.

A group of young boys stride merrily along lighted city streets. At a street corner, two urchins, cigarettes drooping from lower lips eye them as they pass by. "C'mon over to the "Y", invites one of the walking group, "It's a barrel of fun". The other boys join them. Within a few minutes they are enjoying boys' sports, games, splash in the tank. "Gee," exclaims one, "this is great. I'm coming here again."

Children Given Good Home

Cold and perhaps hungry, at least not getting the care which is their rightful due, little children are given a new home through the watchful activities of the Children's Aid Society. Unfortunate girls are given the best of care.

There is no constant source of financial supplies to these units of the "Home Front" army. But there is a steady demand on their services, one that is increasing as the tempo of war rolls inexorably on.

"Supplies must be maintained, if the home front casualties are to get the proper treatment and care.

Overseas, daddies, brothers and sons are fighting the good fight, some of them secure in the knowledge that their families are being cared for.

The response to the Belleville Community Fund is said by officials in charge of the campaign to be "good". But fifteen thousand dollars is needed if these services are to continue to service in their various capacities.

It sounds like a lot of money, but if one stops to consider that if every one does his or her part, it isn't so much after all.

Social services for a vital part of community life. It is all very well to say that "these unfortunates and others will be taken care of," and let it go at that without making any tangible effort to see that they are looked after. It cannot be done.

Feel Sure of Results

This city has a reputation for having a thorough knowledge of the splendid work being done by its social services. In the past it has contributed generously to every cause that functions for the betterment of its population and that of others as well.

Campaign officials feel sure that it will maintain this reputation. It cannot do less and hold high its head with other communities that are rallying wholeheartedly to the support of their social service units.

Don't turn that canvasser down. They have contributed not only their time and efforts, but their money as well. Greet them with a cheery smile and a dollar or two, or ten, or twenty, or whatever can be spared.

Mother Receives Letter Praising Son's Work With Tanks in Italy

An East Moira Street mother's heart beat proudly yesterday as she read an account of the fine work being done by one of her sons on the Italian battle front.

She is Mrs. Frank Short, wife of a Canadian National Railways fireman, the mother of five boys in the service of their country.

In Italy are Trooper Wilfred Short, with the Canadian tanks; Privates Leon and Cecil, with the Canadian Infantry, all of whom have been fighting for nearly two years. Albert has seen service with the Royal Canadian Navy for the past two years while Raymond is now training with the army in Canada.

Yesterday Mrs. Short received a letter from Lieut. C. H. Wilkins, commander of a troop of Canadian tanks now busy blasting the Nazis from Italian soil. He wrote in glowing terms of the work of Trooper Wilfred Short saying that his initiative and work in the troop was an inspiration to his comrades. "He never shirks his duty, and it is always well done," was Lieut. Wilkins' tribute.

He sent his regards to the family and assured them of a supervision of the welfare of their representative with his troop.

FO. Allan Smith, Reported Missing, Sends Word He Is Prisoner of War

Reported missing on July 5th following aerial operations over enemy occupied territory, Flying Officer J. Allan Smith, 22, son of J. C. Smith, 151 Ann Street, is a prisoner of war his father has been informed through a Frenchman, who recently escaped from the Germans.

Interned in the same prisoner-of-war camp in which FO. Smith is held, the Frenchman made his getaway and after reaching safety had a friend write to Mr. Smith in Belleville informing him of his son's safety. According to the Frenchman FO. Smith had been picked up by the Germans in the Paris region the first week in July when his R.C.A.F. bombing plane was forced down. Information, that his son was a prisoner-of-war had not previously been received by Mr. Smith through Red Cross channels or from R.C.A.F. headquarters.

Not all the plane's crew were taken prisoner by the Germans as Mr. Smith has learned the pilot of the craft is safe in England. The plane's tail gunner, along with the Belleville flier, however, is a prisoner-of-war.

A former student at Belleville Collegiate FO. Smith enlisted in July 1942 and receiving his commission upon graduation as bombardier proceeded overseas in September 1943.

Quinte District Druggists Meet

The second meeting of the Quinte District Druggists' Association was held in Belleville this week with druggists present from Trenton, Brighton, Campbellford, Napanee, Deseronto, Wellington and Belleville. Guests included representatives of several drug manufacturers; Mr. W. M. Campbell, vice-president of Johnson and Johnson, and Mr. J. Regan of the W.P.T.B. with President Charles Dolan of Belleville, in the chair.

Regular business of the Association including Secretary George Pauley's report, several motions from the Provincial and Dominion parent associations and an outline of changes in legislation affecting druggists occupied the first part of the program. Brief talks by Mr. Campbell and Mr. Regan, touching largely on preparation for the removing of various governmental controls now in force, were followed by the showing of the first-aid film, "Help Wanted", which is sponsored by Johnson & Johnson and has been shown to many audiences throughout Canada.

Refreshments were served by the Lattimer's Tea Room staff and a period of informal discussion preceded adjournment.

Reports showed that the druggists of this district have been co-operating fully in the September War Savings Stamp campaign with good results and it is confidently anticipated that the druggists of Canada as a whole will reach the objective of $1,000,000 before the end of the month.

Next meeting of the district association will take place either in Trenton or Belleville at a date to be fixed by the executive.

27 Candidates Initiated In Canadian Legion

Members of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion after a spirited discussion Friday night passed a resolution requesting the Dominion Command to take immediate action in the case of a government official discharged because of verbal criticism of the condition of certain army equipment.

At a meeting held in the club rooms last night where twenty-seven new members were initiated, lusty voices of the youthful veterans of this war were raised in protest against the action of the government in dismissing a man because he "dared to say what he thought of the army boots."

According to the resolution that received the unanimous approval of the meeting, concurrence of Legion branches across Canada will be asked in support of the motion.

Twenty-seven new members, the majority of them veterans of the present war, were formally initiated into the organization with President Lieut.-Col. H. Smith presiding as installing officer.

Included were Squadron Leaders J. B. Badgeley, J. G. Begg, E. G. McNutt; Flight Lieutenant J. G. Held; Flying Officers A. B. Hamilton, C. C. Grant, R. A. Knowlton; Pilot Officer R. J. Talbot; Flight Officer Grace Sharpe; Section Officer Helen Turnbull; Flight Sergeants J. C. Campbell, F. A. Hagenson, J. C. Taylor; Sergeants A. Rorabeck, C. W. Graham, M. Jean; Corporals G H. Bannerman, G. W. Benn; L.A.C.'s J. P. Moore, P. T. Traynor, J. Lichty, L. E. Ostrosser, Captain J. N. Yanover, Sergeant W. A. Ironside and Private John McEwen, Chas. Semark and A. St. Dennis.

Secretary A. Connor of the Kingston branch outlined the aims and policies of the Legion and Padre, the Rev. Beauchamp Payne gave a brief address. Refreshments were served by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Large Number Of Homes Under Construction Here

Demand for housing accommodation as the result of an influx of industrial workers to the city during the past four years is creating a residential building boom in Belleville, which even the most optimistic city official possibly would not have predicted a few years ago.

After a very definite upswing in residential construction during the early years of the war, this boom has been further increased this season with the easing of government restrictions on house building with upwards of fifty residences planned or under construction in the city at the present time.

Although spread quite generously throughout the city this wartime building boom in Belleville is exceptionally noticeable in the north-eastern part of the city where within the area of two or three blocks at least twenty residences are under various stages of construction or contemplated. This is in the Dufferin, Victoria and Bleecker Ave., section of the city.

Foresight of city officials in opening that section of Dufferin Ave., north of Victoria for residential construction has definitely been repaid in dividends with approximately a dozen residences now in various courses of construction on this street. Sewer was laid in this section of Dufferin Ave., two years ago with water mains being completed this year. The street has been opened for vehicular traffic with the roadway surfaced with crushed materials.

At least eight or ten residences are in course of construction along the east side of Dufferin, north of Victoria. Eight of these are being built by a local hotel owner, with others underway by potential owners. Several other residences are going up in the Bleecker Ave., and Meyers Street district.

Rawdon Township Youth Convicted On Arson Charge

For the second time in the matter of a few months Orlie Joyce, Rawdon Township, appeared in police court here to be convicted of arson. Yesterday Joyce pleaded guilty to setting fire to a neighbour's premises when arraigned before Magistrate A. B. Collins K.C., in County Police Court. At the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., the accused was remanded in custody for sentence. The Crown intimated he would request to have the young man placed under observation for a period prior to appearing for sentence. Magistrate Collins appeared on the bench in the absence of Magistrate J. L. Lloyd, who had the misfortune to fall and break a bone in his left ankle yesterday morning.

Magistrate Collins imposed a concurrent sentence in this case. Police Inspector J. C. Hayes preferred the charges.

Liquor Cost $103.

Thos. Poulos, Montreal, was recently apprehended by Traffic Officer Chas. Siple driving a motor car through the district and upon searching the vehicle the officer found six bottles of spirits and two bottles of wine, which Poulos admitted he had purchased in Montreal. He paid $103.00, which included costs.

Speeding charges brought fines of $15.00 and costs against Fred Moyes and Douglas Manley of Toronto and Donald Lefebvre of Montreal, while it cost M. Huddleston of this city two dollars and costs for failing to produce a driver's licence, when requested by an officer.

Highway Littered.

Benjamin Speigel, Belleville, appeared charged with littering the highway with scrap metal thereby causing danger to the motoring public and was assessed $7.50 including costs. Melrose Marcel was given five day after pleading guilty to a vagrancy charge and was released as he had been on remand for the term imposed.

A teen-aged lad appeared on a charge of inflicting harm upon another ward. The charge arose out of a shooting near Kaladar, where a small girl was shot in the groin last summer. Mr. Donnan asked for a further enlargement and the boy was given into the custody of Inspector T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society.

Charles A. Payne K.C. and Mr. E. E. Follwell appeared as defence lawyers in some of the cases listed for trial.

The War Today—

Allied Over-All Command Named For Greek Partisan Forces

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
(Substituting for DeWitt Mackenzie
Associated Press War Analyst)

It is clear now that Allied operations in Albania are minor, airborne and Commando units having been landed to help plug any gaps thru which enemy forces fleeing Greece might escape to Northern Italy or through the loosely-held Yugoslav Partisan territory to Austria.

It is doubtful that the western Allies plan any major action in the Balkan area, leaving it instead to Russia and Partisan forces.

The intensity of Allied interests in the situation, however, is indicated in the announcement of an Allied over-all command for Greek Partisan forces which not so long ago were fighting among themselves.

Matter of Command

One of the headaches which the Greek government in exile was unable to solve in recent unity conferences was the matter of command. The Elas Army of the Leftist E.A.M., which has claimed control of a large portion of Greece, insisted that other Partisans, including the Edes which also had been very active against the Germans, should come under Elas command. This was refused.

Now, apparently, the Allies have stepped in to take over the whole show, probably with the approval of both sides.

The Elas are reported to have some 25,000 men. Edes and other Partisan groups have a few thousand. Progress has been made in arming them, but they probably can't approach the efficiency of the French forces of Liberation. Nevertheless, with some Albanian and Allied help, they shouldn't have too much trouble clearing up the isolated Germans, of whom there may be 25,000 but who are accustomed to fit into a regular army supply system and probably helpless without it.

People's National Liberation Front

Another little-known Partisan outfit from which we may hear more soon is the Russian-sponsored S.N.O.F. (People's National Liberation Front) in Bulgaria. They may become particularly active in clearing from Yugoslavia the Bulgarian Army forces sent there last spring to relieve German units for duty against Russia.

The main job against Germany, of course, is to be done by the Allies in the west and Russian forces from Poland. But a southeastern front is rapidly being developed which may prove, in the long run, more important than the Italian campaign in the actual battle for Germany.

Y. P. U. Annual Convention Opens In City Today

The Sixteenth Annual Convention of the Bay of Quinte Conference Y.P.U., of the United Church is being held in the Bridge Street Church from Friday Sept. 29 to Sunday Sept. 30, inclusive, it was announced today.

President of the Conference is Robert G. Kitchen, Peterboro and the theme speaker Rev. Roy Rickard, Palmerston. The Rev. Dr. James Semple will welcome the visiting delegates and election of officers will take place on Saturday afternoon.

Worship peridos during the convention will be in charge of the Oshawa, Cobourg, Kingston and Peterboro presbyteries. The convention banquet will be held at Bridge St. Church on Saturday evening. Recreation, fellowship groups and musical interludes are included in the program.

The convention will close on Sunday evening with a candlelight service conducted by the Belleville Presbytery.

1,014 Jap Aircraft Destroyed by Air Arm in Seven Days

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 29 —(AP)— The U. S. Navy disclosed yesterday Admiral William F. Halsey's marauding 3rd Fleet swung its air arm Saturday at the Philippines to obliterate puny air opposition of seven Japanese interceptors and bag 29 more on central Philippines airfields to raise its seven-day toll to 1,014 enemy aircraft.

It sank 32 ships, including four warships, to raise the seven-day toll to at least 160.

It damaged 43 more, including two warships, probably sinking 15 of that number and destroyed or damaged 20 to 30 small craft, raising the seven-day toll of enemy surface craft probably sunk or damaged to more than 200.

HEAVY APPLE CROP

St. Thomas, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP)— So heavy is the apple crop in the orchards of W. H. Mills, Liberal member of parliament for Elgin, that efforts are being made to double the picking force in order that 2,000 instead of 1,000 bushels can be harvested daily. Haste is needed if the 75,000 bushel crop is to be gathered before the frost sets in.

F.D.R. Denounces Argentine Govt. For Nazi Trend

Washington, Sept. 29 — (AP) — President Roosevelt today denounced the Argentine government for what he termed the growth of Nazi-Fascist influences developing in that country at the very time when Nazi forces are facing defeat in Germany.

Mr. Roosevelt said Argentina has repudiated a solid inter-American system for defence against Nazi aggression and stated, in the words of Prime Minister Churchill that every nation will be judged by the parts they play in the war, neutrals and belligerents alike. He said his statement today is important now because of deceptions on the part of Nazi radio broadcasts beamed to Argentina which say Allied councils are divided in their attitude toward Argentina. Mr. Roosevelt described the broadcasts as fabrications.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 29 — (AP) — The Argentine government has informed Great Britain that Argentina will bar entrance of war criminals and will prohibit them from depositing funds or acquiring property here, the Foreign Office announced last night.

(State Secretary Hull declared in Washington yesterday that neutral nations had been warned they would lose American friendship "for years to come" if they gave sanctuary to Hitler or other Axis leaders after the war.

(Asked about Argentina, Mr. Hull commented he could not go beyond his recent statement that the Argentine position needed confirmation and clarification.)

The foreign office said the Argentine government had instructed its ambassador in London Sept. 23 to deliver a verbal message to the British foreign office on the matter and this had been done Sept. 26.

"Some publications in Britain as well as other countries apparently are engaged in trying to establish the possibility that Axis leaders may seek refuge in the Argentine Republic," said the foreign office. "It is illogical to believe that such commentaries are accepted in usually well-informed quarters."

Maj. Joe King Accepts Surrender Of Nazi General

With the 1st Canadian Army in France, Sept. 29—(CP Cable)—The man who accepted the surrender of General Ferinand Heim, commander of the Boulogne garrison which decided to quit last Friday, was Maj. Joe King of London, Ont., and Galt, Ont., who led his infantry company into the fortress of Le Portel in the final stages of the siege of the port.

When the Canadians swept in on him, and Heim decided to surrender, the General was fairly easy to get along with. He said in English that if he had to surrender he was "glad it is to the Canadians," King related. Later Heim showed a complete disdain to all about him.

For souvenirs of the capture Heim gave King his brief case which bears his name, and his paybook which contains his picture.

King was born in St. Catharines, Ont., and graduated from the University of Western Ontario at London in 1941, just before he joined the army.

Brown Bread Co. Purchases The Oliphant Bakery

Inability of the owner to acquire needed experienced employees to continue in operation has forced another Belleville bakery proprietor to dispose of the business, leaving only one locally owned bakery and bread route in the city. According to information reaching this office the Oliphant Bakery on Octavia Street has been sold to the Brown Bread Company of Toronto with the new owners to take over on the first of October.

Established approximately 26 years ago, the Oliphant Bakery has been operated continuously since that time, and since the death of Mr. William Oliphant five years ago, has been operated by Mrs. Oliphant. Speaking to the Ontario Intelligencer today, Mrs. Oliphant stated she had been unable to hire sufficient experienced help.

The Brown Bread Company, which a few months ago purchased the Thompson Bakery, will on Monday take over the bread route formerly operated by Oliphants. The present driver staff will continue with the new owners, it was stated.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

Office of The Secretary

620 University Avenue, Toronto, Ont.
September 26th., 1944

BELLEVILLE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION,
277 Front Street,
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO.

Dear Sirs:

The Commission has been requested by the Power Controller for the Dominion of Canada to advise you that all restrictions in connection with the use of electric power and energy provided for in Power Controller Order P.C. 5 and Amendments thereto, and all other restrictive orders issued for the purpose of saving power for war purposes, are to be discontinued commencing October 1st., 1944.

Consumers of electric energy should be given to understand that while the available supply of power may be sufficient for present needs, there is still a shortage of material and labor which may continue for some time. Certain types of electrical appliances and equipment may not be available and the shortage of labor may delay, in some instances the supplying of electric service for new uses or in returning to service equipment discontinued because of the regulations of the Power Controller.

Yours very truly,
OSBORNE MITCHELL,
Secretary.

The above letter is the only official notice that the Belleville Commission has received that the power restrictions were to be lifted.

The Belleville Commission appreciates the co-operation it has received from the consumers in carrying out the orders of the Power Controller during the past two years.

Although the notice is short, the endeavour will be to take care of the increased load.

Should the shortage of labor and equipment prevent the Commission from taking care of your requirements as promptly as you desire, the Commission would thank you for your further co-operation.

Mr. Churchill's Review

Reviews of the war which Prime Minister Churchill has given from time to time since he became Britain's parliamentary leader have always had a remarkable breadth of comprehension and sane sense of the value of events. His statement in the British Commons on Thursday was another one of those memorable utterances which have been of great value to the British and Allied cause. A man of vast experience in world affairs, experience in war and in government, he is able to place the situation of the war clearly before the world.

He drew the veil aside and revealed that in the first 24 hours of the Allied invasion of Normandy almost a quarter of a million troops had dashed ashore and that there were now between two and three million Allied troops in Northwestern Europe, that the German losses since D-Day approached nearly one million men, of whom 400,000 were killed and wounded and nearly 500,000 more as prisoners. while perhaps 200,000 Germans were trapped in Holland and their capture or destruction appeared highly probable. Against these were Allied casualties of 90,000 British and 145,000 Americans, killed, wounded or missing in the same period.

He indicated that a meeting with Premier Marshal Stalin was necessary before announcement of Allied peace plans and told of the harmony in the ranks of the Allies.

On the point of the length of the war against Germany, Mr. Churchill has never predicted when the struggle will end. He has said that he did not prophesy and again he did not prophesy. But he took the present occasion when there is an unusual degree of optimism as to the very early end of the war to say that "I deprecate very much people being carried away into premature expectations of an early cessation of the fighting.

"I shall certainly not hazard a guess as to when the end will come. Many persons of the highest technical attainment and knowledge and responsibility have good hopes that it will all be over by the end of 1944. On the other hand no one—certainly not I—can guarantee that several months of 1945 will not be required."

And he added a reference to the possibility of a guerilla war in Germany. His words were, "There is also the possibility that after the organized resistance of the German state and army is completely broken fierce warfare may be maintained in the forests and mountains of Germany by numbers of desperate men conscious of their guilt and impending doom.

"We don't consider that the declared state of the ending of the war against Germany must necessarily be postponed until the last desperado has been tracked down in his lair."

Mr. Churchill's reference to the fact that no one can foretell when the war with Germany will come to an end should have a healthy influence upon those who are building upon the end of the struggle at a certain and early date.

He paid tribute to the remarkable transformation in the Allied situation for the better, to the harmony of the United Nations, and to the Dominions' part in the struggle in the field, and to the American and Canadian advances in Europe "as a model of the military art."

The true Churchill wit showed itself in reference to "the Japanese and other disease of the jungle" and to Hitler of whom he said, "it would be most unfortunate if the Allies were to be deprived in the closing hours of the struggle of the form of warlike genius by which Corporal Schickelgruber has so nobly contributed to our victory."

All Lights On

Sunday night October 1st will see the lifting of the restrictions on light and power which have been controlled since September 1942. Citizens can recall the noticeable change in lighting in the business section and on the residential streets at that time but after a few nights they became accustomed to the change. As the restrictions are now largely removed as of October 1st and that being Sunday the immediate effect may not be fully appreciated until the following night.

Only in British Columbia will the restrictions remain.

People will of course be pleased that this is possible first of all because of the improved and inspiring developments of the war and they will also be pleased because they like light and plenty of light at night. Belleville of course was never very dark in this period but yet the leessening of illumination was of course noted. Now the restoration of full lighting will be likewise noticeable for in the interim the people had grown accustomed more or less to the changed conditions.

Light gives the sense of security and confidence and the radiance of Hydro energy will be welcome.

The restrictions of lighting which Canadians generally have experienced have not been felt as a hardship because they served to save electric energy for war production purposes. And city dwellers have not felt the restraints at all heavily. They have never had severe restrictions, such as those of London, England, and other cities of Britain with blackout ruling until a very short time ago and with dimout taking its place of late. Canadians have not felt light restraints much, they don't know what a blackout is as do the people of London where for reasons of security nocturnal London was shrouded in darkness to make it invisible to any marauding Hun airman. Restrictions here were for power conservation not for security except in a few parts of the Dominion. What Canadians have had is not even anything near a dimout, and even with the less use of light, Canadians by night have in these two years been able to go about as freely as ever.

Older residents can recall decades ago the coal oil lamps far apart were perched on the top of posts at the edge of the sidewalks. On these posts were placed huge glass lantern-like enclosures in which were oil lamps. The lampman carried a short ladder with which he used to mount the posts so that he might light up and put out the lamps. There were really dark nights when the stars did not shine and coal oil lighted as well as it could the darkness of the board walks for concrete walks were not thought of here at that time. Then came the invasion of gas lamps and both oil and gas lights fought off the gathering darkness of nights of long ago. There followed electricity with the high poles at the corners of streets on which lights were suspended at the end of a metal arm to and from which the arc lights were raised and lowered by a heavy rope. After these came the swift changes of the modern system of lighting with many more lamps.

Partridges' Big Families

(London Spectator)

There are more signs that the season is likely to be one of the best ever for partridges. The stocks were large (owing partly to lack of cartridges and sportsmen), there were no July thunderstorms to bedraggle the young, and the extension of arable farming has been all to the good.

I do not suggest that the spectacle is characteristic, but one of the few coveys I know of consists of no fewer than 17 squeakers. How the bird manages to keep so many eggs warm, much more so many babies, is a wonder.

The verdict of the I.C.L., who before the war had an experimental partridge farm, was that keepers should take away all eggs in excess of a dozen, on the ground that additional youngsters were wont to become weaklings owing to the parents' difficulties in keeping them warm and well-fed. I wonder: Dieu benit les grandes familles.

Churches in England have suffered far more from bombings than the mediaval monuments in France and Italy, according to an outstanding American authority, says Ottawa Journal. This, too, should be remembered at the Peace Table.

BIG DAY

Off to the kitchen, and start in to make
A truly delicious, magnificent cake.
Get out the sugar, the eggs and the milk
Beat up a batter that's smoother than silk;
Now comes the gala event of the year:
Ellen Elizabeth's birthday is here!

After you've properly buttered the tin,
Take up the batter and pour it all in.
While it is baking there's frosting to make,
Whiter than snow and as smooth as a flake;
Pink stuff for rosebuds! Oh, you know the way,
It's Ellen Elizabeth's birthday today!

Smear on the icing a quarter inch thick;
Have no foreboding that she may get sick.
Print "Happy Birthday" in edible ink,
Stick in four candles of yellow or pink,
Then until supper time hide it away!
It's Ellen Elizabeth's birthday today!

HONEYBEE IMMIGRANTS

Honey or hive bees, which belong to the genus Apis, are not native to the New World.

Wild honeybees in America all sprang from bees imported from abroad. It is supposed that colonies of these insects were first introduced into New England from Europe about 1640.

Reports that honeybees were introduced into Mexico, Central America, the West Indies and South America earlier than this date cannot be verified and probably are untrue.

From the beginning the Indians associated the honeybee with the European colonists and called it "the white-man's fly."

The prevalent idea that honeybees are indigenous to the American continent is undoubtedly due to the fact that swarms escaped at an early date and established themselves in hollow trees in the wilderness.

By 1800 honeybees had crossed the Mississippi in their eastward migration. Stephen F. Austin, while on his first trip to Texas in 1821, recorded in his diary that his party discovered a bee tree and got a gallon and a half of honey.

Honeybees, however, should not be confused with the native wild bees of America. Many species of social bees belonging to the families Melipona and Trigona are indigenous to the New World, especially its tropical and semi-tropical regions.

These insects, which make their nests in trees or in the gorund, are called stingless bees because their stings are only vestigial, and they are often known as "mosquito bees" because of their small size. They are not hive bees and produce honey and wax in small quantities only.

Honey and wax referred to in the records of the conquest of Mexico by Cortez may have been produced by these insects.

Fossilized bees dating back to prehistoric periods of America probably belonged to the same family.

Of the some ten or twelve thousand varieties of bees that have been identified by entomologists only four or five store honey.

British Subs Sink 32 Ships In Eastern Waters

London, Sept. 29 —(CP)—British submarines have sunk 32 enemy vessels in far eastern waters recently and have damaged four others by torpedoes or gunfire, the Admiralty announced Thursday.

The vessels sunk ranged from small coastal craft to medium sized supply ships, the announcement said.

During the operations the British raiders penetrated into Sunda Strait between Java and Sumatra, attacked shipping lanes along the coasts of both islands and even ventured into Port Owen on the southern coast of Burma, where two gunboats were sunk while lying at anchor.

Oil tanks on Christmas Island off the south coast of Java also were bombarded.

Churchill Sets Record Straight On British Army

By CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 29 —(CP Cable)—Winston Churchill Thursday gave full hearted credit to Britain's partners in war, and at the same time set the record straight on the vast task done by the armies of the British Commonwealth in more than five years of battle.

Highlighting this phase of the Prime Minister's address to the House of Commons were these points he made:

1. "The largest mass of all the troops on the Italian front comes, of course, from the United Kingdom." That is, nearly half the divisions on the entire front were composed of Britons and to these were added Canadian, New Zealand, South African and Indian divisions.

2. "After more than five years of war we still maintain almost exactly same number of divisions, taking both theatres of war together, in the field of action against the enemy as the United States, by all the shipping resources which can be employed, have yet been able to send to Europe."

3. Britons engaged in cross-channel warfare bear a proportion of two to three to the Americans.

4. Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's campaign with the 14th Imperial Army on the Burma frontier "constitutes the largest and most important ground fighting that has yet taken place against the armies of Japan."

Mr. Churchill paid high tribute to the United States and Russia, and early in his speech, mentioning the campaign in Western Europe, said "it was with great pleasure that we all say the British and Canadian armies . . . Show themselves capable of lightning advances which certainly have not been surpassed anywhere."

Full Agreement Not Reached At Dumbarton Oaks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Sept. 28 — (AP) — Officials of the British, United States and Russian governments wind up their world security planning at Dumbarton Oaks today without reaching the complete agreement they had hoped for when the conference opened six weeks ago.

Under-Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, chairman of the meeting, summed up the 90 per cent of agreement he said had actually been accomplished as extremely satisfactory progress toward reaching a basis for a world organization.

The main point left over is whether one of the great powers, if accused of aggression, should have a right to vote in the proposed world conference on whether the accusation is to be sustained or rejected. Russia is understood to have favored such a right while the United States, and apparently Britain also, argued against it.

SIX HUNDRED FIFTY ODD DENTISTS

Since 1940 I have sent to six hundred fifty odd dentists with my compliments the No. I Little Lesson in the Ways of Health, "Save Your Teeth". Readers other than physicians or dentists may have a copy of the 70-page booklet if (1) they ask for it — and a clipping is not a request; (2) inclose twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope. Dentists or physicians need inclose only a stamped self addressed envelope.

In most instances I have asked the dentist to whom I mailed the booklet to criticise it or me, just between ourselves, in a friendly way—that is, to tell me off if I am wrong about anything, in his judgment, just as my medical and dental friends do, without gloves. I can take it, and I like it, and just such criticism is and always has been of utmost value in keeping this column, well, say from going haywire. For example, on a fateful Sunday (June 17, '28) I appealed to dentists who were legitamately entitled to the degree D.D.S. or D.M.D. or other doctorate degree than M.D. to relinquish use of the trade name "Doctor" to practicing physicians exclusively, for the welfare of the public. That was pretty radical. Still, it was not until a few years later, as nearly as I can recollect now, that I commited the unforgivable sin — I proposed that practicing dentists adopt a certain trademark name (which I am not going to mention any more) to indicate to the public the nature of their trade, leaving the trademark name "Doctor" to the exclusive use of practicing physicians.

Of the six hundred odd dentists scarcely a dozen took time out to criticize the booklet or my teachings—that is, in an honest, sincere way.

A new edition of the booklet 'Save Your Teeth" is now ready, and I invite dentists to send a stamped self addressed envelope for a copy. (Physicians, too. Others may have a copy for twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope). I believe and hope the dentists will find little in the new edition they cannot approve of. I even hope they may derive some practical benefit from glancing through the booklet. I shall not ask for their comments about it one way or another, but any dentist, like any physician, who may be friendly enough to criticise anything in my column or in my teachings, favorably or unfavorably, as he might criticise his colleague confidentially, will find that I'm not the so-an-so some interests would have you think.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Deplorable Neglect of Education

Please send me your pamphlet "It is Stupid to Suffer from Piles". I know it is false modesty, but I just can't talk to a doctor about such trouble.

(Mrs. M. P.)

Answer—Any reader who asks for the pamphlet (no clipping will suffice) and incloses stamped envelope bearing his or her address may have it. It is not false modesty but just plain neglect of education that makes you hesitate to talk to your doctor about any trouble to body or mind.

Foot Trouble

I am 50, and I suppose from now on one must expect foot trouble. A few years ago my right foot — so I went to a specialist for feet, and he ordered a certain kind of shoes.

(Miss E. D.)

Answer—Your feet are part of your body. You should consult a physician about foot trouble, as you do about stomach trouble. Or you may pass the ordinary doctors and go directly to an orthopedic surgeon — a physician who limits his practice to correction or prevention of deformities (of feet, bones, joints, spine etc.) Of course this is more expensive than consulting a general practitioner. You may get some practical help from the booklet "Care of the Feet" — for copy send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address.

Churchill Pays Tribute to Superb 'Feat of Arms'

London Sept. 28 — (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill paid tribute before the House of Commons today to "the superb feat of arms" of the British 1st Airborne Division, whose 2,000 survivors have withdrawn across the Neder Rhine.

Some 6,000 of the red-bereted warriors were left behind as captives, killed or wounded after nine days of epic warfare in which the division tried unsuccessfully to win a bridgehead over the last great waterway in Holland.

"Here I must pay tribute," the Prime Minister said, "to the superb feat of arms performed by our 1st Airborne Division . . . This glorious and fruitful operation will take a lasting place in our military annals and will in succeeding generations inspire our youth with the highest ideals of duty and daring.

"The cost has been heavy . . . but for those who journeyed there is at least the consolation that the sacrifice was not needlessly demanded nor was it given without result.

"The delay caused to the enemy's advance upon Nijmegen enabled the British 2nd Army and their American comrades in two other airborne divisions to secure intact the vitally important bridges and to form a strong bridgehead over the main stream of the Rhine at Nijmegen.

" 'Not in vain' may be the pride of those who survived and the epitaph of those who fell."

HIGH PRICE PLACED

Mrs. Wishart also gave a paper on wnat UNRRA will mean to Canada in an economic sense. The new executive were hostesses to a large attendance of members and guests and a social hour enjoyed.

Anglican Mission, Herchimer Ave. Holds Service

The Annual Harvest Thanksgiving Service was held in St. John's Anglican Mission, Herchimer Ave., on Sunday, Sept. 24. The service was conducted and the sermon preached by the Rev. H. C. Secker, rector of Adolphustown, who was in charge of the mission when the building was erected. Thirteen years ago with voluntary work by the members the cement block building was put up. Under the direction of Rev. Gerald Graham and with loyal work by Mr. G. Weymark and others the interior was finished, furnishings provided, and other organizations set up.

Mr. Secker praised the members highly for their good work. He noted that there were eighteen names in the Armed Forces, which is a good record for so small a congregation. He complimented the ladies for their beautiful decorations and fruits. Two loaves of bread placed on the altar by William Meens' family symbolized the Harvest. Mr. Secker stressed three points in his sermon.

The Harvest as an object lesson on mankind's dependence upon God, man's dependence upon his fellow man, and the need for man's cooperation with God to work out God's purposes on earth.

A full choir was in attendance under the capable direction of the organist, Miss Redner. Mrs. Weymark sang a solo during the taking of the Thanksgiving offering.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Sept. 29. (CP) — Draft needed: Anyone who has ever stoked a stove knows there is more to it than just shovelling in the coal. When the stove is filled the draft must be regulated so that the fire will burn with a clear hot flame.

When the human body is stoked with fuel in the form of food, it also needs a draft to enable it to use this fuel properly. Starchy foods are important for fuel—providing heat and energy—but they need vitamin B1 as the element which provides the draft.

Insufficient amounts of vitamin B1 make for irritability, loss of appetite, disturbed digestion and a general incapacity to stand up to nervous strains and stresses. So it's important to make sure that enough of vitamin B1 is included in each day's diet, say the Pensions Department Nutrition Services.

Wheat germ is rich in B vitamins. It can be added, at the last minute, to cooked cereal and vegetable soups; it can be used in casserole dishes mixed half-and-half with bread crumbs; or in flour mixtures such as muffins and oatmeal cookies.

Spiced Apple Juice—With apples Canada's national fruit, ripe and ready for eating or drinking—in the form of apple juice —the Agriculture Department suggests this delicious drink which would start off any dinner with a bang. It requires 2 1-2 cups of apple juice (a 20-ounce can), 1-2 teaspoon cider vinegar, six cloves, one stick cinnamon and one teaspoon of sugar.

Add the other ingredients to the apple juice. Bring to a boil. Remove from fire and cool. Strain and chill well before serving.

Purple and Gold—There are colors which Autumn seems to make her own. These are the colors which come to Fall dinner tables too, says Laura Pepper of the Agriculture Department Consumer Section.

Purple grape pie in a golden brown crust is a delicious way of serving luscious Canadian Concord grapes. Wash, stem and measure five cups of purple grapes. Squeeze pulp from skins (save the skins) and cook pulp five minutes or until seeds separate out. Rub pulp through a sieve. Combine 2-3 cup sugar, a pinch of salt and two tablespoons cornstarch and add to the sieved pulp. Cook for ten minutes, stirring until thickened. Remove from heat, add grape skins and two tablespoons lemon juice. Turn into an unbaked pie shell, cover with lattice of pastry strips and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees Fahrenheit, or until pastry is golden brown.

Egg Talk:— The Agriculture Department supplies these suggestions for making egg dishes the mainstay of a delicious and easily prepared meal; to avoid cracking, when cooking eggs in their shells, place eggs in cold water and bring to a boil. At this point the eggs will be soft-cooked. Egg whites are quickly beaten, if the whites and utensils are cold. To make the finest cakes use recipes which require a generous supply of eggs.

ARRESTED FOR CONSPIRACY

New York, Sept. 29 — (AP)—The Army said yesterday that Capt. Joseph Gould, identified by Army Public Relations as manager of James J. Braddock when he was heavyweight boxing champion, was under arrest charged with having conspired to influence the award of contracts involving more than $1,000,000 worth of Army equipment.

Ada graciously replied and expressed her thanks to all.

During the afternoon all the guests present wrote a verse in Ada's autograph book.

Honor Airman At Wellman's

About one hundred friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunham, Wellman's, on Wednesday, to honor their son, LAC. Reginald Dunham, serving with the R.C.A.F. at Mont Joli, Quebec, and who was home on furlough. Rev. T. F. Townsend acted as chairman for a short program which included readings, songs and addresses. On behalf of Reg's Sunday School Class, Ted Pollock read an address and Douglas Clancy presented Reg with an R.C.A.F. tie set. The address was signed on behalf of the Sunday School Class by Ted Pollock, president.

An address on behalf of the community and signed by Omar Dracup, Don Matthews, Frederick Beckett, and Reg McGee, was read by Don Matthews. Douglas Clancy then presented Reg with a wrist watch. In a few well chosen words, Reg expressed his appreciation for the gifts. Lunch was served and a social time spent.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

Which Sex is More Realistic?

It is one of man's favorite traditions that he is more practical, reasonable and less romantic than a woman. He has less imagination and more of what he calls "plain common sense".

Of course, we women have always jollied him along in that little matter by asking his "advice". Asking a man's "advice" is one of the most flattering things a girl can do. That's why so many widows and divorcees marry their lawyers. Yes, and why secretaries often marry their bosses. Yet if girls go on becoming more and more efficient, that irresistible appeal will soon become a lost art. But it was good while it lasted.

Yet I sometimes wonder if after all, a man is not at heart a dreamer and a romanticist, tilting at windmills, listening for the song of the siren and seeing visions in the stars—in short, less practical than women are. Has he really more common sense and judgment.

Take the matter of love for instance. A man will fall in love and plunge into marriage just for the sake of a beautiful figure or red hair or a pair of Dorothy Lamour eyes, or because some girl has gone to his head and made his pulse skip a beat under the harvest moon.

But what girl ever went so far as to marry a man for the lovely shape of his legs or the beauty of his elbows or the way his eyelashes curled. No matter how she may rave about a screen star she is careful to keep that department of her emotions quite separate from the orange-blossom department.

A man always has a "dream-girl", somewhere in the back of his imagination; but that doesn't stop him for a moment from making love to and sometimes marrying any attractive girl who happens to be near when he's in the mood. But a girl is more realistic. She makes no graven images. She merely looks over the men she knows, selects the one who appeals to her——then makes HIM her "dream man". Isn't that more sensible?

A man will wander all over the earth in search of adventure. (How many of them join the Navy in order to "see the world"?) But a girl finds plenty of adventure and excitement in her daily life if she choses to look for it—she doesn't need to exert her strength to find more. Of course, the girl of today is courageous enough to go anywhere and face any danger. But it is not so often the love of adventure as the desire to be doing something worth while that inspires her.

A man goes into marriage expecting to find eternal glamor and romance; but a woman knows there is no absolute perfection this side of Paradise, and is satisfied if she can find love and companionship and security and trust in her Man and her marriage. These things at least exist and are possible.

Of course ,a man may be more practical than a woman about business and money matters than his purely domestic wife. But the girls and young women in our banks are highly efficient. And, after all, Hetty Green was a woman.

GAMES SATURDAY MAY ANSWER SOME QUESTIONS

One is Whether Hamilton is as Good as Cats Showed in First Contest

HOW STRONG BEACHES?

(By The Canadian Press)

Saturday's four-game football program in Ontario may provide the answers to some of the questions which have been puzzling the always-eager gridiron fans.

One is whether the Hamilton Wildcats are as good as their 35-0 whitewashing of Toronto Indians last week would indicate. The Wildcats have a chance to provide that answer in their Ontario Rugby Football Union game with Ottawa Trojans in Ottawa. Trojans demonstrated strength on the field by whipping Verdun Grads of the Quebec Rugby Football Union 36-6 in an exhibition game last week. But the Grads had no Joe Krol, Bill O'Breza, Paul Miovinovich, Jimmy Simpson or anyone like them and the real test for the Trojans also comes tomorrow.

Another question concerns Toronto's two O.R.F.U. teams—Indians and Beaches—who play in Toronto. Beaches, bolstered by the addition of Dean Griffing from Regina, likewise have a strong team on paper. The game may show whether Indians are as bad as their 35-0 loss at Hamilton last week would indicate or whether Beaches will offer any real threat to the Wildcats this year.

Hagersville R.C.A.F. Bombers — regarded in pre-season paper dope as the team to beat in the armed services football league—have serious opposition at Hamilton in the Toronto Navy Bulldogs led by Leading Seaman Annis Stukus who tallied 12 points last week to lead the Bulldogs to a 22-6 victory over Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes. Leadership in the league is the chief issue at stake in this game, as Hagersville also won its first start with a point in the last few minutes giving them an 8-7 edge over St. Thomas last Saturday.

The final question is whether an extra week's training has brought the Hurricanes up to their expected form. They meet St. Thomas at London and the losing team will be in the services league cellar.

LOCAL SCRAPPER

Although he hails from Oshawa, it's Ted Stevens you see in a natural boxing stance he will assume while fighting under local colors here tonight. Stevens is a hard-punching battler who will be featured at tonight's all-star boxing show at the Hume Arena. Outstanding brothers the fans will see include Jerry Downs of Reliance A.C. who meets Joey McPhee of Oshawa. There are nine bouts of boxing slated on the card featuring some of the best mittmen in Eastern Ontario.

O. B. A. FUTURE RULINGS HANG IN BALANCE

May Not be Obeyed Next Season if Present Trouble Not Settled

2 MEMBERS RESIGN

By The Canadian Press

Rules and regulations laid down by the Ontario Baseball Association may be meaningless to senior teams in the inter-county league operating in southwestern Ontario and the Niagara Peninsula next season unless a dispute between the league and parent body is patched up.

It's possible also that the O.B.A. will have some difficulty calling a meeting of all members if action is not taken soon on an Association ruling last Wednesday night ordering a replay of the senior semi-final inter-county series between Windsor and London which, incidentally, London won.

The tangle between the two bodies was precipitated when the O. B. A. upheld a ruling of its sub-committee that London and Windsor replay their series because Hank Biasatti, 21-year-old Canadian Army corporal, played on Sundays during the summer with Sufferins in the Detroit Baseball Federation and was on London's roster during the Windsor series.

On Thursday night, the executive of the inter-county league met at Kitchener and decided to recommend at the annual meeting of members in November withdrawal of the league from the O. B. A. because of the "detrimental manner in which baseball has been administered by the O.B.A. this season."

Re-Affirms Decision

At the meeting, A. R. McFadyen of Galt, member of the league and the O.B.A., re-affirmed a Wednesday-night decision to resign from the provincial body for their action, and W. G. Ward, immediate past-president of the O.B.A. and a member of the 1944 sub-committee, said at Niagara Falls, that he had placed his resignation in the hands of secretary W. J. Snyder of Hamilton.

McFadyen and Ward both voted against the Association's action Wednesday.

To further complicate matters, the executive of the Welland Senior Baseball Club, at a meeting in their hometown Thursday night, decided to play London Majors for the "real championship" of Ontario.

The Welland club endorsed a resolution asking the O.B.A. to reconsider its stand and said Biasatti was being discriminated against since Windsor and Niagara Falls players engaged in Sunday baseball during the summer without interference by the provincial body.

Earlier Wednesday President W. F. Farquharson said London would not abide by the O. B. A. ruling and that arrangements had been completed for the Welland-London best-of-three series to be played Sept. 30 and Oct. 4. The dates coincide with those set by the O. B. A. for the Windsor-London replay.

WASHOUTS WOULD HELP THE FRONT-RUNNING TIGERS

All Clubs Are Scheduled for Double Bills After Being Rained Out

MUELLER SETS RECORD

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If it pours until Sunday night, Detroit Tigers could sit home by the fire and plan their world series strategy while the Browns, one game back, and the Yankees, three lengths out, rued lost opportunities.

All clubs are scheduled for double-headers after yesterday's complete washout but even another day of heavy dew wouldn't wash any games off the calendar for keeps. The same teams play one another the rest of the season four games and could make them up with twins on both Saturday and Sunday.

Steve O'Neill probably welcomes the downpour like a share cropper in a drought as it gave him time to rest his weary pitching staff. No extra delay came to Dizzy Trout or Hal Newhouser because Trout was still slated to work one tilt today. But Rufe Gentry, scheduled to go with only two days rest the second straight time, got an extra 24 hours before the pair with Washington whom the Bengals have chewed 15 times in 18 starts.

In the east, St. Louis Cardinals were polishing off some unfinished business with the Giants and getting lined up for Wednesday's opener in Sportsman's Park. Billy Southworth took Stan Musial, Walker Cooper, Ray Sanders and Marty Marion out for a rest yesterday and only used Johnny Hopp in the last of the ninth as rookie Blix Donnelly blitzed New York 2-0 with five hits.

Ray Mueller set an all-time major league record by catching his 152nd game in Cincinnati's 10-6 romp over Brooklyn. Leo Durocher learned just before game time he had been named to boss the Dodgers in 1945 but his joy was short lived as the Reds scored nine runs in the fourth. Other National Leaguers were not scheduled.

Frankie Hayes of the A's can also pass out Ray Schalk's old catching record if he ups his total to 152 by catching both games in Cleveland.

Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. Interscholastic Group Returns With 4 Grid Squads

Picton Collegiate Joins Up With Three Belleville Schools in Six-Man Football; Other Sports Organized

L. SHIELS PRESIDENT

For the third consecutive term J. Lester Shiels, of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, was named president of the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association to guide the destinies of the sporting activities of the various high schools and collegiates throughout the district during the war period.

Represented at the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte and Trent Valley groups of the C.O.S.S.A. held here were delegates from St. Michael's Academy, Picton Collegiate, Tweed High School and Belleville Collegiate. However, it was assured that Albert College, Stirling High School and Marmora High School would also participate in the various phases of secondary school competitive sports throughout the 1944-'45 season.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Honorary President — Principal W. S. Turner (Belleville C. I.)

President — J. Lester Shiels (Belleville C. I.)

Vice President — John Doran (St. Michael's.)

Secretary Treasurer — T. E. Moffatt (Tweed.)

Conveners:

Hockey — Homer Townsend (B.C.I.)

Six-Man Rugby — J. Doran (St. Michael's.)

Twelve-Man Rugby — Mr. Burns (Tweed.)

Basketball — Boys, Alex Sutton (Picton), Girls, Miss I. Morton (B.C.I.)

Trenton Absent.

Six-man rugby football will flourish in the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. group again with three teams in Belleville and Picton Collegiate. The local squads are St. Michael's Academy, 1943-'44 champions, Albert College and Belleville Collegiate. No indication as to whether Trenton High School would return to the fold this semester in the six-man football field could be ascertained at the meeting, however. In the Trent Valley group, consisting of Tweed, Marmora and Stirling high schools, the conventional 12-man football game will prevail, with the group winner subsequently meeting the winner of St. Michael's and Belleville Collegiate for the C.O.S.S.A. championship in the series. For Belleville grid consumption, however, the abbreviated six-man interscholastic football game will again be the principle school sport this autumn. The interscholastic hockey and basketball groups do not convene until after the New Year. Convener Jack Doran announced today the six-man football schedule would be drafted this week with competition commencing late next week.

A new football series will be introduced in the C.O.S.S.A. this season in the form of a 125-pound group, organized for the purpose of providing team competition for the smaller boys under the 125-pound weight class.

Secretary Treasurer T. E. Moffatt presented his annual financial statement through President Shiels which showed the district association to enjoy a bank balance.

EDEN TO CONSIDER REPLY

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Persistent questions in the House of Commons as to why Russia had not furnished earlier and to the Polish Patriot uprising inside Warsaw caused foreign Secretary Eden to call a temporary halt to a foreign affairs debate in order to "give consideration to my reply."

Later, he told House members who today will hear Prime Minister Churchill's full-scale war review, that "there is no matter which causes more concern to His Majesty's government than these relations between our Polish and Russian Allies."

Toronto, Sept. 29 — (CP) — The baseball season should have ended in Toronto when Leafs were knocked out of the playoffs by Newark Bears but no one would blame president Pete Campbell if he thought the battle was only starting.

The diminutive Campbell, president for two seasons and now believed to be principal owner of the Leafs, is being bombarded by fans who think he ruined the club when he fired manager Burleigh Grimes and Red Kress, coach, utility player and most popular man on the team.

The fans have been waiting for weeks for the full story of the clash between Campbell and Grimes and now that they have it a good proportion have decided Campbell went out on a limb, when he fired Grimes, who made a hustling ball club of a flock of mediocre players and brought them into the playoffs for two years.

It was developed that Campbell has been in control of the club since August when he bought out the interest of Percy Gardiner, Toronto financier. He and Grimes have been at odds for some time but Campbell waited until the playoff stage before he handed Burleigh his walking papers.

Campbell, it seems, had not only been fed up on Grimes but on an organization known as the Boosters, some of whom attempted to run the club. The Boosters disappeared in a Campbell purge some time before the axe fell on Grimes.

Pete carried on the latter part of the season with the fans, Grimes and a few others taking pot shots at him, not to mention the departure of several players who took it on the lam before the playoffs, presumably because they weren't satisfied with their cuts.

Campbell, who has no baseball background, draws the ire of the fans for that reason among others but the fact is that he has brought prosperity to the club in two seasons and figures to emerge from his present spot to do it again.

When Annis Stukus drove Navy Bulldogs to a 22-6 victory over Camp Borden Hurricanes last Saturday he emphasized the Toronto Star sports department's contribution to Navy sports life in Toronto. Stuke is one of several sports writers on the Toronto Daily who have chosen the Navy for their service. Ed Fitkin of the Star and Hal Walker of the Globe and Mail, are running the H.M.C.S. York Bulldog, the station newspaper, and Fitkin took time out from reporting the game Saturday to superintendent the lovelies who lead the Navy cheering section.

Other Toronto sports writers who are in the Navy are Gord Walker, the Star and Scott Young, The Canadian Press, now overseas, and Alan Harvey, CP, struggling with Morse at St. Hyacinthe, Que., training station.

It was nice to discover that the Capt. Keith Saunders who recently won the M.C. is none other than "Peanuts" Saunders, well-known as an athlete around Ottawa. "Peanuts" — pardon, Capt. Saunders — played snap for Ottawa Rough Riders until a broken shoulder put him out of action and was prominent as a skier and oarsman at the capital.

Casual Comment by K.J.C.

Who Told You That?

It was their third quarrel, and the young wife was by no means at a loss for words.

"Viper!" she hissed. "Scoundrel, blackguard, wretch, fool!"

Quite unperturbed, her husband continued reading the evening paper.

"Brute!" she cried. "You serpent. You snake in the grass!"

But still no sign. And then the uselessness of it came to her. Nothing she could say would shake that immovable calm. Her husband was a football referee.

A La American.

In comparing the American style of softball to that played in Canada, as we observed at the world tournament in Cleveland, frankly the Yankee game stresses too much defensive play. As a matter of fact the American teams play for one run and then settle back to play a purely defensive game during which the opposition has little chance to score.

This is also brought about in the fact the Yankees play a ten-man game, the extra player being known as a short-fielder or rover. He usually takes up a position slightly to the left and behind second base. However, some of the Yankee teams, Hammer Field the 1943-44 champs. for instance, start the game with four outfielders, but once the opposition place a runner on the base paths the short-fielder moves in behind second base to give the dedending team five infielders, not counting the battery. If, perchance, the team at bat advance the base runner to second base then the entire infield, short-fielder et al, move still further inside the infield until they form a perfect semi-circle of five infielders and it is practically impossible to score a run or even advance a runner, unless some batter is fortunate enough to connect with Ruthian power to drive the spheriod far into the bleachers.

The Yankee game of ten men a side is purely a defensive game, which is proven in the low scores registered. For example the Hammer Field champions didn't have a run registered against them throughout the entire tournament. As a matter neither did the champion Portland, Oregon girls. It is a straight case of the old Ottawa Senators' "kitty-bar-the-door" hockey style, but the fans seem to prefer this style looking to baseball for their more scientific and run-producing game. The American game is played with 60-foot base lines with the same pitching distance as used in senior O.A.S.A. softball. When we approached some of the tournament officials in Cleveland to enquire why they employed ten men, instead of the conventional nine as in baseball and Canadian softball, the powers to be merely smiled and stated they were quite satisfied with their game and nonchalantly pointed to about 8,000 fans. "They seem satisfied, so we can't be so far wrong," replied Mr. Ford, coach of the Phoenix, Ariz., team.

Generally speaking the American pitching is superior to Canadian, although such Canadian stalwarts as Russ Johnson of Hamilton and Cam Elcestone of Toronto weren't out of place. The Yank pitchers vary in styles. For instance Parelta, of Phoenix, is a straight windmill type pitcher. That is to say he circles his arm several time before the delivery. The position the batter finds himself is whether Parelta will deliver the ball on the first, second, third or subsequent complete circle of the wind-up. The Chicago pitcher fired with a short wrist snap and where the guy obtained his speed was beyond our comprehension. The New York pitcher wound himself into a knot before unwinding and delivering, this was referred to as "snake-charmer" style. "Shifty" Gears, the Rochester Kodaks' hurler can deliver the ball with either hand and with equal blinding speed, thus the moniker—"Shifty."

There are several other phases we will continue with later, one being of paramount interest to Canadian softball interests.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—If the Tigers win the pennant—or even if they don't—it will be a hard job trying to decide between Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouser for the most valuable player award....Of course, the experts might dodge the issue by giving it to Dick Wakefield on the grounds that before Wakefield Detroit was just a seventh-place club....The office dodger fan adds: "I know who should get the least valuable award, but he ain't a player."

Quote, Unquote.

Coach Jimmy Phelan of St. Mary's (Calif.), speaking to the college president: "Brother Austin, Sunday football may be all right if there is nothing else being done that afternoon. But, if big league pro football comes to San Francisco, and if there is a real big league game scheduled at Kezar stadium on Sunday, I am not going to schedule a St. Mary's game on that afternoon, because among others I am going to watch the big league game."

Shorts and Shells.

Gil Dodds will appear in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, but not in a track suit. He'll speak at a religious gathering....Rick Ferrell who will be 38 in October, wants to stick around long enough to break Gabby Hartnett's record of catching 1,790 major league games. Rick has about 40 to go.

Block Buster.

Ross McKelvey, Canadian rugby star from Toronto who went south to play American football at Auburn was given a defensive assignment in a recent practice game....Art Ballard, the offensive end, drove in hard to take the Canadian kid out of the play....Before Ballard could put his block on McKelvey, he found himself blocked instead with a beautiful hip-rolling job that flattened both. ....Explaining the unrehearsed manoeuvre, Ross said: "The coach said we had to be good blockers to make the Auburn team."

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 493

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Even if they have bridge at the peace table, it does not mean peace at the bridge table. Bridge arguments will continue as long as experts decide rules by opinion instead of proof.

With a partner to consider, every bid must be influenced by two factors. It must guarantee certain values. And it must be adaptable to the answers expected from partner.

The most desirable starting point in the bidding is seemingly a bid of one. Because it gives partners the most number of chances for swapping information about their hands.

But a one opening merely promises a hand that contains better than average in essential items. It does not show anything unusual about any one particular item.

A three bid (opening of three in a major suit) shuts out two rounds of bidding. But it guarantees more tricks and a suit that is re-rebiddable in addition to an outside sure trick.

Thus, with an opening one bid also available, there is method in the seeming madness of an opening three bid. One of its purposes is to tell partner it does not need trump support.

Therefore, when partner responds to your three bid, he need not consider how many cards he has in your suit. He may assist it even if he has no cards in it. Because you said you had enough for both.

Your three bid says your trump suit is already in good shape. Besides what else you show by such a bid, you say: "Partner, you may support this suit no matter how few cards you have in it."

Your opening bid is three spades with this hand:

♠K Q J 10-8 7 6
♥4
♦A J 10
♣K 3

If partner responds with a bid of four spades, he may not have any spades. Because you have told him not to worry about the trumps.

Have your partner depend on the message you send.

May Head University

Another report is that he may accept the presidency of the University of Manitoba, formerly held by Sidney Smith, now principal of University College, University of Toronto, and executive assistant with right of succession to president H. J. Cody. H. P. Armes, Dean of Arts and Science, is acting president of the University of Manitoba. The General's genius as a scholar and scientist fits him for this post.

Canada has often rewarded her soldiers with a provincial governorship. For instance Sir Eugene Fiset, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, is a distinguished Canadian Army veteran. Hence, it was speculated in some quarters that the general might be appointed governor of his province of Saskatchewan, succeeding the retiring Hon. Archibald P. McNab. His retirement becomes effective October 1.

The general's deep interest and constant concern in the welfare of war veterans is well known and with the government on the eve of announcing a demobilization plan, it also is considered a possibility that he may be slated to administer it.

May Become Diplomat

Another possibility was that he might be given a high appointment in the diplomatic service — possibly an Ambassadorship. This speculation arose from the announcement that one of the general's close collaborators in the formation of the overseas army — Maj.-Gen. Victor Odlum, has returned from his post as Ambassador to China. However, there has been no official word that Gen. Odlum is retiring from the diplomatic service or accepting another post. Another Canadian soldier holding high diplomatic office is Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier, representative to the French Committee of National Liberation.

But whatever was in store for him, the only Canadian besides Sir Arthur Currie to become a full general, was at nearby Renfrew, Ont., today squinting at the processing of magnesium. And this was typical of the great soldier who, in his long career never let his scientific interest flag in the production of tools of war.

And the little magnesium plant was another monument to his foresight and planning in pre-war years. As president of the Research Council he had a hand in the development of the plant.

Worked for War

Previous to that as Chief of the Canadian General Staff in depression years he had taken charge of the government's big relief program and put unemployed to work building 168 projects most of them for his defence department — at that time suffering budget slashes. He didn't speak loudly of the purpose of his preparations back in those days.

But his ground clearance scheme provided the network of emergency landing fields on which the T.C.A. and Commonwealth Air Training Plan could operate. Other projects became artillery ranges and he once told reporters, following him around the expanded small arms works in Quebec — described as one of the biggest of its kind in the world — that he had prepared for the expansion in one of his relief projects.

Given Leave of Absence.

His longheadedness and engineering genius had perhaps one chief aim and that was to make sure that preparations and science were exploited to their fullest to make certain there was no unnecessary loss of life when what he saw as inevitable war started.

The slim, fast-striding 57-year-old soldier was granted leave of absence from his overseas army command Dec. 26 through illness. This six months was up June 27 and he was granted three months more leave.

But on Sept. 23 he wrote Col. Ralston and asked to be retired. And this came after a career that saw him credited with being the inventor of the box barrage in the last war when he won decorations and was wounded and came home a brigadier-general at the age of 31.

He held high staff appointments at home until he served two terms as chief of general staff and then he was second president of the research council. The outbreak of the war saw him back at defence headquarters, whipping the 1st Canadian Division in shape and taking them overseas.

He saw his little contingent grow in strength to buttress Britain's flagging defence after Dunkerque, to learn the lessons of Dieppe for future invaders, to strike in the Mediterranean and finally to invade France itself with the status of an army.

Murder Trial Ready for Jury

Port Frances, Ont., Sept. 29 — (CP)—Case of four men on trial in Ontario Supreme Court here for the hot stove torture slaying of Mrs. Viola Jamieson, 49-year-old Flanders, Ont., woman, is expected to go to the jury late this afternoon.

Defence counsel will address the jury in the morning and Deputy Attorney-General Cecil L. Snyder will wind up the case for the Crown in the afternoon. The men being tried are Anthony and George Skrypnyk, Eino Tillonen and William Schmidt.

Mrs. Jamieson died in hospital here July 2 from injuries suffered when she was tortured by robbers in her home June 10. The robbers held flaming newspapers against her limbs and placed her on a hot stove in a search for money.

Schmidt testified in court yesterday he went to the Jamieson home June 10 "to rob" but did not participate in the torture which caused the woman's death.

Called to the stand by his counsel, C. R. Fitch of Fort Frances, Schmidt said he signed a statement Aug. 12 before Inspector Frank Kelly of the Ontario Criminal Investigation Department in which he claimed the Skrypnyk brothers grabbed the woman and put her on the stove. The statement was admitted as evidence.

Statement Read in Court.

In the statement, Schmidt described how the four men ransacked the Jamieson home June 10. He said he was behind the root house when Mrs. Jamieson came home about supper time. It continued:

"Eino, George and Tony were in the house . . . and as I understand it Eino threw a sheet over her. George and Tony carried her into the house and . . . burned her with paper, just to force her to tell where the money was hid."

Telling of placing the woman on the hot stove, the statement said "George was holding her head and Tony got the remains of the paper and put it in the stove and lit it."

"Either Tony or George told Mrs. Jamieson 'we will drown you if you won't say where the money is.'"

On the stand today, Schmidt told the court the information in his statement was what the others had told him after they left the Jamieson property. He said he was outside most of the time and did not hear Mrs. Jamieson scream nor see anyone burning her.

Schmidt said confessions made by Anthony Skrypnyk and Tillonen concerning the torture and claiming that Schmidt coaxed them to try to make Mrs. Jamieson reveal the hiding place of the money were "untrue." The statements were admitted as Crown evidence Wednesday.

Flood Control In Port Hope Area As Post-War Plan

Port Hope, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP)—In an effort to control floods which have threatened Port Hope and district since the middle of the last century, A. H. Richardson, Forest Engineer of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, has proposed post-war rehabilitation of land in the Ganaraska watershed, an area of 103 square miles of Durham and Northumberland counties. The recommendation was contained in a report prepared under the joint auspices of the Dominion and Provincial governments.

The report estimated the enterprise would provide two years work for 600 men, with an expenditure of $1,382,250.

GESTAPO BUSY AGAIN

London, Sept. 28 — (AP) —. The Cairo radio, quoting "well informed Geneva sources," said yesterday the Germans had executed Paul Loebe, former president of the Reichstag, in a new Gestapo roundup designed to wipe out elements which might deal with the Allies.

Glycol Anti-Freeze Is Now Permitted For Essential Users

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—Chemicals Controller E. T. Sterne announced Thursday that, effective immediately, essential car users are permitted to buy ethylene glycol anti-freeze due to an improvement in the supply situation.

He added that restrictions will be further lifted "or removed altogether" when the supply position shows added improvement. He did not indicate when this was expected.

As a result of the new order, motor vehicles become eligible for ethylene glycol which are used exclusively by a member of the medical profession, a visiting nurse, a veterinarian, or a clergyman serving more than one rural congregation.

In addition, it now may be purchased for motor vehicles used exclusively for the following purposes: Funeral services; blood donor services; maintenance or electrical transmission, telegraph or telephone lines; firefighting services; necessary police services; public garbage disposal and other public sanitation services; railway express, freight, and mail services; oil well drilling, all and base metal prospecting; transportation of fuel, milk, cream or other perishable food products.

Fishermen will be allowed to purchase the anti-freeze, providing vessels are used exclusively for commercial fishing.

NO ORDER CONSIDERED

Ottawa, Sept. 29 — (CP) — Federal government health authorities are considering an order under which no Canadian cheese would be sold until it was at least 90 days old, it was learned yesterday.

GLOBE MAKES CHARGE

Toronto, Sept. 29 — (CP) — The Globe and Mail said in a newspage story today "It is reported on very good authority that in recent month more than 1,200 bottles of good Scotch, Rye, brandy and rum have appeared on Liquor Board shelves as a result of police hauls."

AT THE McCARTHY — A gay blend of youth, music and romance makes Charles R. Rogers' "Song of Open Road," the liveliest film of the year. Spurred on by laugh-makers Bergen and McCarthy and W. C. Fields, Bonita Granville, Sammy Kaye and the singing sensation, Jane Powell, it opens at the McCarthy Theatre next.

Johnny Johnson Scores 38th Kill

London, Sept. 29 (CP)—Wing Cmdr. J. E. (Johnny) Johnson, who scored his 38th kill Wednesday in operations over the Nijmegen sector of Holland, is the top active Allied air ace of the second Great War.

The English-born leader of an R.C.A.F. Spitfire wing still has a long way to go to beat the record of Lt.-Col. Alexander Pokryshkin of the Red air force—53 confirmed victories—but Pokryshkin is reported to be not currently on operations.

Johnson's nearest rival, Lt.-Col. Francis Gabreski, of the U.S. army air force, who had downed 28 German planes, is now a prisoner of war. Flt. Lt. Geo. (Buzz) Beurling, Verdun, Que., of the R.C.A.F. also was among the leaders with 31 kills, but has since returned to civilian life.

Wing Cmdr. Johnson shot down his 38th German aircraft Wednesday as the Canadian fighter wing he commands destroyed 14 planes, damaged six in fierce battles along the Rhine east of the Holland salient.

Up to lunch time Wednesday Johnson's wing had brought its total of German planes destroyed in 1 1-2 days to 23.

PLENTY GIVEN HAMILTON

Hamilton, Sept. 29 — (CP) — Munitions Minister Howe said last night $356,500,000 worth of war contracts were awarded to Hamilton plants between the outbreak of war and the end of July this year. He was addressing the nominating convention of the East Hamilton Liberal Association which unanimously chose Thomas H. Ross, present M.P., as candidate for the riding in the next Federal election.

AMERICAN BRED

By Franken Meloney

CHAPTER 9.

"I see you don't always drive like a maniac", Christopher remarked. It was a half-chiding, friendly statement, as if he wanted to say something but wasn't saying it. "This is a beautiful countryside, soft and mellow", he went on. Still he wasn't saying what was in his mind. He sighed with deep relaxation and contentment.

Ann drove silently on. It wasn't necessary to talk. She knew that he was trying to phrase a sense of peace that she, too, had always found at Myles. He was trying to say that when two people meet like chance ships at sea and come together to a friendly port, the spirit knows an end to search. He was trying to say that he liked her, and that it would be fun to go on knowing her; that knowing a person the way they had come to know each other that day might sometimes be all you could ask of life. Only he wasn't the kind who would be speaking such thoughts out loud, and besides, she wouldn't want him to. She didn't like things that happened too easily, too quickly.

Gretel raised a paw as if to scratch at her stitched-up shoulder, and Ann's hand and Christopher's went out at the same instant to quiet her. Their fingers touched across the warm lithe body. Quickly Ann's hand moved back to the wheel. No, she decided, what they were both feeling could not yet be put in words . . . . .

"You're to go to bed at once", she ordered matter-of-factly as they came to the house. "I'll rustle up some sort of supper and you'll get it on a tray".

"Oh, look here", Christopher objected, "I'm not an invalid and I'm not a baby. I'm going to help".

"You're going to follow out the doctor's instructions. He said you were to take it easy for twenty-four hours if you didn't want a nasty reaction from that injection".

She lit the fire in the guest room, turned down the bed, and found a pair of silk pajamas that belonged to Helen's husband. "There'll be the same old bacon and eggs again", she warned her guest, "but this time they'll be fit to eat".

"This is fun", said Christopher, with a shyness that implied, "it's been a long while since anybody's coddled me—"

Ann looked at him. "Come clean, it hurts like fury, doesn't it?"

"It hurts", he admitted through pale lips. "But it's more than worth it".

Ann turned away to hide the warm flush that crept up to her cheeks. She hurried down to the kitchen, glad to quiet the sweet turbulence within her by having something to do. While she was waiting for the water to boil, she had a strangle impulse to telephone Helen. It was as if she wanted to gather about her those who were close to her, wanted to share the well-being and happiness thtat was suddenly hers.

She put the call through from the pantry extension. There was the rapid relay of hollow operators' voices through to New London, to Boston and then "Myles calling Mrs. Huston in Bar Harbor".

A brief pause, followed by Helen's reserved voice "Hello? Mrs. Huston speaking".

"Hullo! Mrs. Huston's sister Ann speaking!"

"Nothing's wrong. Why should there be?"

"Well, I'm sure I don't know. Where are you? It gave me a start hearing from you, when I wasn't expecting to".

Same old Helen, Ann thought; same old conventional fuss-budget.

"I'm in Myles". Ann avoided a discussion of giving Helen a start. "And I wanted to tell you that I've rented the place to a very nice man who raises dogs. And I've got a Great Dane of my own, and that probably puts me in the dog business too, in which everybody loses their shirt, but it's fun anyway. And so everything's all right, and I'm not going to sell the place after all—and oh, I fired the farmer, he was drunk—And the new tenant really is a very nice man, and I'm awfully lucky to have found him".

Helen was some minutes getting straightened out on the story. But after she did grasp it, she had quite a lot to say. Ann rolled her eyes and prayed for patience. No, she didn't know anything about Mr. Wain, except that he raised dogs. . . . No, she didn't think he could be any of the Wains Helen met at St. Moritz years ago, he didn't somehow look the part. . . Well, you didn't have to know a man all your life to rent him your farm, did you? . . Yes, she had been introduced to him at a kennel. . . Well, you had to meet people somewhere; Helen had met her husband at a flower exhibit, so what? . . . No, she wasn't bringing that up again—but nevertheless—. . . Yes, he was taking the place right away, there wouldn't be any slip-ups; in fact, he was already installed.

"Where?"

"Here".

"Now?"

"Yes".

"Ann Rivers, are you insane? You can't permit him to stay there with you alone!"

"But it's either this house or a hospital". (Ann explained briefly about the dog fight.) "He's safe in bed at this moment in one of your husband's sky-blue pajamas. So you don't have to be upset".

Helen, however, who was essentially a canary-and-goldfish-person, was more upset than ever at this point. Great Danes, she held forth in agitation, were notoriously ferocious, and Ann must rid herself of the animal immediately. As for having a strange man there—it was unheard of! If he wasn't able to leave, Ann must call in Emma Jeeves at once, who would be glad to look after him at fifty cents an hour, and Ann should jump in her car and drive elsewhere without delay.

"Promise me!" Helen finished urgently. "Ann, I want you to promise me! I'm in the middle of a thousand odds and ends as you can well imagine on a rush trip up here, but I shall stand at this phone until you promise!"

"I promise", Ann meekly said, and finished under her breath, "nothing of the sort!"

Helen, no wiser, and a great deal happier for not having heard the tail-end of the pledge, returned to her thousand and one odds and ends and Ann returned to the task of preparing supper for two. All in all, she reflected dourly, it hadn't been too smart an impulse to call Helen. She should have known better.

Ann was pleased with the appearance of the tray, and the coffee smelled marvelous. She was about to carry it upstairs when the telephone rang. For a moment, she was tempted to ignore it. Ten to one it was Tom; ten to one Helen had lost no time in getting in touch with him. Ten to one Tom was going to personally supervise her safe return to New York. "Not if I know it", she muttered wrathfully, set the tray down and stalked across the room to inform Mr. Tom Barton that she was perfectly capable of managing her own affairs.

But it wasn't Tom. There was already someone talking on the wire when she lifted the receiver. "I'll call them in the morning" a woman's voice was saying and immediately after Christopher Wain's voice followed up with "and you can also tell the Hartley people that I'll be away for a couple of days. They can wait".

Ann felt a surge of unreasonable pleasure. Then he wasn't going back—he was going to stay on at Broadfields. But who was he talking to? Ann placed the woman as either a secretary or the competent housekeeper sort, and neither person fitted into her present concept of the young man who was renting her farm for fifty dollars a month.

"And what will I tell Mrs. Wain?" The woman's voice continued. "She's been trying to reach you all day".

There was a sudden sharp impact somewhere within Ann's mind. It was like tripping over something in the dark. You tripped but you didn't know over what; you just felt jarred and shaken. She realized for the first time that she had been eavesdropping, and slowly and carefully she put the receiver back on the hook. "'Mrs. Wain'." She repeated the words in the same cadence as the voice on the phone. She was none the wiser.

If Mrs. Wain had been Christopher Wain's mother, anyone who was sufficiently close to him to attend to his business would have simply said "your mother". Perhaps Mrs. Wain was a sister-in-law or an aunt? But would aunts or sisters-in-law be trying to reach you all day? She doubted it. No Mrs. Wain was just Mrs. Wain and Christopher Wain was that kind of man. She didn't like to admit that she could be so wrong in her reading of human character, and yet he hadn't said or done anything that was out of keeping with the knowledge she had stumbled on.

She picked up the tray. Helen was right, the thing to do was to go back to town at once. She'd leave Emma Jeeves' telephone number, and let it go at that. Under the circumstances, it was far wiser for Mrs. Wain to look after Mr. Wain. Doubtless when he found himself alone he would have the good sense to get in touch with her.

It was after midnight when Ann and Rowdy reached home. The hall boy was asleep, for which slight blessing she gave silent thanks. But the landlord found out about Rowdy, anyway. He happened to be in the house on a matter of new awnings, several days later, and called on Ann personally. "Miss Rivers", he said, "it's impossible. I can't let you keep a big dog like a Great Dane in a two-room apartment".

"Oh," said Ann, "she really doesn't mind so much; she's used to it, already".

The landlord, Mr. Whitmark, made a small jerky movement of his head as if he were shaking water out of his eyes. "But the tenants mind", he explained. "He frightened the lady on the top floor".

"It's not a he, it's a she", Ann smiled ingratiatingly.

Mr. Whitmark's face flooded a dark solid red. "And as for frightening anybody", Ann hurried on, "that's ridiculous. Rowdy's the most gentle puppy in the world"—She only attacked one farmer and killed one shepherd dog two hours after I got her, she silently amended.

A crash sounded from the bedroom. She tried to look nonchalant. "The cleaning woman", she murmured.

It was untrue, of course. There wasn't any cleaning woman. Another crash sounded, this time mingled with the brittle scream of broken glass. Ann noted Mr. Whitmark's doubting frown, and threw a neat red herring in front of him.

"Now about those awnings you want to change. I wouldn't", she assured him feverishly, "I wouldn't dream of it. They're good for another year at least".

Mr. Whitmark had been avoiding this topic because he knew what it would mean—start off with an awning and you'd end up by painting the entire apartment. Miss Rivers' unprecedented co-operation bowled him over. "That's very nice of you", he acknowledged gratefully. "Also, I am sorry about your dog. If it was only myself, I would say, "Go ahead, young lady, keep an elephant if it makes you happy'. But I'm not myself, I'm a landlord".

Ann nodded. "I'm one too", said she.

She picked up a letter and two telegrams from the desk. "Listen to this. Telegram number one: Please come back and attend to leaky roof. Signed, C. WAIN. Telegram number two; Boundary fences need repair. Better arrange for visit to oversee needed work on place. Signed, C. WAIN. I haven't opened the letter yet. It'll be just the same thing, and more of it".

"That's too bad", said Mr. Whitmark sympathetically.

"Also", Ann pursued with welling bitterness, "he has a wife, and dozens of Great Danes. And if I'm not complaining", she ended with a burst of consummate sophistry, "why should you?"

WORRIES AHEAD?

Rumors persist that New York's Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia was selected at the Quebec conference for the tough job of running Italy until Italian political confusion is settled after the war. To do this LaGuardia would get a brigadier-general's rating. In this photo taken a few days ago at a Senate committee hearing in Washington, the mayor's expression indicates that he can foresee plenty of trouble ahead.

The Goodyear Dealer is YOUR TIRE ADVISER!

If every motorist knew all there was to know about a tire, he wouldn't need the expert services of a Goodyear Dealer. He'd just buy a tire . . . that's all! But, it's well to remember that even the best tires and tubes . . . Goodyears . . . give still greater mileage and finer performance when properly fitted to the rims and regularly maintained and serviced.

If you are eligible to buy the new Goodyear synthetic rubber tires and tubes, here's a fact worth knowing. Every Goodyear Dealer KNOWS HOW to apply them, and how to maintain and service them right from the minute your car starts to roll on them.

In the past few years Goodyear Dealers have given yeoman service to Canadian motorists. During the rubber famine, tires have been kept in service by the application of new methods, new skills and sheer hard work. The Goodyear Dealer always has been the right man to know . . . the guardian of tire miles.

The amazing tire performance enjoyed by Goodyear owners during this period has but proved what Goodyear has long maintained. That, with proper care, a new tire can be confidently expected to yield outstanding mileages.

As a tire expert, your neighbourhood Goodyear Dealer can pass on to you benefits accrued through the nation-wide experience of Goodyear . . . benefits that mean longer life and better performance from your tires.

This is a Goodyear Synthetic Rubber Tire! Goodyear dealers have it . . . for eligible drivers only. It is the result of Goodyear's forty years' experience in tire-building plus Goodyear's specialized knowledge of synthetic rubber . . . gained through unceasing research and testing.

BRITISH UNITS BATTLE FOR ARNHEM CROSSING
RED DRIVE ON HUNGARY CRACKS 90 MILES OF FORTS

Germans Destroy North Approaches Of Rhine Bridge

Resume Attack on Calais After 24-Hour Truce

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 30 — (AP) — The battle for Holland swept toward a climax today with British 2nd Army units holding their Nijmegen bridge and fighting for the Arnhem crossing nine miles to the north in a series of toe-to-toe battles.

On the coast Cape Gris Nez had fallen to 1st Canadian Army assault and its cross-channel batteries that had made life tough for Dover and Folkestone for four hard years were silenced at last.

Residents of the shattered English southeast coast towns celebrated spontaneously, but warier ones waited to learn if there were other long-range guns still in Calais which might take up the pounding after noon, end of the 24-hour Calais truce.

The Canadians and the heavy bombers of the R.A.F. ceased their knock-out attacks on Calais for that long to permit evacuation of 20,000 civilians from the siege-ringed port, fall of which seemed imminent.

Acts on Hitler's Orders

The attack on Calais was resumed a few minutes after noon according to frontline reports. The garrison commander, Colonel Schroeder, was said to have declared in discussing the truce:

"I have received orders from the Fuehrer to fight to the last man, and that is what I intend to do."

oMre than 2,000 prisoners already have been taken in the siege.

U. S. 7th Army troops pushed through rocket and mortar fire into the first two passes of the Vosges barrier to the Rhine, and the armor-wrecking U. S. 3rd Army, beating back German counter-blows in a hard slugging fight, had knocked out at least 113 enemy tanks in two days.

In a co-ordinated attack farther north, the U. S. 1st Army cut through eight Siegfried Line fortifications southwest of Prum, south of Aachen.

The whole front from the mist-shrouded Belfort Gap to the sodden lowlands of Holland was rain-splattered and slippery with mud.

Germans Shoved Back.

German troops who had pushed to the south bank of the Dutch Rhine opposite Arnhem were shoved back across the river last night—and destroyed the northern approaches to the bridge in their desperation to prevent a British crossing.

From both sides, east and west, they hurled S. S. troops into attacks against the thin British corridor through Nijmegen. In that battle they risked at least 300 of their fighters and fighter-bombers in one of the Luftwaffe's biggest days of concentrated close support since the invasion.

British and Canadian planes met them head-on, destroyed 33, damaged 16, and kept them from getting into strafing range of British ground forces at any time in the fight. A single British plane was lost.

American paratroops helped the Tommies beat off the attacks without yielding more than a couple of orchards. The Germans, failing to gain, were reported digging in for an attempt to bog the battle down into positional warfare.

Widen Corridor.

Southwest of Nijmegen British troops widened their corridor within four miles of the Dutch communications centre of 'S Hertogen-Bosch which the Germans fortified to hold an escape corridor to the north around the broad Maas estuary for troops hemmed tightly in western Holland.

U. S. 1st Army infantry was punching into German defences again all the way from north of Aachen to the southern tip of Luxembourg.

Infantrymen gained a mile northeast of Sittard on the Dutch-German frontier 20 miles north of Aachen and drove anew against Hurtgen, 14 miles southeast of the besieged fortress town.

They made only what the communique called "limited progress" in the Siegfried-denting attack

TIRE RATIONING TO BE RELAXED ON NAZI DEFEAT

Restrictions to Be Gradually Lifted After Victory, Howe States at Sarnia

SITUATION NOW ACUTE

Sarnia, September 30—CP)—Tire rationing restrictions will be gradually relaxed starting within a few months of the collapse of Germany, Munitions Minister Howe said Friday.

He made the announcement in a statement to newspapermen attending a ceremony celebrating the first anniversary of synthetic rubber production in Canada at the government-owned Polymer plant near here.

While he gave Canadian motorists hope of tires in the future, Mr. Howe said the situation at present is acute.

"For the time being, our tire position in some respects in worse than ever. The factories are engaged chiefly in producing tires for the armed forces and in any event with the same equipment they can turn out only four-fifths as many synthetic as natural rubber tires.

"Meanwhile existing tires are wearing out in increased numbers and it is becoming difficult to provide enough replacements. This year 885,000 passenger tires will be replaced as against 540,000 last year, but even the increased number will not be sufficient to fill essential demands.

"To release the 885,000 tires our inventories will become so reduced that some essential drivers granted tire ration permits may find it difficult to purchase immediately the required size in their district."

As soon as Germany has been defeated, steps will be taken to increase the output of civilian tires and within a few months of that time civilian tires will begin to be plentiful and it will gradually become possible to relax tire restrictions, he said.

One of the chief bottlenecks is still the shortage of natural rubber. Our stock piles have been exhausted and we now depend on trickles from Ceylon, North Africa and Latin America."

Crude rubber is essential to some extent in the manufacture of synthetic tires and for some other products.

SAYS U.S. GOVT. TOO EXTREME WITH ARGENTINA

Manchester Guardian States Britain Needs Beef Too Much To Follow Suit

EXPENSIVE 'LUXURY'

London, Sept. 30 — (CP)— The Manchester Guardian declared in an editorial today that the United States "is going rather far in its measures of coercion" against Argentina.

The United States, the newspaper added, "has barred its ships from calling at Argentine ports and no doubt would like us to follow suit. We like the Argentine brand of Fascism as little as does Mr. Cordell Hull, but we also prefer Argentine beef to American pork.

"When our food situation is as generous as that of the Americans we can think about the luxuries of a blockade which may not hit the right people."

Federal Election May Be Delayed

Ottawa, Sept. 30 — (CP)—Persons in Ottawa, who a few weeks back were confidently forecasting a Federal general election this year, now consider that the developments on the western front and Prime Minister Churchill's warning in London on Thursday that the war against Germany may extend several months into 1945 have wiped out any prospect of a vote that soon.

March now is being talked about as a likely election month. While Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his speech on the 25th anniversary of his selection as national leader, Aug. 7, made it clear he did not desire a Federal election in the heat of the war in Europe, neither did he desire parliament to extend its life, which automatically ends next spring.

Colleagues of Mr. King at the time said if it came to a case of having to decide between a wartime election and extension of parliament's life, the Prime Minister would call an election. This decision may have to be made.

6 Persons Killed By Flying Bombs

London, Sept. 30 — (CP)—Flying bombs killed at least six persons early today in the southern counties and the London area, and caused injuries to many others.

The Germans took advantage of overcast weather to launch two attacks, the second just before dawn.

One bomb crashed on top of a tenement house, killing three residents and injuring 12 others.

Three persons were killed in a residential district and a dozen homes were demolished. Many others, including children asleep in their beds, were injured seriously. Five persons were listed as missing, and rescue parties began digging through the wreckage before the all-clear sounded.

The Germans have been launching the bombs from aircraft over

Infiltration Tactics of Tenant More Than Landlady Could Bear

Vancouver, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Infiltration tactics of a tenant were described by a protesting landlady in Rentals Appeal Court here yesterday.

She detailed before Judge Bruce Boyd a history which began when on a five-dollar deposit she rented a room to a man who claimed to be single.

The following day he moved in—with his wife and baby.

The day after that his two daughters arrived and the landlady gave in to the extent of renting the two girls a second room.

The next day a fourth child arrived and took up residence.

The crisis came on the fifth day when a grown son of the family traipsed in accompanied by a pet dog—and the pet dog's puppy.

Questioned by the bewildered landlady, the "single" man's wife announced laconically:

"That's the works."

The landlady concluded her report remarking that the tenant had paid no rent so far and had neglected to repay the five-dollar deposit which he had borrowed back from her a few days after his arrival. The case was adjourned 10

Planning Post-War Fate Of Germany One of Livest Issues Among "Big Three"

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Sept. 30 — (CP) — Planning for the post-war fate of Germany and her satellites, handicapped at the recent Quebec Conference because of the absence of Premier Stalin, is one of the livest issues among the "Big Three" and may be the subject of an early three-power conference.

The bare objective of "unconditional surrender" is believed among many observers here and in London to stand in the way of early collapse of German resistance.

There have been no official pronouncements yet, but yesterday President Roosevelt told a press conference that reports of a Treasury proposal that Germany should be deprived of all industry were essentially untrue in the basic fact.

He did not explain exactly what that meant but it is understood here that a similar proposal from Treasury Secretary Morgenthau has been rejected.

It is significant that when Foreign Secretary Eden flew to Quebec to meet Prime Minister Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Morgenthau also was called in but no one went from the United States State Department which, the President said yesterday, would guide future American planning for post-war treatment of Germany.

There were reports that Mr. Eden went to Quebec to talk about possible changes in the "unconditional surrender" attitude toward Germany, and possibly with a definite plan for new peace terms.

Whatever was done at Quebec on this point it now is apparent that the subject was left for later consideration when Mr. Stalin could be present, and reports from Moscow indicate he is willing to attend such a conference.

Within fortnight the governments involved should have a complete set of recommendations from the Dumbarton Oaks conference on post-war security planning which has been in progress here for the past six weeks.

DREW STANDS BY STATEMENTSMADE ON 'BONUS BILL'

Oppose Large Sums From Ontario for Benefit of People of Quebec

CALLS ACT "BAD"

Ottawa, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Premier George Drew of Ontario said in an address last night that he stood by a statement of Aug. 9 opposing "large sums going from the pockets of Ontario taxpayers for the benefit of the people of Quebec when their official representatives take the position that they deny their obligation to bear their full share in the (war) struggle now reaching its most critical stage."

Speaking before the Eastern Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Drew said he accepted the figure of the chief Ontario statistician that under the federal family allowances plan Ontario would contribute between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 to Quebec. He said the figures had been challenged.

Mr. Drew said it had been made clear that Ontario was prepared to support other provinces where that support was needed. The objection to a contribution to Quebec was because the Quebec legislature had gone on record opposing the effective use of the military reinforcements in Canada at a time "when these reinforcements are desperately needed at the front."

Not Dodging Issue.

"We have no intention of dodging that issue, and I stand by the position I took on Aug. 9," he continued.

The Family Allowances Act was "bad" from the constitutional viewpoint and was ineffective as practical legislation. Ontario was being required to make the payments for the benefit of Quebec without its government being consulted as to how the payments were to be handled.

The Winnipeg Free Press continued to speak of his opposition to family allowances although knowing his exact words were that Ontario was in favor of every proper step being taken to encourage large and healthy families and sound provision for family allowances and social security.

Wants Conference Called.

If the Dominion could invade the provincial field of legislation in social services it might invade the field of educational and similar legislation in which the province had no intention of relinquishing control until there were amendments to the British North America Act assuring the preservation of the basic principles underlying the constitution. Ontario would welcome a Dominion-Provincial conference to discuss family allowances.

NAZIS PINCH OUT BRIDGEHEAD ON FIUMCINO RIVER

Savage Blows to Wrest Monte Battaglia From Americans Fall

SOME GAINS MADE

Rome, Sept. 30 —(AP)— Furious German counter-attacks have pinched out the small bridgehead won by the British 8th Army across the Fiumcino river eight miles northwest of Rimini, but similar savage efforts to wrest Monte Battaglia, 11 miles south of Imola, from the Allied 5th Army have failed, Allied Headquarters announced today.

On the Adriatic front New Zealand troops drove to the Fiumcino river on a 400-yard front. The enemy, defending the north bank strongly, launched two night counter-attacks which were repulsed.

Gen. Leese's troops gained a small bridgehead across the Fiumcino west of San Mauri di Romagna, but before it could be reinforced strong enemy armored units compelled a withdrawal.

The Marecchia and Rubicon rivers were reported running swiftly with rising waters, making crossings difficult in the Canadian-New Zealand sector.

Rout Enemy From Posts.

Steadily routing the enemy from commanding heights overlooking the roads into the Po valley, both American and British forces of the 5th Army reported moderate gains in the central sector of the Italian front.

The Americans captured Giugnola, an important highway town 7½ miles northeast of Firenzuola, and patrols forged into Belvedre, 18 miles south-southeast of Bologna.

Other American units pushed more than three miles along Highway 65 toward Bologna from La Mazetta to Filigare.

Enemy efforts to retain Monte Battaglia, which overlooks most of the route down the northern slope of the Apennines to the Bologna-Rimini highway, were launched in strength. One German regiment was beaten off Thursday and another yesterday.

Capture Village.

Other 5th Army troops captured the village of Montefredente, nine miles northwest of Firenzuola, and nearby Monte Balestra.

From the west coast sector, where the Brazilians and other units have been advancing slowly, came only a report that pressure was maintained on the enemy with aggressive patrolling.

Heavy rains flooded some roads over which the Americans were moving up the mountains at the centre, making a few paths impassable even to mule trains.

Poor weather curtailed aerial activity. Allied planes flew only 60 sorties, mainly against German communications southwest of

R.A.F. MOSQUITOS BOMB KARLSRUHE INGREATSTRENGTH

Bad Weather Over Continent Restricts Operations of The Heavy Bombers

SUPPLY DEPOTS HIT

London, Sept. 30. (CP)—Between 750 and 1,000 United States heavy bombers today attacked Munster, Hamm and Bielsfeld in Western Germany, headquarters announced.

Last night R.A.F. Mosquitos bombed Karlsruhe in an attack described by the Air Ministry as well concentrated.

A communique said all the bombers returned from Karlsruhe. Other R.A.F. planes laid mines in enemy waters.

The campaign to destroy the German army's material and the means to get it to the front saw nearly 2,500 sorties flown in poor weather yesterday by the U.S. 9th air force, the 2nd tactical air force and the air defence force of Britain, most of them in direct support of ground troops.

The 9th air force, making its deepest bombing penetration into Germany, hit a supply depot at Julich, 10 miles from the Holland border and a railway yard at Bingen, 35 miles west of Cologne, Friday evening. Five Havocs were lost in the intense flak. Two other bombers were lost during the day.

The other attacks were the bombing of Siegfried Line defence points and a railway yard at Saarbrucken by British-based Marauders, and of railway yards at Euskirchen, Bitburg and Prum by French-based Marauders and Havocs.

Fighters and fighter-bombers hit every moving target they could find in the Rhineland and tallied 52 locomotives knocked out, 186 railway cars destroyed or damaged, two railroad bridges blasted, a tunnel blocked, 533 barges, two docks and a canal lock severely damaged, and 82 motor vehicles and 40 horse-drawn wagons knocked out.

Pincers Tighten Against Last Big Balkan Vassal State

Strong Propaganda Drive Urges Hungary To Surrender

By DANIEL De LUCE

Moscow, Sept. 30 — (AP)—Russia opened up today with a strong propaganda campaign urging Hungary to surrender as Red Army troops tightened a pincers offensive against Hitler's last big Balkan vassal state.

Leaflets dropped over the Hungarian lines declared the Romanians were well received when they threw down their arms. Broadcasts informed the Hungarian people it was not too late to desert Hitler and save themselves.

The Russian offensive against Hungary has cracked a 90-mile stretch of frontier fortifications along the Czech-Polish border defending the Ruthenian highlands, and is sweeping west through northern Transylvania.

Gen. Ivan Petrov's combined Russian-Czechoslovak forces, driving a wedge into every important Ruthenian pass, extended their grip on pre-war Czechoslovakia's frontier to 160 miles.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky scored a major success in the eastern Carpathians by capturing the Transylvanian city of Targumures and crossing the Mures river line at a point within 50 miles east of Cluj, the Hungarian - annexed Transylvanian capital.

Operations of Malinovsky's forces on the Hungarian plain from western Romania were not mentioned officially here.

(A Bucharest broadcast said the Russians had broken into Ordea, a strategic rail city controlling one of the main escape routes out of Transylvania. It is only six miles from the pre-war Hungarian frontier.

(Berlin reports implied that Red Army troops temporarily had smashed into Szeged, Hungary's 2nd city, 95 miles southeast of Budapest.)

In the north the battle for the Latvian port of Riga grew in fury. The Germans were knocked out of 30 additional settlements, but enemy resistance definitely stiffened.

An official summation last night said that Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's clearing of the Estonia mainland had cost the Germans more than 30,000 killed and 15,745 prisoners between Sept. 17 and 26.

(The Swiss radio said the Russians landed on the islands of Hiuu (Dago) and Saare (Osel) off the Estonian coast. Capture of the islands would complete the ousting of the Germans from all Estonian territory.)

Quartet To Pay With Lives For Woman's Murder

Justice Barlow Sentences Men to Hang on December 6th at Kenora

DEFENCE MAY APPEAL

By MARSHALL BATEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fort Frances, Ont., Sept. 30 (CP) —Four men will pay with their lives Dec. 6 for the hot-stove torture death of 49-year-old Mrs. Viola Jamieson in her Flanders, Ont., home last summer.

The quartet—William Schmidt, 27, of Fort Frances, Anthony and George Skrypnyk, brothers, aged 23 and 28 respectively of Atikokan, Ont., and Eino Tillonen, 19, of Port Arthur—were sentenced last night to hang in December by Mr Justice F. H. Barlow of Toronto after a 12-man Ontario Supreme Court jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder.

The charges were laid after their arrest and the death in Fort Frances hospital of Mrs. Jamieson July 2 from burns suffered June 10 when tortured with burning newspapers and then placed atop a hot stove in the kitchen of her home.

The men were lodged in Fort Frances jail, but shortly will be taken to the provincial jail at Kenora, Ont., 170 miles northwest of here, where the hanging is likely to take place.

The jury which returned its verdict after deliberating two hours and 54 minutes, recommended mercy for Tillonen and Mr. Justice Barlow said he would forward the recommendation to Justice Minister St. Laurent.

The accused were all calm and showed no signs of emotion when the trial judge pronounced sentence. Only one, Anthony Skrypnyk spoke. He said: "If I have a chance at all, I would know how to live".

After the four had been taken to their cells, C. F. Fitch, K.C., counsel for Schmidt, said he would appeal on behalf of his client. Defence counsels for the others made no comment..

People of Dover Officially Told Their Ordeal by Gunfire Ended

Dover, England, Sept. 30 (CP) — Just over four years after the first German shell crashed into Dover from across the narrow straits, the people of Dover were told officially today that their ordeal by gunfire was ended.

Shortly after 10 a.m. loudspeakers in the town gave this message:

"The mayor has received official information that all the long-range guns on the other side of the channel have now been captured."

The message was also broadcast in the caves where many people have been sheltering during the fierce bombardment of the last month.

Cheers echoed through the battered streets of this little capital of "hellfire corner."

Jubilant citizens swarmed into the streets for an impromptu celebration marked by singing, shouting and dancing while flags appeared by hundreds from windows of nearly all the town's houses.

It is expected that Thanksgiving services will be held on the beaches next Sunday with the Archbishop of Canterbury presiding and tomorrow undoubtedly will bring special rites in all the churches of "hellfire corner."

Mayor J. R. Cairns said there would be no official celebration until Calais and Dunkerque fall to the 1st Canadian army now besieging them.

But his fellow-citizens let off plenty of enthusiasm in their first feelings of joy and relief and even the baby carriages in the streets flew Union Jacks while the older children—many of whom never were evacuated—had their own flag-waving parades.

Men working on the hundreds of shell-damaged houses paused in their labor long enough to whoop out a few cheers and then went back to their jobs so Dover would be ready to welcome its returning evacuees.

Doverites knew that they were in for their worst pasting when Canadian forces started to close in on the French channel ports opposite. They knew the Germans would get rid of as many of their big shells—many of them 16-inchers—as possible.

From last August 30 until the last big gun was safely silenced yesterday there was scarcely a day of respite and the longest alert lasted more than 13 hours.

During the last couple of years most of the German shellings came as retaliation after British big guns attacked German ships trying to slip through the straits at night—apparently in hope that the citizens of Dover would protest so strongly that the shelling of enemy ships would cease. But Dover took it in silence.

Besides shells, the city has received 464 German bombs, three parachute mines and as many flying bombs.

Dover has not been alone on "hellfire corner." Nearby Folkestone has had 102 shelling alerts and other smaller communities in the area have been hit repeatedly.

FRONT WHEEL OF CAR BROKEN IN COLLISION

The left front wheel of a motor car driven by James Tugnett, 50 Geddes Street, was broken off when the lighter vehicle was in collision with an R.C.A.F. truck on George Street, Friday night. Mr. Tugnett was passing a parked car as the truck and automobile met going in opposite directions. The vehicles sideswiped in passing with the left front wheel of the motor car being broken off, while the running board was also damaged. Minor damage resulted to the air force truck. Police investigated and reported no injuries of major proportions had resulted.

CHESTERFIELD AND RUG SCORCHED IN BLAZE

Damage to the living room chesterfield and rug was occasioned at the home of Mrs. Ed. Sleeper, 62 Burton Street, late Friday afternoon when a spark from a cigarette or pipe is believed to have been responsible for the blaze. Members of the local fire department reported a sizeable hole burned in the Chesterfield covering and upholstering and also in the floor rug.

PROVINCIAL POLICE SEEK TEEN-AGED LADS

Provincial Police today are seeking to apprehend two teen-age lads who are believed responsible for the entering of John Frederick's home, in the Oak Hill sector, and stealing considerable number of articles during the absence of the family on Thursday. Reported missing are two fur coats, a blue suit, a .22 calibre rifle, two boxes of shot gun shells and some jewelry. In order to make a safe and quick getaway the burglars also took two suitcases in which the loot was doubtlessly carried. Mr. Frederick informed Inspector H. Storey of District No. 8 O.P.P., he suspected two youths, who were on parole from the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, but who disappeared from the Oak Hill area earlier in the week.

POLICE INVESTIGATE PETTY THIEVING

Petty thieving was investigated by police in Belleville and environs yesterday. John McCullough, 73 Station Street, told police he grazes his team of horses on the old fair ground site. Some time recently a bag of grain and a hay fork, that had been left at the grazing grounds by Mr. McCullough, disappeared.

Borden Forsyth, Corbyville, informed Provincial Police yesterday that a complete wheel, tire, tube and rim had been stolen from his parked motor car at home. The tire was of the retread type, Mr. McCullough stated.

FRONT ST. PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

A Front Street real estate transaction of some importance was closed recently when the building occupied by the Reddick Bakery at the intersection of Victoria Avenue was purchased by Mr. George Poulos and James Annis, proprietors of National Billiards. The building which changed hands was formerly owned by the National System of Baking and is occupied on the upper floors by Wray's Home Furnishing, which uses the space as a storeroom.

In a second business deal completed this week, the Ward Grocery Store, business and dwelling on Bridge Street West, was sold to Mr. R. J. Goodfellow, the new owner to take over the business the 1st of October. Belleville Realty Company acted as realtors in the last mentioned transaction.

Price of Eggs Shows Decline On Local Market

Claimed to be the result of shipments of British Columbia eggs into Montreal and also the appearance of pullet eggs on the market, the price of eggs took a drop on the Belleville market Saturday morning with vendors quoting 43 cents per dozen instead of the 45 asked for the past few weeks. Mediums and pullets were quoted at slightly lower prices.

The offering of fowl was not large with prices ranging from 35 to 37 cents per pound with individual birds selling up to $1.75 and $2 for best quality.

McIntosh apples were freely displayed on the outside market with No. 1 grade being quoted at $2.75 per hamper. Windfalls sold at 35 cents the 6-qt. basket, with a few Talman Sweets bringing 45 and 50 cents the basket. St. Lawrence apples sold at from 35 to 40 cents the basket with cooking apples fetching up to $2 the bushel. Flemish Beauty pears were 90 cents the basket, grapes 50 to 65 cents, prune plums $1, frost plums 90 cents and Damsons 90 cents the basket.

Potatoes held steady at $2 the bag or $1.75 the bushel, tomatoes were 35 cents the basket, carrots and beets 50 cents the pk. and onions 75 cents the pk. Cauliflower sold up to 40 cents and cabbage 10 cents. Gherkins brought 85 cents the small basket, and corn 25 cents the dozen ears.

Fine New Store Nears Completion On N. Front St.

An architectural example of the modernistic trend in corner structures, the combined store-apartment building owned by Mr. R. G. Coulter, Evans and North Front Streets, now nearing completion, enhances this city's reputation for up-to-date business housings.

Designed entirely by the owner, the building contains a large airy store space and a modern seven-room apartment ("one hundred have been after it"). Built entirely of brick, completely insulated the new shop will have a white stucco front about the semi-circular entrance. A useful addition is a cement ramp installed for the accommodation of housewife shoppers who bring baby-carriages with them.

The interior of the shop gleams in a dazzling white. There is plenty of space and display stands are so located as to give shoppers a minimum of effort in their selections. The shop uses the groceteria system.

A new departure in store fronts is the modern windows. These are built from the floor to the ceiling, and a minimum of display is used in order to give a full view of the interior from the outside.

Storerooms are located in the basement from where an elevator brings fresh stocks to the store level. Modern refrigerators are on the main floor where fresh meats are available. Invisible radiators provide steam heat.

Mr. Coulter has been in business here for the past seven years. Expansion of trade demanded more facilities and room. The result is the brand new building, now open for business and which will be completed in the near future.

Across the street, Mr. Coulter has erected a fine new brick home. Formerly a swampy marsh, a property adjoining has been converted into a garden, the produce of which gets an outlet through the store. He stocks fresh and cured meats, groceries, fresh fruits and vegetables and hardware.

The Coulter family solve the "help" problem for the "boss" while two other full-time clerks and two occasional helpers complete the staff.

Will Organize Cadet Training At Collegiate

Following the recent announcement by the Department of Education that cadet training in secondary schools would be compulsory in the future, considerable concern has been registered in the homes of Belleville students attending the Belleville Collegiate with the result a special meeting of the Board of Education was held Friday evening. It was unanimously decided that a cadet corps, to be associated with the cadet branch of the Canadian army, would be organized and conducted in the local secondary school.

Train in School Hours.

The members of the Board made it quite clear that training for the Collegiate cadet corps would in no way conflict with the out-of-school hours of the students. Of late parents have been somewhat perturbed regarding the possibility that such a program might add to the already overcrowded evening program when it was previously suggested two evenings a week be devoted to cadet training in order to comply with the Department regulations. The members of the Board had received numerous protests suggesting the evening training unnecessary, as it would tend to interfere with other evening commitments, paramountly the study periods of students taking extended courses. The Board announced that in the addition of the cadet training scheme there would be no evening training periods, as all training would be conducted during the school hour periods.

Associated With Army.

At the special meeting the Board of Education adopted the following resolutions:

That a cadet corps be formed in the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and that permission be sought from the Minister of Education . . .

1. To associate the said corps with the cadet branch of the Canadian army.

2. To give all instruction and training for the cadet corps within the regular hours of school instruction.

Secretary-Administrator L. A. Kells read a recent circular from the Department pertaining to the program, which was as follows:

"The course in physical and health education, and cadet training will replace the former course in defence training, health and physical education. It is an obligatory subject in all grades of secondary schools. With the approval of the Minister, the course may be modified, depending upon local conditions.

"In schools which are organized with more than forty instructional periods a week, one period a day in this subject will be considered as meeting the required time allotment."

Increase Liquor Ration Monday

The Ontario Liquor Control Board will announce Monday in the form of paid advertisements the doubling of the monthly liquor ration, from 13 ounces to 26 ounces says today's Globe and Mail. The boost will go into effect the same day and will continue until at least the beginning of 1945. By that time, it is reported, there is a definite view that the King government will be ready to remove the schackles on alcohol for beverage consumption.

An increase in the Ontario quota was rumored at frequent intervals in recent weeks. Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell and Liquor Board Chairman Victor Goggin went into conference on the liquor reserves situation and came up with the decision to boost the individual quota—the first upward move since the Dominion restrictions went into effect.

The Dominion Government is said to be reviewing the entire situation, keeping in the forefront the probability of a reasonably early termination of the war with Germany. Warehouse stocks of liquor are said to be about the same as for the past three years.

In making the 26-ounce ration effective for October, the Liquor Board is bettering by one month the predictions as to when the increase would become operative. Stocks have accumulated to a volume which it is thought will withstand the heavy demands over Christmas and New Year.

Pays $600 Fine For Possession Of Illegal Liquor

Cornwall, Ont., Sept. 30—(CP)—Ben Ugar of Toronto yesterday was fined $600 and costs and his car and a cargo of liquor it contained were confiscated when he pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession off liquor. The court heard evidence that when Ugar's car was searched Sept. 3 it contained more than 300 bottles bearing Quebec liquor commission stamps. In commenting on the case, Magistrate P.C. Bergron said that "bootlegging is direct result of stringent rationing imposed by government authorities."

GERMANS

southwest of Prum, eight miles inside the German border midway between Aachen and Trier, but knocked out eight strongpoints in a single attack and were forging ahead.

Huns Pour in Infantry.

The Germans were pouring infantry into Holland while pulling armor back for lunges against hoped-for weak spots in the Allied front in tactics reminiscent of Normandy. But the enemy command apparently had abandoned hope of driving the Allies out of The Netherlands, a frontline dispatch said.

Wrecking of the approaches to the Arnhem bridge was one move in the effort to halt the Allied drive in Holland.

This action at the northern end of the 50-mile-long Allied salient in The Netherlands came as Nazi propagandist boasted that the German army with the aid of civilian trench diggers had created a stable front to hold the big Allied push which they said Gen. Eisenhower now is preparing.

Striving to drive the British 2nd Army back from the Neder Rhine the Germans slipped across the river by night but could not maintain their hold in the face of the British attack. The Arnhem bridge is the one which the famed British "Red Devil" Division fought more than a week to hold before it evacuated the northern bank of the river.

11 Miles From Siegfried Line.

Along the Maas Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's troops are facing east toward Germany and are within 11 miles of the Siegfried Line terminal of Kleve. They are in position to drive across the river toward the Reich's industrial Ruhr valley.

The Germans in that sector could be seen digging in across the Maas with their backs to the border of their homeland.

A front dispatch said the Germans—taking advantage of a lull while American forces built up supplies—have been plugging the Siegfried Line gaps with low-grade, hodgepodge troops and refitting the better Nazi units in the rear for the battle of the Rhine.

In a Berlin broadcast, Guenther Weber, correspondent for the German News Agency Transocean, said the Allies had "at least 60 infantry and four to five airborne divisions" on the western front, which were being regrouped "for future attacks" from new bases.

DREW

The "Sifton Press" in Western Canada had said he had adopted a position of "uncompromising isolation—Ontario versus the rest of the country." But he had said that if at any time Ontario was more fortunate than other members of the Canadian "team" it would be glad to help them to the limit of its strength.

"We all know the enormous political debt to the Liberal party which the Siftons inherited, but even with that heavy obligation there surely should be some limit to their malicious efforts to create friction between different parts of the country by statements of this kind which have not behind them even the slightest color of truth," said Mr. Drew.

"We Canadians have every reason to be proud of the independence, the courage, and the integrity of our press. For that very reason the unscrupulous course followed by the Sifton Press is all the more conspicuous. It is all the more reprehensible when along with their constant misrepresentations they repeatedly profess their belief in national unity."

Mr. Drew said it had been suggested that his government was preparing for a "snap" election but it had no such thought. The government would continue as long as it had the support of a majority in the legislature.

Reason Hypocritical.

The Ontario Premier said a "hypocritical" reason had been given by Prime Minister Mackenzie King for failing to hold a Dominion-Provincial conference earlier this year. The Prime Minister had said such a conference would not be likely to succeed because Mr. Drew had declared his one political ambition outside Ontario was to do everything he could to see that the present Federal Liberal administration was replaced by one headed by John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Drew said Mr. King had known he had supported Mr. Bracken. It would be "a happy day for Canada" when it saw the last of Mr. King as Prime Minister.

Mr. Drew, speaking of his trip overseas, said a military civil affairs organization had been established to serve in France after liberation as it was expected it would not be possible to have a civil government restored at once. But it was found the French quickly set up their own local civil governments without confusion.

The Allied Civil Affairs Branch had no major task in France, he said. The French people had become more conscious than they had for many years that every person who loved his country must take an active part in the life of that country.

Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell said he hoped there would be a Progressive Conservative government in Ottawa after the next election which would bring unity between the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal governments.

Highways Minister George Doucett said eastern Ontario would receive more consideration on road-building than it had in the past.

Fine Weather Attracts Large Attendance to Tweed Fair; Many Exhibits, Good Racing

Group of Entertainers, Fiddler Contest and Sawyer Contest Much Enjoyed

GOOD BABY SHOW

Sullen rain-laden clouds that threatened to relegate the 1944 edition of the Tweed Fair to the limbo of the things that-were-to-be disappeared magically with Friday's dawning and a brilliant September sun brought out a large enthusiastic crowd, that enjoyed to the full the attractions provided by the Agricultural Society directorate.

The heavy rain, that greeted first-day patrons on Thursday and which poured down in a steady deluge practically all day left little detrimental effect on the grounds. The track, and other parts of the grounds absorbed plenty of the moisture and the warm sunshine of Friday did the rest. Trotting horse owners and judges found little to complain about regarding the speedway, while other events staged on the grass were run off with little opposition from "wet grounds."

Sun Came to Rescue.

Traditional veterans of "wet-weather" fairs, directors stuck doggedly to their guns, and refused to throw in the towel to Ol' Jupe Pluvius. In figurative admiration of their fortitude, Old Sol came to their rescue, and the fair "went on" on Friday with all programmed events present, with the exception of a Belleville girls' softball squad, which failed to put in an appearance.

It was a typical Hastings County fair and typical Hastings County crowd. There was band music played by the trumpet and drum aggregation of the Tweed High School, smartly garbed in army cadet uniforms; plenty of equine and bovine aristocrats for live stock enthusiasts to rave about, a stage show and "in front of the grandstand performance" that caused that ancient structure to rock with its annual contribution of feet-tapping and applause.

The "class of 1964" smiled at judges from handsome pictures in a photograph baby show. A silver haired cowboy did western stunts with lariat and other home-on-the-range paraphernalia; sturdy heavy draught horses strained against a heavy load in a drawing contest; hackneys pranced in review, little ponies caught the childrens' eyes and a Midway did a lucrative business in novelties, games, a merry-go-round and plenty of refreshment booths.

Entertainers Applauded.

On a raised dais near the grandstand, a clever troupe of child entertainers from Peterborough drew unstinted applause with colorful presentations of song and dance. Singly, in duos and trios, the prettily costumed children gave tuneful evidence of their versatility.

Secretary Sam Curry master-of-ceremonies had charge of the stage show and personally conducted the old-time fiddler; log-sawing and nail-driving contests.

While the number of live stock exhibits was not as large as that of former years some fine specimens of various breeds were shown. The horse entries were large and as usual reflected the fine breeding and care of animals for which Hastings County farmers are famous.

In the Display Building, some outstanding examples of ladies work and school exhibits were on display. Home-made bread, pastries, preserves, handicraft were the cynosure of thousands of eyes and were a distinct credit to the women of Tweed and its district. Grains, fruits and roots were attractively displayed while of more than passing interest was the exhibit of the Dominion Entomological Labratory, Tweed branch.

Mixed Game Played.

A local softball squad, the Tweed Oilers, waited in vain for a Belleville team to put in an appearance and the smartly garbed village girls compromised by playing a mixed game with members of a male squad.

Novel winners in the baby show were the pretty twin daughters, Joan and Judy, of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Cronin, of Sulphide. In 2nd place came Beverley Ann Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Jones of Tweed, while the mere minute male winner, chubby young James Edgar Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Reid, Tweed, took third place. Eighteen entries vied for honors.

Toe-tickling rhythms that crinolined ladies danced to in the good old days were aired in the old-time fiddling contest. Silver-haired fiddlers competed with youth in the "Haste to the Wedding" series with Claire Young, Sulphide, bowing his way to victory. In second place came Bob Pounder of Sulphide while Bob Bronson, Tweed, had to be content with third money.

Tweed Team Wins

Husky young sawyers ripped steel saw teeth through a stubborn log with a Tweed team, Bernard Abrams, and D. Courneyea winning. Second came Elmer McTaggart and Elmer Walker, Thomasburg, and 3rd Mel. Lalonde and V. Thibeault, also of Thomasburg.

Ray Phillips, Thomasburg, drove five sturdy nails in a log in 10 seconds to annex that contest, with James Neil and L. Kennedy finishing second and third respectively.

The trials of speed, with the veteran starter George Tice of Belleville in charge, provided lots of excitement for lovers of this sport. The heats were closely contested and some fine racing was seen. Running races afforded a change of fare for track enthusiasts. The fair closed with a dance at night.

NIGHTMARE

The war is over and we're home,
The banners wave, the children sing;
The soldier dressed in civvy clothes
Wears a medal from the King.

Dinner's over and dishes done,
The paper's read by an only son;
Daughter is busy, wife is out,
Poor soldier sits at home in doubt.

One A.M. and all is still,
There's peace and quietness until
The wife returns, and brings a friend.
Will she never go home? Will talk never end?

The month is over and bills are here;
New hat, new shoes, a case of beer,
The income tax returns to do,
The rent and light are also due.

A bugle sounds, the dream is o'er.
Civilian life's an awful bore.
—Maple Leaf.

Reorganization of reserve artillery regiments of the district brings the 43rd and 44th Field Regiments under the administrative and training jurisdiction of the 33rd Regiment of Ottawa. Headquarters of the 44th, which includes the 34th and 47th Field Batteries of Belleville and Napanee respectively, is dormant for the duration of the war, but will not lose its identity. Regimental records will be kept at Napanee. This was learned at a meeting of artillery officers of various regiments and headquarters held at Napanee on Tuesday last. Attending from this city were Captains S. A. Sword and G. H. Carver and Lieuts. H. J. Andrews, H. N. Kellar and R. A. Liddle.

Lieut.-Col. H. R. D. Harris, commanding officer of the 33rd Field Regiment, to which the 34th Field Battery is now attached for A and T, assured the local officers that all within his power is being done to secure the Church Street Armoury, their former home, for members of the unit. Col. Harris, with Major Herbert Short, who has been appointed supervisor of artillery training for the batteries attached to his regiment, made a personal inspection of the quarters of the 34th Battery here on Tuesday morning. "Totally inadequate" was his expressed opinion, at the meeting of officers which included Lieut. Col. J. Hogan brigade major, and Captain J. Joslyn, staff captain of the 33rd Brigade Group, Kingston.

Meanwhile the Armouries is undergoing a face-lifting transformation inside and out. Weather-worn cement blocks that housed the supports of the railings bordering the lawn have been replaced under the competent supervision of Sergeant Bill Atkinson of the "Hengineers", and his staff. A brand new set of railings wil be placed next week. A sturdy wire fence encloses the parking lot on the Church Street side. Upstairs the Officers Mess Committee has been doing a fall-cleaning job. Rugs and window drapes have been taken to the cleaners (any personal reference to the round-table conference in the corner is purely coincidental) and the Mess being generally cleaned up.

Private G. G. Aylesworth, of this city, went ashore with the invasion troops on D-Day, and twenty-four hours later he was a casualty. Aylesworth arrived home this week landing in an eastern Canadian port from the hospital ship Aba. He was one of the first to land in Normandy and received his wounds near Bayeaux. On D-Day plus one, shrapnel from a bomb hit him in both legs, arms and the right eye.

"I was knocked about for ten minutes and when I came to my eye was resting on by cheek bone. I never thought I was going to get back to Canada alive, but words can't express my feeling now that I a mback in Canada and home." The eye was restored to place and the eyesight saved by Army Medical Corps specialists.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO
Office of The Secretary

620 University Avenue, Toronto, Ont
September 26th., 1944

BELLEVILLE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION,
277 Front Street,
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO.

Dear Sirs:

The Commission has been requested by the Power Controller for the Dominion of Canada to advise you that all restrictions in connection with the use of electric power and energy provided for in Power Controller Order P.C. 5 and Amendments thereto, and all other restrictive orders issued for the purpose of saving power for war purposes, are to be discontinued commencing October 1st., 1944.

Consumers of electric energy should be given to understand that while the available supply of power may be sufficient for present needs, there is still a shortage of material and labor which may continue for some time. Certain types of electrical appliances and equipment may not be available and the shortage of labor may delay, in some instances the supplying of electric service for new uses or in returning to service equipment discontinued because of the regulations of the Power Controller.

Yours very truly,
OSBORNE MITCHELL,
Secretary.

The above letter is the only official notice that the Belleville Commission has received that the power restrictions were to be lifted.

The Belleville Commission appreciates the co-operation it has received from the consumers in carrying out the orders of the Power Controller during the past two years.

Although the notice is short, the endeavour will be to take care of the increased load.

Should the shortage of labor and equipment prevent the Commission from taking care of your requirements as promptly as you desire, the Commission would thank you for your further co-operation.

Since the restrictions came into effect, the station capacity has been increased by 750 kilowatts and today is fully loaded at the peak.

NOTICE TO MERCHANTS

MR. MERCHANT,—

Due to the above stated facts the Belleville Commission would request your co-operation that until further notice you do not turn on your window lights and display signs at the same time as the rest of your store lighting except on Saturdays after 7 p.m. If it is found that the additional load can be supplied without interrupting the service you will be advised.

Mr. Churchill's Tribute

Experienced in the art of war as well as in the art of Government, Prime Minister Churchill in this week's review of the progress of the war stressed among many other points the brilliant service of the democratic nations in the valor of the soldiery of United States, Canada and the other Dominions, Britain and Russia. He has the proof in many actions of the fine quality of the peace-loving peoples in their ability to guard themselves and the rights of free nations everywhere.

"We must feel astounded at the extraordinary speed with which the Allied armies have advanced," he said. "I must pay tribute to the United States armies not only in their valiant and ruthless battleworthy qualities but also in the skill of their commanders and the excellence of their supply arrangements . . . The American achievement is simply amazing. These soldiers like our own from Great Britain—who have been even longer under arms—are capable of being placed immediately on landing in the battleline and have proved themselves more than a match for the so-called veteran troops of Germany, who though fighting desperately, are showing themselves decidedly the worse for wear.

"When I think of the measureless output of ships and munitions and supplies of all kinds with which the United States had equipped herself and has sustained all fighting Allies in generous measure and of the mighty war she is conducting with the troops of our Australian and New Zealand Dominions over the spaces of the Pacific Ocean, this House may, indeed, salute our sister nation as being at the highest pinnacle of her power and fame."

Mr. Churchill in two places in his speech referred to the speed of movement of the Allies and their ability in the military art:

"The vast and brilliant encircling movements of the American armies will ever be a model of the military art and an example of the propriety of running risks, not only in the fighting, because most of the armies are ready to do it, but even more on the 'Q' side or, as the Americans put it, the logistic side."

Again Mr. Churchill says: "It was with great pleasure we all saw British and Canadian armies who had so long fought against heavy resistance by the enemy along the hinge of Allied movements, show themselves also capable of lightning advances which certainly have not been surpassed anywhere."

Of the heroism of the British in the Arnhem air landing operation he remarked:

"By the largest airborne operation ever yet conceived or executed further all-important forward bound in the north has been achieved. Here I must pay tribute which the House will consider due, to the superb feat or arms performed by our 1st Airborne Division."

He did not neglect to pay honor to the never-to-be-forgotten service which the people and soldiery of Russia have given in this war:

"The terms in which Marshal Stalin recently, in conversation, has referred to our campaigns in the West have been of such a generous and admiring character that I felt, in my turn, bound to point out that Russia is holding and beating far larger hostile forces than those which face the Allies in the West, and has through long years, at enormous losses, borne the brunt of the struggle on land."

The world would not want one more fitted than Mr. Churchill to pass an opinion on these superlative qualities of the soldiers of the peace-loving nations as compared with those of the German soldiers, the product of militarism and tyranny, and would seek no evidence more convincing than what he says is true.

The love of liberty and the life of freedom to which they are accustomed are reflected in the lives of the people of the peace-loving nations. When, trials come they are not wanting in the stuff of which heroes are made. Their national ideals are high and are an inspiration under which they willingly undergo hardship and take on the duties of the defence of liberty and democracy. Their minds are alert for they are not regulated and forced into a sinister mold like that of the German Nazis and militarists. Freedom is in everything they do and achieve. The freemen possess initiative and driving power and the sense of justice.

Chipmunk

(New York Times)

The countryside would lack part of its interest and activity without the busy chipmunk. Tamias is a cosmopolitan sort; he's perfectly at home in the farm dooryard or along the edges of the woodland. He delights in scampering along the uneven tops of weather-grayed stone walls and the tops of rail of hemstitched-pattern split fences. He bustles about with nervous activity throughout the season; but when the frost-touched days of fall arrive he's a veritable dynamo of action as he sprints hither and yon for the food he's caching against the time of snow and ice.

Tamias is a social chap. When Shep, the farm collie isn't around, he enjoys the farmstead. A favorite spot is the woodpile in the backyard. It offers security if Shep embarks on one of his frantic barking blitzkriegs, though Shep long ago decided he'd leave Tamias alone except for a bit of needed exercise. Or if a Cooper's hawk decides to dive-bomb, the woodpile, corn crib or beneath the woodshed are good foxholes for a few minutes' respite in the search for food.

A chipmunk can talk back. His animated, rapid-fire "chuch-chuck-chuck" reveals his feelings. To Shep or other annoyers he speaks with intense emotion. His explosive chatter reveals anger for interrupting a squirrel's work, and a tinge of contempt for those who think they can add him to their diet. But if the day has gone well, if the weather be good and prospects for winter food are average or better, Tamias chatters pleasantly and gossipingly as a man works about the farmyard.

In late autumn, when the Frost King sends his legions to lock the earth, the chipmunk goes into his burrow for semi-hibernation. On mild, sunny days of midwinter he may come out for an observation. Most of the time he sleeps. Occasionally he has a meal from the store of nuts and seeds in his bulky, leafy nest at the end of his burrow. On a mellow March day, when one can almost feel a south breeze unlocking the land, Tamias suddenly appears. The countryman knows winter's reign is ended.

The Sequence?

(Baltimore Sun)

It would be absurd to project the events of the coming months in accordance with the timetable of 1918. Yet, if the element of time is left out, the sequence is worth keeping in mind: (1) the shaken confidence of the military command; (2) the shaken confidence on the home front; (3) the replacement of a "bad" government by a "good" German government; (4) the decision of the military command (Ludendorff) to give up as a bad job; (5) domestic chaos; (6) the Armistice. One is justified in assuming that the first step in that sequence has taken place again. Beyond that, no assumptions are yet warranted.

Ministerial Salaries

(W. S. Clark in Windsor Star)

In 1942 the average salary for ministers of the United Church of Canada was $1,673. Of the 2,190 pastors, 773 received less than $1,400, of whom 231 got $1,100 or less.

Even on their smallest salaries, pastors of all congregations are expected to attain certain degrees of living. Also, nearly all clergymen want to make sure their boys and girls have the advantage of a good education. It makes it rather hard for some of the ministers and their families to make ends meet, even counting in the many gifts that find their way to the pastors and their families.

The United Church pastors are not the only clergymen who make a little money go a long way. With the exception of a few wealthy congregations, ministerial salaries have never been noted for their magnitude.

PERMANENCE

Perpetual flowers are harsh as brass,
  Nor do they mind the frost.
They dance with all the winds that pass,
  Since charm cannot be lost.
Yet, little thought to them is paid,
More beautiful are flowers that fade.

Time was—oh, many years ago!—
  The mother kept a few.
She thought it would be nice to know
  Their beauty, winter through,
But long before the spring returned
The very sight of them she spurned.

And when of her I questioned why,
  Her answer thus she made:
"We seldom love what cannot die
  Or time can never fade.
We only love from day to day
What, soon, or late, must pass away."

Whitehall Notebook

London, Sept. 28. (CP) — The London Daily Sketch, urging speedy formulation of a scheme for Imperial emigration, said in an editorial that if Empire bonds, "strengthened out of all knowledge" in wartime, are maintained after the war, the Commonwealth, "in political and economic power and influence, will not have to yield priority to any other political entity in the world".

The newspaper's comment followed a press-conference statement by Premier Drew of Ontario, that if freedom of trade is restored throughout the world, Ontario could easily absorb 1,000,000 people within five to ten years after the war.

"This is "more than credible", said the Sketch, and "with few exceptions is true of every constituent of the Empire, which, in relations to its size, is a grossly underpopulated as the Motherland is overpopulated".

"The riches are there waiting to be developed", the editorial added. "Who is going to develop them? The first place, of course, will be given to the Nationals of the various Imperial countries. But after them the Empire will want to have British immigrants.

"A scheme for Imperial emigration cannot be formulated in a week or a month, however. It will take a great deal of working out, and the sooner this process gets under way the better".

PLANS TO OCCUPY GERMANY 'NEARLY COMPLETED'-EDEN

"Problem of Germany Will be Continuing Problem" After War, Says Foreign Secretary

London, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons yesterday that "nearly completed" arrangements for occupying Germany were taking into account reports that Heinrich Himmler was training fanatical young Nazis for post-occupation resistance.

"What we mean by unconditional surrender," the Foreign Secretary declared, "is that we are not prepared to make a negotiated peace with Germany, and the reasons are based on the experience of history and on the interpretation which Germany planned on the fourteen points after the last war.

"We cannot take these risks again. We have information that the German general staff, recognizing the inevitability of defeat, are already thinking in terms of the next war."

Mr. Eden said the "overriding importance" of the Russo-Polish problem was that there could be no guarantee of a lasting peace unless the three big powers work together in enduring harmony.

"Let no one think," he said, "that with the defeat of Germany the issue is at an end. The problem of Germany will be a continuing problem. The principal danger to Europe after the defeat of Germany will be the re-emergency of a militant Germany and that will be a continuing danger."

Call for Meeting With Stalin Creates Interest

Moscow, Sept. 29. (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill's call for a second meeting with Marshal Stalin and President Roosevelt caused much interest here today.

The opinion was expressed that great benefits would result from a sequel to the Teheran Conference.

Russia say a second meeting might accomplish decisions on how to administer the last blows to Hitler; co-ordination of the three high commands; groundwork for the peace; an exchange of ideas on how the enemy is to be dealt with after the war and how he is to be punished, where, and by whom; and what is going to be done to Germany.

There is no intimation here as to when and where such a meeting would take place.

May Meet at Turin.

London, Sept. 29. (CP-Reuter)—The meeting between Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin is planned to take place sometime in December and may be at Turin, Wilson Broadbent, Daily Mail diplomatic correspondent, said today.

Alternative places are, however, under consideration, though final arrangements cannot be made until after the presidential election, he said.

Both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt had hoped to have a meeting with Marshal Stalin this month, the writer said, and two places other than Quebec were proposed to the Russian leader.

PRETTY INTOXICATED

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 29 (AP) —A 15-year-old South end girl told a juvenile court yesterday she had spent the night of July 22 in a hotel room with Jackie Cooper, former movie star and four others while "pretty intoxicated." Cooper is charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency.

PROSPECAS OF STRIKE

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario said yesterday prospects of a strike in packing houses throughout Canada are aggravating a labor shortage in the abbatoirs that will cost Ontario farmers $250,000 and possible twice that much, if packing plants are unable to handle their cattle.

GESTAPO ARRESTS LEADER

New York, Sept. 30 (CP)—The BC, quoting Stockholm reports said yesterday the eGrman Gestapo had arrested Count Gottfried Von Bismarch-Schonhausen, former Nazi party leaders and grandson of the one-time 'iron chancellor,' Prince Otto Von Bismarck, accusing him of participating in the July 20 plot against Hitler.

SCURVY AND SEVEN-YEAR ITCH

While it is all right to conceal from your neighbors or casual acquaintances the fact that you have a case of tuberculosis, or cancer, or syphilis, or scabies (the itch) or scurvy at your house, it is stupid to conceal the fact from your doctor. Whatever the layman may think about it, in the doctor's mind no stigma attaches to any of these conditions in the home or in the family.

Mild scurvy is a rare complaint but a common ailment among all classes of people in America today. Bottle babies who do not receive a daily ration of orange juice, factory canned tomato juice, or any fresh fruit juice or fresh vegetable juice; people who "diet" themselves without competent medical advice and persons with peptic ulcer who follow a restricted diet without due consideration for the nutritional requirements of the body; inmates of institutions where the meals are not planned by a qualified nutritionist; and individuals who for any reason cannot or do not eat fresh fruits or greens but subsist mainly or entirely on canned, preserved, refined foods—groceries, are most likely to develop manifestations of scurvy whether they or their doctors, if any, recognize the nature of the trouble or not.

Fresh raw milk, if the cow or goat is on pasture or gets plenty of fresh green fodder, may contain enough vitamin C (ascorbic acid) to prevent scurvy in infants. But pasteurized milk does not, and so it is necessary to give every infant or young child fed mainly with pasteurized milk some fresh fruit juice such as orange juice or any other fresh fruit juice that is available, or some tomato juice from fresh tomotaes or from factory canned tomatoes, with one feeding every day, to insure against development of scurvy.

Pure vitamin C (ascorbic acid, formerly called cevitamic acid) is available in soluble tablets for daily use in case fresh fruits or greens or fresh vegetables are unavailable for considerable periods.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Girl Who Grew Old Young

That 27-year-old girl who lost all her teeth—your articles about that were highly instructive—I dare say a good many readers will profit enormously from those lessons. And I hope physicians and dentists will, too.

(D.D.S.)

Answer—Thank you, Doctor. Most of your colleagues who commented on the talks resented my attitude and teaching. So far, characteristically enough, I have received no comment at all from a medical man. Dignified silence. That's our traditional way.

Courage Bobs Up

Several readers inquired about the little magazine "Courage" from which I quoted some suggestions concerning the right attitude toward the person who has lost a limb. Here it is — it bobbed up from my always baffling files again today. Courage (March, '44) official magazine of the Fraternity of the Wooden Leg, published monthly, 3245 Audubon Ave., East St. Louis. I hope you will make a not of this —once I file a thing like that it is practically impossible ever to find it again, except by chance.

No More Rat Poison

I love your writing style—it never leaves a reader feeling worried or frightened, as so many "health" articles in newspapers and magazines do. I appreciate, too, the recipe How to Make Coffee and Win Friends in the red book. My husband says at last I've given up brewing "rat poison!"

(G.D.)

Answer—Thank you, Ma'am. What I'm curious to learn is whether he ever called it that when you were serving it, and if so, how long was he in hospital? Wives who have any conscientious scruples about it may learn something to their home life's advantage by sending me twenty-five cents (not glued, taped, pasted, sewed up, sealed with gum, pins, tacks, staples), and a stamped self addressed envelope for the red book "What to Eat and Why." It tells a lot of secrets about how to feed the brute and how to keep him from getting off his feed.

Wounded Receive Excellent Treatment Says Premier Drew

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP)—Canadian servicemen overseas "receive the very best treatment available to any fighting force in the whole world," Premier Drew of Ontario said last night in a broadcast over a provincial network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Reviewing his recent trip overseas, Mr. Drew told of leaving Toronto Aug. 26 and visiting R.C.A.F. men in Labrador, Greenland and Iceland before arriving in London.

While in the British capital he officiated at the opening of Ontario House, visiting hospitals for Canadians wounded in action and later went to France where he saw Canadians in action.

"My primary purpose in going to Britain," he said, "was to establish a more effective arrangement for assuring the young men and women from Ontario every advantage of the rehabilitation, and if necessary hospitalization, which is available."

He said the government discovered that the service men and women returning to their homes here had no idea of the rehabilitation opportunities open to them and "it became absolutely necessary to make our own arrangements in London."

"Since I have returned, we have set up two new instructional centres" and also have established special classes for those desiring to take univerity courses but who need further instruction to give them the necessary matriculation standard.

Ontario, he said, has the most advanced rehabilitation organization in Canada.

FREE MIHAILOVIC'S SON

New York, Sept. 27 — The Free Yugoslav radio said today that the son of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, who was reported captured in Valjevo last week by the forces of Marshal Tito, had been set free because an investigation had established that he was "not a war criminal."

The broadcast was reported by the United States Federal Communications Commission.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

Why is a football field called a gridiron?

A gridiron is a grated utensil on which food is broiled over a fire. Hence, figuratively, any network, as of pipes, railway tracks, etc., is called a gridiron.

The term was applied to a football field because it is rectangular in shape and is traversed every five yards by white lines, which produce a gridiron effect.

A Gridiron dinner is not a dinner cooked on a gridiron. Putting a person on the gridiron is to place him in an uncomfortable position; that is, broiling him over a fire as it were. The Gridiron Club, composed of a restricted number of Washington newspaper correspondents, adopted that name because at its dinners it caricatures and satirizes prominent public persons who are present.

"Grid" is merely a shortened form of "gridiron," which etymologically has nothing to do with "iron," being a corruption of "gredire," a variation of "gredil," the source of "griddle."

How many bees are there in a hive?

Authorities differ widely on the number of honeybees comprising a hive or colony. It has been estimated that a swarm of bees when it leaves the "mother hive" constitutes from 1,000 to 6,000 bees.

A hive or colony of bees has its maximum population during the time of storing surplus honey. Then a good colony, roughly estimated, may contain as many as 50,000 workers, one queen and a few hundred drones, although the average hive contains fewer than that number. A honeybee weighs a little less than one-three-hundredth of an ounce, there being about 5,000 in a pound. Accordingly a swarm of 50,000 bees would weigh about ten pounds.

The amazing thing is that several pounds of honeybees in a swarm can support themselves on the limb of a tree when only a comparatively few of them are touching the limb at any one time.

During the fall and early winter the colony decreases in number. When brood-rearing begins in the spring the colony has become so reduced in population that 10,000 workers comprise a good colony. There are no drones in the colony at this season, for they are all driven out at the end of the summer honeyflow.

Does moonlight ever produce rainbows?

A rainbow by moonlight is an unusual but not a rare phenomenon. Such a rainbow is called a "moon bow." The lunar rainbow is well known to scientists, although it is not often observed, chiefly because of the faintness of the light. Only under exceptional conditions can the colors of the bow be seen. Moon bows are most likely to occur after showers on nights when the moon is bright but not too high in the heavens. Similar lunar bows are periodically visible in the spray of certain waterfalls, such as the Cumberland Falls about 16 miles from Corbin, Kentucky.

Capital Closeups

(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 30—(CP)—There's a reason for Canadians being bigger and better.

From a flow of statistics on food consumption the following have been fished:

In 1944 Canadians will consume 17 per cent more fluid milk than in pre-war days and their cheese consumption will be up 30 per cent.

The civilian use of all meats will be up 32 per cent and eggs 27 per cent. Consumption of fresh tomatoes will be up about 32 per cent, and canned 51 per cent, while canned vegetables used will be up 18 per cent, with dry beans gaining about 67 per cent.

Per capital consumption of beef grew from 56 pounds in 1935 to 72.5 in 1944.

Down to the Sea: Mariners who come to Ottawa about their business of war transport look forward to the day when they can tell the story of Canada's civilian ships that put on grey paint and a deck gun and went to war in 1940 and 1941.

They came from the high seas, from the coasts and from the lakes. They went across the Atlantic in long array—with the brass name plates showing them to be empresses, princes, princesses, duchesses or ladies hidden under the dull paint. Lake ships that had carried iron ore and grain, veterans which had crept through the Panama and into the north, walkers, sealers, fishing boats and pleasure craft went along, too.

They have fought submarines, carried invasion forces against German Europe and Sicily, and sailed under the protection of long battleships.

Some will never come back for they lie broken, fathoms deep, beneath the long sea lanes.

Whiskers: Canadian sailors may wear whiskers—at their own risk. Recently, officers were told to discourage the growing of beards and moustaches, but an amplifying order was issued the other day. It said that officers and men might wear beards and moustaches if they so desired, but they must be informed, when they request this privilege, that experience in recent sinkings had shown that oil in beards in some instances blocked the nasal passages, resulting in the death of personnel who might have otherwise been saved.

"When the permission is taken advantage of, the use of the razor is to be discontinued entirely, as moustaches are not to be worn without the beard, nor the beard without the moustaches," said the order.

Outpost Hospitals Feature Safety

Toronto, Sept. 30 — Ontario Division of Red Cross will spend $70,000 in extension of the Outpost Hospital program, C. Q. Ellis, Chairman of the O.P.H. committee has annouced. Expansion will include erection of three new hospitals, at Warton, Huntsville, Bancroft, bringing to 30, the total number of hospitals operated by the Division.

At Bancroft, the proposed site of a new 20-bed hospital has been chosen to replace the present small 7-bed hospital which until now has endeavored to meet the needs of the community. This will provide further hospital facilities for North Hastings and Haliburton Counties, at a cost of approximately $50,000.

The new hospitals will be built on one floor to obviate necessity of costly elevators. Since land is available, it is unnecessary to project the buildings upwards in multi-stories as is done in urban centres. Plans call for residential-type buildings, instead of austere, box-like types of structures. This will have a tendency to fit hospitals in appearance into their environment.

The safety factor is doubly insured, with the all-on-one-floor plan designed in three section, with radiating wings. In case of fire, patients could be moved into another wing or removed outside without use of elevators. It also obviates necessity of expensive fire-proof construction as is necessary in buildings with numbers of stories.

Nobody Wanted To Surrender— War Comedy of Misunderstanding

By DOUG HOW
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadians on the Adriatic Front, Sept. 30 —(CP Cable)—Nobody surrendered to anybody after an hour-long truce reigned over a little sector of the battle-front around the Rubicon river while three blindfolded Canadians carried the problem to the dugout battalion headquarters of a dapper German baron and three Germans passed the time of day as hostages of the Canadians.

The intricacies of this chronological snowball are best explained thus:

Unarmed Artillery Sgt.-Maj. William Gray, Guelph, Ont., walked up to a house he thought was a Canadian observation post and bumped into an unarmed German.

Gray presumed the German wanted to surrender.

Three more Germans appeared—with arms—and presumed the unarmed Gray wanted to surrender.

Gray argued in English; the Germans in German—and since the only word both understood was "kommandant," it was agreed for each to go back for an officer.

Gray found an infantry platoon under Lieut. T. T. Foreman, New Westminster, B.C., and explained his problem. Foreman called in Maj. H. F. Hoskin, also of New Westminster.

It was decided to proceed to the agreed rendezvous but en route a sniper forced them to hit the ditch. They called to the Germans through a private who knew the language to tell them to stop the sniper. The Germans explained he wasn't a member of their outfit, but they would do their best.

The sniper agreed to lay off, and joined the discussion in the ditch.

A German oberlieutenant said his company commander declined to enter into negotiations but would like to see the three Canadians. Hoskin considered this and decided to let Gray and Foreman, with an interpreter go, on the agreement they returned within an hour, or three German hostages would suffer reprisals.

Blindfolded, the three Canadians were led to the German company headquarters in a nearby house. The conversation went like this:

Foreman: "I understand you want to see me about surrendering?"

German Officer: "I understood you wanted to see me about surrendering."

Still bewildered, they agreed that Foreman proceed to battalion hearquarters. Blindfolded again, the three were marched back to dugouts where a jolly, resplendent Baron and Foreman repeated the lines.

They finally solved the puzzle and came to the conclusion nobody wanted to surrender to anybody.

When that was settled, they exchanged cigarettes and fell into a discussion of the war.

Foreman said: "I suppose you know the Allies are fighting on your soil?"

The Baron—a colonel—said he knew, and laughed uproariously. The war, he said, would finish in a few weeks with the Germans victorious. He didn't ask the Canadians their names, ranks and and units, but amiably agreed to allow them to return.

Before exchanging "good luck" farewells, the colonel took up Foreman's offer to carry a message back and scrawled a note in German.

A Pole who was with the Germans said he wanted to desert, but the Germans shot him as he crossed the fields, and explained to the Canadians they were always having trouble with Poles and Czechs like him, but there were always Germans around to discourage them.

He decided to return with the others to the German lines and the Canadians returned to theirs. Hoskin called down a fierce artillery barrage as a final salute.

P.S.: The note the Baron had scrawled was another invitation for the Canadians to present themselves at his headquarters and surrender.

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(CP Staff Writer)

Washington, Sept. 30 —(CP)— Political forecasters in Washington are getting cross-eyed trying to look so many ways at once before committing themselves.

President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent in the presidential election campaign, both have opened up barrages that invite typical, old-fashioned, peacetime campaigning.

But it is not peace time—far from it. The deplorable fact remains that at a time when so much of the world's future depends upon the attitude of the United States the country should be torn by the animosities of a presidential election campaign.

Thus we have had President Roosevelt at Quebec treating with Prime Minister Churchill on matters of the gravest import; matters which will come to a head perhaps after the Nov. 7 elections. Yet there is no certainty that after Nov. 7 Mr. Roosevelt will be in a position to speak for the United States.

Forecasters are getting cross-eyed because they have to look at the rapidly changing war picture and consider the chances of peace in Europe before the voting, and at the various international gatherings, Quebec, U.N.R.R.A. and Dumbarton Oaks, and add up what it all means to the chances of the rival candidates.

Already there have been political charges that Mr. Churchill's second coming to Quebec to meet Mr. Roosevelt was nothing but a convenient method of boosting Roosevelt stock in the campaign.

May be Repercussions: It is possible there will be repercussions on Capitol Hill here and in parliament at Ottawa over the U.N.R.R.A. extension of aid to Italian mothers and children. It was a touchy subject but when those countries which suffered most from Italian treachery and aggression voted to help the most unfortunate of the Italians, others could only applaud and follow suit. Brooke Claxton, Canada's alternate delegate, spoke for the Dominion and supported the move from pure humanitarian motives. But there were immediate rumors around the Windsor Hotel that the move would be attacked in parliament and congress.

U.N.R.R.A. Memories: Clerks collecting papers after one of the private council sittings which approved aid to Italy found amid "doodling" on a pad near Canada's seat the words—"Italy should thank God for Rome"—but it could not be certain who wrote them. . .

Season's Concert Series Opens With Fine Performance in Songs And Arias by Kurt Baum

On the basis of a single hearing, the appearance of Kurt Baum, Metropolitan Opera tenor, at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium on Friday evening, could be called "superb". The noted operatic singer, brought to the city by the Community Concert Association, gave a brilliant performance in his singing of Spanish, Italian, German, Austrian, French, Bohemian and American compositions. Loud applause greeted Kurt Baum, an enthusiastic demonstration of the public esteem towards him from Belleville's Community Concert members. This tenor truly made a perfect introduction to the concert appearances for the coming season.

Possessing a voice of excellent quality, topped by ringing, climactic tones, he delivers his numbers in full, firm, clear tones of rich character that makes his solos most significant contributions. He has baritonal texture in the lower and middle ranges, yet can easily soar to persuasively glowing top notes. He is master of a carefully equalized legato and he can sing softly as well as fortissimo. He sings with unfailing expressiveness, exceptional warmth and accuracy. His voice, of a remarkably beautiful timbre, truly belongs to the dramatic category.

Kurt Baum was highly successful with his large Belleville audience and seemed elated with its sparkling enthusiasm.

There were two compositions by Georges Bizet, "Agnus Dei", and an aria, "Flower Song", from "Carmen"; "Vittoria, mio Core" by Giacomo Carissimi; aria, "Un di all' azzurro spazio", from "Andrea Chenier", by Umberto Giordano; "Widmung", by Robert Schumann; "Ungeduld", by Franz Schubert; "Verschwiegene Liebe" by Hugo Wolf; "Heimliche Aufforderung" by Richard Strauss; aria, "Recondita Armonia", from "Tosca", by Giacomo Puccini; "There Is No Death" by Geoffrey O'Hara; "The Star" by James H. Rogers; "It Was Not Meant For Me" by Rudolf Friml; "How Fair This Spot" by Sergei Rachmaninoff; "My Son", by David W. Guion.

For encores Kurt Baum sang the aria, "E Lucevan le Stelle" from "Tosca" by Puccini; "La Danza" by Rossini; "Celeste Aida", from "Aida" by Verdi; "O Paradiso" from L'Africano by Myerbeer.

The executive of the Community Concert Association entertained following the concert at the home of Mrs. C. A. Cameron, when the members of the Association and their friends had the honor of meeting and talking with Mr. Kurt Baum himself.

Miss Brickman on behalf of the friends, then presented Mr. and Mrs. Sager with a Pyrex casserole in a silver frame and a card signed by those present.

Bay of Quinte Y.P.U. Conference Opens in City

Bay of Quinte Young People's Conference opened with sumptuous banquet served at the Y.M.C.A. followed by a sing-song led by Gladys Gerrard. The group of delegates then proceeded to the Bridge Street United Church for the balance of the evening program.

Frank Corbett presided and opened the evening session by introducing Mayor Rollins, who extended greetings to the convention on behalf of the citizens of Belleville. Rev. Dr. Semple, of Bridge Street United Church, extended a cordial welcome to the church on behalf of the congregation.

A short business period was conducted by Frank Corbett. Nominations to the legislative committee consisted of one member from each presbytery as follows: — Warren Trotter, Peterborough; Jeanne Corbett, Kingston; Keith Bradley, Lindsay; Hugh Miller, Oshawa; Kay Scott, Renfrew; Margaret Armstrong, Belleville; Kay Hibbert, Cobourg.

Following the business period Gladys Gerrard led in the singing of a few negro spirituals, concluding with the theme hymn.

Renfrew presbytery conducted a very impressive and inspiring worship service.

Rev. E. R. McLean, secretary of Religious Education Council of Ontario, was the speaker of the evening. His topic was "Tools for a Better World". He went on to say that if we are to build a better world we need some tools. Mr. Winston Churchill in one of his speeches said "Give us the tools and we will finish the job".

One tool that is needed is knowledge. We have to out-think the devil. Canada needs a lot of things but more than things we need ideas—ideas for instance how we can build a better world; how we can raise taxation without crippling industry. We need ideals and for these consult Jesus Christ.

The second tool we need is friendship and co-operation.

The third tool a sense of national responsibility.

The fourth tool is a forgiving spirit. What is going to be our attitude to our enemies after the war?

The fifth tool is a sense of call in regard to our life work. The meaning of "call"—a sense of a need and the ability to meet it. There are two questions we might ask ourselves—which job do I like the best? Which job is most likely to remain undone if I dont' do it? Don't use a gold watch brain on tack hammer job. If we approach life that way we will be living a life that counts.

Following Rev. Mr. McLean's address Gladys Gerrard and Morley Clark led in a couple of spirituals; the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Roy Rickard.

Red Cross Report

The regular monthly meeting of the executive of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on September 28 with the president, Mr. M. P. Duff, in the chair.

The treasurer, Mr. Zeran, reported for August:

Receipts	$2,240.90
Bills	167.07

It was recommended that Mrs. Bulger of the Catholic Women's League be added to the executive.

The reports of the Women's War Work Committee and the Jam Committee follow:

Women's War Work Committee.

In spite of the holiday season the outcome of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross was very satisfactory. 1,841 articles of clothing and knitted supplies for the armed forces were shipped to Toronto during the months of June, July and August. This number included 25 leather jerkins and 841 knitted articles, 41 quilts and 313 articles for British Civilian Relief.

The workers in the different groups are again getting into stride for the winter's work which is very gratifying as a large quota of children's garments are to be made. These garments call for about 160 dozen buttons but thanks to the generous response to the advertisement for buttons we will be able to meet the demand.

Our sincere thanks are due all the workers for their interest and increased diligence in helping to keep up the good work. Although victory is in sight there must be no lagging, for the Canadian Red Cross is pledged to help the devastated countries. Already they have sent clothing and supplies to some of these areas.

I wish to express my deep appreciation for the co-operation and help of the conveners and their groups throughout the city and the country; to the cutters for their valuable assistance and to Miss Barbara Graham who has been of untold help in the office.

Respectfully submitted,
Lillian E. Mikel
Chairman, Women's War
Work Committee.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Good Fences Make Good Neighbors".

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am a neighbor of a woman who I think is doing a vile thing. She has a son, 37 years old, married, with one child, and another child expected shortly. This neighbor is doing everything she can to break up her son's marriage. She has him to her house constantly for his meals, and now every time I see his car drive up to her door, at mealtime I see red. At first I thought nothing about it, but then I was told that his wife comes from a very nice family, that she stays with her child constantly, never goes out for any entertainment. I've made it my business to make inquiries, and I've been told by this husband's relatives that his wife is too good for him and that she should get a permanent separation.

Whenever I see this neighbor of mine, I try to avoid her, for she is always talking about someone. And she and her husband are always bickering. . . I suppose because she wants her son back with her to live.

Can't something be done about a situation of this kind? Can a woman like this expect to have good luck? Isn't there something lacking in a man who keeps running to his mother?

I've always minded my own business, but this time I've decided to go to call on this young wife and tell her I'll do anything I can for her, suggesting that I could stay with her child some evening so that she can go out.

My husband says I should stay out of this situation, but this time I'm going to have my own way. Do you think this will be all right?

J. W.

No, I don't think your plan is all right. . .I think it's all wrong. Follow your husband's advice, "stay out of this situation". I know that he, as well as I, values the human kindliness of your intentions, but interfering between a husband and a wife, and between a mother and her son is about as safe as playing with T.N.T. You've listened to hearsay and gossip and you have no way of knowing the real circumstances. You don't even know the wife, and certainly could not know what her reactions might be to your visit or to your suggestions, however kindly meant. She may be, may very well be, a retiring, sensitive-spirited woman who would cringe at the thought of anyone's taking the liberty of stepping across the threshold of her life. Even with intimate, lifelong friends, we have no right to do this unless we are given this precious right.

"Good fences make good neighbors" is a wise old saying. Think about this, and don't yield to the temptation to look over the fence at things that really aren't your business. And such a fine woman as you say this wife is, and I'm sure she is, will have devoted friends (as well as members of her family) who will most willingly, I'm sure, stay with her child while she goes out, if she wishes to. Leave that "wish" to her.

Card For a Soldier's Baby.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,—

Will you please set me right? A friend of mine whose husband is in the Service, had a baby recently. While she was in the hospital I sent her a card of congratulation, and I addressed it to "Mr. and Mrs. Smith". A neighbor of mine says this is wrong, because it is Mrs. not Mr., who is in the hospital. But I claim that the baby's father should be congratulated too!

S. S.

It was quite all right for you to address your congratulatory card to both the baby's mother and father. But perhaps it would have been better to have addressed the card to the mother, and on the card itself added a note of congraulation to the baby's father, so that the mother could have sent this friendly message to him.

MARMORA

St. Paul's Rectory Interior Redecorated By Ladies' Guild

Marmora — Members of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild are putting the finishing touches just now to a redecoration of the interior of St. Paul's rectory on which they have been engaged for the past three weeks. The whole interior presents a veritable transformation. The upper part of the rectory was insulated a few weeks ago and the painting of the exterior was at the same time done by Mr. and Mrs. Claud Nichol. Men of the congregation have also worked with the wardens, H. R. Pearce and W. D. Lavender, in the cutting down of undesirable trees near the fence of the rectory grounds and in a general clean-up of the grounds. They have also carried out excavation work in connection with a new approach to the church basement which is being built by Spencer and Son. This firm is also making a chute beneath the north wall of the church to facilitate the storage of fuel and will lay a new cement walk from the vestry to the church grounds entrance. It is expected that most of these necessary repairs will have been completed before the arrival of the new rector and family at the end of next week.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Love and Loyalty.

Nowadays a girl has often to be pretty much grown up to be equal to the demands of her own love affair. A war bridegroom may present a problem that an inexperienced 19-year old can hardly deal with alone.

Alice—— who has been engaged two years, has one of these problems. Her fiance, Bill——, aged 21, has been honorably discharged from the Army because his nerves are in bad shape —the sort of thing that used to be called "Shell-shock". Before Bill went to war, both he and Alice had looked forward to marrying almost the very moment he should return.

Alice, anticipating this, has made ready her chest of linen and has even prepared much of her trousseau. And Bill's parents, being well-to-do, would be happy to finance the young couple until Bill should be well enough to enter business. But now——, I will let Alice tell her own story:

"Bill says he loves me as much as ever but he pays scarcely any attention to me. When anybody mentions our marrying, he smiles in a sweet way, but you can see that the idea means nothing to him. Sometimes we sit together for hours and he will hardly speak a word. The doctor says he will be as good as ever in two years, but how can the doctor know?

"Meanwhile, another boy, Ted —, who came to live in our town only six months ago, and who is disqualified for military service by a heart murmur, is terribly in love with me. He insists it isn't fair to reject him for a boy who doesn't know and may never know whether he is in love or not. Ted is an awfully sweet boy and says the most fascinating things to me, and I suppose if it were not for dear old Bill, I would marry him in a minute as he is very eligible. What do you advise"?

Without actually offering advice, I pointed out to Alice that unless she is sure her love for Bill is dead, isn't she really bound to fulfill the promise she made him, all the more because he is temporarily ill?

It may be that she is too immature to realize this, or to understand Bill's actual condition. Perhaps it is beyond her to wait two years for a man who cannot even make love to her. But in that case isn't she too undeveloped to take on the responsibilities of marriage with anybody?

Fashion Flashes

A DISTINCT CHANGE from the bulky jacket of long haired fur such as for lynx, is the sleek, very tailored jacket of flat fur, nice with woolen dresses or skirts and blouses. Black American broadtail is especially adaptable for this mode, one version of which is a one-link-button jacket made on the lines of a tailored cloth jacket with flap coin pockets and handkerchief pocket.

TIME AGAIN to review the fur-trimmed hat. Gray felt, cut on high crowned, profile brim lines, is trimmed with a huge pompom of silver fox for high accent. A band of steel beads encircles the crown.

THAT PERENNIAL FAVORITE, black with pink, comes through in many versions. It is used for an evening suit, the skirt and gilet of pure silk crepe, the jacket of petunia pink, the front massed with black sequins in a diamond pattern. Collarless neckline, closing at waist.

NO NEED to pile fur on a suit to make it pretty and smart. A really charming suit is of brown woolen, the jacket trimmed with heart-shaped breast pockets of leopard, and a big button of fur at the waist closing.

ONLY A ROSE, but it seems to be the favorite hat trimming. Burnished brown beaver felt is used for a hat with a heart-shaped brim in which nestles two full blown roses in apricot-colored velvet.

Reliance Boxing Club Gives 2,000 Patrons Excellent Card Of Boxing Bouts at the Arena

"Dynamite" Wheeler of Oshawa Wins Main Bout Over Local Boy

BOUTS WELL HANDLED

(By K. J. C.)

Boxing returned to Belleville in no uncertain terms Friday night, when upwards to 2,000 fight fans placed their stamp of approval on nine bouts presented by the Reliance Boxing Club at the Hume Arena.

Judging from the enthusiasm shown the fight game needed only a high class card, as provided by Promoters Bill Crawford and Fred Fisher, to bring out the largest boxing crowd ever to witness the manly art of self defence in Belleville. From the opening bout between two Oshawa boys of the "Pee Wee" class to the main attraction, that saw Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler of Oshawa, win over Georgie Palmatier of Belleville, there wasn't a dull moment. Although there were no knockouts registered on the card it was a lively and entertaining evening that sent the patrons from the local Market Street sports palace singing praises of the entire show and assuring a repeat crowd, when the boxers return to Belleville October 13th next. The officiating and judging was par-excellence to satisfy an unbiased patronage.

Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, former Belleville boxer, now residing in Oshawa, tied Belleville's Georgie Palmatier up to win the main bout in three straight. The weaving Wheeler hasn't changed his boxing style and even early in the main scrap showed willingness to "take two for one" in order to get inside Palmatier's defence, where he did the most damage with solid head and body blows. Palmatier, on the other hand, drove straight lefts at Wheeler's head, but the latter's punches were far more effective. Wheeler spent the final round getting in his Sunday punch and then tying the willing Palmatier up to win the nod.

Stephens Wins.

Ted Stephens, fighting under the Reliance A.C. colors, had little difficulty in gaining a three round decision over the aging George Rorebeck of Oshawa, as Stephens registered the only noticeable knockdown of the show, when Rorebeck found himself temporarily on the canvas as the result of a right to the head in the first round. It was a case of youth must be served as Stephens landed heavy effective body blows to win handily. Incidentally Rorebeck is the father of Roger Rorebeck, the 65-pound lad, who was in the curtain-raiser.

Semi-Final Good Bout.

One of the best fights on the card was the opening semi-final, that saw Doug Day of Belleville, gain a split decision over Kenny Cowie of Oshawa, in a spirited three-round go that left nothing to the imagination as the contestants battled and slugged toe-to-toe around the ring to bring the fans to their feet screaming for a K.O., that just wasn't there. It was Day's second fight in a ring, his first being a draw with Cowie at Oshawa last week. The first round saw the gladiators exchanging torrid lefts and rights to the head. Cowie led off in the second, but Day's rapier-like left was in the Motor City scrapper's face repeatedly with the result Cowie was swinging wild and missing in the final round with Day straightening his ring adversary up with repeated right hooks to the jaw. Cowie finished on the defensive. It was a popular Day decision.

Downes Wins Decision.

"Jumping Jerry" Downes of Belleville, pounded out a decision over Joey McPhee, of Oshawa, and left the Motor City scrapper bleeding profusely from the nose at the final bell. Once the patrons saw blood, they sensed a knockout and went wild, but the cagey McPhee held on. Downes gained an initial round edge with his effective inside fighting to beat McPhee to the punch. However, the Oshawa lad jolted Downes several times to straight lefts to the face early in the middle stanza, but the Belleville lad managed to get inside McPhee's defence and drew blood late in the middle session. With McPhee's nose bleeding badly Downes repeatedly hit his mark with rapier lefts that left McPhee's mug bloodstained, as he was missing badly at the bell.

Peterboro Boy Wins.

Elongated Dave Thompson of Peterboro, gained a decision over Crabby Crandell, of Oshawa, in the 145-pound class with a strong attack on the loser's noggin. Crandell's body punches did not prove effective nor seem to hurt Thompson.

Bruce Lidster, Oshawa, won over Ray Palmatier of Belleville, as the result of effective counterpunching. Lidster also, being able to repeatedly make the local mittsman miss even at close range. Palmatier finished punching strongly, but Lidster had piled up an early lead with his counter punching blows.

Opening fast and racing through for three fast rounds, Rance Bush, Belleville, was given the nod over Maxie Fisher, 141, of Oshawa. Fisher was missing frequently, while Bush proved strong in his ability to get in his punches before tying Fisher up. Both tried feverishly for knock-outs in the final round, Fisher swinging wildly, while Bush resorted to short right punishing blows.

Punches Out Win.

[illegible] Brown, [illegible] Belleville, punched out a win over Dick Rosetti, 135, also of Belleville in an action-filled three rounds that settled the fans back in their seats. Rosetti's chief and most effective punch was a lightning, rapier-like left to the head that rocked Brown occasionally. However, Brown had the better of the inside fighting and finished not only stronger, but punching heavier to gain a split decision in an inter-club scrap.

The fans gave 65-pound Hughie Smith and 70-pound Roger Rorebeck, both of Oshawa, a big hand for their spirited three-round curtain-raising bout as these sub-teen-aged lads not only showed boxing promise, but keen sense of the fight game and willingness to step in and exchange punches in the "pee wee" class. It was a fitting opener for a great show and the judges gave Smith the nod, but the fans didn't care, the paid customers were more than pleased with the bout, as a matter of fact, that goes for the whole show.

The nights' officials were—Referee for the first eight bouts, Fred Parry; for the main bout, Harry Robinson. Judges, George Wallbridge, Joe Semain, Harry Robinson and Fred Parry. Timer—Harold Kurtz.

TIGERS, BROWNS TIED UP AGAIN IN LEAGUE RACE

Likely Last Game of Season May Not Produce a Winner

TWO GAMES LEFT

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns are tied again in the American League thus forcing the race, tightest in either major league since 1908, to go the full 154 games—and perhaps into a playoff—before the winner is decided.

As a result of the Browns' 4-1 and 1-0 double triumph over the New York Yankees while the Tigers split, 5-2 and 2-9 with the tail-end Washington Senators yesterday, the winner will not be known until the last outs in the Tigers-Nat and Browns-Yankees games Sunday.

In the event the season ends with both teams still deadlocked a single-game play-off will take place on Monday at Detroit.

Only once before has such a drastic move been necessary—in 1908—when Chicago Cubs and New York Giants clashed for the National League flag. The Cubs behind three-fingered Mordecai Brown won that one from Christy Mathewson, 4-2, and went on to win the world championship from the Tigers.

The Brownies moved up on even terms as Jack Kramer bested the Yanks' Ernie Bonham in the opener and Nelson Potter outpitched Hank Borowy in the nightcap. The victories not only eliminated the Yankees from any mathematical pennant chance but also made it impossible for Joe McCarthy's men to gain 2nd place.

In winning the second game, the Browns made only two hits but Don Gutteridge's double, a wild pitch and an infield out scored the lone run in the first frame.

Sensational Fielding

The Browns were helped by sensational fielding. Mike Kreevich robbed Johnny Lindell of an extra-base hit in the eighth with two on and two out, and Gutteridge ended the game with a sterling stab of pinch-hitter Paul Waner's looping fly with the tying run on second and two out in the ninth.

After winning the opener handily from the Nats, the Tigers saw their ace Paul (Dizzy) Trout routed in the nightcap and went down to defeat as Stan Spence belted a home run and a triple to account for 7 runs, four runs batted in and three runs scored. Southpaw Mickey Haefner was the winner.

Cincinnati moved to within a half-game of the second-place Pirates by whipping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 10-2, while the Phillies blanked Pittsburgh, 3-0, behind the seven-hit pitching of Ken Raffensberger. Ted Wilks, likely world series starter, lost his fourth game against 17 victories as the Giants defeated the National League champion Cardinals, 3-2, in 10 innings. Boston beat the Cubs, 5-1, for Nate Andrews' 16th victory.

In other American League games, Philadelphia's Athletics won the 1st from Cleveland, 4-2, and gained a tie in the second, 1-1, the game being halted by darkness at the end of nine innings. The Chicago White Sox, behind Thornton Lee, defeated the Boston Red Sox, 4-3, at night.

NATIONAL NEEDS BEFORE SPORT SAYS CONTROLLER

Members of St. Louis Flyers Asked to Help in Elevators After Practice Hours

TEAM MAY LEAVE

Port Arthur, Sept. 30 (CP)—St. Louis Flyers, American Hockey League team training here, are faced with the alternative of leaving the city or losing some of their players for employment at Lakehead grain elevators, it was learned last night.

It was reported from Port William that Grain Controller A. A. Heaps, National Selective Service, had called about 30 of the team's players from practice at the Port Arthur arena and appealed to them to take work in elevators.

Mr. Heaps was said to have told coach Hap Emms of the Flyers that if the team remained in Port Arthur some of the players might be placed in elevators. Suggestions that players work in elevators after hockey hours were unsatisfactory to both Emm and Mr. Heaps.

Mr. Heaps has refused to discuss the situation.

For some weeks there has been a labor shortage in Lakehead elevators with about 20,000 freight cars at present waiting to be unloaded.

Work Before Sport.

Port William, Sept. 30 (CP)—National needs come before sport A. A. Heaps, Dominion Grain Controller at the Lakehead, said here last night.

He was commenting on an appeal he made earlier in the day to hockey players training in Port Arthur with St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League. He urged them to trade their hockey sticks for work in hard pressed Lakehead elevators.

"An unprecedented bottleneck in grain handling exists here and physically capable men are urgently needed," he said. "Hockey players, I believe are physically able to do this work."

The grain controller said there were men not only over 60 but beyond 70 and 80 years doing a grand job in the elevators "while these young men are chasing a puck."

Mr. Heaps said the next two or three days would indicate what course of action would ensue.

Training of the St. Louis Club was suspended yesterday while players attended a meeting with Selective Service officials. No results of the meeting were disclosed.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKELSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 30—(CP)—The Nazi propaganda machine, offside as usual, netted a beauty when Britain's sixth wartime football season opened under sunny skies.

While teams played to thousands of spectators without one postponement, Goebbels told the German people in a broadcast that "all football matches in London have been cancelled because of the flying-bomb terror."

This is what really happened:

Matches were uninterrupted and the buzz-bombs didn't threaten. Anyway, spectators were much too absorbed in the games to notice the "spotters," with flags and whistles, standing at high points around the stadia, ready to give warning.

Referees were on the alert to stop play at a moment's notice. Spectators were asked to spread themselves as much as possible round the stands and to take cover in the nearest shelters or throw themselves on the ground if a robot approached.

At the London ground of Tottenham Hotspur, which can accommodate 80,000, the crowd followed the advice to spread out. Crystal Palace had no need of a plan whereby the gates were to be thrown open, in the event of danger, so that spectators could make a swift getaway.

Throughout other parts of southern England the same procedure followed. But everywhere it was the same. There was "nothing to report."

Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, taking twice-weekly lessons at a riding school near Maidenhead, have progressed so much they now can jump without reins or stirrups.

"They have good hands," said Horace Smith, manager of the school which was evacuated from London after being bombed out. "They are very keen and, consequently, very easy to teach."

Princess Elizabeth recently purchased a hack with the intention of joining in organized hunts—probably after the war is won.

Capt. John Hislop, one of Britain's best amateur jockeys both on the flat and over the hurdles, graduated as a parachute jumper the other day and described this new "sport" as "rather like going over Becher's Brook (probably the toughest jump on English steeplechase courses) without a horse."

"The worst of it is," he added, "that it means a fall every time."

Hislop came away from the beaches of Dunkerque and later

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, Sept. 30—(CP)—A suggestion that a lacrosse hall of fame be established at New Westminster has been put forward by Jack (The Voice) Wood, coach of that city's famed Salmonbellies. Wood opened discussion on the subject when he did a guest column for Alf (Vancouver Sun) Cottrell.

Claiming New Westminster was known the world over as the home of lacrosse, Wood pointed out Salmonbellies have been in the finals 16 times in the past 35 years and won the title nine times. New Westminster Adanacs were in the finals once and captured the championship once.

Wood adds that the Minto Cup, for years emblematic of professional supremacy in Canada, came west in 1908 and the east failed to take it back for the next 17 years of competition.

Dan (Vancouver Province) Ekman kept the ball rolling with the comment that "Most lacrosse men agree that it is of no great moment where the hall of fame is established, so long as it is kept on the west coast. New Westminster would appear to be the logical site..."

Ekman reported that when a large Hollywood movie outfit conferred with Dominion government officials about making a short on box lacrosse the Ottawa men advised: "Go to New Westminster for there is the home of box lacrosse."

Ekman added the Pacific coast is the last remaining sector of the nation in which the game thrives in its old-time splendor with the comment that "Boxla officials out here are worried over the possibility that a dyed-in-the-wool Easterner will come along with imposing proof that the hall should be established in some Ontario hamlet."

Improvement of the Breed?

Some of the horse race fans are a bit perturbed about conditions on the coast this summer. Johnny (Vancouver Province) Park writing about the Victoria meet said "Some horses couldn't stand up in soft mud one day and the next, in only a trifle heavier course, they would gallop and romp in front of their field. This baffled some of Vancouver's biggest bettors to such an extent that six of them left for home."

Joe (Victoria Colonist) Delahunty said some owners "swear that they will not return to the Willows next years under the same conditions which prevailed this season." The racing association asked the owner and trainer of the horse to appear before a board after Royal Canadian Mounted Police reported the horse was stimulated in a race it won.

However, the provincial government wasn't heard protesting about anything. Official figures showed $6,168,217 was bet at Vancouver and Victoria this year, an increase of $662,021 over 1943. It collected $431,317 as seven per cent of the mutuel handle and received 10 per cent of the total gate receipts.

Welland Ordered To Play Windsor For O.B.A. Title

Hamilton, Sept. 30—(CP)—President Herbert Berscht of the Ontario Baseball Association said today that Welland Combines have been ordered to play Windsor in the finals for the Association title and if Welland fails to do this, Windsor will be declared champions.

The president's announcement followed refusal of the London club to replay its semi-final series with Windsor after first baseman Hank Biasatti of London had been declared ineligible because he played Sunday ball in Detroit. Biasatti, native of Windsor, is a Canadian Army sergeant stationed at Chatham.

Whether the Welland club will play Windsor is not known here. It decided last night to play a series with London for the 'real championship' of Ontario and Berscht said today the O.B.A. regards this as an exhibition series. He added that if the Welland club fails to meet Windsor it will be liable to suspension but declined to state definitely whether such action would be taken.

He did make it clear that the O.B.A. executive would not hold another meeting to discuss the situation.

'Mad Russian' To Meet Watson In Main Bout

Undefeated in three appearances at the Hume Arena, Ivan Rasputin, the Mad Russian, was signed by Promoter Frank Tunney to meet "Whipper Billie" Watson in the main bout of next week's wrestling show at the Hume Arena.

"Here is one of those natural bouts that come about only on frequent occasions. Each man boasts of a formidable record and each features a different method of attack in which to gain victory. The unpredictable Rasputin uses his famed Russian bear hug as his principal medium of attack to subdue his opponent by brute strength, while Watson employs speed, science and particularly his avalanche hold, that has rocketted him to heights in the wrestling world," explained Matchmaker Tunney as he placed his personal stamp of approval and rubbed his hands in glee upon making such a match.

Both Rasputin, the bewhiskered and behaired Russian who resembles a fugitive from Tarzan's jungle, and the popular and agile Watson are top-flight grapplers, who would command a large following in any wrestling city. To support this strong main bout Mr. Tunney is bringing back Dr. Len Hall, the Hollywood ring villain, to meet Pierre DeGlane, the popular Montreal wrestler. A guaranteed preliminary opens the proceedings.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Joe (Horse) Desson, veteran defenceman with former Niagara Falls senior and intermediate Ontario Hockey Association teams, and who played last season with Philadelphia of the U. S. eastern amateur league, will report to Hershey Bears of the American League next week. Accompanying him will be Henry Damore, who was with New York Rovers last year.

It should be known within the next few days whether St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League will be permitted to continue training in Port Arthur. A. A. Heaps, Dominion grain controller asked the players to trade their hockey sticks for work in lakehead elevators, saying elderly men were doing a 'grand job' in the hard pressed elevators "while these young men (the hockeyists) are chasing a puck."

Fate of the Quebec senior hockey league in the forthcoming season appears to rest upon the shoulders of Sylvio Mantha, coach of the University of Montreal team. The league has withheld decision until Oct. 7 upon suspending operations. Mantha has said he would provide three Montreal entries for the Q.S.H.L. by then.

Soccer returns to the continent this week-end, with British Internationals meeting a team representing France in Paris Saturday and playing Belgium in Brussels Sunday. The last games played in France took place four years ago, when a British army team met a French army side.

Mentor of the Brooklyn Dodgers next year will be Leo Durocher, who has managed the club since 1939 and who has signed a one-year contract for the 1945 season. This is the first year the Dodgers have been out of the first division since Durocher succeeded Burleigh Grimes as pilot.

A Winnipeg charitable institution will be the beneficiary of the east-west schoolboy football series to be played there Oct. 14 and 16, the western sportsmen sponsoring the series have announced. St. Michael's College of Toronto will oppose St. Paul's and St. John's Colleges of Winnipeg in the games.

Big Bunny Wadsworth, who starred when the former Ottawa Roughriders were a topnotch club in the Big Four, is returning to the gridiron wars. Bunny, a few years ago rated as one of the best middle wings in Eastern Canadian football, will turn out with Ottawa Trojans of the O.R.F.U.

Percy Williams, Vancouver, winner of the 100 and 200 metres for Canada at the 1928 Olympic Games at Amsterdam, is a civilian pilot at No. 5 Air Observers School here. Discussing the future of track and field in Canada he said the sport would not flourish until the public in general support it and "that means construction of indoor tracks."

Bunny Wadsworth, who a few years ago was rated as one of the best middle wings in Eastern Canadian football, is returning to the game this season with Ottawa Trojans of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. He will play Saturday when the Ottawa club plays its opening game of the Ontario Rugby Football Union schedule against Hamilton Indians.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

The inspector was visiting the village school. Pointing to a little lad in the corner, he asked "Who wrote Hamlet?" The little boy nervously replied, "P-p-please sir, it wasn't me."

The inspector, greatly aroused by the incident, related the story to the squire. The squire laughed and laughed and at last said, "What a joke! And I suppose it was the little lad all the time."

Looking Ahead.

We forgot to mention yesterday the fact that in American ten-men softball all players wear gloves, which also tends to assist in the defensive play making it much easier to play ground balls. Unlike the Canadian game, where only the catcher and first baseman wear gloves, the American players wear mammoth big mitts, that would even put a baseball player's gloves to shame. Naturally this also helps the defensive games played by the Yanks.

Attending the world softball tournament in Cleveland was Mr. W. J. Passmore of Moose Jaw, Sask. Mr. Passmore is a western Canada theatre man, who is paramountly interested in girls' softball in the Prairie Provinces and when the world tournament was held in Chicago he headed his Moose Jaw "Miller" girls to the Windy City. What we learned from Mr. Passmore will doubtless be big sporting news across Canada next spring and we do not believe we are divulging secrets or breaking faith when we relate just why Mr. Passmore journeyed to Cleveland for the 1944 tournament this year.

Mr. Passmore assured us he was voicing the opinion of the Prairie Province softball heads, who feel an all-Canadian softball tournament would serve the purposes of Canadian softball even better than competing in the American series.

"Frankly I've watched these American tournaments for some years past and I'm firmly convinced there is little chance of a Canadian team winning. If such a thing did happen the Canadian team would have to be much more superior to counteract the obstacles confronting us," opined Mr. Passmore.

However, if we had an all-Canadian softball tournament then the Americans couldn't advertise theirs as a world series. Once the Canadian winners were established then an international or world series could be arranged between the Canadian and American champions in both the men's and girls' groups and a truer light placed on the final champions," explained Mr. Passmore, as he assured Frank Doughty and Ted Kirkpatrick western Canada was one hundred percent behind the all-Canadian movement.

Mr. Passmore returned to Toronto with the Sunday Morning Class and intends to visit Montreal and Hamilton in an effort to converge the East with the West in the promotion of an all-Canadian softball union. He asserts the president of such an organization should be located in Toronto until the Canadian association becomes permanent. Mr. Passmore also informed us the western winners were willing to travel east to Toronto, if the Queen City softball moguls are interested in 1945. Incidentally at this point we could reveal that the Elks' Field management in Cleveland, where the 1944 world softball tournament was played, has contracted to have the American championship series played in Cleveland for the next five years.

When a city of 22,000 population can send a girls' softball team to the world tournament, is it too far fetched to assume Belleville couldn't put forth a five-year plan and perhaps enter the Canadian tournament after the war?

However, before such a project could be even discussed a new playing field would have to be procured, lights established and a junior league operated in conjunction with a four-teamed senior loop. It's not at all out of the way or impossible, but such a project would entail considerable executive endeavour.

The Weekend.

For local sport consumption this weekend there is the All-Star versus Marine softball game this afternoon ....Tomorrow afternoon at the Alemite Field the local Juniors and Ernie Summers' Alemites meet in the final baseball game of the season....They are playing for the city league baseball title at three... Ernie Smith will hurl for the Alemites and Bob Buxton for the Juniors....Incidentally the Squire Juniors are in Peterboro this afternoon for their third and final game with Toronto Carltons.

Boxing Popular.

Bill Crawford and Freddie Fisher can stand up today and take a bow. Last night under the colors of the Reliance Boxing Club these lads, and their associates that included Howard "Coy" Wheeler of Oshawa, packed upwards to 2,000 into the Hume arena for the first boxing show that has been attempted in Belleville for many a year. It was a thrill-packed card that was run off in a smooth manner with no substitutions or unnecessary delays and when it was announced another fight card would be presented next month the response alone was sufficient to prove the popularity of the mit game in this district.

Of the six inter-city bouts local boxers got the favored nod in four and this includes the main go that went to Howard "Little Dempsey" Wheeler, who thrilled fight fans here a decade ago. Wheeler hasn't lost any of his ring cunningness and won over Belleville's Georgie Palmatier in his usual manner of "taking two for one."

Our selections were the Doug Day-Kenny Cowie scrap and the Jerry Downs-Joey McPhee go. It is not because the local leather-pushers happened to win, but simply because these two joists were productive of more action, better fighting and might easily have been productive of knockouts. When the repeat performance rolls around reserve seats will be at a premium. However, in the meantime the wrestlers will hold sway every Wednesday night and next week it's none other than Ivan (the Mad Russian) Rasputin versus "Whipper Billie" Watson and that's bigtime grappling on any matchmaker's calendar.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 494

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Cut yourself another slice of responses to a three bid. But be warned that these replies apply only to correct three bid openings. None of that phoney three bid stuff goes here.

The true three bid (in a major suit) shows a re-rebiddable suit and a sure outside trick in a hand that will count seven or eight tricks. It is assumed to have eight tricks.

An opening bid of two in a suit forces partner to bid. Even if he has no trick of any kind. But an opening three bid does not force partner to bid with a trickless hand.

In other words, in answer to a three bid, partner may pass if he has no trick. Because then, even if the three bidder pulls an extra trick out of a hat, a game in a suit is not there.

Mathematically, partner of a three bidder needs two tricks for a responding bid. Because the three bidder denies having more than eight tricks. And nine tricks will not make a suit game.

But the three bidder has a long, strong suit in a lopsided hand. Almost anything can happen to give him an extra trick. At any rate, a three bidder usually feels that he is entitled to a gamble.

So, it is common practice for a three bidder to expect a bid from a partner who has at least one trick. Therefore, with one trick or more, partner of a three bidder does not pass.

Suppose partner opens with three hearts when you have this hand:

♠A 6 4
♥9 5 3
♦9 6 5 3
♣J 5 2

Your one trick may not be enough to help make game. But with it, partner expects you to raise to four hearts for a game try.

By rights, any responding bid to an opening three bid should promise two tricks or more. But with one trick, responder acts like a dice thrower who prays "come seven, come eleven."

Shake, rattle, and roll.

WILLIE PEP WINS OVER A. WRIGHT

By FRITZ HOWEL
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Sept. 30 — (AP)—Having cut a wide swath through his own division, climaxed by last night's successful title defence against veteran Albert (Chalky) Wright, featherweight champion Willie Pep aimed today at a scrap with Juan Zurita, Mexico's holder of the N.B.A. lightweight laurels.

The dancing, weaving, jabbing former sailor from Hartford, Conn., didn't give Wright a chance, outpointing him by a much wider margin than when he took his crown in November, 1942. Pep kept his left hand in Chalky's face for practically the entire 15 rounds, keeping him off balance and never letting him get set for his "Sunday punch." There were no knockdowns.

Pep weighed 125 1-4; Wright 125½

The 22-year-old holder of the New York version of the feather crown picked up 50 per cent of the $66,740 gate paid by 15,433 fans, and Wright got 12 1-2.

Pep's victory over Wright was his 79th in 80 starts, his only setback being at the hands of Sammy Angott, former lightweight champion. Despite that loss to a heavier foe, Pep is anxious to do some campaigning in the heavier class again.

Lou Viscusi, Pep's pilot, said he would open negotiations immediately for a bout with Zurita, with neither title at stake.

The Bears raked Oriole hurler Red Embree for 10 hits, scoring twice in the second and twice in the fourth.

In tonight's third encounter in the best-of-seven series, 17-year-old Don Johnson will start for the homesters against either Bobo Palica or Stan West of Baltimore.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Sept. 30 — (AP)—The United States Military Academy has just issued a booklet, written by the able Joe Cahill, based on the theme "Football pays dividends in battle." . . . Today, when the 1944 cadet football team opens its season, we can think of nothing better than to quote a few passages about three of the eight football-playing officers whose careers are sketched.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower

When 21-year-old Ike Eisenhower entered West Point, he was known as a lightweight tackle for Sarnia, Kans., high school who couldn't be fooled more than once on a play . . . As a Plebe he was shifted to the backfield and was on his way toward becoming a Varsity standout when he broke a knee plunging into the Tufts line. So Eisenhower finished his undergraduate career as a freshman coach and cheer leader . . .

Gen. Joseph Stilwell

As a cadet, "Vinegar Joe's" 145 pounds made him a second-stringer. But when Army played Chicago in 1903 it was Stilwell who won the game . . . With the score tied at 6-6, Joe Stilwell entered the game in the last few minutes. A Chicago back fumbled and Walter Eckersall was called upon to punt out back on the 45-yard line. Stilwell took the punt and, seeing a Chicago player ready to smack him, he signalled for a fair catch . . . the over-anxious Westerner interfered and the resulting penalty gave Army the ball on the 20-yard line, from where a field goal brought the winning points . . .

AMERICAN BRED

By Franken Meloney

CHAPTER TEN

"I'm not complaining", Mr. Whitmark protested a little wildly. "I'm only telling you that you'll have to get rid of that dog! . . .And you're going to have awnings", he threw back over his shoulder as he beat a hasty retreat. "Also, I'll paint your kitchen and your bathroom with two coats of white enamel!"

"And that's that", said Ann to the closing door. She knew finality when she met it face to face. She started for the bedroom, then though better of it, and picked up the telephone. It was wiser to call Paul Freund first.

"Tell me when three minutes are up", she requested the operator. Even three minutes was going to make a hole in a practically invisible bank balance, and no job in view.

It was, unfortunately, old Mrs. Freund's uncertain voice that quavered over the wire. It took at least one minute for her to understand who Ann was, and another minute for Paul, who was upstairs with his wife, to come downstairs. She heard his brusque "Hello" with relief.

"What's the matter?" he said.

"I'm bringing Rowdy back to you".

"Don't you like her?"

"Don't I like her—" Ann's voice choked up. "It's just that it won't work out".

"O.K." said Paul. "Shoot her along as soon as you can so I can get her in shape for the puppy sweepstakes."

She was grateful for his matter-of-factness. No needless questions, no wasted words. She wondered if she would have time to ask him about Christopher Wain. No. She couldn't do that over the telephone—there was too much she wanted to find out about this demanding creature to whom she had so quixotically and foolishly turned over Broadfields for fifty dollars a month.

"I'll leave immediately", she told Paul. "And bring you a present of some cans of dog food".

The operator cut in on her. "Your three minutes are up, Madame".

Rowdy was waiting for her, as Ann hung up. Righting the bedside table and gathering up the remains of a lamp, Ann commented caustically, "I wouldn't keep you on a bet! Not even if I were a millionaire".

She took her hat and coat from the closet. Rowdy was overjoyed at the prospect of an outing. She pounded ahead toward the hall. Her tail swished an ashtray to the floor, and swept Mr. Wain's unopened letter after it. I might as well see what's in it, Ann decided If it's another complaint, he can jolly well pack up and move. The impudence of him, inviting her up for a visit! The hot color burned in her cheeks.

She wondered what Mrs. Wain would say to such a performance. She wondered for the hundredth time whether Mrs. Wain might be a mother or an aunt or even a cousin. Not that it made any difference. As far as she was concerned, Christopher Wain was merely a new tenant with a lot of noisy dogs and a very big nerve. But he had a nice handwriting—brazen, and illegible.

A slip of paper floated from between the sheets of kennel stationery and wafted to the floor. She picked it up. It looked like a check. It was a check for seven hundred and twenty dollars! Was he paying a year's rent in advance? Or was it an April Fool joke in March? She read the letter. . . .An instant later she was jiggling the telephone.

Old Mrs. Freund answered again, but this time it was easier for her to understand who Ann was. "Ach", she said, "my son Paul just went to the drugstore. He comes back soon."

"Tell him", said Ann, aware of jubilance ringing through her words, "that I'm not bringing Rowdy back after all. I'm keeping her!"

Rowdy was panting at the door. Ann bent swiftly and hugged the strong arched neck. "Come on", she said, "we're going apartment-hunting".

Helen didn't like the looks of it. She telephoned from White Sulphur to say so. Why had Ann moved, and what was the idea of having all her mail forwarded up to Bar Harbor and then back again to the new address? Was she by any chance trying to avoid Tom, and if so, why? In Helen's frank opinion—and Helen's opinion was always frank—Ann was a fool. She'd look a long while before she'd find as fine a fellow as Tom—brains, money, family. What else did a girl want? Did Ann realize that sooner or later she'd get tired of this absurd hankering for independence? And then where would she be?

"Waiting at the church", said Ann.

"Don't be flip", Helen reproved her.

The telephone talk didn't lead anywhere. Sooner or later Ann knew that she'd be favored with her sister's personal appearance. She was not, however, prepared for Helen's arrival the following morning. The bell rang as she was preparing Rowdy's mid-day stew of beef, spaghetti and vegetables, laced generously with cod-liver oil.

She set the pan on a low stool, and waited to see whether Rowdy was going to turn up her nose at the fruit of half an hour's labor. By some extraordinary system of selection, Rowdy turned up her nose only at the carrots. These remained untouched, in small isolated groups, while everything else became as if it never was.

The bell rang for the third time. Rowdy paused long enough to acknowledge the sound by a perfunctory bark, and then returned to her food. "Go on, eat those carrots!" Ann adjured over her shoulder, as she answered the doorbell, "Rowdy'll be a champion before Gretel if it takes everything I've got".

Her steps dragged. She didn't want to open the door. But when she did—

There stood Helen, obviously disgruntled at having been kept waiting so long.

"Heavens!" she cried, "what took you all day? I thought you were out!"

"For goodness sake, this is a surprise!" Ann returned with that quality of special cheer that one summons for family use. "Terribly glad to see you", she went on, gilding the lily with a lavish hand. "You're looking awfully well—new suit isn't it? Your figure's grand".

Helen's figure was really grand, though a little on the thin side: the sort that happens when a woman's never had children. On the whole, Helen was a good-looking woman. Her gray-green eyes looked a little like grapes, and there was a small pocket of chronic indignation in her chin. Yet, unmistakably they looked like sisters, and the resemblance, was both a reminder and a challenge.

"You smell like fish", Helen abruptly announced with a fastidious wrinkling of her nose.

"Cod-liver oil", Ann dismissed it airily. "The whole place reeks of it".

Helen, who was forever vigilant of health, quickened immediately. "Have you been ill?" she demanded. "You looked peaked".

"I had a little cold, but I'm fine again. Me, cod-liver oil? I'd rather die. Rowdy takes it."

"Rowdy? Who's Rowdy!"

Ann was spared explanation. Rowdy, hearing voices, bounded out to see what it was all about. Full of excellent luncheon and feeling very fit, she greeted Helen with two huge clumsy paws and a long, pink tongue.

"Down, you idiot!" Ann commanded.

But it was too late. Helen was already pancaked against the wall, her hat awry, and her purse and fur-piece skittering to the floor. "Of all the ridiculous, impractical things you've done in your unrestrained, impractical life, keeping this monster is the worst!" she started in with her first lungful of breath.

Ann recognized her sister's blitzy approach—be the first to attack and go into battle with everything you've got. It was the method that she used most effectively with Arthur, and actually Ann preferred it to the reasonable, patronizing attitude reserved for herself and for ladies who sold corsets in department stores.

"I suppose you were put out of your last apartment," Helen went on. "And as for feeding him, good Lord, Ann, I think you're crazy!"

"She," Ann corrected.

"He or she, it's insane." Helen looked around. "This is a more expensive place you've taken," she stated baldly.

Ann nodded. "Much. But it was all I could get, and besides, Rowdy needs a terrace: it takes care of a lot."

"You must have found a wonderful job," Helen hazarded, biting her lips.

Ann snorted. "What do you mean, wonderful job? A college education is a liability these days, not an asset. I even answered an advertisement for a mother's helper. But the mother didn't seem to feel it would help to have Rowdy."

Helen developed little red spots all over her neck, as she put two and two together and got the wrong answer in looking over the apartment. Helen had one of those clean minds that preferred to think evil instead of speaking it.

"Ann," she began and stopped. She began again. "Ann, I'm not blind. All this costs money."

"It certainly does," Ann fervently agreeed.

Ann shrugged. "It's on its last legs. Who'd want it?"

The little red spots on Helen's neck ran up to her face in a purplish flush. "Then where's the money coming from?" she blurted out.

Ann smiled. "You'd never guess. One of the Morgans. Isn't it too marvelous?"

Helen turned pale. Her voice came out in a bleat. "I don't believe it! You? A Rivers?"

"Even Rivers have to eat," Ann reminded her.

"But don't you love him?" Helen whispered.

"Certainly I love him. I've always loved him. He's been my favorite Morgan ever since I was a kid. That's what makes it so hard."

Helen swallowed with difficulty. "Which one is it?"

"Anthony. You remember him—Mad Anthony, we always called him—the most spirited one of the lot."

"Ann!" Helen broke in on a screech, "Stop it this instant!" She rose in agitation. "I won't stay to hear another word! Something dreadful has happened to you! You've lost all sense of decency and shame!"

"Oh, dear," responded Ann, "I didn't dream you'd take it this way. But after all, we've still got eight horses left."

Helen sat down, or rather her legs seemed to cave under her and the sofa met her halfway. "Then you meant one of the Morgans," she said weakly.

"I said 'one of the Morgans'. Or didn't I? Why, Helen, you're white as a sheet! You certainly didn't think I was leading a life of dishonor, just because I have a terrace?"

Helen reared. "The idea! How could such a thought enter my head with your upbringing?"

"You'd be surprised," Ann murmured. "The better the upbringing the bigger the downfall."

Helen ignored the quip. "I gather from all this roundabout talk that you've sold the black stallion," she said primly.

"Mr. Wain did. You know, my tenant. Very enterprising of him, don't you think? It helped me out of a hole, he got his ten per cent commission on the deal, and I was able to send him an extra hundred to take care of repairs."

Helen looked bored. "Well, that settles it, He's definitely not the Wain I had in mind, though I was hoping against hope. Arthur told me, however, that they were lawyers, and wouldn't be renting a place at fifty a month". She gave a short laugh. "Much less getting commissions on what they sell".

"I made the rental price", Ann flared, "and why shouldn't he take a commission?"

Helen was the kind of person who catalogued people once and for all. They were lawyers or doctors or grocers or ambassadors, and she expected them to continue from generation to generation under the same classification; it was the thing to do, and besides, it saved her the trouble to reclassifying them.

"I hope", Helen said now, with a trace of apprehension, "that you are not going to let yourself get involved in any friendly relations with this man, your tenant. I mean after all, just because he sold a horse for you. . . ."

"I haven't seen him since the day he rented the house", Ann informed her. "You can save yourself any worry on that score".

"Oh", said Helen "Well, I must say I'm relieved. That time you talked to me over the phone about him, I gathered you'd found him attractive".

"I don't see how you could have gathered anything of the sort", Ann replied a little sharply.

"You seemed worried about his hand".

Ann glanced at her sister. Once in a great while Helen had her moments, only she never knew when [illegible] having one. Now her face was an utter blank. She had made a remark, and that was all.

"He got mixed up in a dog fight, was bitten. I helped treat the bite until a vet took charge". Ann dismissed the incident curtly. "Besides, he has a wife to worry about him".

"Oh, has he"? Helen seemed surprised and relieved. "You didn't mention that he was married. What kind of a woman?"

"I haven't the least idea. I didn't meet her."

Helen sat up. "That was very stupid of you. You should have made it your business to meet her before turning the house over to them. She might be the worst kind of slattern. Haven't you even been up to see what's happened to the place, how it's being taken care of?"

"No, I haven't", Ann said. "But he's a pest. He wants a new repair almost daily. I haven't even let him know where I moved to, which explains my letters being forwarded, by the way. What does he expect at that rental, anyhow?"

"But that's not the point!" Helen argued. "If you rent your property you have to keep an eye on it, particularly with people you don't know the first thing about".

Ann considered it. "You mean you advise me to drive up and look things over?"

"Definitely". Helen's lips met in a straight line. "You'll probably find a shambles by this time. Moreover, I'd see this Mr. Wain and have a talk with him. For all you know, he may have sold two of those valuable horses. Human nature is human nature. It's just tempting him to all sort of laxness if he thinks you're not interested in your property and don't care what happens to it".

"There's a great deal in what you say", Ann granted, with a slow dimple coming into the lower part of her cheek.

"If I were you, I'd drive up there tomorrow," Helen persisted.

"You would?"

"I would".

"I will. But only on your advice", she added.

London, Sept. 30 —(AP)— General Kazimierz Sosnkowski was ousted today as commander-in-chief of Poland's armed forces in a move to placate Russia and pave the way for resumption of friendly Polish-Soviet relations.

'God Save the King' Sung at Close, Instead Of 'O Canada'

Ottawa, Sept. 30 —(CP) — An Eastern Ontario Progressive Conservative association banquet meeting last night declined an invitation from the chairman to close with the singing of "O Canada" and instead sang "God save the King."

The assembly of about 600 persons first sang "God save the King" before hearing addresses by several speakers, including Premier Drew of Ontario.

When the meeting ended, J. Warren York, the chairman, said it would close with the singing of "O Canada."

"No, the King, the King," several members of the audience cried.

They then began singing "God Save the King" and Mr. York joined with them.

WHY TAXIS HAVE FEW ACCIDENTS

Over the past 25 years, taxicab drivers have the lowest per car accident rate of any group of drivers in the country. One of the reasons why they have fewer accidents is that they never fool around with faulty brakes. If your brakes are not in 100% working order, drive in today. Have them relined or adjusted.
